Meet Force With Force After Border Fights

FOREIGNERS ARE WARNED

They Remain in Poland at Own Risk—Nazis to Shoot at Any Planes Flying Over Reich

Proclaims Danzig in Reich

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Friday, Sept. 1.—The German official news agency, D. N. B., announced today that Albert Forster, Nazi Chief of State in Danzig, had proclaimed the reunion of the Free City with the Reich.

Herr Forster notified Adolf Hitler, Fuehrer of Germany, of his action by telegram.

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Friday, Sept. 1.—The German Army was ordered to

BRITAIN AND FRANCE SEND ULTIMATUMS; WARSAW CALLS ALLIES; ITALY NEUTRAL; GERMANS ATTACK POLES ON 4 FRONTS

"meet force with force" and Poland was declared dangerous territory for foreigners by Chancellor Hitler today at 5:30 A. M.

At the same time a naval blockade of the Polish harbor of Gdynia was announced.

Herr Hitler proclaimed his action was because of alleged Polish violations of the German frontier.

Neutral ships in the Baltic were warned they entered Danzig harbor or near-by harbors at their own peril.

The announcement said military operations necessitated these measures.

Herr Hitler gave his orders to his army at 5:30 A. M. to use "force against force."

The command was issued as the order of the day to the army massed on Polish frontiers from the Baltic to the High Tatra Mountains, and in East Prussia.

"A Fight for Honor"

No instruction was made public, however, for any action except for German soldiers to "conduct a fight for honor and the right to the life of the resurrected German people."

It was not known immediately whether the army had orders to make an advance along the frontiers.

Chancellor Hitler's order to the army follows:

"The Polish State has rejected my efforts to establish a neighborly relations, and instead has appealed to weapons.

"Germans in Poland are victims of a bloody terror, driven from house and home.

"A series of border violations unbearable for a great power show that the Poles no longer are willing to respect the German border.

"To put an end to these insane incitations, nothing remains but for me to meet force with force from now on.

"The German army will conduct a fight for honor and the right to the life of the resurrected German people with firm determination. I expect that every soldier, mindful of the great traditions of the eternal German military, will do his duty to the last.

"Remember always that you are representatives of the National Socialist Greater Germany. Long live our people and our Reich!"

German Schools Closed

The radio announced immediately an indefinite closing of all schools in Germany.

Rapid fire orders followed commanding masters of German vessels to get out of the Baltic Sea and not to enter the Danzig or Polish harbors.

The radio warned all foreigners that Polish territory is a danger zone and their presence was at their own peril because of the likelihood of military action.

Another order issued shortly before 6 A. M. prohibited all except military place flights over Germany.

A moment later came the radio order declaring the Polish harbor of Gydnia blockaded by the German Navy. Neutral vessels were warned to enter at their own peril because of "military operations in this region are necessary region are necessary."

Gydnia and Danzig are but a few miles apart in the same harbor.

The government announcement said German warships would meet foreign vessels steaming into the danger zone and instruct them where to go.

East German Cities Warned

Ships were warned to stay out of waters between 18 degrees 5 minutes [the German-Polish border] and 20 degrees, east longitude.

Warlike orders issued by the War Ministries to the German nation continued to pour forth.

East German communities were warned against possible attack by Polish planes.

But most of Berlin was still asleep and the streets were quiet, any many did not hear the instructions.

Between orders the radio blared forth martial music.

The order banning all but German military flights across Germany declared offending planes would be shot down.

Telephone communication with Danzig from Berlin was impossible.

Germans speculated on whether the Poles had cut the line across Pomorze (the Polish Corridor).

Chamberlain Pins Guilt on Hitler—Railways Are Taken Over

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 1 (Passed by Censor).—Great Britain and France have given Germany her final warning. Both powers were in full readiness tonight to go to war in defense of Poland.

The only hope of escape was for Germany to cease her aggression and withdraw her armies from Polish soil. This was the alternative British Prime Minister Chamberlain allowed Germany in a historic statement to the British Parliament.

He admitted there was almost no hope that Germany would call a halt.

France stood fully beside her partner in the defense pledges to Poland as Mr. Chamberlain cast the die.

Poland Invokes Pact

Neither power showed the slightest signs of wavering as Poland formally invoked the British-Polish mutual assistance treaty on the ground of German aggression.

The Polish Ambassador, Count Edward Raczynski, delivered his country's appeal in a call on Viscount Halifax, British Foreign Secretary. His visit followed upon official reiteration that Britain and France were determined to fulfill their obligations to Poland.

King George signed an order in council to complete the mobilization of Britain's army, navy and air force. He signed it even before the Prime Minister went to the House of Commons and laid the guilt for war on Chancellor Hitler.

The British Ministry of Transport took over British railroads.

The Commons approved a bill providing £500,000,000 to pay for war, defense and the maintenance of public order. Anti-air raid orders enforced a blackout over virtually all of Great Britain

Three million children, women, invalids and the aged were evacuated from London and other city danger zones.

Agreement on Horror

Secret diplomatic exchanges between Herr Hitler and Mr. Chamberlain, published in a White Paper today, disclosed agreement on one ominous point—that if war should come, it would be long and bloodier than the first World War.

The British Prime Minister warned on Aug. 22 that "no greater mistake could be made" than the assumption that the Russian-German pact would prevent the British from aiding Poland if the latter were attacked.

He added that "it would be a dangerous illusion to think that, if war once starts, it will come to an early end, even if success on any one of several fronts on which it would be engaged should have been secured."

Herr Hitler the next day wrotet "An incalculable war between Germany and England would be bloodier than that of 1914 to 1918." He said war "could at best bring some profit to Germany but none at all to England."

Parliament Meets Today

Another session of Parliament was summoned for 2:45 P. M. tomorrow and it was understood there would be a third session Sunday.

In his speech today, Mr. Chamberlain accused Herr Hitler of plunging "the world into misery in order to serve his own senseless ambitions."

"We shall stand at the bar of history," the Prime Minister told the tensely attentive chamber, "knowing that the responsibility for this terrible catastrophe rests on the shoulders of one man—the German Chancellor!"

Mr. Chamberlain declared that if Herr Hitler failed to heed the British warning to recall his armies the British and French Ambassadors in Berlin would ask for their passports—a customary act before a declaration of war.

The Prime Minister admitted that he could not suggest that Germany's answer would be other than unfavorable and said, "I fear I am unable to avoid the responsibility" of asking Britain to accept war. He spoke in low, even tones during most of his 25-minute address, showing signs of emotion only once or twice. Then his voice appeared to choke up.

Interrupted by Cheers

The crowded House interrupted with frequent cheers as he sought to hold Herr Hitler to blame and told of his efforts to save Europe's peace.

Mr. Chamberlain told how "eighteen months ago I prayed that the responsibility might not fall upon me to ask this country" to accept war. But, he went on:

"Now it remains for us to set our teeth and enter upon this struggle—which we have so earnestly endeavored to avoid—with determination to see it through.

"We shall enter it with a clear conscience, with the support of the Dominions and the British Empire and the moral approval of the greater part of the world.

"We have no quarrel with the German people except that they allow themselves to be governed by the Nazi government.

"As long as that government exists and pursues the method which it has so persistently followed in the last two years there can be no peace in Europe."

Lord Halifax made substantially the same speech in the House of Lords.

It was regarded as significant, in view of Italy's failure to enter the undeclared war on the side of Germany, that Mr. Chamberlain paid tribute to Premier Mussolini, "who has been doing his best to reach a peaceful solution."

The Prime Minister said a bill would be introduced making the ages for military service between 18 and 41 years.

King Visits Chamberlain

King George made a personal visit to 10 Downing Street while the War Ministry and Admiralty were issuing directions implementing the general mobilization proclaimed by the order in Council.

The King was greeted by tremendous cheers from the crowd. He had suggested that he drive to the Prime Minister's official residence rather than have Mr. Chamberlain interrupt the defense conferences to come to Buckingham Palace. It was believed to be the first time in English history that a King had journeyed to Downing Street to receive his Prime Minister's report.

A thin column of smoke issuing from the German Embassy and charred pieces of paper floating in the air led to the belief in some quarters that the Nazi staff was burning papers.

Hundreds of thousands of boys and girls, mostly from poor districts of London, scrambled aboard trains bound for the country in the mass removal of the first 3,000,000 persons from cities throughout England and Scotland.

War Cabinet Expected

Hundreds of thousands hurried from London and other large cities under a pre-arranged evacuation plan which became urgent on news that Germany already had struck against Poland.

Creation of a war Cabinet including members of the Opposition and, perhaps, such Conservatives as Winston Churchill, who saw Mr. Chamberlain today, and Anthony Eden, was forecast in political quarters as an early step in the event of an actual declaration of war.

Lloyds of London, the insurance house, announced without explaining its action that it would close tomorrow.

Many main subway stations were ordered closed immediately "so that certain work may be done." This apparently indicated that anti-air raid measures were being taken.

CHAMBERLAIN WARNS NAZIS TO QUIT POLAND

Tells Commons Allies Are Ready to Fight—Denounces Hitler as Solely to Blame for 'Terrible Catastrophe.'

STARR

LONDON, Sept. 1 (A. P. via Radio).—Great Britain and France have sent their last warning to Germany, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told the British Parliament tonight.

"If the reply to this last warning is unfavorable, and I do not suggest that it is likely to be otherwise," Mr. Chamberlain said, "His Majesty's Ambassador is instructed to ask for his passport."

Both governments, Mr. Chamberlain said, had informed Adolf Hitler that they regarded Germany's actions as menacing to Poland and that this called for the "implementation" of the British-French agreement to come to the assistance of Poland.

Unless Germany was prepared immediately to withdraw its troops from Poland, Great Britain would be ready to go at once to the smaller country's support.

Hitler, he said, "has not hesitated to plunge the world into misery in order to serve his own senseless ambitions."

Says Time Arrives for Action.

Britain, he told Parliament, has sent a last warning to Germany. If it should be rejected, he added, and noted parenthetically that he expected it would be, the British Ambassador would ask for his passport.

The time has arrived for action, Mr. Chamberlain said, in a brief opening in which he said he did not propose to say many words.

Eighteen months ago, he pointed out, he had "prayed that the responsibility might not fall on me to ask this country to accept the awful arbitrament of war."

The Prime Minister said a bill would be introduced making the ages for military service between 18 and 41 years.

The British Press Association said this afternoon it understood Parliament would reconvene at 10 A. M. (5 A. M. New York time) tomorrow.

The Ministry of Transport today took over British railroads.

"Mussolini has been doing his best," Mr. Chamberlain told Parliament.

He began addressing the Commons at 6:04 P. M. (1:04 P. M., New York time) and finished at 6:30 P. M. (1:30 P. M., New York time).

At the Bar of History.

News of the German air raid on Warsaw came as he spoke.

Chamberlain declared:

SEP 2 1939

"We shall stand at the bar of history knowing that the responsibility for this terrible catastrophe rests on the shoulders of one man—the German Chancellor!"

The Prime Minister's statement came a few hours after Poland had called on Great Britain for help against Germany and after King George had signed an order for complete mobilization of the British army, navy and air force.

Mr. Chamberlain reviewed the crisis and the notes exchanged by Great Britain and Germany and asserted:

"One passage from the recent communications, dated August 30, showed easily that the final clash might have been avoided had there been at least a desire on the part of the German Government to arrive at a peaceful settlement."

Mr. Chamberlain continued: "The communication said, 'The British Government most strongly urge that both parties should undertake during the negotiations that no aggressive military movement should take place.' . . . The Polish Government replied instantly, on August 31, saying they would prepare on a reciprocal basis to give the formal guaranty. . . .

"We never had any reply from the German Government to that suggestion, one which, if it had been followed, might have saved the catastrophe which took place this morning."

Lords Appear in Uniforms.

As Mr. Chamberlain spoke in the House of Commons, Lord Halifax, Foreign Secretary, spoke in the House of Lords, where many of the peers already were wearing their service uniforms.

Mr. Chamberlain, dealing with Germany's contention that Poland had rejected her sixteen proposals for peace, asserted: "These proposals have never been communicated by Germany to Poland at all."

Mr. Chamberlain began his address to the House of Commons at 1:03 P. M., New York time. He was greeted with a roar of cheers, and waved solemnly in acknowledgment.

Cries of 'God Bless You!'

There were cries of "God bless you" and "Good luck."

"No man can say," the Prime Minister went on, "that the Government could have done more to try and keep open the way for honorable and equitable settlement of the dispute between Germany and Poland.

"Nor have we neglected any means of making it crystal clear to the German Government that if they insisted on using force again in the manner which they have used it in the past we will resolve to oppose them by force."

Recounting Germany's deadline of August 30 for the arrival in Berlin of a Polish negotiator empowered to act on proposals which had not then been given to Poland, Mr. Chamberlain said that Sir Nevile Henderson, British Ambassador to Berlin on August 29 had urged Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop to give the proposals to the Polish Ambassador in Berlin whenever they were ready.

"Thereupon," said Mr. Chamberlain, "our Ambassador reports, Herr Von Ribbentrop in the most violent terms said he would never ask the Polish Ambassador to visit him.

Last Fateful Hours.

"On this Wednesday night, Herr Von Ribbentrop produced a lengthy document which he read aloud in German at top speed. Our Ambassador asked for a copy of the document. The reply was: 'It is now too late as the Polish representative has not arrived in Berlin.'

"So we never got a copy of those proposals. The first time we heard of them was on the broadcast last night."

Mr. Chamberlain continued: "Last night the Polish Ambassador saw Herr von Ribbentrop and expressed to him that they were willing to negotiate with Germany about their dispute on an equal basis.

"The German Government without any further warning crossed the Polish frontier at dawn and it is reported since then that open towns have been bombed." (The expression "open towns" refers to towns without military protection.)

The Prime Minister said the British Ambassador to Berlin had been instructed to inform the German Government: "That, unless the German Government are prepared to give his Majesty's Government assurances that the German Government have suspended aggressive acts against Poland and are prepared promptly to withdraw their forces from Polish territory, his Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom will without hesitation fulfill their obligation to Poland."

Then Mr. Chamberlain added significantly:

"If the reply to this last warning is unfavorable—and I do not suggest it is likely to be otherwise—his Majesty's Ambassador is instructed to ask for his passports.

"In that case we are ready. Final steps have been taken in accordance with prearranged plans. . . .

"Regarding immediate manpower requirements, the Royal Navy, Army and Air Force have as many men as they can conveniently handle at the present moment."

The House approved a resolution offered by Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, to provide $500,000,000 ($2,110,000,000) to pay expenses that may be incurred in defense, maintenance of public order and prosecution of the war.

After Mr. Chamberlain finished his "we are ready" address, Arthur Greenwood, acting leader of the Labor party in Parliament, declared:

"This is the turning point in history. The die is cast."

Cites New White Paper.

After sharply accusing Hitler of "senseless ambitions," Mr. Chamberlain went on to say that a British White Paper just published "makes it perfectly clear that our object has been to try to bring about discussions about the Polish-German dispute between the two countries on terms of equality."

"One passage from a recent communication, dated August 30, showed easily the final clash might have been avoided had there been the least desire on the part of the German Government to arrive at a peaceful settlement," he said.

"The British Government most strongly urged that both parties should undertake during the negotiations no aggressive military movement."

Mr. Chamberlain said "only one course" was open now for Britain, adding that the British and French Ambassadors had handed a message this morning to the German Government in Berlin. The sense of this message was not immediately made known.

GEORGE VI SIGNS EDICT FOR FULL MOBILIZATION

Order Calls Up All Men in Army, Navy and Air Force.

KING VISITS CHAMBERLAIN

Churchill Also Talks With Prime Minister; May Enter Cabinet —London Evacuated.

STARR

LONDON, Sept. 1 (A. P.) (Passed through British censorship).—King George VI today signed an order for complete British Army, Navy and air force mobilization after the Polish Ambassador had called on Britain to help Poland against Germany.

The momentous Polish step in invoking the British-Polish mutual assistance treaty was made on the grounds of German aggression against Poland.

The Polish Ambassador, Count Edward Raczynski, delivered his country's appeal in a call on Lord Halifax, the British Foreign Secretary.

Afterward, Count Raczynski predicted confidently: "Great Britain will come to our aid."

His visit followed upon official reiteration that Britain and France were determined to fulfill their obligations to Poland.

Streets Piled With Sandbags.

Mr. Raczynski hurried before noon through streets piled with sandbags.

At the Foreign Office he told Lord Halifax that Poland was the victim of direct aggression and invoked the treaty.

A thin column of smoke issuing from the German embassy and charred pieces of paper floating in the air led to the belief in some quarters that the Nazi staff was burning papers.

Hundreds of thousands of boys and girls, mostly from poor districts of London, scrambled aboard trains bound for the country in the mass removal of a first 3,000,-

000 persons from cities throughout England and Scotland.

The Government has ordered lighting restrictions, effective tonight, which amount virtually to a general blackout of all England.

Churchill Sees Chamberlain.

The British Parliament had been summoned for 5 P. M., London time. The Cabinet had been in session and King George had summoned the Privy Council as fateful events swiftly developed after German troops and warplanes invaded Poland.

[The treaty Poland invoked was signed just one week ago today. It provides: "Should one of the contracting parties become engaged in hostilities with a European power in consequence of aggression by the latter against the contracting party, the other contracting party will at once give the contracting party engaged in hostilities all the support and assistance in its power."]

Winston Churchill, Britain's world war First Lord of the Admiralty, conferred with Prime Minister Chamberlain.

King George made a personal visit to the Prime Minister at 10 Downing street while the War Ministry and Admiralty were issuing directions implementing the general mobilization proclaimed by the King's order in Council.

Tremendous Cheers for King.

The King was greeted by tremendous cheers from the crowd assembled in Downing street. The monarch had suggested that he drive to the Prime Minister's official residence rather than have Mr. Chamberlain interrupt the defense conferences to come to Buckingham Palace.

His Majesty raised his bowler hat to the crowd and hurried inside No. 10.

It was believed to be the first time in English history that a King had journeyed to Downing street to receive his Prime Minister's report.

The Government ordered all air raid warning systems in the country to be put into immediate operation.

Hundreds of thousands hurried from London and other large cities under a prearranged evacuation plan which became urgent on news that Germany already had struck against Poland.

The feeling of the public seemed general that war involving Britain was now inescapable.

The authorized British statement declared that Poland was fully justified in refusing to submit to more exacting treatment than "is customary even in the case of peace terms imposed on a defeated Power.

The creation of a War Cabinet including members of the Opposition and, perhaps, such Conservatives as Mr. Churchill and Anthony Eden was forecast in political quarters as an early step in the event of an actual declaration of war.

Preparedness measures already had been brought to a high peak after what was interpreted in official quarters as a virtual German ultimatum Tuesday that a Polish envoy be in Berlin by Wednesday with full powers to negotiate a settlement.

Lloyds to Close Tomorrow.

This explained yesterday's swift measures, among them the complete mobilization of the British Navy, the calling of additional army and air force reserves and the decision to remove children, women, invalids and the aged from dangerous metropolitan areas today.

Lloyds of London, the insurance house, announced without explaining its action that it would close tomorrow.

Numerous main subway stations were ordered closed immediately "so that certain work may be done." This apparently indicated that anti-air raid measures were being taken.

Queen Elizabeth early in the afternoon visited the headquarters of the Women's Volunteer Service in Westminster.

Cabinet Convenes.

King George summoned the Privy Council to a meeting today and Parliament was summoned to meet this afternoon as reports were received of a German offensive against Poland.

The Cabinet met at 11:30 A. M. and the Privy Council was to meet shortly thereafter.

Parliament was called to meet at 5 P. M.

The Polish Ambasasdor conferred with Prime Minister Chamberlain before the Cabinet meeting.

Dr. Kordt, the German charge d'affaires, called at No. 10 Downing street at 10:44 A. M.

The text of the authoritative British statement on the crisis said:

"It is pointed out in official circles that if the proclamation to the German people by Herr Hitler which has already been announced should mean as it would seem to mean that Germany has declared war on Poland, it can be stated on the high authority that Great Britain and France are inflexibly determined to fulfill to the uttermost their obligations to the Polish Government.

"The German account of the course of the negotiations is of course wholly misleading.

"On August 29 the German Chancellor informed the British Ambassador that he expected a Polish plenipotentiary to appear in Berlin by the following day with full powers to negotiate a settlement.

"He added that in the meantime he hoped to elaborate the proposals in other words the Polish Government was expected to submit to the procedure imposed on the President of Czecho-Slovakia and to despatch an emissary to Berlin who was to accept terms, the character of which was wholly unknown to the Polish Government.

"The Polish Government have not unnaturally been unwilling to place themselves in this humiliating position.

"It is not customary even in the case of peace terms imposed on a defeated Power to demand that negotiators should not be allowed to refer for instructions to their government.

"It is impossible to comment at such short notice on the misleading statements of the German Government but the general attitude of his Majesty's Government may be briefly defined as follows:

"If the German Government had been sincerely desirous of settling the dispute by negotiations they would not have adopted this procedure which has the character of an ultimatum.

"They would, on the contrary, have begun discussions with the Polish Government in accordance with the normal procedure of civilized governments in order to fix the place and time for the opening of negotiations.

"The Polish Government in the opinion of his Majesty's Government were fully justified in declining to submit to the treatment which the German Government endeavored to impose on them as regards the terms now published, which have never been hitherto communicated to the Polish Government.

"His Majesty's Government can only say that these terms should, of course, have been submitted to the Polish Government with time to consider whether or not they infringed on Poland's vital interests which Germany in a written communication to the British Government had declared her intention of respecting."

Statement of Prime Minister Chamberlain to the House of Commons

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—The text of Prime Minister Chamberlain's statement tonight to the House of Commons follows:

I do not propose to say many words tonight. The time has come when action rather than speech is required. Eighteen months ago I prayed that the responsibility would not fall upon me to ask this country to accept the awful arbitrament of war. I fear that I may not be able to avoid that responsibility, but, at any rate, I could not wish that conditions in which such a burden should fall upon me were clearer than they are today.

No man could say that the government could have done more to try and keep open the way for an honorable and equitable settlement for the dispute between Germany and Poland, nor have we neglected any means of making crystal clear to the German Government that if they insisted on using force in the manner in which they have used it in the past, we were resolved to oppose them by force.

Now that all the relevant documents are being made public, we shall stand at the bar of history knowing that the responsibility for this terrible catastrophe lies on the shoulders of one man. The German Chancellor has not hesitated to plunge the world into misery in order to serve his own senseless ambitions.

I would like to thank the House for the forbearance they have shown me on two recent occasions in not demanding from me information which they recognize I could not give while these negotiations were still in progress.

White Paper Being Prepared

All correspondence with the German Government is being published in the form of a White Paper which will be available to Members, coming in relays, while the House is sitting.

I do not think it necessary for me to refer in detail now to these documents, which are already past history. They make it perfectly clear that our object has been to try to bring about discussions about the Polish-German dispute between the two countries themselves, on terms of equality, the settlement to be one which safeguarded the independence of Poland and which secured its due observance by international guarantees. There is just one passage from a recent communication of ours, dated Aug. 30, which I should like to quote, for it shows how easily the final clash might have been avoided if there had been the least desire on the part of the German Government to arrive at a peaceful settlement.

In this document we state this: "This gove ent fully recognizes the need for speed in the initiation of discussions. They share the apprehensions of the Chancellor arising from the proximity of two mobilized armies standing face to face. They accordingly most strongly urge that both governments should undertake that during the negotiations no aggressive military movement will take place. His Majesty's government feels confident that they can obtain such an undertaking from the Polish Government of the German Government would give similar assurances."

Prompt Polish Response

That telegram, which was repeated to Poland, brought an instantaneous reply from the Polish Government, dated Aug. 31, in which they say that the Polish Government are also prepared, on a reciprocal basis, to give a formal guarantee, in the event of negotiations taking place, that Polish troops will not violate the frontier of the German Reich, provided that a corresponding guarantee is given that there would be no violation of Poland by troops of the German Reich.

We never had any reply from the German Government to that suggestion. It was one which, if it had been followed, must have saved the catastrophe which took place this morning. In the German broadcast last night, which recited the sixteen points of the proposals which they had put forward, there occurred this sentence: "In these circumstances, the Reich Government considered its proposals rejected."

I must examine that statement. I must tell the House what are the circumstances.

To begin with, let me say that these proposals have never been communicated by Germany to Poland at all. On Tuesday, Aug. 29, in replying to a note which we had sent to them the German Government said that they would immediately draw up proposals for a solution, acceptable to themselves, and would, if possible, place them at the disposal of the British Government before the arrival of the Polish negotiators.

It will be seen by an examination of the White Papers that the German Government has stated that they counted on the arrival of a plenipotentiary from Poland in Berlin on the 30th, the following day.

In the meantime, of course, we were awaiting these proposals, but the next thing was that when our Ambassador saw Herr von Ribbentrop, the German Foreign Secretary, he urged upon him that when these proposals were ready —for we had heard no more about them—he should invite the Polish Ambassador to call and should hand him the proposals for transmission to his government.

Thereupon, reports our Ambassador, in the most violent terms Herr von Ribbentrop said he would never ask the Ambassador to visit him. If, he added, the Polish Ambassador asked him for an interview it might be different.

The House will see this was on Wednesday night, which, according to the German statement of last night, is now claimed to be the final date after which no negotiation with Poland would be possible.

It is plain, therefore, that Germany claims that Poland was in the wrong because she had not on Wednesday entered into negotiation with Germany on proposals which she [Poland] had never heard. Now, what of ourselves? On that Wednesday night, at the interview to which I have just referred, Herr von Ribbentrop produced a lengthy document which he read aloud in German at a rapid speed. Naturally, on this meeting, our Ambassador asked him for a copy of the document.

Document Not Given Out

He replied that it was now too late, as the Polish representative had not arrived at Berlin at midnight and so we never got a copy of those proposals. The first time we heard them was on the broadcast last night. These were the circumstances in which the German Government said they considered their proposals were rejected. It is now clear that their conception of negotiation was that on an almost instantaneous demand the Polish plenipotentiary should go to Berlin, where others have been before him, and should then be confronted with a statement of the demands to be accepted in their entirety or refused.

I am not pronouncing an opinion on the terms themselves, for I do not feel called upon to do so. The proper course, in my view, was that these proposals should have been put before the Poles, who would have been given time to consider them and to say whether in their opinion they did or did not infringe those vital interests of Poland which Germany had assured us on a previous occasions she intended to respect.

Only last night the Polish Ambassador did see the German Foreign Secretary, Herr von Ribbentrop. Once again he expressed to him what indeed the Polish Government had already said publicity—that they were willing to negotiate with Germany about their disputes on an equal basis.

What was the reply of the German Government?

Invasion Is Answer

The reply was that without another word German troops crossed the Polish frontier this morning at dawn and are since reported to be bombing open towns. In these circumstances there is only one course open to us.

His Majesty's Ambassador in Berlin and the French Ambassador have been instructed to hand to the German Government the following document:

"Early this morning the German Chancellor issued a proclamation to the German Army which indicated clearly that he was about to attack Poland. Information which has reached His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom and the French Government indicates that German troops have crossed the Polish frontier and attacks on Polish towns are proceeding.

"In these circumstances it appears to the government of the United Kingdom and France that by their action the German Government have created conditions—namely, an aggressive act of force against Poland threatening the independence of Poland—which call for the immediate implementation by the government of the United Kingdom and France of the undertaking to Poland to come to her assistance.

"I am accordingly to inform Your Excellency that unless the German Government are prepared to give His Majesty's Government an assurance that the German Government have suspended all aggressive action against Poland and are prepared promptly to withdraw their forces from Polish territory, His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom will, without hesitation, fulfill their obligations to Poland."

Unfavorable Reply Expected

If the reply to this last warning is unfavorable, and I do not suggest it is likely to be otherwise, His Majesty's Ambassador is instructed to ask for his passport. In that case we are ready.

Yesterday we took further steps toward the completion of our defense preparations.

This morning we ordered complete mobilization of the whole of the navy, army and air force. We have also taken a number of measures both at home and abroad which the House perhaps would not expect me to specify in detail.

Briefly, they represent the final steps in accordance with a prearranged plan. These last will be put into force rapidly and are of such a nature that they are deferred until war seems inevitable.

Steps have also been taken under powers conferred by the House last week to safeguard the position in regard to stocks and commodities of various kinds.

The thoughts of many of us must inevitably at this moment be turning back to 1914. In comparison with our position then how do we stand at this time? The answer is that all three services are ready and that the situation in all directions is far more favorable and reassuring than in 1914.

For behind the fighting services we have built up a vast organization of civil defense under the scheme of air-raid precautions.

Man Power at Full Strength

As regards immediate man power requirements, the navy, the army and the Royal Air Force are now in the fortunate position of having almost as many men as they can conveniently handle at this moment.

There are, however, certain categories of service in which men are required immediately both for military and civil defenses. These will be announced in detail through the press and the British Broadcasting Corporation. It is most satisfactory to observe that there is today no need to appeal in a general way for recruits, such as was issued by Lord Kitchener twenty-five years ago. That appeal has been anticipated by many months, and men are already available.

So much for the immediate present.

Now we must look for the future. It is essential in face of the tremendous task which confronts us, more especially in view of our past experience in this matter, to organize our man power this time upon as methodical, equitable and economical a basis as possible. We therefore propose immediately to introduce legislation directed to that end, and a bill will be laid before you which, for all practical purposes, will amount to an expansion of the military training act.

Workers to Stay in Industry

Under its operation all fit men between 18 and 41 will be rendered liable to military service if and when called upon. It is not intended at the outset that any considerable number of men, other than those already liable, will be called up, and steps will be taken to insure that men essentially required by industry will not be taken away.

One other allusion before the close of my speech, and that is to record my satisfaction and the satisfaction of His Majesty's Government throughout these days of crisis to Signor Mussolini, who has been doing his best to reach a peaceful solution.

It only remains to set our teeth and enter upon this struggle, which we so earnestly endeavored to avoid, with a determination to see it through to the end.

We shall enter it with a clear conscience and with the support of the Dominions and the British Empire and the moral approval of the greater part of the world. We have no quarrel with the German people except that they allowed themselves to be governed by a Nazi government. As long as that government pursues the method which it has so persistently followed during the last two years there will be no peace in Europe.

We should merely pass from one crisis to another and see one country attacked by another by methods which have now become familiar to us with their sickening technique. We are resolved that these methods must come to an end, and if, after the struggle, we can re-establish in the world the rules of good faith and the renunciation of force, then even the sacrifices entailed upon us will find their fullest justification.

Text of Statement On Britain's Stand

LONDON, Sept. 1 (AP).—(Passed through British censorship)—The text of an authoritative British statement issued today follows:

It is pointed out in official circles that if the proclamation to the German people by Herr Hitler which has already been announced should mean, as it would seem to mean, that Germany has declared war on Poland, it can be stated on the high authority that Great Britain and France are inflexibly determined to fulfill to the uttermost their obligations to the Polish Government.

The German account of the course of the negotiations is of course wholly misleading.

On August 29 the German Chancellor informed the British Ambassador that he expected a Polish plenipotentiary to appear in Berlin by the following day with full powers to negotiate a settlement.

He added that in the meantime he hoped to elaborate the proposals. In other words, the Polish Government was expected to submit to the procedure imposed on the President of Czecho-Slovakia and to dispatch an emissary to Berlin who was to accept terms, the character of which was wholly unknown to the Polish Government.

Defends Poland

The Polish Government have not unnaturally been unwilling to place themselves in this humiliating position.

It is not customary, even in the case of peace terms imposed on a defeated Power, to demand that negotiators should not be allowed to refer for instructions to their Government.

It is impossible to comment at such short notice on the misleading statements of the German Government, but the general attitude of his Majesty's Government may be briefly defined as follows

If the German Government had been sincerely desirous of settling the dispute by negotiations they would not have adopted this procedure, which has the character of an ultimatum.

They would, on the contrary, have begun discussions with the Polish Government in accordance with the normal procedure of civilized governments, in order to fix the place and time for the opening of negotiations.

Poland Wasn't Told

The Polish Government, in the opinion of his Majesty's Government, were fully justified in declining to submit to the treatment which the German Government endeavored to impose on them as regards the terms now published, which have never been hitherto communicated to the Polish Government.

His Majesty's Government can only say that these terms should, of course, have been submitted to the Polish Government, with time to consider whether or not they infringed on Poland's vital interests, which Germany, in a written communication to the British Government, had declared her intention of respecting.

Text of Ultimatum to Reich

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—Following is the text of the ultimatum handed to the German Government today by the Ambassadors of Britain and France:

Early this morning the German Chancellor issued a proclamation to the German Army which indicated clearly that he was about to attack Poland. Information which has reached His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom and the French Government indicates that German troops have crossed the Polish frontier and attacks on Polish towns are proceeding.

In these circumstances it appears to the Governments of the United Kingdom and France that by their action the German Government have created conditions—namely, an aggressive act of force against Poland threatening the independence of Poland—which call for the immediate implementation by the Governments of the United Kingdom and France of the undertaking to Poland to come to her assistance.

I am, accordingly, to inform Your Excellency that unless the German Government are prepared to give His Majesty's Government an assurance that the German Government have suspended all aggressive action against Poland and are prepared promptly to withdraw their forces from Polish territory, His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom will, without hesitation, fulfill their obligations to Poland.

British White Paper on Correspondence With German Government Over Poland

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 1.—The White Paper setting forth the correspondence between Great Britain and the German Government follows:

SEP 2 1939

The letter of Aug. 22, 1939, from the Prime Minister to the German Chancellor:

Ten Downing Street, London, 22d of August, 1939:

Your Excellency: Your Excellency will have already heard of certain measures taken by His Majesty's Government and announced in the press and on the wireless this evening.

These steps have, in the opinion of His Majesty's Government, been rendered necessary by the military movements which have been reported from Germany, and by the fact that apparently the announcement of a German-Soviet agreement is taken in some quarters in Berlin to indicate that intervention by Great Britain on behalf of Poland is no longer a contingency that need be reckoned with.

No greater mistake could be made. Whatever may prove to be the nature of the German-Soviet agreement, it cannot alter Great Britain's obligations to Poland which His Majesty's Government have stated in public repeatedly, and plainly said they are determined to fulfill.

It has been alleged that if His Majesty's Government had made their position more clear in 1914 a great catastrophe would have been avoided. Whether or not there is any truth in that allegation, His Majesty's Government are resolved that on this occasion there shall be no such tragic misunderstanding.

Ready to Use Force

If the case should arise, they are resolved and prepared to employ without delay all forces at their command, and it is impossible to foresee the end of hostilities once engaged.

It would be a dangerous illusion to think that if war once starts, it will come to an early end, even if the success on any one of the several fronts on which it will be engaged should have been secured.

Having thus made our position perfectly clear, I wish to repeat my conviction that war between our two peoples would be the greatest calamity that could occur. I am certain that it is desired neither by our people nor by yours, and I cannot see that there is anything in the questions arising between Germany and Poland which could not and should not be resolved without the use of force, if only a situation of confidence could be restored to enable discussions to be carried on in an atmosphere different from that which prevails today.

We have been and at all times will be ready to assist in creating conditions in which such negotiations could take place and in which it might be possible concurrently to discuss the wider problems affecting the future of international relations, including matters of interest to us and to you.

Admits Difficulties for Peace

The difficulties in the way of any peaceful discussion in the present state of tension are, however, obvious, and the longer that tension is maintained the harder will it be for reason to prevail.

These difficulties, however, might be mitigated, if not removed, provided that there could, for an initial period, be a truce on both sides, and indeed on all sides.

If such a truce could be arranged, then at the end of that period, during which steps could be taken to examine and deal with complaints made by either side as to treatment of minorities, it is reasonable to hope that suitable conditions might have been established for direct negotiations between Germany and Poland upon issues between them (with the aid of a neutral intermediary if both sides should think that would be helpful).

But I am bound to say that there would be slender hope of bringing such negotiations to a successful issue unless it were understood beforehand that any settlement reached would, when concluded, be guaranteed by other powers.

His Majesty's Government would be ready, if desired, to make such contribution as they could to the effective operation of such guarantees.

At this moment, I confess, I can see no other way to avoid a catastrophe that will involve Europe in war. In view of the grave consequences to humanity which may follow from the action of their rulers, I trust that Your Excellency will weigh with the utmost deliberation the considerations which I have put before you.

Yours sincerely,
NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN

II

The communication from Herr Hitler to the Prime Minister, handed to His Majesty's Ambassador, on the 23d of August, 1939:

Your Excellency:

The British Ambassador has just handed to me a communication in which Your Excellency draws attention in the name of the British Government to a number of points which in your estimation are of the greatest importance.

1. I may be permitted to answer your letter as follows: Germany has never sought conflict with England and has never interfered in England's interests. On the contrary, she has for years endeavored, although unfortunately in vain, to win England's friendship. On this account we recently assumed in a wide area of Europe the limitations of her own interest which from a national, military point of view it would have been otherwise very difficult to tolerate.

2. The German Reich, however, like every other state, possesses certain definite interests which it is impossible to renounce. These do not extend beyond the limits of the necessities laid down by former German history and deriving from vital economic prerequisites. Some of the questions held and still hold a significance both of a national political and psychological character, which no German government would be able to ignore.

To these questions belong the questions of Danzig and the connected problem of the Corridor. Numerous statesmen, historians and men of letters, even in England, have been conscious of that—at any rate, up to a few years ago. I would add that all these territories lying in the aforesaid German sphere of interest, and particularly those lands which returned to the Reich eighteen months ago, received their cultural development at the hands of not the English people, but exclusively of the Germans, and this moreover, already from a time dating back over a thousand years.

Hitler Claims Magnanimity

3. Germany was prepared to settle the questions of Danzig and of the Corridor by the method of negotiation on the basis of a proposal of truly unparalleled magnanimity. The allegations disseminated by England regarding a German mobilization against Poland, the assertion of aggressive ambitions toward Rumania, Hungary, etc., as well as the so-called guaranteed declaration which was subsequently given, had, however, dispelled Polish inclination to negotiate on the basis of this kind which would have been reasonable for Germany also.

4. The unconditional assurance given by England to Poland that they would render assistance to that country in all circumstances regardless of the causes from which a conflict might spring, could only be interpreted in that country as an encouragement henceforth to unloosen, under cover of such a charter, a wave of appalling terrorism against the one and a half million German inhabitants living in Poland.

The atrocities which since then have been taking place in that country are terrible for the victims, but intolerable for a great power such as the German Reich, which is expected to remain a passive onlooker during these happenings.

Poland has been guilty of numerous breaches of her obligations toward the Free City, has made demands in the character of ultimata and initiated a process of economic strangulation.

5. The Government of the German Reich, therefore, recently caused the Polish Government to be informed that it was not prepared, possibly, to accept this development of affairs; that it will not tolerate further the addressing of notes in the character of ultimata to Danzig; that it will not tolerate a continuance of the persecution of the German minority; that it will equally not tolerate the extermination of the Free City of Danzig by economic measures—in other words, the destruction of the population of Danzig by a kind of customs blockade—and that it will not tolerate any longer the occurrence of further acts of provocation between it and the Reich.

Demands Danzig Solution

Apart from this, the questions of the Corridor and Danzig must and shall be solved.

6. Your Excellency informs me in the name of the British Government that you will be obliged to render assistance to Poland in any such case of intervention on the part of Germany. I take note of this statement of yours and assure you that it can make no change in the determination of the Reich Government to safeguard the interests of the Reich as stated in Paragraph 5 above.

Your assurance to the effect that in such an event you anticipate a long war is shared by myself. Germany, if attacked by England, will be found prepared and determined. I have already more than once declared before the German people and the world that there can be no doubt concerning the determination of the new German Reich rather to accept, for however long it may be, every sort of misery and tribulation than to sacrifice its national interest, let alone its honor.

7. The German Reich Government has received information to the effect that the British Government has the intention to carry out measures of mobilization which, according to the statement in your own letter, are clearly directed against Germany alone. This is said to be true of France as well. Since Germany has never had the intention of taking military measures other than those of a defensive character against England or France, and, as it has already emphasized, has never intended and does not in the future intend to attack England or France, it follows that this announcement as confirmed by you, Mr. Prime Minister, in your own letter, can refer only to a complicated act of menace directed against the Reich. I, therefore, inform Your Excellency that, in the event of the military announcements being carried into effect, I shall order immediate mobilization of the German forces.

Blames Versailles 'Dictate'

8. The question of the treatment of European problems on a peaceful basis is not a decision which rests on Germany but primarily on those who, since the the crime committed by the Versailles dictate, have steadily and consistently opposed any peaceful revision. Only after a change of spirit on the part of the responsible powers can there be any real change in the relationship between England and Germany.

I have all my life fought for Anglo-German friendship. The attitude adopted by British diplomacy, at any rate up to the present, has, however, convinced me of the futility of such an attempt. Should there be any change in this respect in the future, nobody could be happier than I.

ADOLF HITLER.

III

The third document was a translation of a text of a verbal communication made to Sir Nevile Henderson by Herr Hitler in his interview on Aug. 25.

By way of introduction, Herr Hitler declared that the British Ambassador had given expression at the close of the last conversation to the hope that, after all, an understanding between Germany and England might yet be possible. He [Herr Hitler] had, therefore, turned things over in his mind once more and desired to make a move as regards England that should be as decisive as the move in regards to Russia that had led to the recent agreement. The document continued:

Assertions that Germany expects to conquer the world are ridiculous. The British Empire embraces 40,000,000 square kilometers, Russia 19,000,000 square kilometers, America 9,500,000 square kilometers, whereas Germany embraces less than 600,000 square kilometers. It is quite clear who desires to conquer the world.

The Fuehrer makes the following communication to the British Ambassador:

1. Poland's actual provocations have become intolerable. It makes no difference who is responsible. If the Polish Government denies the responsibility, that only goes to show that it no longer itself possesses any influence over its subordinate military authorities.

In the preceding night there have been a further twenty-one new frontier incidents. On the German side the greatest discipline has been maintained. All incidents have been provoked from the Polish side. Furthermore, commercial aircraft have been shot at. If the Polish Government stated it was not responsible, it showed it was no longer capable of controlling its own people.

Determined to End Conditions

2. Germany was, in all the circumstances, determined to abolish these Macedonian conditions on her own frontier and, what is more, to do so in the interest of quiet and order, but also in the interest of European peace.

3. The problem of Danzig and the [Polish] Corridor must be solved. The British Prime Minister has made a speech which was not in the least calculated to induce any change in the German attitude. At the most, results of this speech could be a bloody and incalculable war between Germany and England. Such a war would be bloodier than that of 1914 to 1918. In contrast to the last war, Germany would no longer have to fight on two fronts. Agreement with Russia was unconditional and suggested a change in foreign policy with the Reich which would last a very long time. Russia and Germany would never again take up arms against each other. Apart from this, the agreements reached with Russia would also render German security for the long possible period of war.

The Fuehrer had always wanted Anglo-German understanding. War between England and Germany could at best bring some profit to Germany but none at all to England.

The Fuehrer declared that the German-Polish problem must be solved and will be solved. He is, however, prepared and determined after the solution of this problem to approach England once more with a large and comprehensive offer. He is a man of great decisions, and in this case also he will be capable of being great in his action.

He accepts the British Empire and is ready to pledge himself personally for its continued existence, and to place power of the German Reich at its disposal if:

1. His colonial demands, which are limited and can be negotiated by peaceful methods, are fulfilled; and in this case he is prepared to fix the longest time limit.

Must Keep Ties With Italy

2. His obligations toward Italy are not touched; in other words, he does not demand that England give up her obligations toward France, and similarly for his own part he cannot withdraw from his obligations toward Italy.

3. He also desires to stress the irrevocable determination of Germany never again to enter into conflict with Russia. The Fuehrer is ready to conclude agreements with England, which, as has already been emphasized, would not only guarantee the existence of British Empire in all circumstances as far as Germany is concerned, but also, if necessary, an assurance to the British Empire of German assistance, regardless of where such assistance should be necessary.

The Fuehrer would then also be ready to accept a reasonable limitation of armaments which corresponds to the new political situation and which is economically tolerable. Finally the Fuehrer renewed his assurances that he was not interested in Western problems and that frontier modification in the West does not enter into consideration. The Western fortifications which have been constructed at the cost of billions were the final Reich frontier on the West.

If the British Government would consider these ideas, a blessing for Germany and also for the British Empire might result.

If it rejects these ideas, there will be war. In no case would Great Britain emerge stronger; the last war proved this.

IV

The reply of His Majesty's Government dated Aug. 28, 1939, to the German Chancellor's communications of Aug. 23, and 25, 1939.

1. His Majesty's Government have received the message conveyed to them from the German Chancellor by His Majesty's Ambassador in Berlin and have considered it with the care which it demands. They note the Chancellor's expression of his desire to make friendship the basis of relations between Germany and British Empire, and they fully share this desire. They believe with him that if a complete and lasting understanding between the two countries could be established, it would bring untold blessings to both peoples.

2. The Chancellor's message deals with two groups of questions: those which are matters now in dispute between Germany and Poland and those affecting the ultimate relations of Germany and Great Britain. In connection with these last, His Majesty's Government observe that the German Chancellor has indicated certain proposals which, subject to one condition, he will be prepared to make to the British Government for a general understanding. These proposals are, of course, stated in very general form and would require a closer definition, but His Majesty's Government is fully prepared to take them, with some additions, as subjects for discussion; and they would be ready, if differences between Germany and Poland are peacefully composed, to proceed as soon as practicable to such discussion with a sincere desire to reach an agreement.

Accepts Idea of Settlement

3. The condition which the German Chancellor lays down is that there must first be a settlement of differences between Germany and Poland. As to that, His Majesty's Government entirely agree. Everything, however, turns upon the nature of settlement and method by which it is to be reached. On these points, the importance of which cannot be absent from the Chancellor's mind, his message is silent; and His Majesty's Government feel compelled to point out that an understanding upon both of these is essential to achieving further progress. The German Government will be aware that His Majesty's Government have obligations to Poland by which they are bound and which they intend to honor. They could not, for any advantage offered Great Britain, acquiesce in a settlement which put in jeopardy the independence of a State to whom they have given their guarantee.

4. In the opinion of His Majesty's Government, a reasonable solution of the differences between Germany and Poland could and should be effected by an agreement between the two countries on lines which would include the safeguarding of Poland's essential interests; and they recall that in the speech of 28th April last, the German Chancellor recognized the importance of these interests to Poland. But, as was stated by the Prime Minister in a letter to the German Chancellor of 22d August, His Majesty's Government consider it essential for the success of the discussions which would precede agreement that it should be understood beforehand that any settlement arrived at would be guaranteed by the other powers. His Majesty's Government would be ready, if desired, to make their contribution to the effective operation of such a guarantee.

Urged Direct Discussion

In the view of His Majesty's Government it follows that the next step should be an initiation of direct discussions between the German and Polish Governments on a basis which would include the principles stated above; namely, safeguarding of Poland's essential interests and securing of a settlement by an international guarantee. They have already received definite assurance from the Polish Government that they are prepared to enter into discussions on this basis, and His Majesty's Government hope the German Government would for her part also be willing to agree to this course. If, as His Majesty's Government hope, such discussion led to an agreement, a way would be open to the negotiation of that wider and more complete understanding between Great Britain and Germany which both countries desire.

5. His Majesty's Government agree with the German Chancellor that one of the principal dangers in the German-Polish situation arises from reports concerning the treatment of minorities. The present state of tension with its concomitant frontier incidents, reports of maltreatment and inflammatory propaganda are a constant danger to peace. It is manifestly a matter of the utmost urgency that all incidents of the kind should be promptly and rigidly suppressed and that unverified reports should not be allowed to circulate in order that time may be afforded without provocation on either side for a full examination of the possibilities of settlement. His Majesty's Government are confident that both governments concerned are fully alive to these considerations.

6. His Majesty's Government have said enough to make their own attitude plain in the particular matters at issue between Germany and Poland. They trust that the German Chancellor will not think that, because His Majesty's Government are scrupulous concerning their obligations to Poland, they are not anxious to use all their influence to assist achievement of a solution which may commend itself both to Germany and to Poland. That such a settlement should be achieved seems to His Majesty's Government essential not only for reasons directly arising in regard to a settlement itself, but also because of wider considerations of which the German Chancellor has spoken with such conviction.

Warning on Force Cited

7. It is unnecessary in the present reply to stress the advantage of a peaceful settlement over a decision to settle the questions at issue by force of arms. The results of a decision to use force have been clearly set out in the Prime Minister's letter to the Chancellor of Aug. 22, and His Majesty's Government do not doubt that they are as fully recognized by the Chancellor as by themselves.

On the other hand, His Majesty's government, noting with interest the German Chancellor's reference in the message now under consideration to the limitation of armaments, believe that if a peaceful settlement can be obtained the assistance of the world could confidently be anticipated for practical measures to enable the transition from preparation for war to the normal activities of peaceful trade to be safely and smoothly effected.

8. A just settlement of these questions between Germany and Poland may open the way to world peace. Failure to reach it would ruin hopes of better understanding between Germany and Great Britain and would bring the two countries into conflict and might well plunge the whole world into war. Such an outcome would be a calamity without parallel in history.

V

The reply of the German Chancellor to the communication of 28th August, 1939, from His Majesty's government.

This reply was handed to Sir Nevile Henderson by Herr Hitler during the evening of Aug. 29, 1939.

The British Ambassador in Berlin has submitted to the British Government suggestions which I felt bound to make in order—

1. To give expression once more to the will of the Reich Government for sincere Anglo-German understanding, cooperation and friendship.

2. To leave no room for doubt as to the fact that such understanding could not be bought at the price of renunciation of vital German interests, let alone abandonment of demands which are based as much upon common human justice as upon the national dignity and honor of our people.

The German Government have noted with satisfaction from reply of British Government and from oral explanations given by the British Ambassador that the British Government for their part are also prepared to improve the relationship between Germany and England and develop and extend it in the sense of the German suggestions.

In this connection the British Government is similarly convinced that removal of German-Polish tension, which has become unbearable, is a prerequisite for realization of this hope.

Since the Autumn of the past year and on the last occasion in March, 1939, there were submitted to the Polish Government proposals both oral and written which, having regard to the friendship then existing between Germany and Poland, offered the possibility of a solution of the questions in dispute acceptable to both parties.

Poles Rejected Proposals

The British Government are aware that the Polish Government saw fit last March finally to reject these proposals. At the same time they used this rejection as a pretext or an occasion for taking military measures which since have been continuously intensified. In the middle of last month, Poland was in effect in a state of mobilization. This was accompanied by numerous encroachments in Danzig due to the instigation of Polish authorities; threatening demands in the nature of ultimata, varying only in degree, were addressed to that city. A closing of frontiers, at first in the form of a measure of customs policy but extended later in a military sense affecting also traffic and communications, was imposed with the object of bringing about political exhaustion and economic destruction of this German community.

To this were added barbaric actions of maltreatment which cry to heaven and other kinds of persecution of the large German national group in Poland and which extended even to the killing of many resident Germans or to their forcible removal under the most cruel conditions. This state of affairs was unbearable for a great power. It has now forced Germany, after remaining a passive onlooker for many months, in her turn to take necessary steps for the safeguarding of justified German interests. And indeed the German Government can but assure the British Government in a most solemn manner that a condition of affairs now has been reached which can no longer be accepted or observed with indifference.

The demands of the German Government are in conformity with the revision of the Versailles Treaty in regard to this territory, which always has been recognized as being necessary: viz., the return of Danzig and the [Polish] Corridor to Germany and the safeguarding of the existence of the German national group in the territories remaining to Poland.

Notes Accord in Principle

The German Government note with satisfaction that the British Government also are in principle convinced that some solution must be found for the new situation which has arisen. They further feel justified in assuming that the British Government, too, can have no doubt that it is a question now of conditions for elimination of which there no longer remain days, still less weeks, but perhaps only hours. For in the disorganized state of affairs obtaining in Poland the possibility of incidents intervening which it might be impossible for Germany to tolerate must at any moment be reckoned with.

While the British Government may still believe that these grave differences can be resolved by way of direct negotiations, the German Government unfortunately can no longer share this view as a matter of course. For they have made an attempt to embark on such peaceful negotiations, but instead of receiving a response from the Polish Government they were rebuffed by the sudden introduction of measures of a military character in favor of the development alluded to above.

The British Government attach importance to two considerations:

1. That the existing danger of an imminent explosion should be eliminated as quickly as possible by direct negotiation, and that

2. The existence of the Polish State, in the form in which it would then continue to exist, should be adequately safeguarded in the economic and political spheres by means of international guarantees.

On this subject the German Government make the following declaration:

Prepared to Accept

Though skeptical as to prospects of a successful outcome, they nevertheless are prepared to accept the English proposal and enter into direct discussions. They do so, as has already been emphasized, solely as a result of the impression made upon them by the written statement received from the British Government that they, too, desire a pact of friendship in accordance with general lines indicated to the British Ambassador.

The German Government desires in this way to give the British Government and the British nation proof of the sincerity of Germany's intentions to enter into a lasting friendship with Great Britain.

The Government of the Reich felt, however, bound to point out to the British Government that in the event of a territorial rearrangement in Poland they no longer would be able to bind themselves, give guarantees or participate in guarantees, without the U. S. S. R. being associated with them.

The German Government have never had any intention of touching Poland's vital interests or questioning the existence of an independent Polish State. The German Government, accordingly, in these circumstances, agree to accept the British Government's offer of their good offices in securing the dispatch to Berlin of a Polish emissary with full powers. They count on arrival of this emissary on Wednesday, Aug. 30, 1939.

The German Government will immediately draw up proposals for a solution acceptable to themselves and will, if possible, place these at the disposal of the British Government before the arrival of the Polish negotiator.

A telegram from His Majesty's government to Sir Nevile Henderson, sent at 2 A. M., Aug. 30, 1939:

We shall give careful consideration to the German Government's reply, but it is, of course, unreasonable to expect that we can produce a Polish representative in Berlin today, and the German Government must not expect this.

"It might be well for you at once to let this be known in the proper quarters through appropriate channels. We hope you may receive our reply this afternoon."

VII

A message sent through Sir Nevile Henderson from the Prime Minister to the German Chancellor at 2:45 P. M., Aug. 30, 1939:

We are considering the German note with all urgency and shall send an official reply later in the afternoon.

We are representing at Warsaw how vital it is to reinforce all instructions for avoidance of frontier incidents, and I would beg you to confirm similar instructions on the German side.

I welcome evidence in the exchange of views which are taking place of that desire for Anglo-German understanding of which I spoke yesterday in Parliament.

VIII

A telegram from His Majesty's Government to Sir Nevile Henderson, sent at 5:30 P. M., Aug. 30, 1939:

In informing the German Government of renewed representations which have been made in Warsaw, please make it clear that the Polish Government can only be expected to maintain an attitude of complete restraint if the German Government reciprocate on their side of the frontier, and if no provocation is offered by members of the German minority in Poland. Reports are current that the Germans have committed acts of sabotage which would justify sternest measures.

IX

A telegram from His Majesty's Government to Sir Nevile Henderson, sent at 6:50 P. M., Aug. 30, 1939:

We understand that the German Government is insisting that a Polish representative with full powers must come to Berlin to receive German proposals.

We cannot advise the Polish Government to comply with this procedure, which is wholly unreasonable.

Could you not suggest to the German Government that they adopt the normal procedure, when their proposals are ready, of inviting the Polish Ambassador to call and of handing proposals to him for transmission to Warsaw and of inviting suggestions as to the conduct of negotiations?

The German Government have been good enough to promise they will communicate proposals also to His Majesty's Government. If the latter think they offer a reasonable basis, they can be counted on to do their best in Warsaw to facilitate negotiations.

Reply of His Majesty's Government to the German Chancellor's communication of Aug. 29, 1939.

This reply was handed by Sir Nevile Henderson to Herr von Ribbentrop at midnight on Aug. 30, 1939:

1. His Majesty's Government appreciate the friendly reference in the declaration contained in the reply of the German Government to the latter's desire for an Anglo-German understanding and to their statement of the influence which this consideration has exercised upon their policy.

2. His Majesty's Government repeat that they reciprocate the German Government's desire for improved relations, but it will be recognized that they could not sacrifice the interests of other friends in order to obtain that improvement. They fully understand that the German Government cannot sacrifice Germany's vital interests, but the Polish Government are in the same position and His Majesty's Government believe that the vital interests of the two countries are not incompatible.

3. His Majesty's Government note that the German Government accept the British proposal and are prepared to enter into direct discussions with the Polish Government.

4. His Majesty's Government understand that the German Government accept in principle the condition that any settlement should be made the subject of international guarantee. The question of who shall participate in this guarantee will have to be discussed further and His Majesty's Government hope that, to avoid loss of time, the German Government will take immediate steps to obtain the assent of the U. S. S. R., whose participation in a guarantee His Majesty's government have always assumed.

5. His Majesty's Government also note that the German Government accepts the position of the British Government as to Poland's vital interests and independence.

6. His Majesty's Government must make an express reservation in regard to the statement of particular demands put forward by the German Government in an earlier passage in their reply. They understand that the German Government are drawing up proposals for a solution. No doubt these proposals will be fully examined during discussions. It can then be determined how far they are compatible with essential conditions which His Majesty's Government have stated, and which in principle the German Government have expressed their willingness to accept.

7. His Majesty's Government are at once informing the Polish Government of the German Government's reply. The method of contact and arrangements for discussions must obviously be agreed with all urgency between the German and Polish Governments, but in His Majesty's Government's view it would be impracticable to establish contact so early as today.

8. His Majesty's Government fully recognize the need for speed in the initiation of discussion, and they share the apprehensions of the Chancellor arising from the proximity of two mobilized armies standing face to face. They would accordingly most strongly urge that both parties should undertake that, during negotiations, no aggressive military movements will take place. His Majesty's Government feel confident that they could obtain such an undertaking from the Polish Government if the German Government would give similar assurances.

9. Further, His Majesty's Government would suggest that a temporary modus vivendi might be arranged for Danzig which might prevent occurrence of incidents tending to render German-Polish relations more difficult.

XI

Following is the translation of a message communicated to His Majesty's Ambassador in Berlin by the State Secretary:

His Majesty's Government informed the German Government in a note dated Aug. 28, 1939, of their readiness to offer their mediation toward direct negotiations between Germany and Poland over the problems in dispute. In so doing they made it abundantly clear that they, too, were aware of the urgent need for progress in view of the continuous incidents and the general European tension.

In a reply dated Aug. 29 the German Government, in spite of being skeptical as to the desire of the Polish Government to come to an understanding, declared themselves ready in the interests of peace to accept British mediation or suggestion. After considering all circumstances prevailing at the time, they considered it necessary in their note to point out that if the danger of catastrophe was to be avoided, then action must be taken readily and without delay. In this sense they declared themselves ready to receive a personage appointed by the Polish Government up to the evening of Aug. 30 with the proviso that the latter be in fact empowered not only to discuss but to conduct and conclude negotiations.

Further, the German Government pointed out, they felt able to make basic points regarding the offer of understanding available to the British Government by the time the Polish negotiator arrived in Berlin.

Instead of a statement regarding arrival of an authorized Polish personage, the first answer the Government of the Reich received to their readiness for an understanding was news of the Polish mobilization, and, only toward 12 o'clock on the night of Aug. 30, 1939, did they receive a somewhat general assurance of the British readiness to help toward a commencement of negotiations.

Condition "Removed"

Although the fact that the Polish negotiator, expected by the Government of the Reich, did not arrive removed the necessary condition for informing His Majesty's Government of the view of the German Government as regards possible bases for negotiation (since His Majesty's Government themselves had pleaded for direct negotiations between Germany and Poland), the German Minister for Foreign Affairs, Herr von Ribbentrop, gave the British Ambassador, on the occasion of presentation of the last British note, precise information as to the text of the German proposals which would be regarded as a basis of negotiation in the event of the arrival of a Polish plenipotentiary.

The Government of the German Reich considered themselves entitled to claim that in these circumstances a Polish personage would immediately be nominated, at any rate retroactively.

For the Reich Government cannot be expected for their part continually not only to emphasize their willingness to start negotiations but actually be ready to do so while being, from the Polish side, merely put off with empty subterfuges and meaningless declarations.

It has once more been made clear, as a result of the démarche which has meanwhile been made by the Polish Ambassador, that the latter himself has no plenary powers to enter into any negotiations.

The Fuehrer and the German Government have thus waited two days in vain for the arrival of a Polish negotiator with plenary powers.

In these circumstances the German Government regard their proposals as having this time, too, been to all intents and purposes rejected, although they considered that these proposals, in the form in which they were made known to the British Government, also were more than loyal, fair and practicable.

Published Proffered Terms

The Reich Government consider it timely to inform the public of the basis for negotiation which were communicated to the British Ambassador by the Minister for Foreign Affairs, Herr von Ribbentrop.

"The situation existing between the German Reich and Poland is at the moment of such a kind that any further incident can lead to an explosion on the part of military forces which have taken up their position on both sides. Any peaceful solution must be framed in such a way as to insure that the events which lie at the root of this situation cannot be repeated on the next occasion offered, and that thus not only the East of Europe but also other territories shall not be brought into such a state of tension. The causes of this development lie in:

"1. Impossible delineation of frontiers as fixed by the Versailles dictate.

2. Impossible treatment of the minority in ceded territories.

In making these proposals the Reich Government are therefore actuated by the idea of finding a lasting solution which will remove an impossible situation created by frontier delineation which may assure to both parties their vitally important line of communication, which may—as far as it is at all possible—remove the minority problem and in so far as this is not possible may give minorities assurance of a tolerable future by means of a reliable guarantee of their rights.

The Reich Government are content that in so doing it is essential that economic and physical damage done since 1918 should be exposed and repaired in its entirety. They, of course, regard this obligation as being binding for both parties.

These considerations lead to the following practical proposals:

1. Danzig shall return to the German Reich in view of its purely German character as well as of the unanimous will of its population.

2. Territory of the so-called Corridor, which extends from the Baltic Sea to the line of Marienwerde-Graudenz-Kulm-Bromberg (inclusive) and thence runs in a westerly direction to Schoenlanke, shall itself decide whether it shall belong to Germany or Poland.

3. For this purpose a plebiscite shall take place in this territory. The following shall be entitled to vote: All Germans who were either domiciled in this territory on Jan. 1, 1918, or who by that date had been born there, and similarly of Poles, Kashubes, etc., domiciled in this territory on the above day or born there up to that day. Germans who have been driven from this territory shall return to it in order to exercise their vote with a view to insuring an objective plebiscite and also with a view to insuring the extensive preparation necessary therefor. The above territory shall, as in the case of the Saar territory, be placed under supervision of an international commission, to be formed immediately on which shall be represented four great powers—Italy, the Soviet Union, France and England. This commission shall exercise all rights of sovereignty in this territory. With this end in view, the territory shall be evacuated within a period of utmost brevity, still to be agreed upon, by the Polish armed forces, Polish police and Polish authorities.

4. The Polish port of Gdynia, which fundamentally constitutes Polish sovereign territory so far as it is confined territorially to Polish settlement, shall be excluded from the above territory. The exact frontiers of this Polish port should be determined between Germany and Poland and, if necessary, be delimited by an international committee of arbitration.

5. With a view to assuring the necessary time for the execution of the extensive work involved in the carrying out of a just plebiscite, this plebiscite shall not take place before the expiration of twelve months.

6. In order to guarantee unrestricted communication between Germany and East Prussia and between Poland and the sea during this period, roads and railways shall be established to render all free transit traffic possible. In this connection only such taxes as are necessary for the maintenance of means of communication and for the provision of transport may be levied.

7. The question as to the party to which the area belongs is to be decided by simple majority of votes recorded.

8. In order to guarantee to Germany free communication with her Provinces of Danzig and East Prussia and to Poland her connection with the sea, after execution of a plebiscite—regardless of results thereof—Germany shall, in the event of the plebiscite area going to Poland, receive an extraterritorial traffic zone, approximately in a line from Butow to Danzig or Dischauin, in which to lay down an auto road and a four-track railway line.

Plans for Thoroughfare

The road and railway shall be so constructed that Polish lines of communication are not affected; that is, they shall pass either over or under the latter. The breadth of this zone shall be fixed at one kilometer [.62 of a mile] and it is to be German sovereign territory. Should the plebiscite be favorable to Germany, Poland is to obtain rights analagous to those accorded to Germany to similar extraterritorial communication by road and railway for the purpose of free and unrestricted communication with her port of Gdynia.

9. In the event of the Corridor returning to the German Reich, the latter declares its right to proceed to an exchange of population with Poland to the extent to which the nature of the Corridor lends itself thereto.

10. Any special right desired by Poland in the port of Danzig would be negotiated on a basis of territory against similar rights to be granted to Germany in the port of Gdynia.

11. In order to remove any feeling in this area that either side was being threatened, Danzig and Gdynia would have the character of exclusively mercantile towns—that is to say, without military installations and military fortifications.

12. The peninsula of Hela, which as the result of a plebiscite might go either to Poland or to Germany, would in either case have similarly to be demilitarized.

Committee of Inquiry

13. Since the Government of the German Reich hos most vehement complaints to make against Polish treatment of minorities and since the Polish Government for their part feel obliged to make complaints against Germany, both parties declare their agreement to have these complaints laid before an international committee of inquiry whose task would be to examine all complaints as regards economic or physical damage and any other acts of terrorism. Germany and Poland undertake to make good economic or other damage done to minorities on either side since the year 1918, or to cancel expropriation as the case may be, or to provide complete compensation to persons affected for this and any other encroachments on their economic life.

14. In order to free German who may be left in Poland and Poles who may be left in Germany from a feeling of being outlawed by all nations and in order to render them secure against being called upon to perform action or to render services incompatible with their national sentiments, Germany and Poland agree to guarantee the rights of both minorities by means of a most comprehensive and binding agreement in order to guarantee to these minorities preservation, free development and practical application of their nationality (Volkstum) and in particular to permit for this purpose such organization as they may consider necessary. Both parties undertake not to call upon members of a minority for military service.

15. In the event of an agreement on the basis of these proposals Germany and Poland declare themselves ready to decree and to carry out immediate demobilization of their armed forces.

16. Further measures necessary for a more rapid execution of the above arrangement shall be agreed upon by both Germany and Poland jointly.

A telegram from His Majesty's Government to Sir Nevile Henderson dispatched at 11 P. M., Aug. 31:

Please inform the German Goverment that we understand that the Polish Government are taking steps to establish contact with them through the Polish Ambassador in Berlin.

Please also ask them whether they agree to the necessity for securing an immediate provisional modus vivendi as regards Danzig. (We have already put this point to the German Government.) Would they agree tht M. Burckhardt [Dr. Karl J. Burckhardt, League of Nations High Commissioner to Danzig] might be employed for this purpose if it were possible to secure his services?

The reply to the above telegram, received in the early hours of Sept. 1, 1939:

Written communication was made to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs early this morning in the sense of Paragraph 2 of your telegram.

The following explanatory note upon the actual course of events should be read in conjunction with the documents published above.

A reply to the German Government of Aug. 28 was, before its delivery, communicated to the French and Polish Governments. The Polish Government authorized His Majesty's Government to inform the German Government that Poland was ready at once to enter into direct discussions with Germany. It will be seen that Paragraph 4 of the British reply to Aug. 28 made plain the attitude of the Polish Government on this point.

The British reply was handed to Herr Hitler at 10:30 P. M. on Aug. 29 and he promised to give a written reply the following day.

The German reply in writing was handed to His Majesty's Ambassador at 7:15 P. M. on Aug. 28. Apart from a complete distortion of events leading up to the crisis, the German Government's reply demanded the arrival in Berlin of a Polish emissary with full powers during the course of the following day.

The reply of the British Government is self-explanatory. It was communicated by His Majesty's Ambassador to the German Minister for Foreign Affairs at midnight on Aug. 30. Herr von Ribbentrop's reply was to produce a long document which he read out rapidly in German. It was apparently the sixteen point plan which the German Government have since published.

Text Denied to British Envoy

When Sir Neville Henderson asked for the text of these proposals in accordance with undertaking in the reply of Aug. 29, Herr von Ribbentrop asserted that it was now too late as the Polish plenipotentiary had not arrived in Berlin by midnight as had been demanded by the German Government in their communication of the previous evening.

The Polish Government on learning of these developments informed His Majesty's Government during the afternoon of Aug. 31 that they would authorize their Ambassador to inform the German Government that Poland had accepted the British proposals for negotiations.

The Polish Ambassador in Berlin (M. Lipski) was not received by Herr von Ribbentrop until the evening of Aug. 31. After this interview, the German Government broadcast their proposals forthwith. M. Lipski at once tried to establish contact with Warsaw but was unable to do so because all means of communication between Poland and Germany had been closed by the German Government.

PARIS SERVING ULTIMATUM ON REICH AT ONCE

Will Go to Poland's Aid if Germany Doesn't Withdraw Troops.

FULL MOBILIZATION ORDERED

Decree Will Put Eight Million Men Under Arms---State of Siege Proclaimed.

PARIS, Sept. 1 (A. P.). — The French Government tonight announced that an ultimatum demanding that Germany "immediately stop all aggressive actions and withdraw troops from Poland" would be handed the German Government at once.

The ultimatum, the Government added, states that in case of an unfavorable response, France will fulfill her obligations and go to Poland's aid.

The French Ambassador to Berlin, it was stated, has been instructed to ask at once for his passport—the usual preliminary to a declaration of war—in case Germany refuses to accede to the terms of the ultimatum.

The French ultimatum follows almost exactly the lines of the one which Prime Minister Chamberlain today told the House of Commons the British Government is making.

The French and British action was understood here to be based on Poland's formal invocation of her mutual assistance pacts with France and Britain.

Polish circles said Polish Ambassador Lukasiewicz had formally advised Foreign Minister Bonnet that an "act of aggression" had been committed by Germany against Poland.

Act Under British Pact.

Diplomats explained that, technically, it would most likely be through her firm military alliance with Great Britain that France would enter the conflict if it becomes general.

France, they added, also is bound by repeated verbal promises to aid Poland in case of aggression.

Both French and Polish diplomats explained that the present situation was one of rapid-fire consultations between their governments on means of halting the German invasion while Great Britain made the direct approach to Germany under the terms of the Anglo-Polish treaty.

At the same time, the French Government announced that it had accepted a final Italian offer of mediation "in principle."

This came after the earlier discussion of a detailed Italian plan for a general conference of all the Powers concerned and was considered in diplomatic circles more of a "gesture" than anything else. What form the Italian proposal has taken was not made known.

Ready to Declare War.

French diplomats gave the impression that little remained but a formal declaration of war, which they believed likely at any time after Parliament starts its session tomorrow.

France today ordered general mobilization, decreed a state of seiege and summoned Parliament to meet tomorrow in quick reaction to Germany's invasion of Poland.

The mobilization means that every able-bodied Frenchmen is called for military service and experts estimated that it would put a total of 8,000,000 men under arms. Mobilization date is tomorrow.

The state of siege was proclaimed throughout France and Algeria by an emergency Cabinet meeting.

French official reaction was immediate to reports that Hitler's troops were on the march in Poland and that his warplanes were bombing Polish cities.

Premier Daladier, after the Cabinet meeting at Elysee Palace, went into conference with Generalissimo Gustave Maurice Gamelin at the War Ministry. Naval Minister Ce-sar Campinchi was called in, as was Admiral Jean Darlan, Commander-in-Chief of the French Navy.

Hitler's swift move in the face of repeated British and French statements that they would go to the aid of Poland in the event she finds it necessary to fight left the next fateful move up to those two countries.

French Government Fixes Blame.

The French Government, in a communication broadcast to the nation, placed blame for the outbreak of hostilities on Germany.

The statement declared Germany "without provocation on behalf of the Poles" crossed the frontier early this morning, at the same time bombing Polish cities. This attack, the statement added, was being prepared last night even while Germany was seeking by official statements to throw the blame on Poland.

The French added that Germany never sent its propositions to Poland in a valid diplomatic fashion and never tried to carry on normal diplomatic relations with Poland.

Parisians, quickly informed of the fast-moving events through newspapers, maintained calm. The French capital, although partly evacuated in response to previous Government requests, was still teeming with people, the downtown streets crowded.

Two Nazi Armies Reported Trying Pincer Move

Dispatches by Havas, French news agency, said that Warsaw, Krakow, Gdynia and numerous other Polish cities had been bombed by the Germans. The Polish Ambassador was talking by telephone to the Foreign Office in Warsaw at the time bombs were reported dropping.

Two German armies were reported here to be striking swift, hard blows toward the heart of Poland in an apparent effort to pinch off the Corridor before the French and British war machines could be brought into action.

One German Army was reported striking southwest from East Prussia and another moving northeast from German Silesia. Their apparent objective was to meet a few miles west of Warsaw, cutting off virtually the western third of Poland, which borders Germany.

German strategy, it has long believed, is to make a quick conquest of Poland, then proclaim that the situation is under control and ask Poland's allies what there is to fight about.

United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt worked far into the night and was at his office again early this morning. He has been in almost continuous conference with French officials.

Reports reaching here said the army attacking from East Prussia was fanned out in the direction of Dzialdowo, Mlawa and Ciechanow. Ciechanow, the southernmost of these objectives, is only seventy-five miles north of Warsaw, midway from the German frontier.

The Silesian Army was reported sweeping into the mining area surrounding Czestochowa in southwestern Poland. At the same time, reports reaching Paris said German divisions spread out along the Slovakian-Polish frontier were feinting heavily in order to keep an estimated 100,000 Polish troops out of the main campaign.

No Indication What Fight Poles Are Making

There was no news reaching Paris to indicate what resistance the Poles were offering or what success the Germans were having.

It was announced here, however, that the German plan for a "lightning war" called for Nazi troops to make a spectacular advance before the French Parliament can meet tomorrow.

Military observers in Paris do not believe Germany will commit any overt acts against France or Britain for the moment, preferring to force them to attack along the Rhine frontier. It was not believed, either, that Germany would make any effort to draw Italy into the conflict until France and Britain are definitely involved.

France Answers Duce's Mediation Offer

Havas announced that Foreign Minister Bonnet had delivered the French reply to an Italian offer of mediation to the Italian Ambassador. The announcement did not disclose details of the plan or the nature of the reply. An answer also was sent to French Ambassador Francois-Poncet at Rome for delivery to the Italian Government.

Copies of the general mobilization order were posted on all public buildings late in the afternoon. Although the order had been previously announced, groups of silent men and women quickly gathered around.

First Time Since 1914

It was the first time they had seen such an order since 1914.

While most men read the notice hastily and then passed along, wet-eyed women seemed unable to tear themselves away. They gazed steadily at the fateful white notice with the crossed flags.

Meanwhile, there were obvious preparations at the German embassy for a quick departure. The courtyard was piled high with baggage and from inside the embassy came an odor of burning paper.

Police patrolled the street in front of the embassy, keeping pedestrians moving and guarding the long line of embassy automobiles parked there. Other police patrolled the garden wall at the rear.

When news of the French order for general mobilization reached the Bourse, French stock traders virtually suspended operations by tacit consent. There was no formal closing order. The news became known about the end of the first hour of trading and groups of specialists quietly left the floor together. When operations halted, the entire list had dropped sharply on news of fighting between Polish and German troops.

In French sources it was said that Polish Ambassador Lipski at Berlin called on Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop last evening to advise him Poland agreed to direct negotiations. The same evening, German authorities called in the foreign press and issued a communique listing their demands and stating that Poland had rejected them.

The same sources said Polish Foreign Minister Beck had agreed to direct negotiations after the British Government, supported by the French, had urged him to do so. It was on instructions of Col. Beck, these sources added, that Mr. Lipski early yesterday afternoon solicited an audience with Von Ribbentrop.

There were scenes of great animation in the corridors of the Chamber of Deputies as members informally discussed the situation. It was generally agreed that the Government would get a quick vote of full support when Parliament meets tomorrow.

Premier Daladier was expected to reorganize the Cabinet, creating a new national ministry.

The communique issued after the Cabinet meeting follows:

"The Cabinet approved unanimously the following decrees presented by Edouard Daladier, President of the Council (Premier):

"First, a decree ordering a general mobilization of the French armies of the land, sea and air on all French territory, in Algeria, in the colonies, and in the other territories under French allegiance (the first day of mobilization is September 2);

"Second, a decree establishing a state of siege in eighty-nine French Departments and the territory of Belfort as well as in the three Departments of Algeria;

"Third, a decree convoking the Chamber for tomorrow, September 2."

The removal of civilians from the French capital continued even as Premier Daladier called on his chief aids. More than 31,000 school children already had been sent to the provinces.

Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet this morning received the Italian Ambassador, Raffaele Guaraglia, and the Spanish Ambassador, Jose Felix Lequerique. Later Ambassador William C. Bullitt of the United States talked with the Foreign Minister.

Reports of the German invasion came from Berlin and from the Polish embassy here. The ministers were called to Elysee Palace to meet with President Albert Lebrun.

Upon receipt of word of the German operations, M. Daladier rushed to the War Ministry and called Generalissimo Maurice Gustave Gamelin, supreme commander of land, sea and air forces, into consultation. A little later M. Daladier summoned Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet.

The Polish embassy said that Germans violated the Polish frontier at four points and at the same time it characterized German charges that Poles had crossed into Germany as "pure invention."

Havas, French news agency, announced that "a German declaration of war against Poland probably will lead France and Great Britain to take new military measures."

Pledged to Aid Poland

Britain and France are committed to aid Poland in any fight to save her independence.

"German reports of pretended violation of German territory by Poland are pure invention, as is the fable of 'attack' by Polish insurgents on Gleiwitz," the Polish embassy announcement said.

The report caught Paris by surprise on a sunny morning when newspapers were proclaiming that "French and British firmness can still save peace."

The removal of civilians from the French capital continued even as Premier Daladier called on his chief aids. More than 31,000 school children already had been sent to the provinces.

Last night Paris underwent her first complete blackout, in furtherance of orders putting air raid precautions on a wartime basis. With windows closed and black curtains drawn, Parisians who had to work through the night sweltered in the summer heat. But nature laughed at the blackout. The city was bathed with brilliant moonlight.

French leaders and diplomats accredited here conferred far into the night.

A half hour before midnight Polish Ambassador Lukasiewicz, a husky, youthful figure, strode into Mr. Bonnet's office through the velvet-carpeted anti-chambers, where several Deputies and Senators chatted of the chances of war and peace.

A few minutes later United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt arrived, hatless, for one of his information-seeking calls on the Foreign Minister. He waited in the private salon outside Mr. Bonnet's office until the Polish envoy emerged at 11:45 P. M.

Mr. Bullitt and the Polish diplomat exchanged greetings and then Mr. Bullitt talked with Mr. Bonnet until about midnight. After Mr. Bullitt left, Mr. Bonnet conferred with his aids for more than an hour.

Reichsfuehrer Hitler's sixteen-point demands on Poland were communicated to the French Government through the embassy in Berlin yesterday.

A proposal by Italy for a meeting of France, Britain, Germany, Italy, Russia and Poland to seek peaceful settlement was said to have been transmitted to Paris from the French embassy in Rome.

Both proposals were said to have been debated in a Cabinet meeting last night and to have been judged unacceptable, at least in their present form.

The Italian plan was described by Claude Vivieres in L'Ordre as a "kind of permanent Munich conference" calling for immediate surrender of Danzig to the Reich and control of Pomorze (the Polish Corridors) for a year by France, Britain, Russia and Italy.

normal control by civil authorities.

Parliament Called.

Parliament has been called into a "national defense" session tomorrow. Many deputies will appear in service uniform for the session, which is expected to be similar to that historic session of Tuesday, Aug. 4, 1914.

Interest Wanes.

In official Paris, interest waned in diplomatic efforts to keep peace or find a settlement in view of the German invasion of Poland.

In spite of the situation on the German-Polish border, however, the Daladier Government found the time to agree "in principle" to a final Italian mediation proposal.

French observers, however, considered both the offer and the acceptance as little more than gestures.

President Roosevelt's message on outlawing the bombing of civil populations was well received in France. The main worry of most Frenchmen marching off to their posts was the safety of those at home.

The French Government told the American President that "orders already have been given the commander-in-chief of all French forces" to avoid bombardment of civilian populations. It declared the orders were to "limit aerial bombardment strictly to military objectives."

Significant Reservation.

This, however, was significantly added:

"It goes without saying that the French Government reserves any action it considers appropriate if its adversary fails to observe the restrictions which the French Government has placed on the operations."

By CHARLES FOLTZ JR. (AP).—France's powerful fighting forces, strengthened by general mobilization, tonight were prepared to go to the aid of her Polish ally in war against Germany.

They awaited only the word to move.

France, like Great Britain, today sent Germany an ultimatum demanding an immediate halt of aggressive action and the withdrawal of German troops from Poland.

Answer Certain 'No.'

But the Nazi answer, even before the message was delivered to German diplomats preparing to leave Paris, was practically certain to be a flat "no."

Officially, the first day of French general mobilization dates from midnight tonight. Actually, it has been in effect for several days.

A state of siege was proclaimed today throughout France. But the fact is that the Army, Navy and Air Force have been in control of everything necessary for days in a smooth, orderly change-over from tions of its aerial forces.

Where France will strike—if war comes—remained a secret with tight-lipped Generalissimo Gamelin.

There was no doubt, however, that when France strikes, her land army, with general mobilization completed, will number more than 8,000,000 well-trained, well-equipped men whose places in the giant military machine long have been determined.

Swarms Flee Capital.

Parisians swarmed out of France's capital city by the hundreds of thousands today. Soldiers, boy scouts and other volunteers kept the lines of travelers moving through the railway stations on one of the brightest, sunlit days Paris has known this Summer and through one of its hottest nights. The people of this city seemed grim and determined.

Americans, stranded in Paris without sailings for the next few days, jammed the Embassies and travel bureaus. Some of them, when they found nothing was available, calmly returned to their hotels, stopping to buy gas masks on the way, then dressed and sallied forth to see Paris night life while they were waiting.

Communists Pledge Loyalty

One striking development of the evening showed that France, in the midst of this emergency, is unifying as it never has since the World War.

The Communist Deputies in the Chamber, who virtually were outlawed after their futile attempt to convince Frenchmen that the German-Soviet pact was a move for peace, proclaimed that their followers would be "in the first rank of resistance to Hitlerian fascism." Many of their number declared "we are Frenchmen first; politics is finished."

There was every indication that France's strong man, Premier Daladier, would strengthen the nation still further by the creation of a national union government.

There already is one vacancy pending in the Cabinet. Jean Zay, the 35-year-old Minister of Education, announced that he would quit to fight as a soldier immediately after Parliament meets.

FORSTER TELLS HITLER DANZIG IS REICH CITY

Issues Edict Proclaiming New Law to People Under Nazi Rule.

FUEHRER SENDS HIS THANKS

Decree Suspends Constitution of Area as Guaranteed by the League of Nations.

BERLIN, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—Adolf Hitler today accepted the Free City of Danzig into the Reich.

The Fuehrer acted after Albert Forster, Nazi Chief of State of the Free City and Nazi district leader there, had proclaimed the reunion of the Baltic city with Hitler's Germany, and begged the Fuehrer to accept it.

In a telegram to Herr Forster, Herr Hitler acknowledged the reception of Herr Forster's proclamation and thanked him for "the loyalty of Danzig to Germans."

He declared a newly proclaimed law by Herr Forster for the reunion of Danzig to Germany "immediately effective" and named Herr Forster, already chosen by the Danzig Senate as Chief of State, to head the City Government.

"I acknowledge your proclamation of the return of the Free City of Danzig to the Reich," the Fuehrer's telegram said.

"I thank you, Gauleiter Forster and all Danzig men and women, for your loyalty which you have displayed for so many years.

"Greater Germany welcomes you with joy in her heart.

Law of Reunion to Follow.

"The law of reunion will be enacted forthwith. I appoint you, Herr Forster, chief of the civil administration in the Danzig territory."

Herr Forster notified Hitler, Fuehrer of Germany, of his action by telegram.

Article 1 of Herr Forster's decree suspended the Constitution of the Free City immediately.

Under the city's League of Nations status its Constitution was guaranteed by the league, and changes without its consent were declared illegal.

Article 2 of the decree placed all legal and administrative power exclusively in the hands of the Chief of State, Herr Forster himself.

Herr Forster's telegram to Herr Hitler read:

"My Fuehrer—I have just signed and then put into effect the following basic law, concerning the reunion of Danzig with the German Reich:

"The basic State law of the Free State of Danzig and the reunion of Danzig with the German Reich is effective September 1, 1939.

"To lift the immediate distress of the people and State of the Free City of Danzig, I decree the following basic State law.

"Article 1: The Constitution of the Free City of Danzig has been suspended, effective immediately.

"Article 2: All legal and administrative power will be executed exclusively by the head of the State (Forster).

Article 3: The Free City of Danzig with its territory and its peoples forms a part of the German Reich, effective immediately.

Article 4: [illegible] a final decision regarding the introduction of German Reich's laws by the Fuehrer, the entire laws of the constitution remain in force as they apply at the moment.

"Signed at Danzig, September 1, 1939, Albert Forster, Gauleiter (District Leader.)

Begs Hitler's Approval.

"I beg you, my Fuehrer, in the name of Danzig and its population to consent to this basic State law and to carry out the reunion with the German Reich through Federal law.

"Obediently, my Fuehrer, Danzig pledges to you imperishable thankfulness and eternal loyalty. Hail my Fuehrer.

(Signed)

"ALBERT FORSTER, GAULEITER."

Herr Forster followed the act with a proclamation to Danzigers that "the hour for which you have longed for twenty years has come.

"Effective today, Danzig has returned to the great German Reich. Our Fuehrer, Adolf Hitler, has freed us.

"The swastika flag, the flag of the German Reich, waves for the first time today on the public buildings in Danzig. It waves, however, also from former Polish buildings and everywhere in the harbor.

Citizens of Reich.

"Church bells peal forth and we thank the Lord for our liberation and also the Fuehrer, who has given us the opportunity to get rid of the evils of the Versailles Treaty.

"Long live a free Danzig, now returned home, and long live our great fatherland.

"We Danzigers are happy now also to be allowed to be citizens of the Reich. Danzig men and women, in this ceremonial hour, we want to stand together, clasp hands and give the Fuehrer our holy promise to do everything within our power for our wonderful great Germany.

"Danzig is now returned home into the Reich. Long live our great German fatherland. Long live our beloved Fuehrer, Adolf Hitler."

HITLER VOWS HE WILL GET FREE CITY AND CORRIDOR OR DIE FIGHTING IN THE EFFORT

Now Meeting Force With Force, He Tells Cheering Reichstag, Which Proclaims Danzig Annexed. War Is Another Undeclared One

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Sept. 1—Adolf Hitler declared to the German nation today that he would achieve the return of Danzig and the Polish Corridor and halt Polish attacks on Germans or die fighting.

As a sign of his determination to "live henceforth more than ever for Germany alone," the Führer and his adjutants appeared at the momentous Reichstag session in gray army uniforms.

"I am putting on the uniform and I shall take it off only in victory or death," Hitler vowed in his impassioned thirty-six-minute speech.

Hitler dramatically disclosed that he had picked his successors as leaders of the Reich in case anything happened to him—Field Marshal Hermann Goering and Rudolf Hess. Hitler's deputy, were first and second choices, respectively. If something also happened to both Goering and Hess, he said, the nation would be led by men chosen as the bravest by the Senate of the Nazi party.

Not Counting On Italian Support, He Says

Germany does not count on Italian support, Hitler said, while, on the other hand, Russia now is the Reich's eternal friend.

Said Herr Hitler: "I should above all like to thank Italy, which has supported us this whole time. You will understand, however, that for carrying this fight through I do not want to appeal for foreign help. We shall solve our task ourselves.

In essence, Hitler's speech was a reiteration of the German plea that every attempt to get a peaceful revision of "intolerable conditions" had failed. He said Germany's demands were "modest and loyal," but the reply of Poland and the Western powers was only provocation.

To neutral nations Hitler pledged scrupulous respect as long as Germany's opponents do likewise.

Makes Last Effort To Stave Off Britain And France

In a last-minute effort to stave off action by Britain and France, Hitler renounced all claims on them. By implication, this included renunciation of Germany's colonial claims.

"We want nothing from the Western powers and we have formally declared we have no claims against them," Hitler said. "Our west wall (of fortifications) is also our west border."

Hitler refrained from declaring war on Poland, but said he would continue to fight until Poland's Government yields or is supplanted by a Government which will yield.

Germany will not fight women and children, he said, but if its opponent resorts to such warfare Germany will answer "bomb with bomb and gas with gas."

Now Returning Shot For Shot, He Says To Cheers

He said that if Germany submitted to Poland's treatment of his latest settlement proposals—Poland refused even to discuss them—Germany would deserve to withdraw from the political stage.

This morning, Hitler told the cheering Reichstag, Germany has been returning shot for shot.

He called the German Army the best equipped in the world—it was equipped at a cost of 90,000,000,000 marks ($36,000,000,000) since the Nazis came into power.

Hitler was at his oratorical best. He looked worn and harried, but his voice was strong, his eyes fiery and his gestures vigorous.

Hitler was followed on the rostrum by Minister of the Interior Wilhelm Frick, who proposed a law which decreed that Danzig was a part of the Reich and that its citizens had German nationality. The measure was adopted unanimously by the cheering assembly.

At the conclusion of the session in the Kroll Opera House, Field Marshal Goering, on behalf of the Reichstag and the German people, pledged Hitler unswerving loyalty and unquestioning obedience. The singing of national anthems ended the session.

Hitler spoke throughout as if war already were well under way, and said he intended to be "the first soldier of the German Reich."

Greeted by a great ovation by the Reichstag, which had been summoned at 3 A. M. for a special 10 o'clock meeting, Hitler had plunged directly into the subject of Poland and Danzig by declaring:

"We meet to solve the problems raised by the Versailles Treaty."

"It Is A Lie That We Do All By Force," He Says

Denying that the Reich is not peaceably inclined—Hitler less than five hours before had announced that his army was meeting "force with force" because of alleged border violations by the Poles—he declared that we "tried to solve [illegible] problems peacefully."

"It is a lie," he said, "that we do all by force."

"Fifteen years of peaceful effort to meet this issue were of no avail," he added.

"Danzig is German. The Corridor was and is German. More than 1,000,000 Germans who lived in this territory had to leave their homes in 1919 and 1920.

"The dictate of Versailles is not a law for us Germans."

Says He Offered Peace, But Poland Mobilized

Reciting Germany's peaceful efforts, he said it had made proposals for revising "unbearable conditions" in Austria, the Sudetenland of Czechoslovakia and other places, but all without result.

"We also proposed a solution of the Corridor problem. It was clear that it had to be solved," he shouted, to cheers.

Hitler said he had spoken frequently with Polish statesmen about the Corridor problem and finally drew up a moderate formula for meeting the issue. "Only I could make such terms," he said to great applause.

"These proposals were rejected. The answer (by Poland) was first mobilization and then pressure on Danzig."

Asserts Reich Treats Polish Minority Fairly

Hitler said Germany always had treated fairly the Polish minority in Germany. Then he related that the Polish Ambassador was called and informed that Germany no longer would look on quietly if "abuse" of German minorities in Poland and ultimatums to Danzig continued.

"I have left no doubt that the Germany of today nowise resembles the Germany of the Hohenzollerns.

"No great power would long tolerate such conditions. I made a last attempt by proposing to Britain that she play the role of mediator.

"I sought to establish a direct connection between Germany and Poland."

This apparently was a reference to the sixteen-point settlement proposal upon which Germany had expected Warsaw to send a negotiator to Berlin.

Patience Gone, He Ended British Talks, He Says

"I sat for two days with my Government waiting for a Polish plenipotentiary without seeing him," the Führer said.

Hitler declared his love of peace and patience was worn out and so he had informed the British Government last night that negotiations were broken off.

To great applause, he said he had decided to "talk as Poland talks"—with force.

He denied that Western powers have any legitimate interest in the Polish Corridor or Danzig.

"We want nothing from the Western powers and we have formally declared we have no claims against them. Our west wall (of fortifications) is also our west border."

"Poland Fired On German Soldiers On German Soil"

Hitler referred to the non-aggression pact with Russia, saying Germany did not propose to export the Nazi doctrine and saw no reason for further separation from Russia.

"I am going to see to it that peace reigns on our eastern border as it does on other frontiers. Poland last night fired on German soldiers on German soil. But they already have been chased back with shots."

The Reichstag cheered.

Turning again to Russia, Hitler recalled that "Germany and Russia fought each other in the last war.

"This will not happen a second time," he said. "The non-aggression pact was ratified yesterday in Moscow and Berlin. It was greeted the same way in Berlin and Moscow.

"Without Germans, Eastern Europe Would Be Barbaric"

"Our aims: I am determinted to solve the question of Danzig and the Corridor in relation to Poland and effect an arrangement for peacefully living together.

"I am willing to fight till this threefold aim is achieved or until there is a Government in Poland which accepts this.

"Without the German people there would be barbarism in Eastern Europe. Minorities have been persecuted. Hitherto I have tried peacefully by revision proposals to bring about a solution."

It was at this point that Hitler disclosed his wishes on succession to the Nazi leadership of Germany, and said:

"I have never desired anything more than to serve the state as a soldier. I am putting on the uniform and I shall take it off only in victory or death.

Demands Discipline, Devotion To Duty, From Women

"One must not confuse my patience with cowardice. . . . I have decided to speak the same language to the Poles as they spoke to us."

The Deputies rose and "hailed."

Hitler addressed a word to German women, saying he required of them strict discipline and devotion to duty. He made a passionate general appeal that they and the whole nation accede to every privation for sake of German honor.

"I remember that once a Prussian King won three battles against a coalition of enemies because he had a stanch heart. I want to assure the world there will never again be a November, 1918, in German history.

"Nobody May Ask About Personal Comfort"

"It is entirely unnecessary that we live—it is necessary that Germany live. You Reichstagers must be the banner bearers of resistance. Nobody may ask about personal comfort. Others before us have brought sacrifices."

Closing the session, Goering said:

"The German Reichstag stands unanimously behind the Führer. The German people are ready to make every sacrifice. The Reichstag pledges implicit obedience. All will do their to the utmost. In the fight forced on us by Poland we tru shakably in our defense force. Sieg heil to our Führer—Hail victory to our leader!"

Hysterical Enthusiasm Marks Session's End

Scenes of hysterical enthusiasm marked the end of the meeting.

For the first time in Nazi Germany, soldiers stood guard with party formations at the opera house where the Reichstag session was held.

Notice of the session was so short that some Reichstag members were in informal attire.

The diplomatic box filled slowly. British Ambassador Sir Nevile Henderson was not present, but Britain was represented by Embassy Counsellor Sir Ogilvie Forbes.

Secretary Donald Heath represented the United States.

Called on Short Notice

The Reichstag convened at 10:09 a. m. (4:09 a. m. E. S. T.). For the first time in Nazi Germany, soldiers stood guard with party formations at Kroll opera house, where the session was held. Notice of the meeting was so short there was no time to put all swastika decorations into place. Some Reichstag members had not found time to put on formal attire.

The diplomatic box was filled slowly. Among the earliest arrivals was the Chinese Ambassador. He was followed by the Japanese, Italian and Belgian envoys.

Sir Neville Henderson, the British Ambassador, was not present but Britain was represented by Sir Ogilvie Forbes, Embassy Counselor, Donald Heath, secretary, represented the United States.

Air Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering opened the session.

"The Reichstag is opened," he said. "I could not call you before 3 a. m. today. But thanks to good organization on the greater part of you have been able to arrive.

"More than 100 members are not here because they are soldiers of the German army. They are going to do their duty."

Axis Broken, Hitler Hints To Reichstag

Germany Claims Victories, Complete Control of 'Polish Air'

Berlin, Sept. 1 (AP)—Germany, at the end of the first day of her undeclared war on Poland, claimed victories all along the line, but especially insisted on having complete control of "Polish air."

Authorized sources insisted there was no war—but merely that a counter-blow had been struck in retaliation for last night's alleged Polish attack on Gleiwitz and for border incidents which have been occurring for weeks.

The German attack on all Polish fronts had begun at 5:45 a.m. (12:45 a.m., Friday, Brooklyn time) or almost a quarter of a day before Chancellor Hitler in an impassioned 36-minute speech before the Reichstag, once more pleaded his case before the nation and the world.

In that memorable session, the Reichstag members not only unanimously pledged allegiance to their Fuehrer, who now is also their war lord, but formally annexed Danzig to the Reich.

Hitler further declared at that session, that Germany would fight against Poland alone, at least without the help of Italy, her partner in the Rome-Berlin axis.

Hitler's warm indorsement, however, of Germany's non-aggression pact with Soviet Russia, and official admission that a Soviet military mission is expected soon in Berlin, probably today, left the interpretation open that Soviet Russia may yet join Germany in a "counter-bloc" against Poland.

Germany was speedily getting down to a war basis. Throughout the day the radio instructed the populace what to do under completely altered conditions.

The day was crowded with fast-moving events. Orders of the day to the army, navy and air force, admonished the nation's fighters to do all for the Fatherland. An appeal by the Reich's women's leader, Gertrude Scholz Klink, vied with similar appeals for support by leaders of civil servants and other organizations.

At noon today an official announcement said the Nazi air force had gone into action over Polish territory and that the German army was "counterattacking all along the German-Polish frontier.

German land forces, the announcement said, were determined to break all resistance.

The commanders-in-chief of Germany's army, navy and air force—Col. Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, Admiral Erich Raeder and Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering—issued "orders of the day" pledging loyalty to Hitler and the Reich.

The army and navy orders were short but Goering's command to the air force was an exhortation:

"Comrades! For weeks and months you experienced unheard of, unbelievable provocations with clenched fists and gritted teeth . . .

"The measure now is full. No longer can the German people stand for the criminal measures to which hundreds and thousands of Germans already have fallen victims.

"The Fuehrer has called. Your great hour has arrived!"

In his passionate 36-minute Reichstag speech the Fuehrer declared significantly that Germany does not count on Italian help. On the other hand he pictured Soviet Russia as Germany's eternal friend.

In a passionate thirty-six-minute Reichstag speech Der Fuehrer declared significantly that Germany does not count on Italian help. On the other hand, he pictured Soviet Russia as Germany's eternal friend.

Herr Hitler spoke as if war already were under way, but he did not go through the old-fashioned procedure of formally declaring war.

Infers Axis Is No More

He inferred that the Rome-Berlin axis had been smashed. Germany, he said, does not count on Italian help. He vowed eternal friendship for Soviet Russia.

Said Herr Hitler: "I should above all like to thank Italy, which has supported us this whole time. You will understand, however, that for carrying this fight through I do not want to appeal for foreign help. We shall solve our task ourselves.

The supreme Nazi leader declared to his nation and the world that Germany would fight until the Polish Government yields or is supplanted by a government that will yield.

He threatened to answer "bomb with bomb and gas with gas"—depending on the sort of warfare Poland wages.

The Reichstag unanimously shouted its approval of a law annexing Danzig—original bone of German-Polish contention.

League Official Leaves.

The German radio announced that the League of Nations Commissioner for Danzig, Prof. Carl Burckhardt, and his staff left Danzig at 9 A. M. (4 A. M., New York time).

The German swastika immediately was raised over the red brick house which had been headquarters of league commissioners since after the world war Danzig became a free city, under league protection, and a unit of the Polish customs administration.

Herr Hitler declared his intention to lead his forces at the front and named Field Marshal Goering as his first choice for succession to the Nazi leadership if he were killed.

He called Germany's Army the best equipped in the world and confidently assured Germany that "there will not be another November, 1918."

A few hours earlier Herr Hitler had ordered his mighty army to "meet force with force," and artillery fire was heard near the Polish-Silesian border.

Cannonading Heard.

The sound of cannonading rumbled over the Silesian fields near Gleiwitz on the Polish frontier.

Danzig meanwhile was cut off from telephone communication and it was assumed that Poles had cut communication lines in Pomorze, the Polish Corridor, which Hitler has demanded as Germany's own.

The German fleet swung into action on the Baltic. It blockaded the Polish port of Gdynia, neighbor of Danzig.

German warships started clearing neutral shipping off the Baltic.

The German air defense ordered the grounding of all but military planes and threatened to shoot down the others—German and foreign.

Germany tensed herself to repel air attacks. Schools were dismissed. War conditions prevailed all along the Eastern frontier.

Guards were stationed on top of Hitler's palatial Chancellery. They scanned the skies with field glasses. Several hundred persons gathered in front of the building, singing for the first time since the birth of the crisis and chanting, "We want to see our Fuehrer."

Numerous overnight skirmishes ushered in the heavy fighting along the Polish-German border. But Hitler withheld his order to strike in force until after dawn. Then in an order of the day to his massed forces he declared German patience had been exhausted by Polish "provocations."

Berlin Outwardly Calm.

Despite the tension Berlin was outwardly calm. Stores were open. Housewives stood in line before the meat shops.

Many persons remained close to radios to hear the frequent news bulletins and official statements. But the citizenry was completely in the dark as to developments outside Germany and the zone of hostilities.

"What are France and England doing?" This was a frequent question.

A Government spokesman denied reports by Warsaw radio that the German air force was bombing open Polish cities, including Krakow, Katowice and Grodnow.

"Our planes bombed military objectives near these cities," the spokesman said, "but no attack was made on defenseless towns or on the Polish population."

The Propaganda Ministry announced that two war bulletins would be issued daily, at noon and 4:30 P. M. (7 A. M. and 11:30 A. M. New York time).

Troops Pledge Loyalty.

The commanders-in-chief of Germany's army, navy and air force—Col.-Gen. Walther von Brauchitisch, Admiral Erich Raeder and Field Marshal Goering—issued "orders of the day" pledging loyalty to Hitler and the Reich.

The army and navy orders were short, but Marshal Goering's command to the air force was an exhortation:

"Comrades! For weeks and months you experienced unheard of, unbelievable provocations with clenched fists and gritted teeth. . . .

"The measure now is full. No longer can the German people stand for the criminal measures to which hundreds and thousands of Germans already have fallen victims.

"The Fuehrer has called. Your great hour has arrived!

"Flyers—In lightning attacks you will annihilate the enemy wherever he presents himself for battle or retreats in full route! . . .

"Men of the Ground Organization—You will be happy conscientiously to make preparations for attacks and for the safety of your comrades in the air!

Order Attackers Brought Down.

"Anti-aircraft Artillerymen—You will bring down every attacker!

"Radiomen — Upon you devolves the responsibility of insuring the quick and frictionless co-operation of our air force!

"Comrades! I look each of you in the eyes and pledge each of you to give all for the people and the fatherland. At your head, our beloved fuehrer; behind you, the entire German nation united in national socialism.

"Then there can be but one slogan for us: Victory!"

Gen. von Brauchitisch's orders said: "In the certainty of our just cause we enter the fight for a clear aim: The lasting security of German folkdom and German living space against foreign attacks and claims to power. . . . Forward with God for Germany!"

Admiral Raeder stated "Der Fuehrer's call has reached us. The hour of decision finds us ready to give our all for the honor, justice and liberty of our fatherland.

"Remembering our glorious tradition, we will conduct the fight in unshakable confidence in our Fuehrer and in firm belief in the greatness of our people and the Reich.

"Long live the Fuehrer!"

Herr Hitler's order to his army was issued at 5:30 A. M. (12:30 A. M. Friday, New York time).

"The German army will conduct a fight for honor and the right to the life of the resurrected German people, with firm determination," his command said.

"The Polish State has rejected my efforts to establish neighborly relations, and instead has appealed to weapons.

"Germans in Poland are the victims of a bloody terror, driven from house and home.

"A series of border violations, unbearable for a great Power, shows tha the Poles no longer are willing to respect the German border.

"To put an end to these insane incitations, nothing remains but for me to meet force with force from now on.

Invokes Traditions.

"The German Army will conduct a fight for honor and the right to the life of resurrected German people with firm determination. I expect that every soldier, mindful of the great traditions of the eternal German military, will do his duty to the last.

"Remember always that you are representatives of the National Socialist great Germany. Long live our people and our Reich."

The first report of firing was from citizens of Gleiwitz, but a few miles from the Polish-Silesian border. They said it was artillery fire.

An almost unbroken line of pack wagons, artillery, cavalry, trucks and infantry was to be seen in the neighborhood of Gleiwitz.

Out of hours of solitary mediation Adolf Hitler mapped his course today. During the entire crisis, since his arrival in Berlin August 24, the Fuehrer had not left the chancellery nor had he stepped to the balcony to greet the crowds intermittently in the Wilhalmplatz.

No 'Heils' Are Heard.

The crowds had differed from those in days past. There had been no loud "heils" for the chancellor nor shouts of "We want to see our Fuehrer." The watchers had been silent, almost pathetic, waiting for something to break the strain they were under.

Night after night the Fuehrer had conferred or deliberated until 4 A. M. In darkness and daylight he summoned advisers, experts and aids, averaging four hours of sleep each day. Between conferences Herr Hitler had long hours alone.

Last night he was reported to have entered another period of solitude such as he observed Wednesday night after British Ambassador Sir Nevile Henderson presented Britain's counter-questions to his proposals for a Polish settlement. No one could see him.

REICH CHARGES BRITAIN REALLY IS 'AGGRESSOR'

Poland Is Only A "Sub-Worker" In Unfairness, Commentary Says

Germany Declared Ready For 10-Year War For "Final Peace"

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Associated Press Correspondent.

Berlin, Sept. 2—In a long attack on Great Britain, German political circles through the official news agency declared today that "Germany is ready to fight even a ten-year war for its rights and the final peace of Europe."

Answering what it charged were English efforts to put the blame on Germany for failure of recent diplomatic negotiations in the Polish conflict, the commentary said:

"England did not play fair. When one considers that England, through unconditional support of the Polish standpoint, immediately removed every possibility of German-Polish understanding and the strange diplomatic attitude of England during the last days, then one realizes that England wants a European war and intentionally prepared it."

"Only Real Aggressor"

"England today still faces the choice of whether it wants to plunge the world into misery, but its politics of the last months and the aims it thereby pursued leave no doubt that it will not be deterred from the consequences of European catastrophe.

"The only real aggressor, therefore, from the political and historical viewpoint is Great Britain, while the Polish Government functions only as a subworker."

These political quarters said "England didn't even have a desire to accomplish an understanding."

England "will pay the bill" if it enters war, the commentary said.

With the German army declaring its columns were "deep in Polish territroy" tonight, the German nation was somewhat stunned and dazed at the sweep of events of the first day of undeclared war.

The people were grimly determined, however, that each man and woman would do his duty to achieve those objectives which Hitler, in an impassioned Reichstag speech, declared to be the purpose of the resort to arms.

Objectives Outlined

Those objectives were reunion of Danzig with the Reich, restitution of the Polish Corridor region to Germany and a cessation of conditions along the German-Polish border which Hitler earlier described as "Macedonian," or terroristic.

From the viewpoint of military tactics, Germany went beyond the Danzig Corridor during the first day of the undeclared war and announced the German army which advanced on Poland from East Prussia was "deep in Polish territory."

German troops were attacking all along the Polish-German frontier and were reported to have pushed into several sections of Poland. A communique from the high army command said advances of German troops and air force which started from Pomerania, Silesia and East Prussia this morning were well under way toward their objectives.

The chief command's report on the first day's operation was especially enthusiastic in reference to the exploits of the air force. As the result of various air raids into Polish territory, including one at Warsaw, Germany was pronounced "in complete control of Polish air."

War Status Denied

The official interpretation on the status of relations between Poland and Germany was that there is no state of war existing. The embassies of both nations are still functioning. In fact, Jozef Lipski, Polish Ambassador, is understood to have made a protest at the Foreign Office against German military operations in Poland.

In Warsaw, too, the German Embassy remains staffed.

German officialdom insists that all that happened was that Germany struck back after Poland attacked at Gleiwitz last night and consistently violated the border in recent weeks.

Informed quarters frankly admitted, however, that if, for instance, Katowice in Polish Silesia should be "liberated," it might be retained permanently by Germany, although Hitler's sixteen points submitted last night to the world said nothing of Silesia. In other words, it was indicated the sixteen points no longer stand as Germany's offer in the crisis.

As further argument that a state of war does not exist, officials pointed to the fact that the German-Italian military alliance has not become operative in the sense that Italy must give Germany military assistance.

Russia May Aid

Tonight, in fact, it appeared more as if Soviet Russia was likely soon to aid Germany.

A military mission of high Russian officers was expected momentarily in Berlin, and there was a general expectation that a military alliance would be quickly concluded with Soviet Russia.

This possibility received nourishment when Hitler, in his Reichstag speech, spoke of Russia with warmth which six months ago would have been thought impossible.

Hitler was expected to leave the capital shortly, although officials said the question as to his whereabouts might as well immediately be struck off reporters' daily bill of fare.

"We only hope he won't venture too far forward," one official said. "It would be just like him."

There was still hope in some official quarters that Germany's expedition into Poland might not lead to a general war. It was pointed out that there were still contacts with London and between the German Embassy and the British Foreign Office. These officials also intimated that Premier Mussolini was still at work trying to prevent a major conflict.

Censorship Likely

Less optimistic realists were planning measures looking considerably ahead. From Saturday on, for example, censorship will likely be in operation, as is customary everywhere in wartime.

Germany, looking to the possibility of a long conflict and of declared war, has asked the Government of The Netherlands to take care of its interests in Poland should a declared war result from today's developments.

Further concrete evidence of the grim reality of war was a fifteen-minute air-raid alarm which swept through Berlin. It was later announced to be a rehearsal.

Preparations for blackouts had already been made during the day, as one of the first tasks for the citizenry in wartime. Painters put white marks on the curbs to guide drivers and pedestrians in the event of attack from the air.

Bombing Report Denied

The army high command issued a communique denying reports that the German air force had bombed open Polish cities.

"Official investigations show that all such assertions are untrue," the communique said. "The German air force, in fulfillment of its task, has attacked only military objectives."

In general, Germany during the first day of her armed conflict with Poland was trying to organize life on a martial basis as the emotional strain of the Führer's fervid appeal before the Reichstag gave way to practical considerations.

Economy measures were put into effect immediately. Bills of fare at restaurants were reduced to a minimum. Display of electric advertising signs was forbidden, shops and stores were ordered to cease window lighting after 9 P. M. and the schools were closed until further notice.

Additional private cars and trucks were requisitioned by the military.

The management of the state theaters announced that the state operas and theaters would not resume presentations for the present.

As a further sign of the times, the American Consulate arranged for the first evacuation train for the embassy and consulate staffs for Saturday morning.

German officials heatedly denied Polish and British charges that Warsaw had had inadequate or no notice of Hitler's sixteen-point offer of adjustment.

Official quarters were particularly indignant at English radio reports that Britain did not receive Hitler's program for transmission to Poland.

Summary of Hitler's Speech

The National Broadcasting Company issued the following summary of Adolf Hitler's Reichstag speech as released in Berlin by the German Government and read over the air by Max Jordan, NBC representative in Europe:

Danzig was always, and still is, German. The Corridor always was and still is German. The German people have developed those territories, otherwise they would still be barbarian. These territories were severed from Germany, causing untold suffering to the people who live there. By peaceful offers of a peaceful revision, I have tried once more to settle this problem. It is not true that we have tried to force the issue, and previous issues, all the time. There would have been time enough to bring about such peaceful revision.

I made proposal after proposal, concerning disarmament, concerning Austria, concerning Czecho-Slovakia, and many other issues, but it is impossible to carry on if such peaceful revision is found to be unachievable and if the intolerable conditions persist. It has been said that Germany breaks existing treaties.

I must reply that the Versailles Treaty to Germany does not mean law, as it was forced upon Germany with point of guns. The existing problems have to be solved. The western powers may think that there was no hurry in bringing about such a solution, but the time element is not indifferent to us.

Talks of Generous Offer.

I have discussed many possible solutions with Polish statesmen. I made an offer to them some time ago which was the most loyal and most generous imaginable. Only I, myself, could have made such an offer, although I knew millions of Germans disagreed with me at the time. The proposal was turned down and Poland then started a struggle and started oppressing the German minorities in that country.

She did not observe her treaty obligations. We do observe obligations we have entered into. No Frenchman who lives in the Saar territory is being oppressed. Over a period of four months I have been looking on. I have warned Poland that further measures of oppression and measures of disregarding existing treaties on the part of Poland would mean that Germany would have to act sooner or later. I told the Polish Ambassador here that the Germany of today is no longer the Germany of old.

No Power on earth could tolerate such conditions in the long run. After a time, because I was convinced Poland really did not want a peaceful agreement, I proposed a solution on the basis of direct negotiations. For two long days I have been waiting to see what Poland would do. All I received as an answer was that Poland did not want to negotiate with us, and this message did not even reach us directly.

The German nation would deserve to disappear from the political scene if she stood for this sort of treatment.

Peace Not Weakness.

My love of peace and my endless patience should not be mistaken for weakness. I, therefore, told the British Government last night that I considered the suggestion I had made for a peaceful settlement of the Polish question as a failure, but that I saw no possibility now of carrying on serious negotiations with Poland. That country's mobilization was the answer to my proposal, and last night again, no less than fourteen border incidents have occurred which are Poland's responsibility.

I am now determined to talk the same language to Poland that Poland has been talking to us. I have given in to the Western Powers for quite some time, and particularly I have offered to England that we come to terms on the basis of a general settlement affecting our relations, but it must be mutual; it must come from both sides.

Germany has no interest in the situation of western borders being changed in any respect. The German fortifications in the west are meant to be a recognition of the borders as they exist today. I also want to thank Italy at this time that she has consistently backed us up. Of course, I do not want to appeal to others for help. We shall help ourselves.

As for the neutrals, as long as they remain neutral, we shall respect their neutrality.

[Then the Chancellor started discussing briefly the pact between Soviet Russia and Germany. He said that everybody knew that different political doctrines were subscribed to in the two countries, but he said Germany has no desire of exporting her own doctrines into Soviet Russia.]

If Soviet Russia agrees that she will not export her doctrines to our country, the assurance is thereby given that we can live together as peaceful neighbors. The pact that we have concluded with Soviet Russia means an assurance of peace, and that never again will we have to consume our energies in a major struggle.

The tremendous change which has been brought about by the Soviet-German pact will probably mean at the same time that the political trend in the future will be in a different direction. This pact is of outstanding importance and I am convinced that it will never be changed. I think that the whole of the German people approve of the friendship with Russia.

[At this point the Chancellor discussed the situation a it is seen by him this very morning in respect to Poland. He said that he was determined to solve the existing problem, that Danzig had to return to the Reich, that the Corridor also had to become German again, and that he wanted that relations with Poland should be revised in such a manner that never again can peace be disturbed at the eastern borders.]

Promises to Fight On.

We will fight as long as it will be necessary to bring such peaceful conditions about on our eastern borders. We will fight until this present Polish Government, or any other Polish Government, will make such a settlement possible.

I have no intention of fighting women or children. I have, therefore, given strict orders to the German air force that only military fortifications and points of military importance should be attacked. However, if our opponents should not understand what positions we are taking, then Poland is liable to make an experience that will be terrible beyond description.

[Hitler then said that since 5:45 o'clock this morning, German time, fire was being exchanged between Poland and Germany. The shots had come across the border.]

From now on we will talk the same language. There will be bombs against bombs, and if our opponents should find that they cannot restrain themselves and use poison gas against us, it will be poison gas against them at the same time from us. We shall fight until our rights are granted.

We have spent some 90 billion marks for our national defense. Our army and navy today are more powerful than they ever were and we shall not back down. I myself am today, and will be from now on, nothing but the soldier of the German Reich; just as I have fought in the last war, so I will fight now. I shall not take off this uniform until we have achieved victory.

However, if something should happen to me, I want the German people to know that I have appointed Field Marshal Goering to become my successor. If something should happen to Field Marshal Goering, my deputy Rudolf Hess, will take his place; and if something should happen to Hess, a senate which I will soon appoint, will elect his successor, the man most worthy to succeed me.

I never knew what the word 'capitulation' means . If some people should ever think that we could back down and give in, they will be mistaken. Never again will a defeat such as in November, 1918, occur. It will never be repeated in German history. You men of the German Reichstag, it is not important that we live, but it is necessary that our nation should live. If our will power is strong enough, we shall win in the end.

Warsaw, Sept. 1 (Via Budapest)—Battles between German and Polish troops raged unabated tonight in Polish border areas, a general staff communique said.

The most violent fighting was reported from Silesia, one of the three main sectors in which Germany launched its invasion of Poland early today to begin her undeclared war.

16 German Planes Shot Down

The general staff said sixteen German warplanes were shot down and that Nazi flyers had bombed seventeen Polish cities, including Warsaw. Two Polish planes were lost.

Casualties had not been determined.

Huge, high-flying bombers dropped large cargoes of explosives in the Warsaw area close on the heels of similar raids on numerous smaller cities. The land attacks, official advices said, were in these main sectors:

First, from East Prussia against Dzialdowo and Mlawa.

Second, from Pomerania against Chojnice at the narrowest part of the disputed Corridor.

Third, from Breslau against Katowice.

The Nazi air raiders succeeded in getting over Warsaw after they had been balked in four earlier attempts.

Vistula Bridges Apparent Objectives

Apparently directing their attack on bridges across the Vistula river, Poland's outlet to the sea, the air raiders started the hour-and-ten-minute attack at 4.30 P. M.

An hour later they came back and headed toward Government buildings in the center of the city.

16 NAZI PLANES DOWNED, TWO OF OWN LOST, POLISH COMMUNIQUE ANNOUNCES

1939

A visit to the highway and railroad bridges across the Vistula, immediately after the "all-clear" signals were given, disclosed there was no visible damage. Destruction of the railroad bridge would be a serious blow to Poland's traffic from here to the coast and the west.

Both bridges were intact and traffic was proceeding normally.

No Sign Of Damage To Buildings

There was no sign of damage to buildings in the vicinity, although bomb fragments were picked up on the bridges and on the shore near by.

Official reports were lacking and it was announced that complete surveys of the bombed areas around the capital had not yet been received.

Some observers expressed the belief the bombs had landed either in the river or in open spaces on the shore opposite the city.

One explanation was that the bombers had dropped their explosives on military objectives just outside the city and merely were making a reconnaissance flight over the capital.

A walk through the streets showed the population had taken the bombing without panic, although many admitted they had undergone an hour and ten minutes of terrific strain.

With a telephone in one hand and a gas mask in the other, I dictated this dispatch to Budapest while the battle was on.

Fascinated residents stood on rooftops and watched. I could hear the wail of power-diving, pursuit ships which took off against the big, droning bombers. I could see the puffs of anti-aircraft guns.

Bombs Fall Near U. S. Embassy

Tremendous explosions shook the city. Some of the projectiles fell only two blocks from the United States Embassy.

Warsaw had little warning. Elmer W. Peterson, chief of the Associated Press bureau here, and I heard the anti-aircraft guns before we could hear the air-raid alarm sirens.

Reports reaching the capital told of the Nazi air raids in other parts of the nation.

A Government communique said a large number of women and children were killed in the bombardment of a refugee train from Poznan at the Kutno station, seventy miles west of Warsaw.

The first aerial attack on Poland was reported at Puck, near Danzig, at 5.40 A. M.

An official statement said three German planes were shot down near Krakow and four near Gdynia, Polish port on the same harbor as Danzig. It said Polish troops seized a German armored train at Chojnice.

The announcement said German troops invading Pomorze, the Polish Corridor, were "murdering the Polish population."

"Contrary to Hitler's announcement, many of the towns bombed had no military or strategic value," it added.

The bombers which raided Warsaw were unaccompanied, as they usually are, by their own pursuit planes. I counted fourteen of the big ships.

While the Polish communique declared the manner of the German invasion constituted "undoubted aggression," Poland awaited eagerly news from Britain and France, with whom she has mutual assistance agreements.

The impression prevailed here that Germany was making an effort to localize the war, but Poles were confident the Western powers would come to their assistance.

Moscicki Calls Parliament

Meanwhile, President Ignace Moscicki summoned Parliament for an extraordinary session beginning tomorrow. Parliament will pass emergency financial, economic and military measures to run the nation during the undeclared war.

President Moscicki also issued a statement to citizens of the republic reading:

"During the night the eternal enemy began aggressive activity against the Polish Republic before God and history.

"At this momentous time I address all citizens, deeply convinced the entire nation will defend its freedom and independence.

"The entire Polish nation, blessed by God, will fight for the nation's righteous cause shoulder to shoulder with its army on the battlefield until final victory."

It was emphasized here that Poland, so far, was fighting only defensively to establish beyond all doubt that Germany is the aggressor.

Many Without Gas Masks

Foreign circles speculated that Germany might be seeking only a partial conquest, while driving to keep the western powers neutral.

Warsaw's radio was turned over completely to announcements about the war and instructions to civilians.

Gas attacks were feared, but a majority of the citizens were without gas masks.

The American Embassy and consulate were working at top speed to evacuate hundreds of Americans, most of whom are of Polish descent. All Americans had gas masks.

One bomb in the afternoon raid destroyed a building near the Warsaw race course. Another wrecked the telephone lines to Conscancin, twelve miles from Warsaw, where the American Embassy had established emergency headquarters.

Rendezvous Of Americans

Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel-Biddle and his aides had choice seats for the afternoon's bombing.

Other members of the embassy and consulate staffs had gone to Brzesc-Litewski (Brest-Litovsk), seventy miles from Warsaw, where Americans will be collected. Some 6,000 Polish-Americans are scattered throughout the country, and a broadcast advised them to gather at Brzesc-Litewski for an attempt at evacuation via the Baltic.

An unidentified American woman and her son had a hair-raising experience. Bombed at Katowice in the morning, they started by automobile for Warsaw, only to be bombed again at Radomskon and to arrive here just in time for the big afternoon raid.

American Jailed As Spy

Another American, a man, whom the embassy also left unidentified, was jailed all night on suspicion of being a German spy and in spite of his United States passport. He was released with apologies.

In a special decree, Marshal Smigly-Rydz was appointed commander in chief of all Poland's armed forces, and also was named as successor to President Moscicki in the event the Presidency should become vacant before the war ends.

The Information Agency, published in the German language, was suspended indefinitely.

Sympathy From Slovaks

The Slovak Minister to Poland, Ladislaw Szathmaky, handed Foreign Minister Josef Beck a letter assuring Poland it had the sympathies of the Slovak nation.

The letter contained a protest against Germany's "use of Slovakia as a base of military action against Poland" and "asked Beck to assure Poland that Slovakia awaits help from Poland in regaining its independence.

The Slovak Minister charged that Slovak leaders were tools in German politics.

The Jewish Veterans Union appealed to all unconscripted members to volunteer immediately.

Warsaw, bathed in full moonlight, feared a night of air raids, so a complete blackout was ordered.

Fighting Starts In Danzig, Warsaw Takes To Shelter

[By the Associated Press]

Warsaw, Sept. 1—German warplanes have raided Polish cities, official reports said today, and German troops have begun a heavy movement toward the Polish frontier from East Prussia.

Official information indicated German troops were making major drives in three sectors—first, from East Prussia against Dzialdow and Mlawa; secondly, from Pomerania against Chojnice at the narrowest part of the Corridor's west border, and, third, from Breslau against Kotowice, believed evacuated.

Reports were received here that planes attempted to bomb the Polish port of Gdynia, but that the bombs fell into the sea.

Bomb Explosions Heard In Warsaw

Bomb explosions were heard in Warsaw, but no damage or casualties were reported in this city. The explosions seemed to come from eight or ten miles to the west, where air raiders were believed to be attacking railway communications.

Official sources still were without information of the extent of damage or casualties in air raids elsewhere.

The Foreign Office said German planes had bombed Krakow and Katowice, in southwestern Poland, and also Czestochowa, Tczew and Grudziaz.

Fighting Under Way In Danzig

It confirmed that fighting had started in Danzig, and official sources said German soldiers had attacked Polish defenses near Mlawa, bordering the southern part of East Prussia.

When alarms sounded here, this correspondent was just entering the Foreign Office press room to confer with Edward Kulikowski, formerly of the Polish Embassy staff in Washington and now the Polish foreign press officer.

All Foreign Office employes immediately gathered gas masks and were taken to nearby bomb shelters, where they remained for an hour, both men and women exhibiting utmost calm.

Police Clear All Traffic

Caught in the streets when the second alarm came, I saw police and air-raid wardens clearing all traffic. The streets were left virtually deserted. Everyone was forced to take shelter in the nearest building until the "all clear" signal was sounded.

Scores lacking gas masks waited calmly in open entrances.

[Diplomatic dispatches received in Budapest from Warsaw said the outskirts of the Polish capital also had been bombed. There were no figures on casualties. The Budapest dispatches were supported by similar dispatches of Reuters, British news agency, and Havas, French news agency.

[The Havas dispatches said air-raid alarms were sounded in Warsaw three times before the German planes finally dropped bombs on the city at 9.30 A. M. Sounds of the raiding planes and anti-aircraft artillery were heard.

[Many were killed and injured when the Polish frontier town of Tczew, not far from the Danzig border, was bombed, Exchange Telegraph reported. This agency said the railroad station and other buildings were destroyed, and the bombing continued for at least an hour.

[One air raid also was reported by Exchange Telegraph to have been carried out against a railway station and tunnel on the Krakow-Warsaw Railway.

[In Paris, Havas News Agency said six Polish cities had been bombed this morning—Krakow, Putsk, Vilna, Grodno, Zukw and Bialapowlask.]

Warsaw was awakened at 6.20 A. M. by sirens, but the alarm was recalled at 7.15.

Mist and clouds were overhanging the city. A light drizzle apparently afforded momentary protection against air raids.

Munitions Base Under Fire

It was officially announced that Germany began an air and land action against Westerplatte, a Polish munitions base in Danzig harbor, at 5 A. M. (The Polish Legation in Budapest said the attack had been repulsed.)

Simultaneously, she started an air action against Puck, the Polish naval base in the Bay of Gdynia.

Artillery shelling was reported on a line between Grudziadz and Mlawa, on the southern border of East Prussia.

Artillery fire also was reported at Chojnice, on the western border of the Polish Corridor.

Civilians Still Unevacuated

It was pointed out that all points bombed, except Westeplatte, have civilian population which had not been evacuated.

At 8.45 A. M. Warsaw experienced its second air-raid alarm and anti-aircraft fire was heard. The alarm finished at 9.15.

Polish officials said late last night that they had heard a report of the occupation of the German radio station at Gleiwitz, in Silesia, but had no official information. It was stated that Polish troops were not involved in any way.

Up to a late hour last night, a Foreign Office spokesman still was emphasizing Poland's determination to defend herself. He said that, under present conditions, there could be no question of sending a Polish mission to Berlin to talk with Hitler.

"A Bad Neighbor Has Come"

Talks with Germany, he added, could be conducted only on a basis of "equality, good faith and freedom."

The pro-Government newspaper Express Poranny said:

"A bad neighbor has come to the gates of the serene Polish republic. This indicates that, after Polish diplomacy has done everything it can to maintain peace, the Polish armed forces will have to play their role."

POLES HOLD FAST, WARSAW REPORTS

Communique Tells of All-Night Fighting and Heavy Toll—Capital Bombed 4 Times

By The Associated Press.

WARSAW, Poland, Saturday, Sept. 2.—Official reports said today that Polish forces were resisting the German invasion on three fronts and were holding fast.

A General Staff communiqué said heavy fighting had raged through the night in the border area, but there were no late reports giving details of land engagements.

The first heavy impact of the undeclared war had come from German planes that bombed more than a score of cities, including Warsaw, in advance of the invading German armies.

A government communiqué admitted "many civilians were killed and wounded" on the first day of hostilities. It was said officially, however, that the air raids had inflicted only slight damage to vital services.

Throughout Poland today's dawn was awaited fearfully, with all cities darkened.

In addition to raids on Warsaw yesterday, a communiqué said, Nazi planes also bombed the following cities: Kutno, Lwow, Cracow, Gdynia, Katowice, Augustow, Brodbica, Tczew, Radomsko, Torun, Tunel, Krosbo, Trzebiba, Jslo, Tomaszew, Misk-Mazowieski, Grodno, Biale-Podlaska, Radom, Modlin, Pultusk, Kobryn, Plnock and Otwock.

Many Duds Reported

A German plane, the communiqué said, "fired the first shot in the war" by bombing Puck yesterday at 5:20 A. M. An air-defense communiqué said many of the German bombs in the first day's fighting had been duds and failed to explode.

The "most violent fighting," a General Staff communiqué declared, was in Silesia, one of the three main sectors of the German drive.

The main German columns were said to be pointed from East Prussia against Dzialdowo and Mlawa; from Pomerania against Chojnice at the narrowest point of Pomorze (the so-called Polish Corridor), and from Breslau against Katowice.

Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, who was made Commander in Chief of all Poland's armed forces yesterday and designated as successor to President Ignaz Moscicki should the Presidency become vacant during the war, broadcast a message of encouragement to Polish soldiers defending the Westerplatte, a munitions base opposite Danzig.

A company of Poles reported it was holding the Westerplatte, despite three German attacks and bombardment by the German naval training ship Schleswig-Holstein. [A German communiqué reported capture of the Westerplatte.]

Gdynia, Polish port near Danzig, was reported being kept under heavy bombardment.

Official reports on air-raid tolls were confined to the terse statement that civilian casualties had been severe, "since most attacks were on unfortified cities." There was no estimate of the number of dead and injured.

Officials also said bombs had fallen on a health resort for tuberculosis sufferers at Otwock, on the Vistula River, ten miles from Warsaw.

The German raiders that came over the capital yesterday failed to hit railroad or highway bridges across the Vistula River, Poland's outlet to the sea, or, as far as could be ascertained, any military objectives. Anti-aircraft batteries encircling Warsaw made it impossible for the German planes to dive low to reach their objectives.

Targets, apparently, were government buildings in the center of the city and the bridges across the Vistula, which, if put out of commission, could seriously impede communications between Western land, the coast and Warsaw.

Although tremendous explosions shook the city, and the populace underwent terrific strain, there was no panic.

German Air Raid On Warsaw Told By Eye Witness

By LLOYD LEHRBAS.

Warsaw, Sept. 1 (5:35 P. M., 11:35 A. M. N. Y. time) (AP).—German warplanes swooped over Warsaw this afternoon in an air attacq in advance of three German armies invading this country.

I am telephoning this dispatch to Budapest with the 'phone in one hand and a gas mask in the other.

Fro mwhere I am I can hear the wail of power-diving fighting ships and can see 14 German bombers slowly, steadily following the coursc of the Vistula River, Poland's outlet to the sea.

Apparently they are attempting to destroy all bridges.

The raid began at about 4:30 P. M. (11:30 A. M., N. Y. time) and is still continuing more than an hour later.

Head Back to City.

The German air raiders now—5:35 P. M.,—are coming back after making a wide circle.

They apparently are heading toward government buildings in the center of downtown, Warsaw.

I can see puffs of anti-aircraft fire.

Although the raid is still on, there is no panic.

Across the street from me, hundreds of inhabitants are watching fascinated on roof tops.

Tremendous explosions are shaking the city and rattling windows.

Anti-aircraft shells are bursting around the bombers which are coming over at an altitude of about 6,000 feet.

Warsaw had little warning.

Heard Shell Fire.

Elmer W. Peterson, Associated Press chief of bureau here, and I heard the anti-aircraft guns before we heard the scream of air-raid alarm sirens.

If the bombers have tied up traffic over the steel railroad bridge spanning the Vistula it is a serious blow for Poland's traffic from here to the coast and to the west.

The Germans apparently tried for definitely military objectives.

Reports have started reaching here of German air attacks elsewhere in Poland.

A large number of women and children were killed, a Government communique said, when German planes bombed a refugee train from Poznan at the Kutno station, 70 miles west of Warsaw.

The first air raid on Polish territory, it said, occurred at Puck—near Danzig—at 5:40 A. M. (11:40 P. M., N. Y. time, last night.)

It said three German planes were shot down near Krakow, four others near Gdynia—the Polish port on the same harbor as Danzig—and that Polish troops had seized a German armored train at Chojnice.

The communique charged that German troops invading Pomorze (the Polish Corridor) were "murdering the Polish population."

Open Towns Bombed.

"Contrary to Hitler's announcement," the communique said, "many of the towns bombed had no military or strategic value."

Nine of the bombers that raided Warsaw flew in a westerly direction across the city, apparently toward the central railroad station.

They have been doing some exceptionally daring bombing, however, sometimes diving to about 3,000 feet over the Vistula bridges.

It is now 5:40 P. M. (12:30 P. M. New York time), and the sound of anti-aircraft guns and roaring airplane motors has died away.

Apparently, the raid is over.

A large hospital for feeble-minded Jewish children was said to have been hit by the German air raiders late in the afternoon.

Poland Puts War Guilt on Reich; Says Warsaw Agreed to Mediation

WARSAW, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—Polish officials squarely placed the guilt of starting the war on Germany. Officials said the Polish Government yesterday agreed to an act of mediation by the British Government, the aim of which was to start conversations between the Polish and German governments in order to avoid war.

Authorities declared that an understanding to this effect was given Berlin late yesterday by the Polish Ambassador and that the German answer was an announcement of a long list of conditions.

A few hours later, Polish officials asserted, Germany began war action without further communication.

Mussolini Decides Against 'Starting Any War Operations'

Decision of Italian Cabinet Is Made Known After the British and Polish Envoys Call Upon Ciano.

ROME, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—The Italian Cabinet announced today that Italy would refrain from starting any military operations.

The Ministers had met with Premier Mussolini at 3:50 P. M. (10:50 A. M., New York time) to decide Italy's course of action as an ally of Germany.

They met knowing of French mobilization and that Adolf Hitler had declared Italy's aid would not be solicited in the German hostilities with Poland for the time being.

The Cabinet session lasted less than an hour. It was announced officially that the Cabinet approved the precautionary military measures already taken, together with "the necessary economic and social measures" which accompanied them.

However, it was asserted that Italy would "not take any initiative of military operations" as a result of the war between Germany and Poland.

Cites Duce's Peace Moves.

The official announcement said the Cabinet had examined the situation which had arisen in Poland as the result of the German-Polish conflict, "the origin of which goes back to the Versailles Treaty."

The Cabinet, said the statement, took cognizance of "all the documents presented by the Foreign Minister (Ciano)" which showed "the work carried out by Il Duce to assure Europe of a peace based on justice."

Then, said the communique, the Cabinet, "declares and announces to the people that Italy will not take any initiative of military operations," adding that it "addresses high praise to the Italian people for the example of discipline and calm of which it has given—as always—proof."

The British and Polish Ambassadors had conferred with Count Ciano before the Cabinet meeting, presumably to learn Italy's intentions, which the subsequent communique revealed.

The Fascist press, fully accepting Germany's version of her efforts to settle the dispute with Poland over Danzig and the Corridor, railed at Great Britain for not joining in the move.

But reaffirmation of the Rome-Berlin axis and its military alliance as a pact of steel, which a few weeks ago filled the newspapers, was missing from today's comment.

The general tenor of newspaper articles was pro-German, but commentators were circumspect, making no definite commitments. Regarding Italy's determination to fight for her own rights if necessary they were enthusiastic and adamant.

Reliable sources said the Italian Foreign Office, in striving to forestall war, had successively presented France, Britain and Poland with two "final" offers coming directly from Hitler. In the second of these, they said, Hitler agreed to take only Danzig, leaving the rest to peaceful settlement.

This was rejected, these sources said, the British offering a counter-proposal that Hitler take nothing and leave everything to peaceful settlement, with Britain administering Danzig during the negotiations.

Britain also offered Germany her consent to a conference to consider a general revision which would make raw materials available to the Reich, the same sources said.

This account was purported to have been the subject of the intense diplomatic activity in Rome yesterday, when Foreign Minister Count Ciano saw the British and Polish envoys and the French Ambassador twice.

Britain Asks Italy's Intention

Envoy Seeks Talk With Ciano on Part Mussolini Will Play in War.

ROME, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—Sir Percy Loraine, British Ambassador, sought an interview with Foreign Minister Count Ciano today for urgent discussions on the intentions of the Italian Government in view of the outbreak of German-Polish hostilities.

Count Ciano was busy during the morning. He was believed to be in conference with Premier Mussolini.

Italy seemed undetermined in the situation brought about by swiftly moving events since the period of extreme tension began over a week ago.

While the nation took resolute measures to be ready in case of war, there were indications she was overwhelmed by the latest events and was not quite sure of her course.

ITALY WAVERS ON WAR'S BRINK, RAILS AT BRITAIN

Dazed By Latest Events, Doesn't Seem Quite Sure Of Course

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Sept. 1 (Transmitted via Berlin)—Italy seemed undetermined today as Europe entered a crisis within a crisis—the new situation brought about by swiftly-moving events since the period of extreme tension began over a week ago.

Says Britain Blocks Peace

While the nation took resolute measures to be ready in case of war, there were indications she was overwhelmed by the latest events and was not quite sure of her course.

The Fascist press, fully accepting Germany's version of her efforts to settle the dispute with Poland over Danzig and the Corridor, railed at Great Britain for not joining in the move.

London, Sept. 1 (AP)—The Polish Ambassador to London today notified Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax that Poland invoked the British-Polish mutual-assistance treaty on the grounds of German aggression.

The Polish Ambassador took the momentous step in a personal call on Lord Halifax.

The mutual-assistance pact, signed August 25 by Great Britain and Poland, provides:

"Should one of the contracting parties become engaged in hostilities with a European power in consequence of aggression by the latter against that contracting party, the other contracting party will at once give the contracting party engaged in hostilities all the support and assistance in its power."

Berlin Reports All of Free City In Nazi Control

Fortress Yields After Brief Resistance; Burckhardt and League Staff Depart

BERLIN, Sept. 1 (AP).—A brief communique tonight announced the bombardment and capture of Westerplatte, Polish munitions depot off Danzig Harbor, by the German cruiser Schleswig-Holstein.

The Poles held Westerplatte, a wooded peninsula near the harbor, under League of Nations authority. The presence of the Polish military guard in the heart of the Baltic city had long been offensive to Nazis.

The Schleswig-Holstein has been in Danzig harbor for several days on a formal visit, but has kept its guns in readiness.

The Nazi communique said that after a short but sharp bombardment of the Polish guards, Westerplatte was captured.

Danzig Put In War Area

Berlin, Sept. 1 (AP)—The commander of the German army, Col. Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, tonight declared the former Free City of Danzig to be a region of military operations.

The East Prussian army was moving in to occupy the region and posters throughout the city informed citizens that Hitler had "taken them under his protectorate."

Danzig's new administration under Nazi Albert Forster, took possession of the areas and railway and dock properties. Danzig Naval District Leader Albert Forster, took possession of the areas and railways formerly operated by Poland, and wharves in the harbor, railway and dock properties.

Nazis Drive "Deep Into Poland."

BERLIN, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—The army high command issued a communique at 5:45 P. M. (11:45 A. M., Eastern standard time) which said the German Army which advanced on Poland from East Prussia is "deep in Polish territory," and that the air force is "controlling Polish air."

The communique said that advances of German troops and air force which started from Pomerania, Silesia and East Prussia this morning were well under way toward their objectives.

German troops were reported advancing toward Neumark and Sucha from Maerisch-Ostrau. They crossed the Osia River near Teschen, the communique said, heading for Katowicz and Czenstochowa in Upper Silesia.

The communique said the troops reached the Netze River near Nakel in the Polish Corridor and that a battle was raging near Grudziacz.

The communique said that the air force is "controlling Polish air," adding that "strong (aviation) forces are retained in Western Germany."

Tells of Victorious Raids.

The army high command said many successful air raids were reported on various Polish military objectives in the Polish Corridor, Polish Upper Silesia and the military harbor at the Polish port of Gdynia.

No casualties were mentioned.

"German airplanes attacked with great enthusiasm and destroyed military establishments of the air drome at Rahmel, Putzig, Grauden, Posen, Plock, Lodz, Tomaszow, Radom, Ruda, Katowice, Lemberg, Krakow, Brest and Terespol," the communique said.

It was also officially announced that the German cadet training cruiser Schleswig Holstein, anchored in Danzig harbor, opened fire on the Polish munitions dump at Westerplatte.

Tell of Polish Attack.

A report by DNB, German news agency, said that Polish airplanes attempted to raid the outskirts of Beuthen, in German Silesia, at 4 A. M. (11 o'clock last night, New York time) and dropped six bombs in the homestead settlement on Hohenlinde Strasse. The report said there were no casualties and little damage.

DNB also reported that Polish artillery had shelled the Beuthen railroad station at 11:30 A. M. (6:30 A. M. New York time), firing five shells of 7.5 centimeter caliber which hit the rail embankment and caused no damage.

Shellfire at Polish Border

By The Associated Press

GLEIWITZ, Germany, Sept 1 (Friday), (Direct).—Gleiwitz residents reported that artillery fire was heard "in the distance" at 5:30 a. m. today (12:30 a. m., New York daylight saving time). Gleiwitz is only a few miles from the Polish Silesian border.

An army ambulance carrying wounded soldiers arrived at the emergency hospital here today at 9:10 a. m.

The men were on stretchers. One had a first aid field bandage. It could not be ascertained where the ambulance came from.

About 9:30 a half-mile-long truck train manned by engineering corps drove through the heart of the city with pontoon bridge building material. In the train were twenty-passenger motor vans with caterpillar treads. Obviously the train had been on the road for some time. All equipment was thickly covered with gray mud.

A scouting plane of the air force was patrolling the area over Gleiwitz

Between Buethen and Gleiwitz on the border an almost unbroken line of pack wagons, artillery, cavalry, motorized machine-guns and military lorries and infantry was to be seen earlier this morning.

Military traffic between the two cities was the heaviest noted here in almost a week.

Yesterday it was noticed that several officers were called away from their afternoon coffee by helmeted messengers coming on motorcycles from company headquarters. The hotel headquarters here was almost deserted this morning.

The highway between Hindenburg and Beuthen, two of the leading industrial cities of Upper Silesia, was closed early today and heavy tank hindrances were thrown across the roadway.

The same street here was mined in two places on Aug. 25.

Nazis Report Air Victory.

BERLIN, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio station today announced the first "successful air raid" of a German bombing squadron on Warsaw's military airdrome, Radom.

Three German air units started from a Silesian town into Poland this morning, according to the announcement.

The announcer said that heavy, low-hanging clouds favored the aerial attack.

Reaching their goal, the planes droped their bombs on the Polish airport, it was aserted. No Polish anti-aircraft guns went into action, it was stated.

Returning home, the report said, the airmen observed Polish troop movements on a "Polish railroad station," which also was successfully bombed.

The entire quadron returned unhampered, according to the announcement.

Nation-Wide Blackout Clamped Down In Reich

Berlin, Sept. 1 (AP)—Germany was a nation-wide blackout was clamped down as a precaution against war raids.

As dusk fell, Germans completed their last preparations to conceal lights.

Streets were pitch black. While considerable traffic moved on main streets, side streets were practically deserted. Residents of Berlin gathered in knots along the stree to observe the effectiveness of the blackout and talk over the undeclared war with Poland.

Auto Lights Dimmed

Automobile drivers felt their way through the darkness with only a slit of light shining through their headlight covers. Orange-colored blinkers, used to indicate a motorist's right and left turns, bobbed in the blackness.

Busses with a single dim blue light, and street cars with a couple of pale orange lights, continued service while conductors fumbled with their change in the semi-darkness. Some, with foresight, had provided themselves with tiny flashlights to poke into their change bags.

White Way Is Silent

Berlin's popular white way, the fashionable Kurfuerstendamm, was silent and depressed. The usual strolling couples and window shoppers were absent. Movie theaters were open but without their brilliantly lighted fronts. Few Berliners felt the urge to see a show.

Boulevard cafes were open too, but the lively sidewalk trade had withdrawn indoors, behind heavily curtained windows.

White-painted curbings, lamp posts, trees and stairways leading to underground trains, standing out in the darkness like sore thumbs, were welcome guides to pedestrains wary of obstructions.

Hitler Dons Simple New Field Uniform

BERLIN, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—Adolf Hitler today wore the new field gray uniform which, presumably, he will use in the field. It differs in shade from the regular army uniform and is unlike any other worn in Germany.

Simple and showing no insignia of rank, it is adorned with gold buttons, the party insignia, and an iron cross on the breast.

His corporal's uniform in the world war carried more decoration.

Storks Over Berlin Cheer Residents

BERLIN, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—Berlin residents cheered at noon today when they sighted a flock of peaceful storks flyover the city at the time guns were booming on the eastern front. Germans consider a flock of storks is a good omen.

Warsaw station, in an English-language broadcast, had reported that Warsaw had been bombed by German fliers and that the city was burning.

Berlin authorities said only military objectives had been bombed.

Germany Puts Curb On War Correspondents

BERLIN, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—There will be no regular foreign war correspondents at the front in Germany's undeclared war on Poland, the army command advised the Associated Press today.

It was announced that groups of newspaper men would be taken from Berlin from time to time to such points as Danzig, Gleiwitz, Schneidemuehl or whatever activities are especially interesting. The correspondents will be equipped with gas masks and steel helmets and conducted to the front for short periods. Foreign correspondents now in military areas must leave.

Americans Seek to Flee Berlin.

BERLIN, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—Americans remaining in Germany hurriedly sought any means today to leave. The American consulate, taking charge of evacuation measures, sought transportation first for wives and children of consular officials. Compartments were reserved for September 6 on trains via Hamburg and Flensburg to Copenhagen.

Polish Officials Quitting Berlin.

BERLIN, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—Methods for the departure of Polish embassy officials from Berlin were being worked out by a Polish and German mission this afternoon, a Polish embassy spokesman said. Ambassador Joseph Lipski still was in Berlin at 2 P. M. (9 A. M., New York time) and the hour of the embassy staff's departure was uncertain. The British and French Ambassadors and their staffs also remained at that hour.

8,500,000 Were Killed During World War

More than 8,500,000 persons were killed in action or died of wounds and other causes during the last world war.

The allies, including the United States, contributed 5,152,115 lives, while the central Powers lost 3,386,209 men. These figures do not include those wounded, maimed or left helpless for life through blindness or other causes.

With 65,038,810 men under arms during 1914-18, more than half that number became casualties, the total being 37,494,186, or 57.6 per cent of those under arms.

Germans Say Poles Are Burning Villages

BERLIN, Sept. 1 (AP).—The official German news agency, D. N. B., reported tonight that the glare of burning Polish villages, inhabited by Germans and set afire by Polish "insurgents," could be seen from Schneidemuehl, a border town.

Death in Reich for Telling 'False' Foreign Radio News

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 1.—A decree fixing the death penalty for spreading "false reports" broadcast to Germany by foreign radio stations was issued today.

Listening to any foreign station is forbidden, but the death penalty is reserved for "aggravated cases" of disseminating statements by foreign stations.

The decree was issued after a

Proclamation by Polish President

PARIS, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—The Polish embassy today issued the following statement, made by President Ignace Moscicki to the Polish nation:

During the night our age-long enemy began an offensive operation against the Polish State.

In this hour I address myself to all my countrymen with the deep conviction that the entire nation will rally around the commander-in-chief of the armed forces to defend its liberty, its independence, and its honor and will give a worthy reply to the aggression, as it has done many times in the history of Polish-German relations.

The entire nation, blessed by God in the struggle for its holy and righteous cause, and in union with the army, will march in close ranks to the fight and to complete victory.

Paris, Sept. 1 (AP) — France agreed today to President Roosevelt's proposal to European powers that in case of war civilians and open cities be spared from aerial bombardment.

Ambassador William C. Bullitt presented the appeal to Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet at 1 P. M. (7 A. M., E.S.T.) and received an immediate favorable answer on behalf of France.

Paris, Sept. 1 (AP)—Hostilities between Germany and Poland have spread to the entire frontier, including that of Slovakia, Havas, French news agency, reported today from Warsaw.

Havas said Westerplatte and Puck, Polish territory near Danzig, were bombed at 6.30 A. M. (12.30 A. M., E. S. T.).

It said Krakow, Kattowice, Teschen and Tczew were bombed between 6.05 and 6.30 A. M. (12.05 A. M. and 12.30 A. M., E. S. T.). It reported also that three bombs were dropped on Gdynia.

The first alert signal was given in Warsaw at 6.30 A. M. and the first anti-aircraft fire heard in the Polish capital at 9 A. M. (3 A. M., E. S. T.), the agency said.

Two more alert warnings were given Warsaw, it said, at half-hour intervals up to 10 A. M. (4 A. M., E. S. T.).

Havas said the population of Warsaw was calm.

It said the Polish radio had confirmed the start of a German offensive toward Mlawa, Ciechanow, Dzialdowo and Czestochowa.

Zay, 35, in Education Post, Spurns Exemption

PARIS, Sept. 1 (AP).—Jean Zay, thirty-five-year-old minister of education, submitted his resignation from the Cabinet today so that he might fight with the French forces. He told friends he intended to leave even if Premier Edouard Daladier refused to accept the resignation.

Zay in his letter to Daladier said he had no intention of taking advantage of the law permitting members of the government to remain at their posts even if mobilized. He said he felt that his youth gave him the right to fight.

ROYALISTS BACK FRENCH REPUBLIC

Follow Orders of Leaders of France, Advises De Guise

PARIS, Sept. 1 (AP).—French monarchists made political peace with republicans today.

"Give absolute support to leaders responsible for the destinies of France in the present circumstances," Courrier Royal, organ of the Duc de Guise, pretender to the non-existent throne, advised royalists.

Because of the crisis, the newspaper said, the Comte de Paris, son of the Duke, would hasten back from a visit to Brazil.

At the other extreme of the political scale, the Communist Party headquarters was raided by 100 policemen yesterday and Michel Marty, brother of Communist Deputy Andre Marty, was among forty persons arrested and charged with distributing leaflets of "foreign inspiration."

PARIS EVACUATION BEGUN IN EARNEST

Thousands Jam Stations as Citizens for First Time Take Warnings Seriously

PARTING SCENES DRAMATIC

Tears, Weariness and Spirit of Good-Fellowship Mark Exodus From Homes

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN

PARIS, Sept. 1 (AP).—An ever-growing stream of perspiring humanity was pouring out of Paris this sweltering September night—possible eve of another general war. It was the first time the public had taken seriously the government's repeated admonitions for all who could do so to leave.

Thousands of school children have been cleared out in the last two days, but their parents had held back, refusing to abandon hope. A few hours ago, however, they read their afternoon papers—and went home to pack. They didn't need the extra prodding of the sixth evacuation request that was printed today.

Most of them were leaving by railway, for many of those having cars are forbidden by requisition order to take them out of the city. The streets in front of the stations were clogged with hooting taxis. The sidewalks were piled high with luggage.

Most of the evacuees came by subway, however, for they were unable to get cabs and many would have been unable to pay for them even if they could have got them. They carried battered suitcases, knapsacks and blankets into which they hastily had tossed a few belongings. Long, green cylinders containing gas masks dangled from their shoulders.

The dramatic scenes in the stations themselves were enough to make even unemotional persons wince. Young lovers had a long kiss of farewell. Pretty girls sat alone in corners, trying hard to keep back their tears. Tired mothers slumped on cheap valises, too exhausted to pursue their offspring scampering merrily about.

One middle-aged woman clung tightly and affectionately to the arm of her gray-haired officer-husband. Neither of them spoke as they paced slowly up and down until train time. Suddenly she saw a speck on his khaki tunic—and whisked at it vigorously.

In the city that the crowds were leaving behind, class lines virtually had been obliterated under the common danger. Grand ladies and charwomen conversed animatedly as equals.

The debut of what is probably the most tragic week-end since the start of the World War found many men, however, doing nothing but fishing. There was a reason. They will be mobilized tomorrow. So they thronged the quais along the Seine for one last fling with the rod.

AMERICANS IN PARIS ASK QUICK WAY OUT

Embassy, Travel Bureaus and Shipping Offices Flooded With Anxious Inquiries

PARIS, Sept. 1 (AP).—Americans today resumed frantic efforts for a hurried exodus from Paris, flooding the United States Embassy, travel bureaus and shipping offices with queries on the best and quickest ways to leave.

The renewed barrage of inquiries—which in some cases amounted to tearful exhortations—came after the comparative lull in the crisis during the last few days led many to hope there would be no war.

Comedy contrasted with sorrow at the embassy. A fashionably-dressed matron, holding a leash attached to a Scotch terrier, explained at great length to a harried official just who her husband was.

"In view of that," she concluded sharply, "I wish to leave France immediately."

A few feet away a small, elderly woman sitting on a bench wept quietly as she told of her missing son, last reported in Berlin.

Band Instruments Stranded

Five students of Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., who as an orchestra played for passage over here, said their instruments were stranded at Hamburg. The German liner Deutschland, on which they had booked return passage, was not sailing; so the young musicians, in the words of their leader, Robert Savage of Chicago, were "now praying instead of playing."

A young American school teacher, seeking information at a shipping office, had a gas mask slung over her shoulder. She complained that it fitted too tightly.

Among others making sailing inquiries at various places were William Warren, son of Charles H. Warren, Dean of Yale University's Sheffield Scientific School; Marjory Pheland, Newton, Mass.; Marylien Porr, Lowell, Mass.; Esther MacClelland and Catherine Schioll, Philadelphia; Dorothy Walker, Evansville, Ind.; Robert Leving, Greensboro, N. C., and Clifton Stevens, Boston.

Most of them college students, they were agreed on three points: They were "mad at Hitler, sorry for Poland and anxious to get home."

Milton Hull of Richmond, Va., one of sixteen Americans until recently studying art at Florence, Italy, on scholarships, said that only one of that party had obtained passage home. He added ruefully: "That one isn't me."

air raid precaution orders, but in dread of a winged-terror that might fly in the dark.

Three weeks ago London had a "blackout rehearsal," but it was nothing like this.

In the streets you ran your head into lamp posts and whistled vainly for taxis that were only wavering shapes in the fog and drizzle that swept in from the channel.

Joke To No One

No one treated the blackout as a joke and there was little traffic on the streets.

In cavernous railway stations, covered windows kept the light in as families gathered to leave the city and as reservists with rifles in one hand and umbrellas in the other wandered about looking for trains.

The pubs were comparatively empty and stores did little business. Firehouses, air-raid precaution centers and police stations were the busiest places.

Dig In Grimly

During the day sandbags and khaki dotted the city as Englishmen dug in grimly. There was no excitement, no cheering and few smiles as news on glaring posters sank home. The one aim seemed preparedness.

The poker-faced Londoners gave little indication that Europe was plunging deeper and deeper into war and picadilly circus looked little different from usual.

London Man In Street Ready To March, Prepared To Fight

Turns From Office Or Factory To Battleship Or Dug-out—Thousands Pour Out Of Paris

London, Sept. 1 (Passed by British Censorship)—With more than 1,000,000 children already evacuated from London and while the big men of Whitehall weighed the sword of war, the little men of London kissed their wives and sweethearts good-by today and prepared for war.

They packed grips and turned from factory and office to battleship and dugout. At the same time the whole city, which has taken the Polish crisis in stride up to now, awoke and shook itself.

The man in the street was ready to march, apparently fully conscious of what loomed ahead. There were crowds, but they didn't cheer; there were soldiers, but they didn't preen; slow, crowded trains, jammed army trucks in the streets, flags on nearly every building—all the machinery of the nation looking toward war, grimly.

"Our Fight," Says Flyer

"We know what it's like, all right," said a young lieutenant in the uniform of the Royal Air Force. "We've heard all about it, but we have to go. This is our fight now. He (Hitler) is bombing Warsaw now. Think we want that to happen here?"

The same feeling of resolution could be felt in the crowds ringing Parliament to see the nation's leaders arrive. They didn't do much cheering, although Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain drew a few cries of "Keep at it, Nev."

The commonest sight in London was man and wife, he in uniform, she clinging to his arm as they threaded their way along the streets. With the departure of the children and men, many homes were left with only a mother.

But even the women in the squalid sectors showed the same resolution as the officers.

Piles Of Sandbags Grow

"Ah, they took my Liz and Alf this morning," said one old woman outside of Parliament. "They'll take their Dad tomorrer, but what odds? We got to have it. There's no peace with that fellow Hitler abaht."

Piles of sandbags grew and gangs of half-naked laborers were as common a sight as air-raid precaution signs. Banks, public buildings, monuments and other structures were reinforced; work continued on air-raid shelters in the parks.

Million Children Quit London Each One Carrying Gas Mask

Sadness Marks Departure of Youngsters for Country Out of Range of Shells From Raiding Planes.

LONDON, Sept. 1 (A. P.). (Passed Through British Censorship.).—London sent away its children and turned its face to the grim prospect of war today as more than a million youngsters, beginning at dawn, left the metropolis for safety in the English countryside.

Within the next few days more than 3,000,000 persons will have been sent from the various key cities. Today's withdrawal jammed surface traffic throughout London's business section and touched the busy "city" streets with sadness.

At the Liverpool street and London Bridge railroad stations, in the heart of London's poorer sections, children were in line, with their mothers near by, from early morning.

School teachers lined them up: children of 4 and 5, scared by the roar and bustle of the big stations; older boys yanking the girls' hair; big girls with a toddler clinging to each hand.

There were 3,000 children in one line at London Bridge, which gave its name to a children's game.

All Have Gas Masks.

Each had a gas mask slung over his shoulder and even the smallest among them clutched a big canvas duffel bag containing blankets and clothes. From the tops of some bags dolls peered out. One boy dropped his bag and a box of lead soldiers spilled out onto the platform.

These children were poor. But even the poorest had a bag of candy or cakes, a departing gift from his parents.

One child of 5 had a tiny tin bucket and spade with him. He thought he was going to the seashore. Really he didn't know. Neither did his mother. None of them knew where they were going.

Loudspeakers in the stations boomed orders, teachers shepherded their charges down the platforms, and the trains were loaded swiftly.

Children Were Silent.

The children, who had treated the evacuation as a huge joke in their rehearsal foy it last Saturday, were silent and wondering today. When the time came to leave, they turned anxious eyes toward their mothers, who stood behind a line of police. The children cried:

"Good-by, mother. When will I see you? I'll write. Tell dad good-by."

Many mothers, who had been up all night getting their children ready, broke down as the long files shuffled down the platform. Eyes red from weeping, they stood with coats hastily thrown over cheap house aprons and waved.

They stood there, waving, as long as the trains remained in sight, crying openly. Commuters who had rearranged their schedules to come in after the trains had pulled out arrived while they still were there, and women, rich and poor, stood weeping together while the men stood silent and grim.

Not until the last car had disappeared down the tracks did they leave, for empty homes.

HAVEN FOR KENNEDY

U. S. Envoy Picks Place 15 Miles From London.

LONDON, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy announced today that five prominent Britons and Americans had placed their English country residences at the disposal of the American embassy.

They were the Earl of Derby, Sir James Calder, J. P. Morgan, Horace E. Dodge and George K. Weeks. Mr. Kennedy last week accepted the offer of Mr. Weeks, a vice-president of the National City Bank of New York, to move the embassy staff to his place at Headley Park, near Epsom, fifteen miles from London, if the necessity arose.

Mr. Kennedy said the country houses would be available for use in any way he saw fit for the duration of the current emergency.

British Press Resigned To Inevitability Of War

Since Hitler Has Chosen Conflict, Conflict There Must Be, London Times Says

London, Saturday, Sept. 2 (AP) (Passed by British Censors)—Typical of the almost unanimous acceptance by the British press that war is inevitable was this comment today in the Times of London:

"Since Herr Hitler has chosen war, in spite of the many chances given to him up to the last hour to avoid it, war there must be.

"There was abundant evidence yesterday that, in Mr. Chamberlain's words, 'We are ready.'"

The newspaper proudly pointed out the smoothness with which the removal of children, women, invalids and the aged was carried out in London and other metropolitan centers.

It said, British efficiency and spirit were better than in 1914 or 1938.

POPE DISAPPOINTED

More Diplomatic Activity Is Reported at Vatican.

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—Vatican circles said today Pope Pius XII was profoundly disappointed over the outbreak of hostilities between Germany and Poland.

Prelates said the Pontiff, after yesterday's last minute appeal for a peaceable solution, continued to hope that war would be averted.

Much diplomatic activity was evident at Vatican City throughout the day. Among the diplomats who visited the State secretariat were the Ambassadors or Ministers from Italy, France, Rumania, Great Britain, Portugal, Venezuela, Poland and Belgium.

Danzig's Return to Rule Of Germans Is Its Third

City First Taken From Poles, Then From France in 1814

By The Associated Press

By Albert Forster's proclamation, if it is sustained by events, Danzig has been switched for the third time in its history to German rule.

The city was founded by Germans at the beginning of the thirteenth century.

Until 1308 the city was under the sovereignty of Polish Pomeranian dukes. Then for more than 200 years, 1308-1454, it was German-ruled, by Teutonic knights.

For more than 300 years, without losing its sovereignty, the city was associated in a personal union with the Kings of Poland, from 1454 to 1793.

But in the latter part of the eighteenth century Poland was partitioned among Germany, Russia and Austria-Hungary, and Danzig became a part of Prussia. This status lasted but fourteen years.

In 1807 Danzig became a free city, under French rule. Seven years later, in 1814, with the beginning of the collapse of Napoleon, Danzig returned to Prussia and thus remained until the Treaty of Versailles at the end of the World War established it as a free city again.

Now it is German again—by proclamation of Forster, Danzig and Nazi leader, and its acceptance by Hitler—after eighteen years, nine months and fifteen days. The city was proclaimed free under the League of Nations on Nov. 15, 1920.

The city is more than 90 per cent German-populated, a fact admitted by Poles. However, it is situated at the mouth of the Vistula River, which taps the heart of Poland, and the city has depended on Polish trade. Poles have declared the city the "lung" of Poland's economic life.

Danzig has a population of about 407,000 and an area of 754 square miles.

RUSS-JAPANESE PACT SEEN AIM OF REICH AIDES

Non-Aggression Efforts Viewed By Moscow With Skepticism

Tass Reports Soviet Forces Have "Liquidated" Rival Force On East Border

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Sept. 1—Germany was reported unofficially tonight to be making feverish diplomatic efforts to arrange a non-aggression pact between Soviet Russia and Japan—which are engaged in an unofficial war on the Manchoukuo-Outer Mongolia frontier.

Immense difficulties obviously lie in the way of such an agreement, but German diplomats were said nevertheless to be trying desperately to engineer such a pact.

Rumor Of Alliance Doubted

On another diplomatic front, informed sources said they were skeptical of rumors from abroad that Russia and Germany would enter a military alliance as sequel to their own non-aggression pact.

The suggestion of a non-aggression pact between Japan and Russia seemed a bit distant in view of a Tass (Soviet telegraphic agency) report today Russian forces had "liquidated" masses of Japanese troops fighting on the eastern border.

The Tass communique asserted Soviet and Outer Mongolian troops had annihilated Japanese and Manchoukuoan army commands, compelling the remainder of those forces to "adopt defensive operations."

Reports 164 Planes Lost

The report said that between August 3 and 27 the Japanese had lost 164 planes compared with 15 lost by the Soviet-Mongolian forces.

Tass said thirty-one Japanese planes were shot down August 30 and that the Japanese-Manchoukuoans were moving up heavy reinforcements, indicating that severe fighting still was continuing.

The Tass announcement recited great losses by the Japanese air force—totaling 225 planes shot down August 5 to 30, inclusive, as against 25 for the Soviet force.

In the "liquidation," Tass said, 294 Manchoukuoan soldiers voluntarily went over to the Soviet side and the Soviet force captured 124 field guns of various sizes, 67 heavy machine guns, 98 light machine guns, 36 trench mortars, 9,000 rifles, 12,000 shells of various calibers, 8 tanks, 8 armored cars, 14 tractors, 63 trucks and 19 passenger cars.

See More Complications

The formation of the new moderate Japanese Cabinet also, it was suggested, would present more complications for German diplomats seeking non-aggression ties between Russia and Japan.

The extraordinary session of the Soviet Parliament, which last night ratified the non-aggression pact with Germany, concluded its work tonight.

In the final session both houses in separate meetings devoted themselves exclusively to the ratification of the final drafts of the conscription and agricultural taxation bills which differed only in minor details from the bills originally presented.

RUSSIANS DOUBT MILITARY PACT WITH GERMANY

Rumors Abroad Taken in Informed Circles With Skepticism.

MOSCOW, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—Rumors abroad of a possibility that Russia and Germany will follow up their non-aggression pact with a military agreement met with extreme skepticism in informed circles today.

While the foreign colony in Moscow heard alarming reports of European war, the Russian population was tranquil and 34,000,000 children went back to school today.

Great Britain and France, says Premier Vyachesla Molotov, balanced their desire for Soviet Russian help against their fear of strengthening the Soviet Union and their fear prevailed.

This was the explanation, in part, offered last night by the Premier-Foreign Minister for the conclusion August 24 of the Russian-German non-aggression pact which doomed the projected Russian - British-French mutual assistance pact after more than four months of negotiation.

The Russian Parliament applauded Molotov explanation and unanimously ratified the pact with Germany, erstwhile bitter opponent of the Soviet Union.

[Informed quarters in Berlin indicated that a Russian mission was on its way there possibly to conclude a military accord with the Reich. Molotov made no mention of this.]

Molotov said it was only after the Russian Government was convinced that negotiations with Britain and France were futile that Moscow turned to Berlin.

Called Duty to People.

"It is our duty to defend the interests of the Soviet people particularly since we are convinced that the interests of the U. S. S. R. coincide with the interests of the peoples of other states," he said.

"The question arises: Why cannot the U. S. S. R. allow herself the same privilege as Poland and England allowed themselves long ago?

[A reference to the now annulled Polish-German non-aggression pact and the peace declaration between Britain and Germany which Prime Minister Chamberlain took home from Munich.]

"Finally there are wiseacres who construe from the pact more than is written in it. For this purpose all kinds of conjectures and hints are mooted in order to cast doubt on the pact in one or another country.

"But all this merely speaks for the hopeless impotence of the enemies of the pact who are exposing themselves more and more as enemies of both the Soviet Union and Germany, striving to provoke war between these countries."

Molotov disclosed that Polish insistence, with British support, that Russian troops be barred from crossing Polish soil, was a principal factor in the breakdown in mutual assistance negotiations.

He declared that the projected mutual assistance pact could have been "significant only if military co-operation were possible.

"But the negotiations and the staff talks proved not only that, but also that England, far from objecting to the Polish stand, supported it."

Thus Russia turned to Germany, he said—a Germany which "abandoned her anti-Soviet policy and offered the most favorable trade treaty ever made at a time when other countries plotted to involve us in war."

He derided British-French arguments that Russia should side with London and Paris against Berlin, asking, "Is it not clear to them that we do not have to get involved in war either way?

"If these gentlemen feel such a strong desire to fight let them fight without us and we shall see what sort of soldiers they make."

Japanese Keep Silent On Border Fight Reports

Tokyo, Sept. 1 (AP)—Japanese sources were silent today regarding reports of fighting at Nomonhan on the border of Soviet-protected Outer Mongolia.

While reports from abroad said fighting was on the greatest scale since its beginning last May, Domei, Japanese news agency, and other Japanese sources merely described the combat as a continuation of daily artillery duels and aerial engagements.

In the latter encounters Japanese flyers were said to have downed twenty-three of eighty Soviet planes.

Both official and unofficial sources failed to report the progress of the infantry struggle which began Thursday when 10,000 Russian soldiers made a general assault upon strategic Balshagar Heights.

RUSSIANS CLAIM BORDER VICTORY

Report Successful Attack on Japanese Force.

MOSCOW, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—Tass, official news agency, announced today that a Japanese-Manchoukuoan force had been "liquidated" by a Soviet-Outer Mongolian land and air offensive along the common border of Manchoukuo and Outer Mongolia.

The announcement gave no estimate of the strength of the enemy force, but said the troops were double-flanked and suffered "great losses in man power and equipment" between August 21 and 28.

"On the night of August 28-29 the remnants of the Japanese Manchoukuoan troops in the territory of the Mongolian peoples republic were liquidated and Mongol-Soviet troops firmly established themselves in positions along the State frontier of the Mongolian people's republic," Tass said.

The announcement recited great losses by the Japanese air force—totaling 235 planes shot down August 5 to 30, inclusive, as against twenty-five for the Soviet force.

In the "liquidation," Tass said, 294 Manchoukuoan soldiers voluntarily went over to the Soviet side and the Soviet force captured 124 field guns of various sizes, 67 heavy machine-guns, 98 light machine-guns, 36 trench mortars, 9,000 rifles, 12,000 shells of various calibers, 8 tanks, 8 armored cars, 14 tractors, 63 trucks and 19 passenger cars.

Canada Stands By Britain, Calls Its Parliament

Session Set for Thursday to Approve Cabinet Steps to Co-operate in Strife

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 1 (CP).—In the event that Great Britain becomes engaged in a war to resist aggression, the Government of Canada has unanimously agreed to seek Parliamentary authority "for effective co-operation by Canada at the side of Great Britain," Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King declared today.

The Prime Minister announced the following emergency measures.

Parliament has been called to meet at 3 p. m., Thursday.

The war measure act of 1914, giving the Governor in Council extraordinary powers to act in a war-time emergency, is being proclaimed at once.

The militia, air and naval forces of Canada have been placed on active service under authority of Section 64 of the militia act.

Showing little the effects of an all-night vigil and a Cabinet Council lasting four hours, the Prime Minister met newspaper correspondents at 1 o'clock and issued a statement covering the government's emergency action.

Within ten minutes after the Cabinet met, at 9 o'clock this morning, the Prime Minister announced the decision to call Parliament in an emergency session at 3 p. m. Thursday. Meanwhile, the Prime Minister said, every effort will be made to provide for the defense and security of the dominion. When Parliament meets the government will present recommendations for the measures it believes will offer the best form of co-operation with Great Britain.

"I think what I have said this morning is what the people of Canada, Great Britain and of the whole world will be pleased to know," the Prime Minister said.

The Cabinet adjourned at 1 o'clock and met again at 4 this afternoon. The second meeting broke up at 5:30 and no announcement or statement was issued.

In allowing only six days for the members of Parliament to get to Ottawa the government's action contrasted with that taken in 1914, when fourteen days were allowed. Prime Minister King has stated several times that he believed only the Canadian Parliament should decide if Canada should participate—and to what extent—in any war in which the British Empire is involved. Ian Mackenzie, Defense Minister, said he had no statement to make on internal security. The entire Cabinet, he said, would institute such measures.

The war measures act gives the government extraordinary powers to act in an emergency, pending the assembly of Parliament, it was proclaimed by an order in council after a meeting of the Dominion Cabinet. Under the act the government has a wide measure of control over shipping, censorship, trade and commerce, expropriation of private property and transportation.

Scenes reminiscent of 1914 were enacted in the historic Privy Council chamber when the Cabinet, in full strength assembled for today's momentous session. Messengers rushed about in confusion, and high officials of the army and navy were in attendance upon Defense Minister Mackenzie, who was one of the first ministers to reach the chamber, but there was no apparent panic among the ministers who, though grave in mien, seemed perfectly calm. Prime Minister Mackenzie King, who had been receiving official advices throughout the early morning, reached his office at 7:35.

It was apparent the government had made all preparations for this emergency. Within a few minutes after 9 o'clock, the dates had been inked in on the order in council [illegible] and it was made public. A few minutes later a messenger was dispatched to the Governor General, Lord Tweedsmuir, bearing a large sheaf of orders-in-council for his signature. Obviously they had been prepared well in advance and needed only the formality of adoption.

Canadian soliders with fixed bayonets already are patrolling such vulnerable points as bridges, canals, harbors, airports, radio stations and industrial plants.

CANADA GETTING READY TO FIGHT

Thousands Quit Civil Occupations To Take Up Military Duty

Special Session Of Parliament Called For Next Thursday

[By the Canadian Press]

Ottawa, Sept. 1—Thousands of Canadians today left their civil occupations to take up duty with the Dominion's militia, naval and air forces as the Cabinet put these branches of the service on an active basis under proclamation of the War Measures Act of 1914.

At the same time Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced a special session of Parliament had been called for 3 P. M. September 7. When it convenes, Parliament will be asked to authorize the Government to provide "effective cooperation by Canada at the side of Great Britain."

War Declaration Awaited

The form this cooperation will take is being worked out in consultations with the British Government.

It was not anticipated any details would be given of the emergency measures planned until Great Britain actually has declared war, but it was believed all preliminary work has been completed, needing only the formality of Cabinet sanction to put war emergency measures into operation.

Gives Extraordinary Powers

Pending the assembly of Parliament, the War Measures Act gives the Government extraordinary powers. These include wide control over shipping and transportation, trade and commerce, censorship, and expropriation of private property.

The non-permanent militia called up today can serve only in Canada, but regular troops already are patrolling bridges and other key points, and anti-aircraft stations have been manned along the coasts. These troops can be sent abroad immediately if needed.

Police Forces Enlarged

Quebec and Ontario enlarged their provincial police forces and Ontario swore in 500 war veterans as special guards.

The German exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto was closed.

The Swiss consulate at Montreal ordered all Swiss reservists resident in Canada to return to Switzerland immediately.

Polish residents in the major cities held meetings and offered men and money to assist their homeland.

Bids on Army Boots Asked

FLYERS MOVE EAST

Members of Canadian Air Squadron Entrain.

CALGARY, Alta, Sept. 1 (Canadian Press).—Thirty-one members of No. 1 Fighter Squadron, Royal Canadian Air Force, carrying gas masks, left Calgary last night on an eastbound Canadian Pacific Railway train for an undivulged destination.

The men, led by Sergt.-Major A. H. Warner, are half of the ground crew forces of the squadron. They left less than twelve hours after two squadron planes, capable of 400 miles an hour, soared away to eastern Canada.

All R. C. A. F. planes, formerly stationed at Currie barracks here, have gone to Eastern Canada, semi-official quarters disclosed. Seven Wapiti bombers of the No. 3 Squadron and one of the No. 1 Squadron hurricane ships left here last Saturday.

MONTREAL, Sept. 1 (Canadian Press).—The Canadian Red Cross announced today that hundreds of applications for information as to how to serve in the present war crisis were being received hourly.

WILL SPARE CIVILIANS

Three Other Nations Are Yet to Respond, Hull Reveals

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—Secretary Hull announced today that Great Britain and France had agreed to refrain from bombing civilian populations in response to an appeal from President Roosevelt.

The President addressed such appeals this morning to the governments of England, France, Germany, Poland and Italy immediately after learning of the opening of hostilities.

The British acceptance message said:

"His Majesty's Government welcomes the weighty and moving appeal of the President of the United States against the bombardment from the air of civilian populations or of unfortified cities.

"Deeply impressed by the humanitarian considerations to which the President's message referred, it was already the settled policy of his Majesty's Government, should they become involved in hostilities, to refrain from such action and to continue bombardment to strictly military objectives upon the understanding that those same rules would be scrupulously observed by all their opponents."

Secretary Hull said the State Department had received a message from the American embassy in Paris stating that the French Government has taken favorable action on the President's proposal and that a formal reply would be sent shortly, or is on its way.

Hitler Answers Peace Plea

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1.—With his Nazi legions already thrusting into Poland, Adolf Hitler replied today to President Roosevelt's recent peace appeals and assured him that he had "left nothing untried" in seeking a friendly settlement of the German-Polish dispute.

His response to Mr. Roosevelt's messages of last week was made in the form of a note from Dr. Hans Thomsen, Chargé d'Affaires of the German Embassy, to secretary Hull, although the President had addressed his communications directly to Herr Hitler.

The note said:

"By order of my government, I wish to use your kind intermediary for the purpose of stating to the President of the United States that his messages of Aug. 25 and 26 addressed to the German Fuehrer and Reichschancellor have been greatly appreciated by the latter.

"The German Fuehrer and Reichschancellor has also, on his side, left nothing untried for the purpose of settling the dispute between Germany and Poland in a friendly manner. Even at the last hour he accepted an offer from the Government of Great Britain to mediate this dispute.

"Owing to the attitude of the Polish Government, however, all these endeavors have remained without result.

"Accept, Mr. Secretary of State, the expression of my highest consideration."

Count Potocki Says Nation Will Stand Firm.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—Count Jerzy Potocki, the Polish Ambassador, said in a statement today that his nation "has been ruthlessly attacked by the armed forces of Germany." He added:

"Poland stands firm. We shall fight back."

Count Potocki said his country had lost military benefits by refraining from striking first against Germany, but explained, "We desire to stand clean before history."

"We shall fight this war for Poland," the Ambassador said, "for the sanctity of our homes, for the right to maintain our faith and our treaties.

"But we shall also fight to remove from Europe the specter of force and intimidation; to assure to the free nations of the world the right to enjoy freedom and independence, the right to pursue their happiness in such a way as they themselves think fit."

GERMAN WARNING RECEIVED BY U. S.

Government Told to Keep Planes Out of Poland.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—The United States received, as a neutral, today its first warning from the German Government not to violate neutrality in the air over Danzig and Poland.

The warning, forwarded to the State Department by the charge d'affaires at Berlin, Alexander C. Kirk, referred to neutral aircraft which are "warned in their own interest against flying over the territories mentioned."

The communication read:

"The Foreign Office has the honor to inform the embassy of the United States of America as follows with the request for immediate forwarding to the Government of the United States of America:

"Declaration of territory of aviation warning.

"For the sake of protection against hostile attacks by Polish air forces, military operations over the Danzig bay and the territory of the Polish State must be expected from the time of this announcement. (It is dated September 1.)

"All neutral aircraft are warned in their own interest against flying over the territory of the Polish State and the sea area bounded on the west by the parallel longitude 16 degrees 5 east, also the Polish border, on the east by the parallel of longitude 20 degrees east (near Bruesterort) on the north by the parallel of latitude 55 degrees north In these areas neutral aircraft are exposed to the danger of being shot at if they render assistance to the Polish forces, if they do not land immediately on warning shots given by German air forces with tracer shells in front of the warned aircraft, or if they act contrary to the instruction to keep to a given course or to abstain from communications."

ROOSEVELT ASKS BOMBERS SPARE UNARMED CITIES

Sends Plea To Germany, Britain, France, Italy And Poland

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 1 — President Roosevelt appealed to the European powers today to soften the horrors of modern warfare from the skies.

To Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Poland, he addressed before daybreak identical messages asking each for a public pledge that it would not bombard civilian populations and unfortified cities during "the tragic conflagration with which the world is now confronted."

Cites Plight Of Thousands

Otherwise, Mr. Roosevelt said, "hundreds of thousands of innocent human beings who have no responsibility for, and who are not even remotely participating in the hostilities which have now broken out will lose their lives."

Seeks Scrupulous Observance

"I am, therefore, addressing this urgent appeal to every Government which may be engaged in hostilities publicly to affirm its determination that its armed forces shall in no event and under no circumstances undertake the bombardment from the air of civilian populations or of unfortified cities, upon the understanding that these same rules of warfare will be scrupulously observed by all of their opponents.

"I request an immediate reply."

U. S. Forces Get Notice

The White House announcement concerning notification of the army and navy follows:

"The President received word at 2.30 A. M., Eastern standard time, by telephone from Ambassador Biddle at Warsaw and through Ambassador Bullitt in Paris that Germany has invaded Poland and that four Polish cities are being bombed.

"The President directed all naval ships and army commands be notified by radio at once.

"There probably will be a further announcement by the State Department in a few hours."

Telephones Secretary

The announcement was issued by William Hassett, acting White House press secretary, after the President telephoned him at his home.

White House offices had been dark during the night, but Mr. Roosevelt himself was keeping in constant touch with European developments. Across the street from the Executive Mansion there were few lights burning in the rambling State Department Building.

Ambassador Bullitt telephoned the State Department that he had official information that the Polish cities of Warsaw and Krakow were being bombed.

Polish Envoy Relays Word

Bullitt also had been in direct communication with Mr. Roosevelt. Bullitt reported that his information came to him from the Polish Ambassador in Paris, who had received ot from Warsaw by telephone.

State Department officials said the President got in touch immediately with Secretary Hell and Under Secretary Sumner Welles by telephone, and they came to their offices before Adolf Hitler delivered his Reichstag speech. Aides quickly joined them.

The Secretary then had two telephone conversations with Bullitt.

Also Hears From Berlin

Meanwhile, the department received a telegram from Alexander Kirk, American Charge d'Affaires at Berlin, reporting Hitler's statement that force must be met with force and the proclaimed reunion of Danzig with the Reich.

One factor creating immediate concern in the Capital was the presence of many Americans in Europe who have been unable to obtain passenger space on transatlantic liners. There was speculation that naval vessels in European waters might be ordered to lend a hand to merchant ships in evacuating Americans.

To Cushion Financial Shocks

A stack of orders designed to cushion the shock of a conflict on the financial and commodity markets and business in general was in readiness whenever President Roosevelt might deem it wise to issue them.

It has been taken for granted here that the President would put the Neutrality Act in effect in the event a widespread war broke out. It was expected that simultaneously he would call for a special session of Congress to consider repeal of the arms embargo which the law places against belligerents.

Set To Cope With Spies

While White House and State Department officials followed every step in the European situation, Attorney General Murphy disclosed a broadening of the Justice Department's campaign against spies in the United States.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation, he said, will open new offices in this connection in Puerto Rico, Hawaii, the Panama Canal Zone and Alaska. He is considering adding an office in Manila, Philippine Islands.

New F. B. I. Offices to Open.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation, he said, will open new offices in this connection in Puerto Rico, Hawaii, the Panama Canal Zone and Alaska. He is considering adding an office in Manila, Philippine Islands.

The Treasury, the Securities and Exchange Commission and the new Federal Lending Agency, were taking part in the study of war's possible effect on American business.

Jesse Jones, Federal Lending Administrator, conferred with Mr. Roosevelt yesterday and afterward said that Warren Lee Pierson, president of the Export-Import Bank, was abroad canvassing further possibilities for extending trade credits.

Other Government agencies said today this country had these surplus commodities for possible sale:

1. More than 10,000,000 bales of cotton.
2. Approximately 260,000 bushels of corn.
3. Fifty-two and a half million bushels of wheat.

Farmers still holding title to these commodities as security for Government loans would have to say whether they could be released for foreign sale. Some officials believe war would create quite a demand for these surpluses at prices that might bring the farmers a profit.

Mr. Jones said neither the RFC nor the Export-Import Bank was subject to the Johnson act prohibiting the floating of all except normal short-term commercial credits in this country by foreign nations in default on their war debts.

As for the domestic situation, Mr. Jones said he had told President Roosevelt the RFC had a lot of unused credit available for American business and industry.

Search Proves Futile For German Motor Ship

Coast Guard Unable To Contact Boat Which Left Everett, Wash., Wednesday

Portland, Ore., Sept. 1 (AP)—Coast Guard amphibian planes searched off the Oregon coast today for the German motor ship Portland, unreported since leaving Everett, Wash., en route here.

The Coast Guard cutter Onondaga said the planes traveled forty miles seaward. Mackay Radio reported calls to the ship went unanswered.

The Portland sailed Wednesday night from Everett, where it was held three days because of th international crisis. The ship, long overdue, ostensibly was to load lumber and logs here.

U.S. Station to Send in German

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Sept. 1 (AP). American news of the European situation will be broadcast to Europe in the German language beginning this afternoon by the General Electric Company's powerful short-wave station WGEA, company officials announced.

Heretofore, said C. W. Bullock, the company's assistant manager of broadcasting, all news broadcasts have been in the English language.

Earlier in the day, the station directed its beam on Europe in broadcasting a summary of President Roosevelt's appeal to Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Poland for pledges they would not bombard civilian populations.

Company officials call the station "the mightiest in the Western Hemisphere."

Reasons Suggested For Hitler's Initial Penetration Of Poland

Washington, Sept. 1 (AP)—Officials today expressed belief that Germany was not throwing her whole military force into the fight against Poland and did not seem to be penetrating far into that country.

They gave three possible explanations:

1. Germany intends to occupy Danzig in the Polish Corridor, then "sit tight" and tell the Western powers, "We want to make peace. Do you want to make war?"
2. Germany wants to use the border hostilities as another maneuver to force Poland to accept her conditions.
3. The German communications and transportation did not live up to expectations.

But this last explanation is not considered probable.

1,321 Plants Here Have Sealed Orders for War

Instant Production Provided in Mobilization Plan

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP).—Locked away in the safes of 1,321 New York manufacturing plants are sealed orders for airplanes, munitions and other articles of war.

Even the company heads don't know what they will be asked to produce.

At a moment's notice, however, under a vast plan of industrial mobilization prepared by the War Department's allocation division, these and thousands of other plants in the country, could swing into production to meet every conceivable need of the Army and Navy.

Besides airplanes, made largely at Buffalo and on Long Island, the Department in time of emergency would call on New York plants for these products: Fire control instruments, bomb sights, ammunition components, wire, radio, telegraph, anti-aircraft searchlights, surgical instruments, beds, mattresses, drugs, strategic chemicals, X-ray equipment, photographic equipment, artillery parts, canvas and canvas items, pyrotechnics, powder and explosives and tentage.

Just how the orders would be put into effect if an emergency should arise has not been determined.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP).—Finnish Minister Procope informed the State Department today that Finland had declared its strict neutrality.

War Map Put in White House

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP).—A war map was installed in the White House today for keeping track of progress of the German-Polish hostilities. Brig. Gen. E. M. Watson, Presidential secretary and military aide, said that two Army and Navy officers would keep it up to date, but that nothing had been marked on it yet because only unconfirmed reports of military action had been received.

Wheat Supplies Reach Record

Crops Smaller Than Last Year, but Reserves in Europe Have Been Accumulating.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1 (A. P.).—The world's wheat harvest, a factor in war plans, today was virtually in the bin, bulging granaries with the largest supply in history.

The end of the harvesters' work in most of the bread grain fields of Europe and North America is in sight. Harvesters are threading through northern stretches of the wheat belts of the two continents and expect to finish in a few weeks.

In contrast to the rather short supply in August, 1914, when armies marched into the world's worst conflict, the 1939 world wheat stock assures an ample food reserve for many months. More than a year of government hoarding in the principal European countries has made much of this reserve readily accessible to armies and civilian populations.

Smaller Yield Than 1938.

The world did not produce quite as much wheat this year as in 1938 but the new crop is being piled upon a record-breaking carry over. Exclusive of Russia and China, for which reliable figures are lacking, the world has approximately 5,290,000,000 bushels in reserve, or 120,000,000 more than a year ago and 1,450,000,000 more than normally needed, based on consumption the past decade, according to Government estimates.

This huge supply is the result of adding the 4,090,000,000 bushels of the 1939 crop to a world carryover estimated at 1,200,000,000 bushels. When Europe went to war in 1914 the world produced 2,834,000,000 bushels, but the next season the crop was raised to 3,497,000,000 bushels. This season's harvest, while the largest since the world war, except for 1938, is about 480,000,000 bushels smaller than last year.

Good Weather in Europe.

Weather conditions in Europe recently have been more favorable for harvesting. The continent's expected crop is 1,840,000,000 bushels, or about 200,000,000 less than last year. Wet weather took some toll both in France and Germany as well as in other countries, but large supplies have been carried over.

In the last week England and France bought 25,000,000 bushels of Argentine grain, England purchased 5,000,000 bushels of Canadian, and Argentina speeded shipments of approximately 3,750,000 bushels to Germany under a barter agreement. Grain traders expect further large-scale Government operations in the event of war.

In 1914, when the closing of the Dardanelles cut off Russian shipments, Europe looked anxiously to the United States, which had the largest wheat reserve. Argentina had raised only 114,000,000 bushels, Australia 108,000,000 and Canada 140,000,000. This season, however, Argentina and Canada hold much greater exportable supplies resulting from crops of 336,000,000 bushels in the Southern Hemisphere and approximately 400,000,000 bushels in Canada. The United States has produced more than 700,000,000 bushels, but unlike its competitors, consumes most of its wheat at home.

Despite large world supplies and cheapness of actual wheat in exporting countries, with Argentina, Canada and the United States paying grain down in Europe under subsidy, the surplus is not allowed to enter and circulate freely, with the result that bread prices in Europe are high. Broomhall, the British grain authority, reported recently that cash wheat was selling as high as $1.60 in Paris, $2.18 in Berlin and $1.93 in Genoa.

WAR FINANCES NOT ORTHODOX

Authorities Agree Debts Do Not Prevent Conflicts.

CREDIT NOW AT A LOW EBB

Wiping Out of German Savings by World Struggle Is Recalled.

Claude Jagger
By Associated Press.

How can Europe finance a war?

It is difficult for the layman to understand how nations wallowing in debt, budgets unbalanced, gold reserves depleted, and currencies depreciated, can pay the fantastic costs of war.

International credit today is at a low ebb, and definitely not what it was in 1914, but authorities agree that is no deterrent to war.

Money is but a medium of exchange, and credit a medium of deferred exchange, and when they don't work according to conventional banking practice, governments under pressure of war adopt unconventional methods of seeing that the exchanges of goods and materials are made, perhaps with disastrous results eventually, but they do it.

The last war wiped out the value of the German currency, and with it the savings of the nation's middle class. Her financial status has been regarded as more or less precarious almost ever since, but that has not held her back from one of the most spectacular rearmament programs the world has ever seen.

Reich Abandons Gold.

Gold, traditionally regarded as an indication of financial strength, has been dispensed with by the Reich. When Herr Hitler came into power in 1933, he paid out almost the entire gold reserve of the Reich in settlement of certain debts, and in effect told Germany's creditors if they wanted further payments they would have to buy German goods.

Without gold, which automatically settles differences in the balance of international payments, business men cannot freely trade in world markets, and there can be no free flow of merchandise.

But by a rigid control, balancing imports against exports, the Reich not only has continued to carry on, but has accelerated her internal industrial activity to record-breaking levels. Her iron, steel and cement production has surpassed all nations save the United States, and she has become the biggest producer of aluminum.

Despite the drive for self-sufficiency, Germany still looks to the rest of the world for a large portion of her food supply, such as meat, butter and cereals, and for textiles, rubber, tin, petroleum, and other important products. She lacks funds to buy them, and international credit on which to borrow, but with her big industrial capacity, has been exporting goods in exchange.

Big Supplies Are Reported.

War would presumably shut off her sea-borne trade, but claims are made that she has stored sufficient supplies to keep going some time. Rigid rationing is already in effect. Also, the agreement with Russia opens up, at least potentially, a source of large quantities of raw materials, for which the Reich could trade manufactures.

The German rearmament program has been accompanied by huge internal borrowing and a staggering tax burden. How well the Nazi economic program is working, how long it will work, whether huge expenditures will bring internal inflation, with a disastrous rise in price levels, are moot questions.

Financially, compared with England and France, Germany is regarded as weak. Against this she has man power and great industrial capacity.

England's borrowing capacity today is scarcely what it was in 1914. Her debt is about three times what it was twenty-five years ago. France wiped out a good part of her world war debt in the post-war inflation, and has been through a number of financial crises in recent years, but England and France each have more than $2,000,000,000 in gold, more than twice what they had in 1914.

Question of U. S. Position.

During the world war, the United States made cash loans to England and France of $4,766,000,000, and more after the armistice. Further borrowing in America would presumably be banned by the Johnson act forbidding loans to defaulters.

Jesse Jones, administrator of the Federal loan agency, said in Washington yesterday, however, that the Johnson act did not apply to the lending power of the RFC or the Import-Export Bank.

But England and France could raise some billions in cash for foreign purchases. They could spend their gold, assuming the United States would continue to take it.

and they could mobilize and liquidate foreign investments. The Commerce Department estimates their investments here at between $2,800,000,000 and $3,000,000,000. In addition Canada has some $1,400,000,000 invested here.

France is economically one of the more self-sufficient nations in Europe. England imports most of her food supply, and other essentials, but still is supreme on the seas and has her dominions to draw from.

U. S. SHIP MEN WONDER IF SHE WILL MAKE IT

Say It Is Unlikely German Liner Will Arrive Before Monday

Two Other Nazi Vessels Are On Ocean Headed For Hamburg

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 1—Europe's fear of general hostilities communicated itself to the New York water front today, with the keenest speculation centering on the chances of the German liner Bremen reaching her home port of Bremerhaven safely.

The Bremen, detained here for two days while customs agents searched her for contraband, sailed Wednesday night without passengers and was somewhere at sea tonight, her wireless silent lest she disclose her position. Shipping men said she hardly could be expected to get to Germany before Monday morning.

No other Nazi ships, either passenger or cargo, were in New York harbor. The liners New York and St. Louis left for Hamburg early this week, but were still far from home ports.

Another German ship, the Columbus, which sailed from New York August 19 with 745 West Indies' cruise passengers, was to disembark them late today at Havana, Cuba, before proceeding for Germany.

Company To Foot Bill

John Schroeder, managing director of the North German Lloyd Line here, said the passengers who had been held for several days at Curacao, Dutch West Indies, would be sent from Havana to Miami and then to New York by rail at the company's expense.

Meanwhile, the prize of the French merchant marine, the $60,000,000 Normandie, still lay at her pier here with sailing indefinitely postponed pending word from Paris.

The Italian liner Roma lay in dock here, too, the only sizable Italian ship outside of home waters.

The sailing of the Cunard White Star liner Franconia (British) was held up at least sixteen hours by a continued customs search which began yesterday. Two hundred passengers were booked for the voyage.

Three other British liners, the Georgic, Carinthia and Lancastria, were in port tonight. All have been acting as cruise ships.

Queen Mary On Way To U. S.

The Queen Mary, biggest of the British merchant fleet, was bound from Cherbourg to New York and was due early next week. The new Mauretania was in home waters.

The Holland-America liner Nieuw Amsterdam arrived from Europe today with 1,286 passengers, 136 more than her normal capacity. Among them were Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, the former Lady Ashley, and her sister, Mrs. Basil Bleck: Edna Best and Mona Barrie, film actresses; Miss I. A. R. Wylie and Mrs. Margaret Culkin Banning, writers. Many of the passengers slept on mattresses on the floor.

The United States Lines speeded up its schedules to evacuate Americans from Europe. The American Farmer sailed late today, and it was announced she would omit her Plymouth (England) stop and make London her only scheduled port.

Sailing Moved Up

The Washington's sailing, originally scheduled for next Wednesday, was moved up to Saturday.

Manned by a skeleton crew, the Furness-Bermuda liner, Queen of Bermuda, was a day out of New York, bound for England. Line officials here understood she would be taken over for transport duty in the event of war.

The Gdynia-American Line (Polish) said the Batory would arrive in New York Monday with passengers from Gdynia, Copenhagen and Cherbourg, among them Mrs. Eddie Rickenbacker and the war ace's two sons, David, 14, and William, 12. Rickenbacker recently returned to the United States by clipper plane.

The Polish liner announced it would accept no freight shipments to Gdynia or Copenhagen. Officials said the Pilsudski, due in Gdynia yesterday, was safe in British waters, but declined to say where.

The Holland-America liners Pennland and Zaandam sail tomorrow for Europe.

Other foreign shipping companies were reluctant to give out information about ship movements.

Taking note of the potential risks ahead, the National Maritime Union (C. I. O.) today demanded $25,000 insurance policies and $250 monthly war-risk compensation for seamen on ships entering the zones of war or undeclared war.

The demands were transmitted to the American Merchant Marine Institute. The union also asked a forty per cent. increase in unlicensed personnel on ships entering danger zones, pointing out there would be additional work and extra watches.

Pittman Gives Formula For Staying Out Of War

Salt Lake City, Sept. 1 (AP)—Due caution by American citizens traveling abroad and strict observance of international law by American shipping will be enough to keep the United States out of a European war, Senator Pittman (Dem., Nev.) declared today.

"Why, sure we can keep out," the Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman said. "We can take care of the situation with our present neutrality laws or without any neutrality laws at all."

Pittman offered this formula for guaranteeing American immunity from any foreign conflict:

"First, simply order our citizens to keep off the ships of belligerent nations, for that is the law now. Instruct them to keep out of danger zones. Advise them to return to the United States as soon as possible."

Borah Bases Hopes Upon Arms Embargo

Poland Springs, Maine, Sept. 1 (AP)—Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, ranking minority member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, tonight foresaw United States entry into the European conflict if the arms embargo provisions of the Neutrality Act should be repealed.

Declaring, "We cannot enter the struggle in part and stay out in part," the 74-year-old elder statesman said, in a statement released at his vacation hotel.

"Our boys would follow our guns into the trenches."

Thomas Urges Repeal Of Foreign Loans Act

Medicine Park, Okla., Sept. 1 (AP)—Senator Elmer Thomas (Dem., Okla.) said today if a special session of Congress should be called in the war crisis the Johnson Act ought to be repealed.

The act forbids loans to defaulting nations, but Jesse Jones, administrator of the Federal Loan Agency, said it did not apply to the lending power of the RFC or the Import-Export Bank.

"We should aid the democracies in every way we can," Thomas declared.

Johnson's Basic Rule Is Simply "Keep Out"

San Francisco, Sept. 1 (AP)—Senator Hiram W. Johnson (Rep., Cal.), today issued a statement regarding hostilities in Europe in which he warned:

"It will be very difficult in the days to come, with emotions aroused, and rampant and insidious propaganda, for us to maintain our age-old policies. Beware the words 'We can't keep out,' 'Our entry into the war is inevitable,' 'We must fight to preserve democracy,' and all the devil's messages we heard twenty years ago. Think for America.

"A decent regard for our own, our experiences not yet forgotten, should make our cardinal rule—keep out. We want no war."

FLEEING TOURISTS JAM ARRIVING SHIP

Nieuw Amsterdam Here With 1,286 Passengers, 150 More Than Normal Capacity

The Holland-America liner Nieuw Amsterdam arrived yesterday from Rotterdam and channel ports carrying nearly 150 more passengers than her normal capacity. There were 1,286 passengers in three classes, including many who booked in the last few days before the liner sailed.

Arnold Bernstein, former head of the Arnold Bernstein and Red Star Lines, who recently was released after a long term in a German prison, returned on the liner accompanied by his wife, still in possession of the Iron Cross which he won during the World War and which the Germans permitted him to keep.

They took his steamship empire and "got rid" of him because, he said, he was a Jew and they wanted to remove him from the shipping world. In addition, he declared, he was forced to make a payment of $30,000 in United States currency, as he crossed the frontier from Germany into Holland. His friends had put up the fund, and refused to pay it until they were sure he was at the frontier, and free, he added.

Normal Crossing Made

Being a neutral ship, and in no danger of any kind, the Nieuw Amsterdam crossed the Atlantic under normal conditions, following her regular course.

Sixteen women passengers slept in the ship's hospital during the voyage, twenty-six lived in the playroom, and six others in the officers' mess. Fourteen men slept in the engineers' mess. These temporary sleeping quarters were cleared of usual furnishings and mattresses were placed on the floor.

Some of the passengers who had reserved accommodations in advance permitted strangers to sleep on their cabin floors and to store belongings in extra space.

The liner was the first war-refugee ship, because other vessels arriving here in recent days have carried in most cases normal passenger lists, or at least not in excess of capacity.

Because of the unusual interest in the ship's arrival several thousand persons were on the pier, waiting for relatives and friends.

Among the passengers were Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks Sr., whose husband had bid her bon voyage in Southampton and later decided to come home by air, arriving here on Thursday. He was at the pier to meet her as a surprise. Accompanying Mrs. Fairbanks were Mrs. Basil Black, her sister, and Mrs. Black's two small children.

Film Actress Rushes Home

Edna Best, film actress, accompanied by her daughter, Sarah Marshall and the girl's nurse, were among the passengers who booked late when the crisis arose. Mona Barrie, also an actress; Miss Ida A. R. Wylie, novelist; Mrs. Margaret Culkin Banning, novelist, and Carleton Bunce, vice president of the Chase National Bank, were on the liner.

Continuing his story of the nineteen-month imprisonment in Germany, Mr. Bernstein said he had been grateful when placed in a civil prison instead of a concentration camp. The food, he added, was just enough to keep the prisoners from starving, but he lost only twelve pounds. He is 51 years old, and worked nine and one-half hours a day, doing everything, he said, from laboring on stones to bookkeeping.

"At some times they put me to work making paper bags for coffee, and I am an expert on those bags now," he declared.

He said the German people did not have much better food than what he received, and he added: "I was an officer in the first world war, and I know."

Poles and Germans Pray Together at Pax Romana

Share Vigil at Own Request at Washington Ceremony

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (AP).—Polish and German delegates to the World Catholic Student Congress prayed together for peace today as their nations fought.

At their own request, the four German delegates—including one young priest—and six Polish students shared the first hour of watch at the exposure of the blessed sacrament in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception.

Delegations of fourteen other nations took their turns hour by hour as the Pax Romana Congress met the news of war with an announcement of continuous prayers for peace throughout the day and all night.

The Inter-Federal Assembly voted to hold next year's congress in Spain at Santander and Santiago de Compostela, with one day in Coimbra, Portugal, and one day at the Eucharistic Congress in Nice.

The Spanish federation was asked to name the next president. Other officers chosen were Edward J. Kirchner, of Washington; Anton Tepez, of Yugoslavia, and Roger Millot, of Paris, France, vice-presidents, and Abbe Gremaud, secretary-general.

LONDON, SE[illegible]P)-(PASSED THROUGH BRITISH CENSORSHIP)-SECRET DIPLOMATIC EXCHANGES BETWEEN CHANCELLOR HITLER AND PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN WERE PUBLISHED IN A WHITE PAPER BY GREAT BRITAIN TONIGHT.

IT DISCLOSED AN AGREEMENT ON ONE OMINOUS POINT-THA IF WAR SHOULD COME IT WOULD BE LONG AND BLOODIER THAN THE FIRST WORLD WAR.

CHAMBERLAIN WARNED AUG. 22 THAT "NO GREATER MISTAKE COULD BE MADE" THAN THE ASSUMPTION THAT THE RUSSO-GERMAN PACT WOULD PREVENT THE BRITISH FROM AIDING POLAND IF ATTACKED.

"IT WOULD BE A DANGEROUS ILLUSION TO THINK THAT, IF WAR ONCE STARTS, IT WILL COME TO AN EARLY END EVEN IF SUCCESS ON ANY ONE OF SEVERAL FRONTS ON WHICH IT WOULD BE ENGAGED SHOULD HAVE BEEN SECURED," HE SAID.

SEP 2-1939

"AN INCALCULABLE WAR BETWEEN GERMANY AND ENGLAND," HITLER SAID AUG. 23, "WOULD BE BLOODIER THAN THAT OF 1914-18" AND THAT WAR "COULD AT BEST BRING SOME PROFIT TO GERMANY BUT NONE AT ALL TO ENGLAND."

CALLING ATTENTION TO THE RUSSO-GERMAN PACT, HITLER WARNED: "IN CONTRAST TO THE LAST WAR, GERMANY NO LONGER WOULD HAVE TO FIGHT ON TWO FRONTS."

CHAMBERLAIN, IN THE EXCHANGES, REPEATEDLY URGED FOR CLARIFICATION. HE SAID HE WANTED "NO SUCH TRAGIC MISUNDERSTANDINGS" AS WERE ALLEGED AGAINST BRITAIN IN 1914.

HE PROPOSED A "PERIOD OF TRUCE," URGING SUPPRESSION OF POLEMICS, INCITATIONS, AND UNVERIFIED REPORTS OF BORDER INCIDENTS UNTIL POLAND AND GERMANY COULD BRING ABOUT AN ATMOSPHERE IN WHICH THEY COULD DIRECTLY NEGOTIATE.

HITLER COUNTERED THAT "ALLEGATIONS DISSEMINATED BY ENGLAND REGARDING GERMAN MOBILIZATION AGAINST POLAND AND THE ASSERTION OF AGGRESSIVE DESIGNS TOWARD RUMANIA AND HUNGARY," PLUS BRITISH GUARANTEES TO POLISH INDEPENDENCE HAD DISPELLED POLAND'S INCLINATION TO NEGOTIATE.

30.24-2903

IT WAS REPEATEDLY STATED BY THE GERMAN CHANCELLOR THAT THE DANZIG AND CORRIDOR QUESTIONS MUST BE SETTLED.

LONDON-FIRST ADD WHITE PAPER ABSTRACT XXX BE SETTLED.

POLAND'S "ACTUAL PROVOCATIONS" HAVE BECOME INTOLERABLE, HITLER WROTE, AND "IT MAKES NO DIFFERENCE WHO IS RESPONSIBLE."

THE PEACEFUL SOLUTION OF THE POLISH PROBLEM, DER FUEHRER WROTE, "IS NOT A DECISION WHICH RESTS ON GERMANY, BUT PRIMARILY ON THOSE WHO. . HAVE STUBBORNLY AND CONSISTENTLY OPPOSED ANY PEACEFUL REVISION" OF THE VERSAILLES TREATY.

HITLER CONTENDED HE HAD FOUGHT FOR ANGLO-GERMAN FRIENDSHIP "ALL MY LIFE." HOWEVER, HE SAID "THE ATTITUDE ADOPTED BY BRITISH DIPLOMACY- - AT ANY RATE UP TO THE PRESENT- - -HAS, HOWEVER, CONVINCED ME OF THE FUTILITY OF SUCH AN ATTEMPT. SHOULD THERE BE ANY CHANGE...NOBODY COULD BE HAPPIER THAN I."

SEP 2-1939

IN THEIR EXCHANGES OF AUG. 23, 25 AND 28, HITLER AND CHAMBERLAIN DISCUSSED BROADLY A "LASTING UNDERSTANDING" BETWEEN GERMANY AND ENGLAND WHICH WOULD "BRING UNTOLD BLESSINGS TO BOTH PEOPLES."

THEY WERE AGREED, TOO, THAT BEFORE THEY COULD PROCEED TO A DISCUSSION OF THESE RELATIONS THAT THE POLISH QUESTION MUST BE SOLVED. "EVERYTHING, HOWEVER, TURNS UPON THE NATURE OF THE SETTLEMENT AND THE METHOD BY WHICH IT (THE POLISH QUESTION) IS TO BE REACHED," CHAMBERLAIN WROTE.

OF HITLER'S PROFESSED WILLINGNESS TO RESPECT THE TERRITORIES OF THE

BRITISH EMPIRE, CHAMBERLAIN WROTE HIS GOVERNMENT "COULD NOT FOR ANY ADVANTAGE OFFERED...ACQUIESCE IN A SETTLEMENT WHICH PUT IN JEOPARDY THE INDEPENDENCE" OF POLAND.

THE PRIME MINISTER SAID HIS GOVERNMENT TRUSTED "THAT THE GERMAN CHANCELLOR WILL NOT THINK THAT BECAUSE HIS MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT ARE SCRUPULOUS CONCERNING THEIR OBLIGATIONS TO POLAND THEY ARE NOT ANXIOUS TO USE THEIR INFLUENCE TO ASSIST THE ACHIEVEMENT OF A SOLUTION WHICH MAY COMMEND ITSELF BOTH TO GERMANY AND TO POLAND."

A FAILURE TO SOLVE THE POLISH QUESTION BY NEGOTIATION, IT WAS WARNED, "WOULD RUIN THE HOPES OF A BETTER UNDERSTANDING BETWEEN GERMANY AND GREAT BRITAIN AND WOULD BRING THE TWO COUNTRIES INTO CONFLICT AND MIGHT WELL PLUNGE THE WHOLE WORLD INTO WAR. SUCH AN OUTCOME WOULD BE A CALAMITY WITHOUT PARALLEL IN HISTORY."

IN REPLY, HITLER CALLED ATTENTION TO PROPOSALS THE REICH HAD MADE TO POLAND FOR A SOLUTION OF THE POLISH QUESTION. THESE, HE SAID, HAD BEEN REJECTED, AND, FURTHER, WERE USED BY POLAND AS A PRETEXT FOR MILITARY MEASURES. HE SAID "TO THIS WERE ADDED BARBARIC ACTIONS OF MALTREATMENT WHICH CRY TO HEAVEN"--PERSECUTIONS OF GERMAN MINORITIES.

SEP 2-1939

DISCUSSING AN IMPROVEMENT OF BRITISH-GERMAN RELATIONS, HITLER STATED HIS GOVERNMENT FELT BOUND "TO POINT OUT. X X X THAT IN EVENT OF A TERRITORIAL REARRANGEMENT IN POLAND, THEY NO LONGER WOULD BE ABLE TO FIND THEMSELVES, GIVE GUARANTEES OR PARTICIPATE IN GUARANTEES WITHOUT THE USSR BSING ASSOCIATED THEREWITH."

IT WAS PROMISED THAT THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT WOULD DRAW UP PROPOSALS FOR THE SOLUTION OF THE POLISH QUESTION AND "IF POSSIBLE PLACE THESE AT THE DISPOSAL OF THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT BEFORE THE ARRIVAL OF THE POLISH NEGOTIATOR."

THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT ON AUG. 30 ASKED FOR TIME TO CONSIDER HITLER'S NOTE, AND URGED BOTH POLAND AND GERMANY TO MAINTAIN ATTITUDES OF COMPLETE RESTRAINT.

A LATER MESSAGE THE SAME DAY FROM LONDON TO SIR NEVILE HENDERSON, BRITISH AMBASSADOR TO BERLIN, SAID:

"WE UNDERSTAND THAT THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT IS INSISTING THAT A POLISH REPRESENTATIVE WITH FULL POWERS MUST COME TO BERLIN TO RECEIVE GERMAN PROPOSALS.

"WE CANNOT ADVISE THE POLISH GOVERNMENT.

"COULD YOU NOT SUGGEST TO THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT THAT THEY ADOPT THE NORMAL PROCEDURE, WHEN THEIR PROPOSALS ARE READY, OF INVITING THE POLISH AMBASSADOR TO CALL AND OF HANDING THE PROPOSALS TO HIM FOR TRANSMISSION TO WARSAW?"

AT MIDNIGHT, AUG. 30, SIR NEVILE HANDED GERMAN FOREIGN MINISTER JOACHIM VON RIBBENTROP A NOTE WHICH SAID THAT, IN VIEW OF THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT'S ACCEPTANCE OF BRITAIN'S PROPOSAL FOR DIRECT DISCUSSIONS BETWEEN POLAND AND GERMANY, "THE METHOD OF CONTACT AND ARRANGEMENTS FOR DISCUSSIONS MUST OBVIOUSLY BE AGREED WITH ALL URGENCY" BETWEEN THE TWO GOVERNMENTS.

ALTHOUGH THE POLISH NEGOTIATOR DID NOT ARRIVE, IT WAS STATED, VON RIBBENTROP GAVE THE BRITISH AMBASSADOR "PRECISE INFORMATION AS TO THE TEXT OF GERMAN PROPOSALS."

THE WHITE PAPER ASSERTED, HOWEVER, THAT VON RIBBENTROP HAD PRODUCED "A LONG DOCUMENT WHICH HE READ OUT RAPIDLY IN GERMAN. IT WAS APPARENTLY THE 16-POINT PLAN WHICH THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT HAVE SINCE PUBLISHED."

SEP 2-1939

THE 16-POINT PLAN PROPOSED THE RETURN OF DANZIG TO THE REICH, AND PLANNED THE DISPOSITION OF THE CORRIDOR AND OTHER DISPUTED AREAS THROUGH PLEBISCITES OR NEGOTIATION.

LIPSKI HAD BEEN RECEIVED BY FOREIGN MINISTER VON RIBBENTROP ON THE EVENING OF AUG. 31.

EVERYONE KNEW THE ANSWER.

AN AUTHORITATIVE ANNOUNCEMENT, ISSUED AS THE CABINET MET TO DECIDE A COURSE OF ACTION, TOLD OF DETERMINATION TO FULFILL THE OBLIGATIONS TO THE UTMOST IF ADOLF HITLER'S PROCLAMATION SHOULD MEAN "AS IT WOULD SEEM TO MEAN, THAT GERMANY HAS DECLARED WAR ON POLAND."

PARLIAMENT WAS SUMMONED TO MEET TO GIVE FULL FORCE TO THE GOVERNMENT'S DECISION, WHICH THE AUTHORIZED STATEMENT FORESHADOWED.

THE BRITISH PLEDGE TO POLAND HAS BEEN REPEATEDLY STATED AS REQUIRING IMMEDIATE AND FULL SUPPORT IN THE EVENT THAT POLAND RESISTED A THREAT TO HER INDEPENDENCE.

LONDON,SEPT.1-(AP)-(6:46 A.M.)-(PASSED THROUGH BRITISH CENSORSHIP)-GREAT BRITAIN, STANDING PAT ON HER PLEDGE TO FIGHT FOR POLAND'S INDEPENDENCE, RECEIVED THE NEWS OF GERMANY'S LATEST MOVES IN THE EUROPEAN CRISIS WITH THE DEEPEST GRAVITY TODAY AS THE NATION MOVED SWIFTLY TOWARD A FULL WAR FOOTING.

AN IMMEDIATE CABINET MEETING WAS EXPECTED TO SURVEY THE IMPLICATIONS BOTH OF GERMANY'S ELEVENTH-HOUR 16-POINT PROPOSAL TO POLAND AND HITLER'S EARLY MORNING ORDER TO THE GERMAN ARMY ON THE POLISH BORDER TO MEET FORCE WITH FORCE.

BUT THIS, TOGETHER WITH THE RADIO ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE GERMAN NAVY'S BLOCKADE OF THE POLISH PORT OF GDYNIA, CREATED A STIR AMONG THOSE ON DUTY.

SEP 2-1939

ATTENTION WAS ATTRACTED PARTICULARLY BY THE SPEED WITH WHICH THE ARMY ORDER AND HARBOR BLOCKADE FOLLOWED THE GERMAN BROADCAST WHICH SAID HITLER HAD PROPOSED TO POLAND THAT DANZIG BE RETURNED TO THE REICH AND THAT A PLEBISCITE BE HELD TO DECIDE WHETHER POMORZE (THE POLISH CORRIDOR) SHOULD BE POLISH OR GERMAN TERRITORY.

MEANWHILE, WITH THE BRITISH FLEET MOBILIZING SWIFTLY UNDER THE ORDER ISSUED YESTERDAY AND THE ENTIRE ARMY RESERVE CALLED UP, BRITAIN BEGAN THE EVACUATION OF 3,000,000 WOMEN, CHILDREN AND INFIRM FROM THE DANGER AREAS.

SUBURBAN TRAINS RAN ON SKELETON SCHEDULES SO THAT THE ROLLING STOCK WOULD BE AVAILABLE TO HANDLE THE EXODUS FROM LONDON. MANY OF THE LONDON UNDERGROUND STATIONS WERE CLOSED EXCEPT TO THOSE BEING EVACUATED.

SEP 2-1939

A GERMAN SPOKESMAN IN LONDON, REFERRING IN A DECLARATION CONSIDERABLY AT VARIANCE WITH RECENT AUTHORITATIVE BRITISH STATEMENTS, SAID GERMANY STILL WAS WAITING FOR A REPLY FROM THE POLISH GOVERNMENT TO HITLER'S PROPOSALS, THAT THERE WAS NO TIME LIMIT ON THEM, AND THAT THEY CONSTITUTED NOT DEMANDS, BUT MERELY A BASIS FOR NEGOTIATIONS.

MOBILIZATION

BY JOHN MARTIN

ABOARD FRENCH NIGHT EXPRESS, SEPT. 1-(AP)-THIS "MOBILIZATION SPECIAL" ROARED ACROSS FRANCE TONIGHT, PICKING UP SOLDIERS AND HURLING THEM TOWARD THE DAWN OF ANOTHER WORLD WAR.

BEHIND ERAWN SHUTTERS, BLUE LAMPS CAST A GHOSTLY LIGHT, AS THE TRAIN SPED ACROSS FRANCE'S PLACID STREAMS AND THROUGH FIELDS RIPE WITH FRUIT AND GRAIN.

THE CIVILIANS AND SOLDIERS ABOARD DIDN'T HAVE MUCH TO SAY.

WHEN THE TRAIN GROUND TO A HALT, RETIRED OFFICERS WHO HAD BEEN CALLED TO THE COLORS GOT ABOARD. PEOPLE READ NEWSPAPERS THAT WERE MONOPOLIZED BY HEADLINES CLEAR TO EVERYONE OF THEM.

FRANCE WAS ON THE VERGE OF ANOTHER WAR WITH GERMANY.

THERE WERE BEADS OF PERSPIRATION ON THE CONDUCTOR'S FACE. HE SAID:

"I'VE BEEN PUNCHING TICKETS FOR TEN YEARS. TOMORROW I TURN OVER MY JOB TO A 70-YEAR-OLD AND TAKE UP A GUN. BUT IT'S ABOUT TIME."

THIS TEN-CAR SPECIAL WAS A CROSS-SECTION OF FRANCE ROCKETING TOWARD WAR--TIGHT-FACED, WITH LITTLE TO SAY AND ONLY FEW TEARS.

GIRLS RODE PART WAY WITH YOUNG SOLDIERS BEAUX, TRYING TO PROLONG THE INEVITABLE PARTING. OTHERS WERE FLEEING TO THE COUNTRY. MOTHERS NURSED THEIR BABIBES. CHILDREN PLAYED WITH GAS MASKS.

A FRENCH COLONEL SAID:

"IT'S BEEN COMING FOR A LONG TIME. YOU CAN'T DODGE IT NOW."

A YOUNG SCHOOL TEACHER SAID:

PARIS WAS CALM, BUT VISIBLY EMOTIONAL FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE THE CRISIS BEGAN.

THE GOVERNMENT ISSUED ITS SIXTH APPEAL TO CITIZENS TO EVACUATE THE CAPITAL AND ANNOUNCED EXTRA TRAINS WOULD BE AVAILABLE FOR THE NEXT 24 HOURS. AIDING IN THE EVACUATION WERE WOMEN BUS DRIVERS WHO REPLACED MEN ANSWERING THE MOBILIZATION CALL. TAXIS HAD ALL BUT DISAPPEARED FROM THE STREETS.

FROM EARLY AFTERNOON UNTIL LATE EVENING, FRANCE HAD NO FURTHER NEWS ON THE FIGHTING IN POLAND, EITHER FROM THE GERMAN OR THE POLISH SIDE.

ADD-BERLIN—SEPT. 1-

THE TENSE HOURS PRECEDING HITLER'S EARLY MORNING ORDER OF THE DAY FOR USE OF "FORCE AGAINST FORCE" WERE MARKED BY REPORTS OF SCATTERED CLASHES BETWEEN GERMAN BORDER POLICE AND "POLISH INSURGENTS" IN ADDITION TO AN ATTACK ON THE GERMAN RADIO STATION AT GLEIWITZ, IN SILESIA, WHERE SEVEN PERSONS WERE KILLED.

TWO POLES AND A GERMAN WERE KILLED AT PITSCHEN, ABOUT A MILE WITHIN THE UPPER SILESIAN BORDER, IT WAS REPORTED BY DNB, OFFICIAL GERMAN NEWS AGENCY, AND MANY WERE WOUNDED WHEN A DETACHMENT OF GERMAN BORDER POLICE CLASHED WITH MORE THAN 200 POLES. FIFTEEN POLES, INCLUDING SIX SOLDIERS, WER CAPTURED, DNB SAID.

"POLISH INSURGENTS" AND SOLDIERS WERE REPORTED TO HAVE STORMED THE CUSTOMS HOUSE AT HOCHLINDEN AND THE NUMBER OF CASUALTIES WAS STILL UNDETERMINED. GERMAN BORDER POLICE WERE SAID TO HAVE WRESTED THE CUSTOMS BUILDING FROM THE POLES AFTER A HALF-HOUR FIGHT.

SEP 2 1939

BANDS OF POLISH IRREGULARS, SUPPORTED BY REGULAR SOLDIERS, ATTACKED THE RAILWAY STATION AT ALTE EICHE, WEST PRUSSIA, DNB REPORTED, AND THE GERMAN GUARDS RESPONDED WITH MACHINE-GUN FIRE. A GERMAN WAS KILLED AND ANOTHER WOUNDED AND THE ATTACKERS WERE SAID TO HAVE FALLEN BACK WITH AN UNDETERMINED NUMBER OF DEAD AND WOUNDED.

APPARENTLY THESE BORDER CLASHES CAME ABOUT THE SAME TIME THAT "POLISH INSURGENTS"--AS DNB PUT IT--SEIZED THE RADIO STATION AT GLEIWITZ AND BROADCAST AN ANNOUNCEMENT THAT GLEIWITZ HAD FALLEN INTO POLISH HANDS.

POLICE, LEARNING OF THE INVASION THROUGH THE BROADCAST ITSELF, SURROUNDED THE RADIO BUILDING AND, DNB SAID, CAPTURED ALL POLES WHO WERE NOT KILLED IN THE EXCHANGE OF FIRE. BERLIN NAZIS SAID THEY UNDERSTOOD SEVEN PERSONS WERE KILLED WHILE A POLICE REPORT SAID BUT

ONE POLE DIED.

"A GROUP OF POLISH INSURGENTS FORCIBLY ENTERED THE STATION BUILDING WHERE ONLY A NORMAL GUARD WAS PRESENT, SHORTLY AFTER 8 P.M. (THURSDAY.) ARMED WITH CLUBS, THE POLES INVADED THE STUDIO," DNB SAID.

"THE INVADERS THEN BROADCAST AN APPEAL IN POLISH AND PARTLY IN GERMAN 'IN THE NAME OF THE POLISH VOLUNTEER CORPS OF THE UPPER SILESIAN INSURGENTS.' THE BROADCAST ANNOUNCED THAT THE CITY OF GLEIWITZ AND THE RADIO STATION WERE IN POLISH HANDS AND SPOKE OF A POLISH BRESLAU AND A POLISH DANZIG."

SEP 2-1939

DNB CALLED THE SEIZURE OF THE RADIO STATION "THE SIGNAL FOR A GENERAL ATTACK BY POLISH INSURGENTS ON GERMAN TERRITORY."

THE 24 HOURS WHICH PRECLUDED ADOLF HITLER'S "FORCE WITH FORCE" ORDER INCLUDED:

1.-POLAND'S SENSATIONAL LACK OF RESPONSE TO A SURPRISINGLY MODERATED LIST OF 16 SUGGESTIONS FOR SETTLEMENT OF THE GERMAN-POLISH QUARREL. GERMANY EXPECTED AT LEAST THAT POLAND WOULD SEND A NEGOTIATOR TO BERLIN BUT THE POLES SHOWED NOT THE SLIGHTEST INTEREST IN THE FUEHRER'S DEMANDS.

(WARSAW SPOKESMEN SAID HITLER'S PROPOSAL FOR RETURN OF DANZIG TO GERMANY AND A PLEBISCITE AMONG THE PEOPLE OF POMORZE, THE POLISH CORRIDOR, TO DECIDE THE QUESTION OF REUNION WITH GERMANY WERE UNACCEPTABLE. POLAND, THEY SAID, INSISTS ON FULL RESTITUTION OF HER CURTAILED RIGHTS IN DANZIG.)

2.-DEPARTURE OF THE POLISH FLEET FROM ITS BALTIC BASE, PRESUMABLY TO JOIN THE BRITISH FLEET IN THE NORTH SEA, CONCURRENTLY WITH MOBILIZATION OF THE BRITISH FLEET. THE BRITISH MOBILIZATION CREATED A PROFOUND IMPRESSION IN BERLIN.

3.-SIMULTANEOUS RATIFICATION IN BERLIN AND MOSCOW OF THE AUG. 24 NONAGGRESSION PACT BETWEEN GERMANY AND SOVIET RUSSIA, ALONG WITH INDICATIONS IN INFORMED QUARTERS THAT A RUSSIAN MISSION WAS ENROUTE TO BERLIN POSSIBLY TO NEGOTIATE A MILITARY ACCORD WITH THE REICH.

4.-THE PRESS WAS GIVEN TO UNDERSTAND THAT HITLER WOULD ADDRESS THE NATION AND THE WORLD TODAY, POSSIBLY SPEAKING BEFORE A SPECIAL SESSION OF THE REICHSTAG.

AN AIR OF BEWILDERMENT PERVADED BERLIN WHEN IN STRIKING SUCCESSION HITLER'S COMPARATIVELY MODERATE TERMS FOR A POLISH SETTLEMENT, THE POLISH SNUB AND THE BORDER FIGHTING WERE MADE KNOWN TO THE PEOPLE, CROWDS THAT HAD GATHERED IN FRONT OF THE PALATIAL CHANCELLERY QUICKLY BOUGHT EXTRAS HEADLINED, "POLAND REJECTS PEACE."

THERE WERE CHEERS FOR THE RATIFICATION OF THE GERMAN-RUSSIAN PACT BUT THE CHANCELLERY WATCHERS DISPERSED AFTER THE TERMS FOR A POLISH-GERMAN SETTLEMENT WERE ANNOUNCED OVER LOUDSPEAKERS. IT WAS APPARENT THAT THE "WAR OF NERVES" WAS CLAIMING VICTIMS IN BERLIN. MANY WONDERED WHEN THE FUEHRER WOULD GIVE THE WORD FOR AN ATTEMPT AT FORCEFUL SOLUTION OF THE CRISIS.

THE IMPACT OF THE POLISH REBUFF WAS EMPHASIZED AT THE FOREIGN OFFICE WHERE THE ASSOCIATED PRESS WAS TOLD THAT BRITAIN HAD ASSURED GERMANY THAT A POLISH NEGOTIATOR WOULD COME TO DISCUSS HITLER'S NEWEST TERMS.

SEP 2-1939

"VON RIBBENTROP (GERMAN FOREIGN MINISTER) WAITED ALL DAY AUG. 30 FOR THE ARRIVAL OF THE NEGOTIATOR, WHO DID NOT COME," SAID THE FOREIGN OFFICE INFORMANT.

"THEN THE POLISH AMBASSADOR, JOZEF LIPSKI, WAS SENT FOR AND HE MERELY SAID HE WAS NOT AUTHORIZED TO TALK AND COULD NOT EVEN RECEIVE THE PROPOSALS."

THE FOREIGN OFFICE MOUTHPIECE, DEUTSCHE DIPLOMATISCH-POLITISCHE KORRESPONDENZ, FOUND IN THE SITUATION WHICH DEVELOPED AMONG BERLIN, LONDON AND WARSAW INDICATIONS THAT BRITISH DIPLOMATS HAD WORKED AT CROSS PURPOSES.

"DURING THE TIME THAT THE ENGLISH AMBASSADOR IN BERLIN EXPRESSED THE INTEREST OF HIS GOVERNMENT TOWARD PEACEFUL SOLUTION OF GERMAN-POLISH DIFFERENCES AND CONDUCTED DISCUSSIONS AIMED AT MUTUAL UNDERSTANDING, OTHER OFFICES IN LONDON APPARENTLY WORKED IN A DIFFERENT DIRECTION."

WHILE THE NEGOTIATIONS WERE STILL UNDERWAY, THE FOREIGN OFFICE COMMENTARY ASSERTED, INFLUENTIAL CIRCLES IN LONDON TIPPED OFF WARSAW ON THE NATURE OF THE TALKS WITH THE RESULT THAT POLAND ORDERED GENERAL MOBILIZATION.

A63

KORRESPONDENZ THEN SAID THAT "SUCH ENGLISH PROCEDURE" WOULD NOT BE NEW AND RECALLED THAT ON MAY 21, LAST YEAR, AFTER A SIMILAR "ENGLISH MANEUVER" THE CZECHO-SLOVAK MOBILIZATION WAS ORDERED.

CZECHO-SLOVAKIA AND POLAND WERE SAID TO HAVE ATTEMPTED TO JUSTIFY THEIR EXISTENCE AS CREATIONS OF THE VERSAILLES TREATY BY THEIR READINESS TO BE ALWAYS AT THE DISPOSAL OF "THE VERSAILLES DICTATORS," ESPECIALLY IN PROVOCATIONS TO GERMANY.

IN THE MIDST OF REPORTS OF CLASHES BETWEEN POLISH UNITS

AND GERMAN BORDER PATROLS, POLAND MOVED SWIFTLY ABOUT THE TASK OF FURTHER MOBILIZATION.

SEP 1 - 1939

SEVERAL HUNDRED THOUSAND NEW RECRUITS WENT TO THEIR

STATIONS FROM CITIES, TOWNS AND FARMS. OLDER MEN, NOT YET ORDERED

TO REPORT, RUSHED TO VOLUNTEER AT MOBILIZATION CENTERS IN SUCH

NUMBERS THAT AUTHORITIES HAD TO ORDER THEM TO KEEP AWAY FROM THESE

CONCENTRATION POINTS, AND SO MANY UNDER-AGED YOUTHS VOLUNTEERED

THAT THE WAR MINISTRY WAS REPORTED TO BE CONSIDERING FORMATION

OF SPECIAL SERVICE UNITS.

WARSAW WAS BLACKED OUT LAST NIGHT, AND DURING THE DAY

THOUSANDS OF WOMEN AND CHILDREN LEFT FOR [redacted] RURAL AREAS.

CIVILIAN EVAQUATION ALSO WAS GOING FORWARD IN FRONTIER SECTIONS,

WHILE IN THE CITIES POLICEMEN AND MAIL CARRIERS WERE OUTFITTED

WITH GAS MASKS.

BEGINNING AT MIDNIGHT [redacted], ALL CIVILIANS WERE REQUIRED

TO HAVE PERMITS FOR RAILROAD TRAVEL. TRAIN SCHEDULES WERE REDUCED

SHARPLY.

MEANWHILE, SEP 1 1939 SOURCES SAID THE GOVERNMENT

DID NOT PLAN TO PLACE THE NATION ON A WAR-TIME ECONOMY AT PRESENT.

SOME NEW REGULATIONS WERE INTRODUCED, BUT IT WAS SAID THERE WAS

NO PLAN FOR A DEBT MORATORIUM. GOVERNMENT CONTROL OF FOREIGN EXCHANGE, RECENTLY EXTENDED TO COVER IMPORTATION OF POLISH CURRENCY,

ALREADY HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED.

INCIDENTS PILED UP DURING THE NIGHT TO HEIGHTEN POLISH

TENSION. POLISH SOURCES REPORTED GERMAN PATROLS HAD CROSSED THE BORDER AT VARIOUS POINTS; A GERMAN BOMBER, IT WAS SAID, HAD FLOWN

OVER POLISH SILESIA AND BEEN PURSUED BY POLISH PLANES; "NEW AGGRES-

ROME,SEPT. 1-(AP)-THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT DECLARED TODAY IT WOULD REFRAIN FROM TAKING "ANY INITIATIVE" IN MILITARY OPERATIONS GROWING OUT OF THE GERMAN-POLISH HOSTILITIES.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT, ISSUED AFTER A BRIEF CABINET MEETING CALLED BY PREMIER MUSSOLINI, WAS INTERPRETED IN FOREIGN CIRCLES AS MEANING THAT ITALY INTENDED TO STAY OUT OF WAR UNTIL HER OWN TERRITORY WAS ATTACKED. SEP 2-1939

THE GOVERNMENT ANNOUNCED THAT IT CONSIDERED THAT THE PRECAUTIONARY MEASURES OF A MILITARY NATURE ALREADY TAKEN WERE ADEQUATE.

SHORTLY BEFORE THE CABINET MET, UNITED STATES AMBASSADOR WILLIAM PHILLIPS DELIVERED TO THE FOREIGN OFFICE A MESSAGE FROM PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT EXPRESSING THE HOPE THAT WARRNING NATIONS WOULD REFRAIN FROM AIR BOMBARDMENTS ON CIVILIANS.

WHILE THE REPLY WAS NOT MADE PUBLIC HERE, IT WAS BELIEVED THAT THE CABINET FELT ITS COMMUNIQUE FOLLOWING THE MEETING--STATING IT WAS NOT TAKING MILITARY ACTION AT PRESENT--COVERED THE GROUND SUFFICIENTLY.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE CABINET'S DECISION RELIEVED ITALIANS, WHOSE HOPE OF AVOIDING CONFLICT HAD DWINDLED WITH THE OUTBREAK OF FIGHTING BETWEEN GERMANY AND POLAND. THEY HAD TAKEN SOME COMFORT EARLIER FROM CHANCELLOR HITLER'S DECLARATION THAT HE DID NOT INTEND CALLING ON ITALY FOR AID.

THE OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE SAID THE CABINET HAD EXAMINED THE POLISH SITUATION, "THE ORIGIN OF WHICH GOES BACK TO THE VERSAILLES TREATY."

THE CABINET, SAID THE STATEMENT, TOOK COGNIZANCE OF ALL DOCUMENTS PRESENTED BY FOREIGN MINISTER COUNT GALEAZZO CIANO WHICH SHOWED "THE WORK CARRIED OUT BY IL DUCE TO ASSURE EUROPE OF A PEACE BASED ON JUSTICE."

SEP 2-1939

THE COMMUNIQUE ADDRESSED "HIGH PRAISE TO THE ITALIAN PEOPLE FOR THE EXAMPLE OF DISCIPLINE AND CALM OF WHICH IT HAS GIVEN--AS ALWAYS--PROOF."

REFLECTING THE GENERAL ITALIAN HOPE THAT GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE WOULD LET GERMANY AND POLAND FIGHT ALONE, THE AUTHORITATIVE VIRGINIO GAYDA WROTE IN THE GIORNALE D'ITALIA:

AMONG THE DOCUMENTS THE CABINET HAD BEFORE IT IN REACHING ITS DECISION WAS A TELEGRAM FROM HITLER TO MUSSOLINI EXPRESSING CONFIDENCE THAT GERMANY WOULD NOT NEED THE AID OF THE ITALIAN ARMY.

THE BRITISH, FRENCH AND POLISH AMBASSADORS HAD LEARNED OF THE ITALIAN ATTITUDE IN VISITS TO COUNT CIANO BEFORE THE CABINET MET.

THERE WAS MUCH SPECULATION IN FOREIGN CIRCLES AS TO WHETHER MUSSOLINI'S DECISION MIGHT HAVE RESULTED FROM REPORTS CURRENT RECENTLY OF WIDESPREAD GRUMBLING AMONG THE PEOPLE AT THE PROSPECT OF A WAR IN AID OF GERMANY, OR FROM A PRE-ARRANGED PLAN WITH HITLER TO FORCE BRITAIN AND FRANCE INTO THE POSITION OF ATTACKERS. ALTHOUGH MUSSOLINI HAS CALLED FOR A GENERAL REVISION OF THE EUROPEAN SET-UP IN WHICH ITALY, AS WELL AS GERMANY, WOULD GAIN, HIS CABINET'S DECISION INDICATED HE WOULD FOREGO THE CHANCE TO OBTAIN FORCEFULLY THE ADVANTAGES WHICH HE SEEKS FOR ITALY IN TUNISIA, DJIBOUTI AND THE SUEZ CANAL.

SOME DIPLOMATS THOUGHT THE CABINET'S STATEMENT LENT ITSELF TO TWO INTERPRETATIONS:

FIRST, THAT ITALY WAS DETERMINED TO REMAIN NEUTRAL AS LONG AS THE WAR INVOLVED ONLY GERMANY AND POLAND, OR SECOND, THAT ITALY WOULD STAY OUT OF WAR EVEN IF FRANCE OR BRITAIN ENTERED THE CONFLICT, PROVIDED SHE HERSELF WAS NOT ATTACKED.

SEP 2-1939

ITALIANS FREELY PREDICTED THAT DIVISION OF POLAND BETWEEN GERMANY AND RUSSIA COULD BE AN OUTCOME OF POLISH RESISTANCE. MUSSOLINI'S NEWSPAPER, IL POPOLO D'ITALIA, EVEN SPOKE OF GERMANY AND RUSSIA AS ALLIES IN ARMS.

RECALLING POLAND'S RISE TO INDEPENDENCE AS A RESULT OF WAR BETWEEN GERMANY AND RUSSIA, THE PAPER SAID:

"NOW CONDITIONS ARE REVERSED. GERMANY AND RUSSIA ARE ALLIED. GERMANY AND RUSSIA ARE IN ARMS. POLAND IS IN A VISE."

THE NEWSPAPER FURTHER WARNED THAT WHEN GERMANY HAD CRUSHED POLAND SHE WOULD THROW HER WHOLE WEIGHT AGAINST THE WEST "AND THEN WHAT WILL THE FRENCH ARMY DO?"

IL REGIME FASCIATA, NEWSPAPER OF THE INFLUENTIAL FASCIST, ROBERTO FARINACCI, MADE SIMILAR ALLUSIONS TO A POSSIBLE PARTITION OF POLAND, ASSERTING THAT RUSSIANS WERE CONCENTRATING FORCES ON THE POLISH FRONTIER.

WITH ITALY CONTENT TO BASE HER DEFENSE AGAINST A POSSIBLE ATTACK ON NEARLY 2,000,000 MEN UNDER ARMS OR CALLED TO THE COLORS, MILITARY AUTHORITIES WATCHED DEVELOPMENTS IN LONDON AND PARIS.

NEW YORK, AUG. 31-(AP)-THE TEXT OF MAX JORDAN'S INTERPRETATION OF THE REMARKS OF AN UNIDENTIFIED OFFICIAL SPOKESMAN FOR GERMANY IN A BROADCAST FROM BERLIN, AS TRANSCRIBED IN NEW YORK BY NBC, FOLLOWS:

YOU HAVE JUST HEARD THE GERMAN BROADCAST WHICH CAME FROM ALL THE NATIONAL STATIONS OF THIS COUNTRY AS A SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT. THE SPEAKER'S NAME WAS NOT DIVULGED, BUT I UNDERSTAND HIM TO BE A MEMBER OF THE GOVERNMENT PRESS DEPARTMENT WHO DELIVERED THIS MESSAGE, OF COURSE WITH THE FULL AUTHORITY OF THE REICH'S CABINET TO INFORM THE GERMAN PUBLIC AND THEREBY THE WORLD OF THE PRESENT STATUS OF THE NEGOTIATIONS. SEP 1-1939

THE CONTENTS OF THE MESSAGE WHICH HAS JUST BEEN BROADCAST CAN BE SUBDIVIDED INTO FOURTEEN PARAGRAPHS.

THESE FOURTEEN PARAGRAPHS CONSTITUTE THE PROPOSALS WHICH CHANCELLOR HITLER HAS MADE FOR THE SOLUTION OF THE POLISH QUESTION. THIS PROPOSAL WAS TRANSMITTED TO THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT AND WAS BASED ON A REQUEST OF GERMANY THAT A NEGOTIATOR, A DELEGATE OF THE POLISH GOVERNMENT, SHOULD COME TO BERLIN TO DISCUSS ALL THE DETAILS.

AS I HAVE POINTED OUT IN AN EARLIER BROADCAST TONIGHT, THE POLISH GOVERNMENT SEEMS TO HAVE BEEN UNWILLING TO TAKE UP SUCH DISCUSSIONS ON GERMAN GROUND.

THEY THOUGHT THAT IT WOULD BE PREFERABLE THAT THE NEGOTIATIONS SHOULD BE ENTERED INTO ON A NEUTRAL TERRITORY SOMEWHERE ELSE IN EUROPE. THE PROPOSAL THAT THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT HAS MADE CONSISTS PRIMARILY IN AN EFFOR TO ARRANGE FOR A PLEBISCITE IN THE SO-CALLED CORRIDOR DISTRICT, THAT STRETCH OF TERRITORY WHICH W4939 SEP 1-1939 TURNED OVER TO POLAND FROM GERMANY UNDER THE VERSAILLES TREATY.

GERMANY CLAIMS THAT DANZIG AS A PURELY GERMAN CITY SHOULD RETURN TO THE REICH. NO PLEBISCITE WOULD BE ARRANGED FOR THE FREE CITY, BUT THE CORRIDOR TERRITORY AND ALL THE INHABITANTS THERE WOULD BE THE SUBJECT OF A DECISION PUT UP TO THE PEOPLE, TO THE PEOPLE TO BE EXACT WHO HAVE BEEN RESIDING THERE AND WHO WERE BORN AFTER JANUARY 1, 1918.

IN OTHER WORDS, THE STATUS QUO AS IT EXISTED AT THE END OF THE LATE WAR IS PROPOSED BY THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT TO BE THE BASIS FOR A VOTE WHICH WOULD DECIDE DEFINITELY THE FATE OF THE LAND WHICH IS NOW THE BONE OF CONTENTION BETWEEN GERMANY AND POLAND.

THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT ALSO INSISTS THAT ALL THOSE GERMAN CITIZENS AND THOSE POLES OF GERMAN ORIGIN WHO HAD BEEN FORCED IN RECENT WEEKS, AS THE GERMAN ANNOUNCEMENT SAID, TO LEAVE POLAND, THAT THESE PEOPLE, TOO, SHOULD BE PERMITTED TO TAKE PART IN THE PLEBESCITE.

SEP 2-1939

IN ORDER TO GUARANTEE AN INDEPENDENT VOTE, A COMMISSION SHOULD BE SET UP ACCORDING TO THE GERMAN PROPOSAL, WHICH WOULD BE CONSTITUTED BY FRANCE, GREAT BRITAIN, ITALY AND SOVIET RUSSIA.

THE HARBOR OF GDYNIA, THE POLISH HARBOR ADJOINING THE FREE CITY OF DANZIG, WOULD NOT BE INCLUDED IN THE TERRITORY WHOSE FATE WOULD HAVE TO BE DECIDED BY POPULAR VOTE.

THE GERMAN PROPOSAL GOES ON BY SAYING THAT THIS PLEBESCITE SHOULD NOT TAKE PLACE UNTIL AFTER AN INTERVAL OF TWELVE MONTHS FROM THE DATE WHEN THE GERMAN PROPOSAL WOULD HAVE BEEN ADOPTED. IN OTHER WORDS, IF THIS PROPOSAL SHOULD BE ACCEPTED BY POLAND, ONLY A YEAR AFTERWARDS COULD THE VOTE TAKE PLACE.

THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT ALSO EXPLAINED THAT IT IS ITS VIEW THAT THE ABSOLUTE MAJORITY SHOULD DECIDE THE ISSUE IN THIS PLEBESCITE. IF POLAND WINS, THE GERMAN PROPOSAL GOES ON BY SAYING GERMANY WOULD GET THE RIGHT TO OBTAIN AN AUTOMOBILE ROAD AND RAILWAY COMMUNICATIONS OVER FOUR PARALLEL TRACKS CONNECTING THE GERMAN TERRITORY OF EAST PRUSSIA, DANZIG AND THE REICH PROPER ON SO-CALLED NEUTRAL GROUND.

THIS CORRIDOR, HOWEVER, THROUGH THE CORRIDOR WILL BE UNDER GERMAN SOVEREIGNTY. IF, HOWEVER, GERMANY SHOULD WIN, THE LATTER WOULD BE WILLING TO GRANT THE SAME PRIVILEGES TO THE POLISH REPUBLIC.

IN OTHER WORD, POLAND WOULD THEN OBTAIN A CORRIDOR THROUGH THE CORRIDOR, A CORRIDOR WHICH IN THE LATTER CASE WOULD BE GERMAN TERRITORY. ONLY AN AUTOMOBILE ROAD AND RAILWAY COMMUNICATIONS WOULD BE ASSIGNED TO POLAND IN ORDER TO ESTABLISH THE CONNECTION BETWEEN THE HARBOR OF GDYNIA AND THE TERRITORY OF THE POLISH REPUBLIC.

THE GERMAN PROPOSAL ALSO EXPLAINS THAT THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT WOULD BE WILLING TO EXCHANGE THE POPULATION BETWEEN GERMANY AND POLAND WHICH MIGHT BE ADVERSELY AFFECTED BY THE RESULT OF THE POPULAR VOTE.

SEP 2-1939

DANZIG, THE CITY OF DANZIG AND ALSO THE CITY OF GDYNIA, THE POLISH HARBOR, WOULD BE DEMILITARIZED AND ONLY MAINTAIN THEIR CHARACTER AS COMMERCIAL CENTERS.

BOTH COUNTRIES, THE GERMAN PROPOSAL GOES ON BY SAYING, WOULD BE WILLING TO SUBMIT THE COMPLAINTS, WHICH THEY HAVE RAISED IN RECENT TIMES WITH REGARD TO THE TREATMENT OF THEIR MINORITIES, TO A NEUTRAL COMMISSION AND ALL DAMAGES WHICH HAVE ARISEN IN CONNECTION WITH THESE ALLEGED COMPLAINTS OF ILL TREATMENT OF THE MUTUAL MINORITY WOULD HAVE TO BE MADE GOOD.

IF THIS PROPOSAL WERE ACCEPTED, THS GERMAN GOVERNMENT GIES AMPLE ASSURANCES THAT IMMEDIATE MEASURES WOULD BE TAKEN TO DEMOBILIZE, BUT SUCH DEMOBILIZATION WOULD HAVE TO TAKE PLACE SIMULTANEOUSLY, BOTH IN GERMANY AND IN POLAND.

THIS, BRIEFLY, IS THE GIST OF THE ANNOUNCEMENT WHICH WAS JUST GIVEN OVER THE GERMAN STATIONS. IT WAS RATHER INDICATIVE OF THE PRESENT SITUATION THAT NO COMMENT WAS ADDED, NO WORD WAS SAID ABOUT THE FURTHER STEPS TO BE TAKEN BY THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT, BUT WE CAN ADD THAT HITLER HAD ORIGINALLY EXPECTED THAT POLAND

SUCH A REPLY HAS NOT BEEN RECEIVED, BUT IT WAS EMPHASIZED BY THE OFFICIAL GERMAN SPEAKER A MOMENT AGO THAT A NEW EFFORT HAD BEEN UNDERTAKEN, A NEW DIPLOMATIC APPROACH HAD BEEN UNDERTAKEN BY THE POLISH GOVERNMENT WHICH APPARENTLY WAS MEANT TO RENDER POSSIBLE FURTHER DISCUSSION.

IN THESE LATTER CONVERSATIONS, HOWEVER, THE GERMAN SPEAKER POINTED OUT, POLAND AGAIN EMPHASIZED THAT SHE WOULD NOT BE WILLING TO CARRY OUT SUCH NEGOTIATIONS IN GERMANY AND THAT SHE WOULD PREFER THAT THEY BE CARRIED ON ON NEUTRAL GROUNDS.

SEP 2-1939

WELL, THIS IS THE LATEST NEWS. WE KNOW NOW THAT A DEFINITE PROPOSAL HAS BEEN MADE BY GERMANY, THAT THIS PROPOSAL HAS BEEN PASSED ON TO GREAT BRITAIN, AND THAT GREAT BRITAIN IN TURN SUBMITTED IT TO THE POLISH GOVERNMENT. IT SEEMS FROM ALL INFORMATION THAT WE HAVE HERE NOW AT THIS HOUR, THAT NO FINAL DECISION HAS BEEN REACHED ON EITHER SIDE.

THERE IS STILL A GLIMMER OF HOPE; THERE IS STILL A PROSPECT OF PEACE, AND MY OWN PERSONAL IMPRESSION WHICH I WANT TO PASS ON TO OUR LISTENERS WITH ALL DUE RESERVATION IS THAT WE SHOULD NOT DESPAIR, THE WORLD STILL HAS THE CHANCE OF PEACE.

THE MIRACLE OF PEACE CAN STILL OCCUR AT THE LAST HOUR. LET'S HOPE THAT WHEN WE GO AGAIN ON THE AIR FOR NBC LISTENERS, A LITTLE LATER THIS EVENING, WE WILL BE ABLE TO GIVE YOU ENCOURAGING AND PROMISING NEWS.

"THIS IS ONE OF THE SADDEST DAYS THAT HAS COME TO HUMANITY IN 100 YEARS. A SENSELESS WAR SEEMS INEVITABLY FORCED UPON HUNDREDS OF MILLIONS OF PEOPLE. WE CAN KEEP OUT IF WE HAVE THE RESOLUTE NATIONAL WILL TO DO SO. WE CAN BE OF MORE SERVICE TO EUROPE AND HUMANITY IF WE PRESERVE THE VITALITY AND STRENGTH OF THE UNITED STATES FOR USE IN THE PERIOD OF PEACE WHICH MUST SOMETIME COME. BY FRANKLIN MULLIN

CHICAGO,SEPT.1-(AP)-THE WORLD'S WHEAT HARVEST, A FACTOR IN WAR PLANS, TODAY WAS VIRTUALLY "IN THE BIN," BULGING GRANARIES WITH THE LARGEST SUPPLY IN HISTORY.

END OF HARVESTERS' WORK IN MOST OF THE BREAD GRAIN FIELDS OF EUROPE AND NORTH AMERICA IS IN SIGHT AS THE LATE SUMMER WAR SCARE REACHES A CRISIS. HARVESTERS ARE THREADING THROUGH NORTHERN STRETCHES OF THE WHEAT BELTS OF THE TWO CONTINENTS AND EXPECT TO FINISH IN A FEW WEEKS.

SEP 2-1939

IN CONTRAST TO THE RATHER SHORT SUPPLY IN AUGUST, 1914, WHEN ARMIES MARCHED INTO THE WORLD'S WORST CONFLICT, THE 1939 WORLD WHEAT STOCK ASSURES AN AMPLE FOOD RESERVE FOR MANY MONTHS. MORE THAN A YEAR OF GOVERNMENT HOARDING IN PRINCIPAL EUROPEAN COUNTRIES HAS PUT MUCH OF THE RESERVE IN POSITION READILY ACCESSIBLE TO ARMIES AND CIVILIAN POPULATIONS IN THE ZONES OF POSSIBLE HOSTILITIES.

THE WORLD DID NOT PRODUCE QUITE AS MUCH WHEAT THIS YEAR AS IN 1938 BUT THE NEW CROP IS BEING PILED UPON A RECORD-BREAKING CARRYOVER. EXCLUSIVE OF RUSSIA AND CHINA, FOR WHICH RELIABLE FIGURES ARE LACKING, THE WORLD HAS APPROXIMATELY 5,290,000,000 BUSHELS IN RESERVE, OR 120,000,000 MORE THAN A YEAR AGO AND 1,450,000,000 MORE THAN NORMALLY NEEDED, BASED ON CONSUMPTION THE PAST DECADE, ACCORDING TO GOVERNMENT ESTIMATES.

THIS HUGE SUPPLY IS THE RESULT OF ADDING THE 4,090,000,000 BUSHELS OF THE 1939 CROP TO A WORLD CARRYOVER ESTIMATED AT 1,200,000,000 BUSHELS. WHEN EUROPE WENT TO WAR IN 1914 THE WORLD PRODUCED 2,834,000,000 BUSHELS BUT THE NEXT SEASON THE CROP WAS RAISED TO 3,497,000,000 BUSHELS. THIS SEASON'S HARVEST, WHILE THE LARGEST SINCE THE WORLD WAR, EXCEPT FOR 1938, IS ABOUT 480,000,000 BUSHELS SMALLER THAN LAST YEAR.

WEATHER CONDITIONS IN EUROPE RECENTLY HAVE BEEN MORE FAVORABLE FOR HARVESTING. THE CONTINENT'S EXPECTED CROP IS 1,640,000,000 BUSHELS, OR ABOUT 200,000,000 LESS THAN LAST YEAR. WET WEATHER TOOK SOME TOLL BOTH IN FRANCE AND GERMANY AS WELL AS IN OTHER COUNTRIES BUT LARGE SUPPLIES HAVE BEEN CARRIED OVER.

IN THE PAST WEEK ENGLAND AND FRANCE BOUGHT 25,000,000 BUSHELS OF ARGENTINE GRAIN, ENGLAND PURCHASED 5,000,000 BUSHELS OF CANADIAN AND ARGENTINA SPEEDED SHIPMENTS OF APPROXIMATELY 3,750,000 BUSHELS TO GERMANY UNDER A BARTER AGREEMENT. GRAIN TRADERS EXPECT FURTHER LARGE SCALE GOVERNMENT OPERATIONS IN THE EVENT OF WAR.

THE WORLD WHEAT PRICE HAS BEEN ONLY SLIGHTLY AFFECTED BY PROSPECTS OF WAR, TRADERS BEING UNCERTAIN, IN VIEW OF "FALSE ALARMS" IN RECENT YEARS, WHETHER ACTUAL WIDESPREAD HOSTILITIES WOULD BREAK OUT. A PRICE OF AROUND 68 CENTS FOR CHICAGO WHEAT BEFORE THE OPENING TODAY WAS ONLY A FEW CENTS ABOVE THE LOWEST LEVEL IN SEVEN YEARS. ON THE FIRST OF SEPTEMBER IN 1914 THE PRICE WAS AROUND $1.21, HAVING RISEN AFTER START OF FIGHTING FROM 76 CENTS IN JULY.

IN 1914, WHEN CLOSING OF THE DARDANELLES CUT OFF RUSSIAN SHIPMENTS, EUROPE LOOKED ANXIOUSLY TO THE UNITED STATES, WHICH HAD THE LARGEST WHEAT RESERVE. ARGENTINA HAD RAISED ONLY 114,000,000 BUSHELS, AUSTRALIA 108,000,000 AND CANADA 140,000,000. THIS SEASON, HOWEVER, ARGENTINA AND CANADA HOLD MUCH GREATER EXPORTABLE SUPPLIES RESULTING FROM CROPS OF 336,000,000 BUSHELS IN THE SOUTHERN HEMISPHERE AND APPROXIMATELY 400,000,000 BUSHELS IN CANADA. THE UNITED STATES HAS PRODUCED MORE THAN 700,000,000 BUSHELS, BUT UNLIKE ITS COMPETITORS, CONSUMES MOST OF ITS WHEAT AT HOME.

1939

DESPITE LARGE WORLD SUPPLIES AND CHEAPNESS OF ACTUAL WHEAT IN EXPORTING COUNTRIES, WITH ARGENTINA, CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES LAYING GRAIN DOWN IN EUROPE UNDER SUBSIDY, THE SURPLUS IS NOT ALLOWED TO ENTER AND CIRCULATE FREELY, WITH THE RESULT THAT BREAD PRICES IN EUROPE ARE HIGH. BROOMHALL, BRITISH GRAIN AUTHORITY REPORTED RECENTLY THAT CASH WHEAT WAS SELLING AS HIGH AS $1.60 IN PARIS, $2.18 IN BERLIN AND $1.93 IN GENO

NEW YORK,SEPT 1-WHAT PROFIT OR LOSS IS POSSIBLE IN ANOTHER EUROPEAN WAR FOR ANYBODY?

30.24-2931

30.24—2931

THE QUESTION OF WHETHER THERE CAN BE ANY REAL MATERIAL PROFIT IN WAR HAS BEEN DEBATED EVER SINCE MAN USED TO FIGHT HIS BATTLES WITH HIS BARE HANDS.

IN THE WORLD WAR EVERYBODY PAID SO HEAVILY FOR THE PRIVILGE OF ROLLING THE DICE THAT EVEN THE WINNERS WERE LOSERS.

THE CARNEGIE ENDOWMENT FOR INTERNATIONAL PEACE ESTIMATED THE DIRECT COST AT $186,000,000,000.

THE INDIRECT COST WAS SET AT ALMOST AS MUCH MORE.

THE NUMBER KNOWN DEAD WAS PLACED AT 9,998,771, AND THE PRESUMED DEAD AT 2,991,800--MAKING A TOTAL OF 12,990,571.

THIS DOESN'T TAKE INTO ACCOUNT THE MILLIONS OF WOUNDED.

KAISER WILHELM OF GERMANY WAS ONE OF THE LOSERS. HE LOST HIS THRONE.

GERMANY LOST ALL THOSE TERRITORIES AND PREROGATIVES OF SOVEREIGNTY WHICH ADOLF HITLER HAS BEEN TRYING (WITH MUCH SUCCESS) TO RESTORE EVER SINCE HE CAME TO POWER IN 1933.

THE LANDS LOST INCLUDE THE SAME DANZIG AND POLISH CORRIDOR WHICH ARE THE IMMEDIATE CAUSES OF TODAY'S IMBROGLIO.

ALL THAT IS QUITE BESIDE THE LOSS OF 1,600,000 DEAD AND THE DIRECT COSTS OF $39,000,000,000.

NATURALLY GERMANY DOESN'T EXPECT TO LOSE A WAR. BUT WE CAN SPECULTE ON THE HYPOTHETICAL QUERY AS TO WHAT MIGHT HAPPEN IF IT DID LOSE.

SEP 2-1939

THE END OF THE WORLD WAR FOUND BITTERNESS SO GREAT THAT WE GOT THE VERSAILLES TREATY WHICH GERMANY HAS BEEN BUSY TEARING UP FOR SIX YEARS. WITH THE PASSING OF TIME MANY ALLIED STATESMEN HAVE AGREED THAT THIS TREATY WAS HARSH, AND THAT SOME OF ITS CLAUSES WERE RESPONSIBLE FOR MANY SUBSEQUENT ILLS OF EUROPE.

1939

HOWEVER, ANOTHER WAR COMING RIGHT ON TOP OF THE WORLD WAR MIGHT REVIVE THE OLD ANIMOSITIES TO SUCH AN EXTENT THAT THE VERSAILLES TREATY WOULD BE RESTORED AND EVEN ADDED TO.

WHATEVER MIGHT HAPPEN IN THE WAY OF TREATIES, IT IS CERTAIN THAT AT LEAST SOME OF HERR HITLER'S WORK WOULD BE UNDONE.

CZECHO-SLOVAKIA LIKELY WOULD BE REESTABLISHED. AUSTRIA MIGHT FOLLOW SUIT. GERMANY'S NAVY, ARMY AND AIRFORCE MOST CERTAINLY WOULD AGAIN BE REDUCED TO THE IMPOTENCE WHICH EXISTED WHEN DER FUEHRER TOOK HOLD AND RESTORED THEM.

SEP 2-1939

SHOULD ITALY PARTICIPATE AND BE ON THE LOSING SIDE, ONE ASSUMES THAT ETHIOPIA WOULD BE RESTORED TO INDEPENDENCE UNDER HAILIE SELASSIE, HER EMPEROR. PRESUMABLY ALBANIA ALSO WOULD GET HER INDEPENDENCE BACK AND THE FUGITIVE KING ZOG, WITH HIS YOUNG QUEEN AND THEIR BABY SON, WOULD RETURN TO THE THRONE.

THE POTENTIAL LOSSES ARE SO GREAT THAT MANY WONDER WHY GERMANY SHOULD GAMBLE ALL THE AMAZING GAINS WHICH HAVE MADE DURING RECENT YEARS. ITS POSITION WAS SO STRONG UP TO THE DANZIG CRISIS THAT IT MIGHT HAVE CONTINUED ITS POLITICO-ECONOMIC PROGRESS IN EASTERN EUROPE AND THE BALKANS TO VAST ADVANTAGE.

BERNE,SWITZERLAND,SEPT.1-(AP)-THE NEUE ZURCHER ZEITUNG'S CORRESPONDENT IN BERLIN WROTE TODAY:

"IT IS DECLARED HERE CATEGORICALLY THAT THE FUEHRER'S PROCLAMATION AMOUNTS TO OPENING A STATE OF WAR." MILITARY OPERATIONS WERE BEGUN AT 6 A.M. ALONG THE ENTIRE GERMAN-POLISH FRONTIER."

MOSCOW,SEPT.1-(AP)-GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE, SAYS PREMIER VYACHESLAFF MOLOTOFF, BALANCED THEIR DESIRE FOR SOVIET RUSSIAN HELP AGAINST THEIR FEAR OF STRENGTHENING THE SOVIET UNION AND THEIR FEAR PREVAILED.

THIS WAS THE EXPLANATION, IN PART, OFFERED LAST NIGHT BY THE PREMIER-FOREIGN MINISTER FOR CONCLUSION AUG. 24 OF THE RUSSIAN-GERMAN NONAGGRESSION PACT WHICH DOOMED THE PROJECTED RUSSIAN-BRITISH-FRENCH MUTUAL ASSISTANCE PACT AFTER MORE THAN FOUR MONTHS OF NEGOTIATION.

THE RUSSIAN PARLIAMENT APPLAUDED MOLOTOFF'S EXPLANATION AND UNANIMOUSLY RATIFIED THE PACT WITH GERMANY, ERSTWHILE BITTER OPPONENT OF THE SOVIET UNION.

(INFORMED QUARTERS IN BERLIN INDICATED THAT A RUSSIAN MISSION WAS ON ITS WAY THERE POSSIBLY TO CONCLUDE A MILITARY ACCORD WITH THE REICH. MOLOTOFF MADE NO MENTION OF THIS.)

MOLOTOFF SAID IT WAS ONLY AFTER THE RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT WAS CONVINCED THAT NEGOTIATIONS WITH BRITAIN AND FRANCE WERE FUTILE THAT MOSCOW TURNED TO BERLIN.

"IT IS OUR DUTY TO DEFEND THE INTERESTS OF THE SOVIET PEOPLE PARTICULARLY SINCE WE ARE CONVINCED THAT THE INTERESTS OF THE U.S.S.R. COINCIDE WITH THE INTERESTS OF THE PEOPLES OF OTHER STATES," HE SAID.

"X X X THE QUESTION ARISES: WHY CANNOT THE U.S.S.R. ALLOW HRSELF THE SAME PRIVILEGE AS POLAND AND ENGLAND ALLOWED THEMSELVES LONG AGO? (A REFERENCE TO THE NOW ANNULLED POLISH-GERMAN NONAGGRESSION PACT AND THE PEACE DECLARATION BETWEEN BRITAIN AND GERMANY WHICH PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN TOOK HOME FROM MUNICH.)

"FINALLY THERE ARE WISEACRES WHO CONSTRUE FROM THE PACT MORE THAN IS WRITTEN IN IT. FOR THIS PURPOSE ALL KINDS OF CONJECTURES AND HINTS ARE MOOTED IN ORDER TO CAST DOUBT ON THE PACT IN ONE OR ANOTHER COUNTRY.

"BUT ALL THIS MERELY SPEAKS FOR THE HOPELESS IMPOTENCE OF THE ENEMIES OF THE PACT WHO ARE EXPOSING THEMSELVES MORE AND MORE AS ENEMIES OF BOTH THE SOVIET UNION AND GERMANY, STRIVING TO PROVOKE WAR BETWEEN THESE COUNTRIES."

HE DECLARED THAT THE PROJECTED MUTUAL ASSISTANCE PACT COULD HAVE BEEN "SIGNIFICANT ONLY IF MILITARY COOPERATION WERE POSSIBLE."

"BUT THE NEGOTIATIONS AND THE STAFF TALKS PROVED NOT ONLY THAT, BUT ALSO THAT ENGLAND, FAR FROM OBJECTING TO THE POLISH STAND, SUPPORTED IT."

THUS RUSSIA TURNED TO GERMANY, HE SAID--A GERMANY WHICH "ABANDONED HER ANTI-SOVIET POLICY AND OFFERED THE MOST FAVORABLE TRADE TREATY EVER MADE AT A TIME WHEN OTHER COUNTRIES PLOTTED TO INVOLVE US IN WAR."

BY RICHARD L.TURNER

WASHINGTON,SEPT 1-(AP)-TIRED, AND SH[illegible]IT, AFTER A NIGHT SPENT WRESTLING WITH THE TRAGIC REALITIES OF ACTUAL WAR, PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT GRAVELY PLEDGED HIS ADMINISTRATION TODAY TO A SUPREME EFFORT TO KEEP AMERICA OUT OF THE EUROPEAN CONFLICT.

"MR.PRESIDENT," CAME A QUESTION FROM AMONG 200 OR SO REPORTERS, MANY OF THEM AS WEARY AND GRIM AS WAS THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE, "PERHAPS THE FOREMOST THING IN THE MINDS OF MOST AMERICANS TODAY IS: 'CAN WE STAY OUT OF IT?' IS THERE ANYTHING YOU COULD SAY ABOUT THAT?"

SEP 2-1939

MR.ROOSEVELT THOUGHT FOR A MOMENT, PASSED A HAND ACROSS HIS EYES AND REPLIED:

"ONLY THIS: I NOT ONLY SINCERELY HOPE SO, BUT I BELIEVE WE CAN, AND THAT EVERY EFFORT WILL BE MADE BY THE ADMINISTRATION TO DO SO."

THE PRESS CONFERENCE, ALTHOUGH IT CAME AT MID-MORNING, WAS FAR ALONG IN THE PRESIDENT'S DAY. BEFORE THREE, HE WAS UP AND RECEIVING WORD FROM AMBASSADOR BULLITT AT PARIS THAT HITLER FORCES ROLLED ACROSS THE POLISH FRONTIER.

TOO LATE FOR A CONTINUATION OF HIS PEACE APPEALS, HE SWUNG TO AN EFFORT TO DIMINISH THE HORRORS OF THE NEW WARFARE FROM THE SKIES. BEFORE DAWN, HE ADDRESSED MESSAGES TO GERMANY, ITALY, FRANCE, GREAT BRITAIN AND POLAND, ASKING THAT THEY EXCHANGE A PUBLIC PLEDGE TO REFRAIN FROM BOMBING CIVILIAN POPULATIONS AND UNFORTIFIED CITIES. SEP 2-1939

BY NOON HE HAD RECEIVED THE APPROVING RESPONSES FROM GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE. ITALY THOUGHT ITS STATEMENT THAT IT CONTEMPLATED NO MILITARY OPERATIONS FOR THE PRESENT WAS SUFFICIENT. FROM GERMANY AND ADOLF HITLER THERE CAME, FOR THE TIME BEING AT LEAST, NO ANSWER. THE BRITISH AND FRENCH PLEDGES WERE GIVEN ON CONDITION THAT THEIR ADVERSARY ALSO OBSERVE THE SAME LIMITATIONS ON AERIAL WARFARE.

IN ADDITION, THE PRESIDENT RECEIVED HUGH R.WILSON, AMBASSADOR TO GERMANY, AND ACCEPTED HIS RESIGNATION. THE DIPLOMAT, IT WAS ANNOUNCED, WILL ASSUME SPECIAL DUTIES AT THE STATE DEPARTMENT. MASKING ANY SIGNIFICANCE THE MOVE MIGHT HAVE, BOTH THE PRESIDENT AND SECRETARY HULL DECLINED TO DISCUSS THE REASONS BEHIND IT.

IN OTHER QUARTERS IN WASHINGTON, OFFICIALS WERE ANXIOUSLY WATCHING THE TREND OF THE SECURITIES, COMMODITIES AND FINANCIAL MARKETS. STOCK QUOTATIONS PLUMMETED AT FIRST, BUT LATER MANY ISSUES MADE A SPECTACULAR RECOVERY. COMMODITY PRICES SOARED. BUT MOVEMENTS WERE SO ORDERLY THAT MARKETS REMAINED O[illegible] SEP. 2 1939 THE FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED THAT MEASURES WOULD BE TAKEN TO PROTECT THE MARKET FOR GOVERNMENT BONDS.

IT WAS A GRIM GROUP OF REPORTERS WHICH FILED INTO MR.ROOSEVELT'S GREEN-WALLED CIRCULAR OFFICE WHEN PRESS-CONFERENCE TIME CAME.

THE SKYLARKING AND JOLLITY WHICH USUALLY ACCOMPANY THE SEMI-WEEKLY MEETINGS WAS MISSING. THE PRESIDENT'S MOOD MET THEIR OWN. HE SAT, COATLESS AT HIS BROAD, NEATLY ARRANGED DESK. A VERY FEW HOURS SLEEP AND A VERY RECENT SHAVE HAD FRESHENED HIM, BUT THERE WERE TELL-TALE LINES AT HIS EYES, AND AS THE REPORTERS ENTERED, HE WEARILY PRESSED HIS FINGERS TO HIS TEMPLES.

THE PRESIDENT BEGAN THE INTERVIEW WITHOUT WAITING FOR QUESTIONS, AND THE TONE OF HIS VOICE, MORE THAN ANYTHING ELSE, EXPRESSED BOTH HIS WEARINESS AND THE GRAVITY OF THE MOMENT. IT WAS A FLAT, DULL VOICE, SPEAKING SOFTLY AND SLOWLY, IN WHICH THERE WAS NONE OF THE VIBRANCY WHICH MILLIONS OF RADIO LISTENERS HAVE COME TO ASSOCIATE WITH THE PRESIDENT'S WORDS.

HE SAID HE THOUGHT THAT ALL HAD HAD A SLEEPLESS NIGHT. HE SPOKE HIS PRAISE FOR THE WORK OF THE DIPLOMATIC SERVICE IN KEEPING WASHINGTON INFORMED OF EVENTS. HE DESCRIBED HOW AMBASSADOR BIDDLE AT WARSAW HAD, WITH A FAULTY CONNECTION, REACHED AMBASSADOR BULLITT AT PARIS WITH NEWS OF WHAT HE TERMED THE INVASION. SEP 2-1939

FOR THE PRESENT, HE CONTINUED, A CALL FOR CONGRESS TO CONVENE FOR REVISION OF THE NEUTRALITY ACT, AND THE APPLICATION OF THAT LAW TO THE EUROPEAN ENCOUNTER, MUST AWAIT FURTHER DEVELOPMENTS ABROAD. HOWEVER, HE MADE PLAIN THAT CONGRESS DEFINITELY WOULD BE CALLED. IT WAS A QUESTION OF WHEN THE SUMMONS WOULD GO OUT, NOT WHETHER IT WOULD BE SOUNDED.

HE ADDED A WORD OF CAUTION TO THE PRESS, ASKING THAT IT EXERT EVERY EFFORT TO VERIFY THE NEWS IT PRINTED. IT COULD CHECK ITS INFORMATION EASILY BY CALLING THE STATE DEPARTMENT, HE SAID. ABSOLUTE CARE BY THE NEWSPAPERS, HE SAID, WAS THE BEST THING THAT COULD BE DONE FOR THE NATION, AND FOR CIVILIZATION.

PHELPS ADAMS, CORRESPONDENT FOR THE NEW YORK SUN, ASKED THE QUESTION ABOUT KEEPING AMERICA OUT OF THE WAR, AND WHEN MR. ROOSEVELT HAD REPLIED, ANOTHER REPORTER ASKED WHETHER, IN VIOLATION OF USUAL PROCEDURE, THE PRESIDENT COULD BE QUOTED DIRECTLY. MR.ROOSEVELT GAVE HIS ASSENT AND HENRY KANNEE, THE PRESIDENT'S STENOGRAPHER, REPEATED THE REPLY FROM HIS SHORTHAND NOTES.

THERE WAS JUST ONE LAUGH. THAT CAME WHEN A REPORTER ASKED WHEN CONGRESS WOULD BE CALLED INTO SPECIAL SESSION. THE LAUGH WAS BECAUSE MR.ROOSEVELT HAD BEEN BADGERED WITH THAT SAME QUESTION AT EVERY RECENT PRESS CONFERENCE. LAUGHING TOO, MR. ROOSEVELT MADE IT PLAIN THAT THE CALL WOULD GO OUT, BUT JUST WHEN, HE COULD NOT SAY. IT MIGHT BE ANYTIME, HE SAID, BETWEEN SEPT. 1 AND JAN. 2, THE REGULAR MEETING DATE OF CONGRESS.

SEP 2-1939

BRITAIN'S REPLY TO THE PRESIDENT'S ANTI-BOMBARDMENT MESSAGE HAD BEEN RECEIVED, AND FRANCE'S WAS ON THE WAY, HE SAID. MR.MCDERMOTT (MICHAEL J.MCDERMOTT, THE DEPARTMENT'S CHUNKY, TIRELESS CHIEF OF THE DIVISION OF CURRENT INFORMATION) WOULD GIVE THEM TO THE NEWSPAPERMEN. THE SECRETARY SAID HE HAD ATTENDED THE PRESIDENT'S CONFERENCE AND, OF COURSE, FELT THAT MR. ROOSEVELT DEALT WITH THE SITUATION AS HE SHOULD HAVE.

HE RETIRED AND MCDERMOTT SLOWLY READ THE BRITISH TEXT. IT SAID THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT WELCOMED THE PRESIDENT'S "WEIGHTY AND MOVING APPEAL." IT AND OTHER POWERS CONCERNED WITH IT HAD PREVIOUSLY DECIDED TO BAN BOMBARDMENTS OF CIVILIANS AND OPEN TOWNS, SUBJECT TO THE CONDITION THAT ENGLAND'S FOES DO LIKEWISE.

MR.ROOSEVELT'S MESSAGE HAD SAID FIRST OF ALL--WITHOUT MENTION OF REPORTS THAT GERMANY WAS ALREADY BOMBING POLISH CITIES--THAT "RUTHLESS BOMBING FROM THE AIR" IN RECENT YEARS HAD MAIMED OR KILLED THOUSANDS OF "DEFENSELESS WOMEN AND CHILDREN." THIS, HE ADDED, HAD "SICKENED THE HEARTS OF EVERY CIVILIZED MAN AND WOMAN" AND "PROFOUNDLY SHOCKED CIVILIZATION."

IF THE PRACTICE WERE CARRIED INTO THE "CONFLAGRATION WITH WHICH THE WORLD IS NOW CONFRONTED," HE ADDED, DEATH AND INJURY WOULD BE VISITED UPON MORE THOUSANDS WHO HAVE NO RESPONSIBILITY FOR, NOR PARTICIPATION IN, THE WAR.

TO THIS HE ADDED HIS APPEAL FOR A PUBLIC PLEDGE THAT EACH OF THE FIVE NATIONS WOULD ABSTAIN FROM SUCH TACTICS.

"I REQUEST AN IMMEDIATELY REPLY," HE CONCLUDED.

LATE IN THE DAY THE PRESIDENT AND HIS CABINET, AT A MEETING SEP 1 1939 LASTING AN HOUR AND THREE QUARTERS, DISCUSSED THE GENERAL WAR SITUATION AND ITS POSSIBLE EFFECTS ON THIS COUNTRY. CABINET OFFICERS TOLD REPORTERS AS THEY FILED OUT OF THE WHITE HOUSE OFFICES THAT LITTLE ELSE HAD BEEN MENTIONED. LT819PES

WASHINGTON,SEPT.1-(AP)-THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT NOTIFIED THE UNITED STATES TODAY THAT SINCE IT WOULD "NOT TAKE ANY INITIATIVE IN MILITARY OPERATIONS" THE MATTER OF AERIAL BOMBING OF CIVILIAN POPULATIONS DID NOT CONCERN ITALY.

EARLIER, SECRETARY OF STATE HULL ANNOUNCED THAT FRANCE AND GREAT BRITAIN HAD AGREED TO REFRAIN FROM BOMBING CIVILIANS.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, IN AN EARLY MORNING APPEAL, HAD ASKED THESE COUNTRIES AND GERMANY AND POLAND TO AVOID THE BOMBING OF CIVILIAN POPULATIONS.

THE ITALIAN REPLY WAS AN ORAL STATEMENT MADE TO AMBASSADOR WILLIAM SEP 2-1939 PHILLIPS IN ROME BY AN OFFICIAL OF THE FOREIGN OFFICE.

IT WAS AS FOLLOWS:

"SINCE THE FASCIST GOVERNMENT, AFTER TODAY'S MEETING OF THE COUNCIL OF MINISTERS HAS OFFICIALLY DECLARED AND ANNOUNCED 'THAT ITALY WILL NOT TAKE ANY INITIATIVE IN MILITARY OPERATIONS,' THE POSSIBILITY WHICH FORMED THE OBJECT OF THE MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES, DATED SEPTEMBER 1, IS THEREFORE TO BE EXCLUDED AS FAR AS CONCERNS ITALY."

WASHINGTON,SEPT 1-(AP)-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT RESERVED HIS DECISION TODAY ON WHETHER TO INVOKE THE NEUTRALITY ACT OR CALL CONGRESS IN SESSION, AWAITING THE NEXT TURN OF FATE IN EUROPE.

A RESPONSIBLE OFFICIAL REPRESENTED HIM AS FEELING THAT FIGHTING WOULD HAVE TO GO BEYOND BORDER WARFARE BETWEEN GERMANY AND POLAND BEFORE THE ADMINISTRATION TOOK EITHER OF THE GRAVE STEPS.

MR.ROOSEVELT'S FIRST REACTION WAS TO APPEAL TO EUROPEAN POWERS NOT TO BOMB CIVILIAN POPULATIONS AND UNFORTIFIED CITIES.

A NIGHT OF TENSENESS, IN WHICH ANXIOUS EXCHANGES WITH DIPLOMATS ABROAD CAME MORE OFTEN THAN SNATCHES OF SLEEP, ENDED WITH WHITE HOUSE REPRESENTATIVES ASSURING NEWSMEN THERE WOULD BE NO IMMEDIATE ACTION HERE OF FAR-REACHING MAGNITUDE.

ONE OFFICIAL SAID IT WAS NOT ENTIRELY CLEAR YET THAT WAR HAD BEGUN.

MR.ROOSEVELT, IT WAS INDICATED, WANTED TO GO PARTICULARLY SLOW, IN THE LACK OF DETAILED WAR NEWS.

WASHINGTON,SEPT 1-(AP)-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT HAS A BROAD RANGE OF POWERS, ASIDE FROM THOSE CONFERRED BY THE NEUTRALITY ACT, WHICH HE MAY EXERCISE TO PRESERVE AMERICAN NEUTRALITY.

SOME ARE REMNANTS OF THE WORLD WAR, SOME WERE PUT ON THE UNITED STATES STATUTE BOOKS BEFORE THE WORLD WAR. AS A WHOLE THEY GIVE THE PRESIDENT ABOUT AS MUCH POWER AS DOES THE NEUTRALITY ACT. ALL ARE DESIGNED TO KEEP AMERICANS FROM HELPING ONE SIDE OR THE OTHER IN A CONFLICT.

BY VIRTUE OF A LAW OF 1917 THE PRESIDENT, IN A WAR IN WHICH THE UNITED STATES IS A NEUTRAL, MAY DETAIN ANY ARMED VESSEL, AMERICAN OR FOREIGN, IN AN AMERICAN PORT UNTIL IT IS PROVEN TO HIM THAT THE VESSEL WILL NOT BE EMPLOYED AGAINST ANY NATION WITH WHICH THE UNITED STATES IS AT PEACE AND THAT IT WILL NOT BE SOLD TO A BELLIGERENT NATION.

THE PRESIDENT MAY ORDER THE SHIP SEARCHED, MAY EVEN ORDER ITS CREW OFF THE BOAT IF HIS SUSPICIONS ARE AROUSED.

HE MAY REQUIRE THE OWNER OF A VESSEL TO GIVE AN OATH BEFORE DEPARTURE OF HIS VESSEL FROM AN AMERICAN PORT THAT HIS CARGO WILL NOT BE TRANSSHIPPED, OR, IF IT IS TO BE TRANSSHIPPED, TO MAKE A FULL STATEMENT AS TO WHOM, WHERE, ETC.

HE MAY PREVENT THE DEPARTURE OF A SHIP WHEN HE HAS REASON TO BELIEVE IT WILL CARRY FUEL, ARMS, AMMUNITION, MEN, SUPPLIES, DISPATCHES OR INFORMATION TO ANY WARSHIP OF A BELLIGERENT. THIS, HOWEVER, IS ALSO COVERED BY THE NEUTRALITY ACT OF 1937.

THE PRESIDENT ALSO ENFORCES A WIDE VARIETY OF PROVISIONS OF THE UNITED STATES PENAL CODE OF 1909 RELATING TO THE MAINTENANCE OF NEUTRALITY. THE CODE COVERS MANY ACTIVITIES OF AMERICANS THAT MIGHT PREJUDICE AMERICAN NEUTRALITY. IT FORBIDS:

ACCEPTING AND EXERCISING A COMMISSION TO SERVE A BELLIGERENT BY LAND OR SEA;

SEP 2-1939

ENLISTING IN THE SERVICE OF A BELLIGERENT AS A SOLDIER, MARINE OR SEAMAN ON BOARD ANY WARSHIP;

ENLISTING ANOTHER PERSON IN SUCH SERVICE;

HIRING ANOTHER PERSON TO LEAVE THE UNITED STATES WITH THE INTENTION OF ENLISTING;

1939

FITTING OUT OR ARMING AND COMMISSIONING ANY SHIP TO BE EMPLOYED IN THE SERVICE OF A BELLIGERENT;

INCREASING THE GUNS OF A BELLIGERENT WARSHIP OR INCREASING THEIR CALIBRE;

SETTING ON FOOT OR PROVIDING OR PREPARING THE MEANS FOR ANY MILITARY EXPEDITION.

HERE ARE OTHER PROVISIONS THE PRESIDENT WILL ENFORCE:

NO BELLIGERENT WARSHIP IS TO BE PERMITTED TO MAKE USE OF AN AMERICAN PORT FROM WHICH A VESSEL OF AN OPPOSING NATION HAS DEPARTED, UNTIL AT LEAST 24 HOURS AFTER THE LATTER SHIP LEFT.

A WARSHIP MUST LEAVE WITHIN 24 HOURS AFTER ITS ENTRANCE INTO AN AMERICAN PORT EXCEPT IN CASE OF BAD WEATHER OR OF REQUIRING PROVISIONS FOR ITS CREW OR OF NEEDING REPAIRS. BUT IT MUST LEAVE AS SOON AS POSSIBLE AFTER 24 HOURS WITHOUT TAKING ON SUPPLIES BEYOND WHAT MAY BE NECESSARY FOR HER IMMEDIATE USE. THE SAME WARSHIP MAY NOT AGAIN FUEL IN AN AMERICAN PORT UNTIL AFTER THREE MONTHS HAVE PASSED.

IF THERE ARE SEVERAL VESSELS OF BELLIGERENTS IN AN AMERICAN PORT, THEY MUST LEAVE ALTERNATELY, FIRST A VESSEL OF ONE SIDE, THEN A VESSEL OF THE OTHER.

SEP 2- 1939

NO PERSON WITHIN THE TERRITORY OR JURISDICTION OF THE UNITED STATES MAY TAKE PART, DIRECTLY OR INDIRECTLY, IN THE WAR.

THE PRESIDENT ALSO CAN PROCLAIM THAT AMERICAN SHIPS MAY NOT CARRY ARMS OR SOLDIERS TO BELLIGERENTS OR ATTEMPT TO BREAK ANY BLOCKADE WHICH MAY BE LAWFULLY ESTABLISHED AND MAINTAINED.

HE MAY ALSO PROCLAIM THAT AMERICANS WHO CLAIM PROTECTION OF THIS GOVERNMENT AND MISCONDUCT THEMSELVES TOWARD A BELLIGERENT WILL DO SO AT THEIR OWN PERIL.

GEORGE J.BATES, (R-MASS.)--"X X X SYMPATHIES OF THE CONGRESS AND OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE ARE WITH THE DEMOCRACIES, BUT THERE IS NO NECESSITY OF OUR INJECTING OURSELVES INTO THE CONFLICT AT THIS TIME."

WILLIAM E.HESS, (R-OHIO)--"X X X I FEEL THAT EVERYTHING POSSIBLE SHOULD BE DONE TO MAINTAIN STRICT NEUTRALITY ON THE PART OF THIS COUNTRY."

PAT CANNON, (D-FLA.)--"X X X I THINK (CONGRESS) WILL PASS THE PRESIDENT'S NEUTRALITY ACT. X X X IF WE PUT OUR HEADS UNDER THE TENT, WE'LL HAVE TO GO THE WHOLE WAY. I WILL NOT VOTE TO SEND ANY OF OUR TROOPS OVERSEAS."

A MAJORITY OF THOSE REPLYING, THE CHAIRMAN ASSERTED, SAID THEY NOW WOULD VOTE FOR THE ADMINISTRATION'S PROGRAM--REPEAL OF THE EMBARGO ON ARMS AND MUNITIONS.

BLOOM SAID HE HAD MADE NO EFFORTS TO CANVASS REPUBLICANS BUT WAS CONFIDENT THERE WOULD BE A CHANGE OF MORE THAN 30 VOTES IN THAT QUARTER. THE VOTE, PLACING AN ARMS EMBARGO IN THE ADMINISTRATION'S NEUTRALITY BILL, WAS 214 TO 173.

IT WAS NOT YET DEFINITE, POTOCKI ASSERTED, WHETHER THIS WAS "COMPLETE WAR." HE ADDED THAT "ONLY TIME CAN TELL THIS."

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S FIRST MESSAGE--SENT IN SLIGHTLY DIFFERENT FORM BOTH TO HITLER AND TO PRESIDENT MOSCICKI OF POLAND--PROPOSED THAT THE TWO NATIONS SETTLE THEIR DIFFERENCES BY DIRECT NEGOTIATION, BY ARBITRATION, OR BY MEDIATION.

IN DIPLOMATIC CIRCLES, IT WAS ASSUMED, SINCE HITLER HAS NEVER REPLIED TO MR.ROOSEVELT'S PEACE APPEAL OF LAST APRIL, THAT AT LEAST ONE PURPOSE OF TODAY'S MESSAGE WAS TO ATTEMPT TO PLACE RESPONSIBILITY FOR WAR UPON POLAND.

ASKED WHAT HELP, IF ANY, HE THOUGHT HIS NATION MIGHT RECEIVE FROM THE AMERICAN PEOPLE, THE AMBASSADOR REPLIED: "THE GREATEST HELP IN TIME OF NEED AND STRESS IS THE SYMPATHY THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES HAVE FOR POLAND."

HE SAID NO DEFINITE PLANS HAD BEEN WORKED OUT AS TO WHAT PART POLISH CITIZENS NOW IN THE UNITED STATES MIGHT PLAY.

"WE WOULDN'T ESPECIALLY NEED SOLDIERS," POTOCKI ADDED, "BECAUSE THERE ARE ENOUGH PEOPLE OVER THERE."

HE ADDED, HOWEVER, THAT MANY INDIVIDUALS IN THIS COUNTRY HAD OFFERED TO FIGHT FOR POLAND.

POTOCKI ALSO ISSUED A STATEMENT IN WHICH HE SAID HIS NATION HAD BEEN "RUTHLESSLY ATTACKED BY THE ARMED FORCES OF GERMANY."

AMBASSADOR WILSON WAS RECALLED TO THE UNITED STATES FOR REPORT AND CONSULTATION LAST NOVEMBER, FOLLOWING AN ANTI-SEMITIC OUTBREAK IN GERMANY. HE HAS BEEN HERE CONTINUOUSLY EVER SINCE, SERVING IN THE STATE DEPARTMENT IN AN ADVISORY CAPACITY.

RECENTLY HE HAS BEEN CONSULTED INTENSIVELY IN CONNECTION WITH THE EUROPEAN CRISIS.

THE UNITED STATES IS REPRESENTED IN BERLIN BY A CHARGE D'AFFAIRES.

MR.ROOSEVELT SAID ALSO HE WAS NOT READY TO ANNOUNCE WHAT WILSON'S DUTIES AT THE STATE DEPARTMENT WOULD BE.

DEVELOPMENTS ABROAD TODAY AND THOSE THAT MAY BE EXPECTED TOMORROW, MR.ROOSEVELT DECLARED, WOULD HAVE AN IMPORTANT BEARING ON WHAT THE ADMINISTRATION WOULD DO ABOUT INVOKING THE NEUTRALITY ACT AND SUMMONING CONGRESS TO A SPECIAL SESSION.

WAR WEAPONS (PMS BUDGET-NEW)

WASHINGTON, SEPT.1-(AP)-DESPITE POPULAR TALK OF DEATH RAYS AND GERM BOMBS, VICTIMS IN ANY NEW EUROPEAN WAR PROBABLY WILL DIE BY THE SAME TYPES OF WEAPONS USED IN THE LAST.

INFORMATION AVAILABLE AT THE WAR DEPARTMENT DOES NOT DISCLOSE THE INVENTION OF ANY STARTLING ARMAMENTS SINCE THE FRENZIED 1914-18 EXPERIMENTATION PERIOD, THOUGH MANY IMPROVEMENTS HAVE BEEN MADE.

OUT OF THE SPANISH CIVIL WAR, PROVING GROUND FOR NEW ARMAMENTS, CAME NEWS OF ONLY ONE WHOLLY NOVEL DEFENSIVE DEVICE, AND THAT WAS A CRUDE, ALMOST PRIMITIVE, ANTI-TANK GRENADE.

POORLY-ARMED SPANISH SOLDIERS, WHEN UNDER ATTACK BY TANKS, SOMETIMES FILLED BOTTLES WITH GASOLINE, WRAPPED THEM IN GAS-SOAKED RAGS, IGNITED THE RAGS, AND HURLED THE BLAZING BOTTLES AT THE STEEL JUGGERNAUTS.

WHEN THE BOTTLES BURST AND THE FLAMING GASOLINE SPREAD, THE TANKS BECAME ROLLING OVENS.

NOTHING WAS SEEN IN THE SPANISH CONFLICT OF THE REPORTED GERMAN INVENTION OF A NEST OF BOMBS WITHIN A BOMB, AND WAR DEPARTMENT REPRESENTATIVES SCOFF AT SUCH A DEVICE AS IMPRACTICAL, AS WELL AS UNNECESSARY.

DESCRIPTION OF AN "AIR BOMB" USED IN SPAIN LED ONE EXPERT ON EXPLOSIVES TO DEDUCE THAT IT WAS LOADED WITH AMMONIUM NITRATE AND A COMBUSTIBLE SUBSTANCE, AN EXPLOSIVE DISCOVERED LONG AGO.

KNOWN AND USED IN THE LAST WORLD WAR, THOUGH SELDOM EFFECTIVELY, WERE FLAME-THROWERS AND THERMITE BOMBS, THE LATTER OF WHICH SPEW HEAT OF BLAST-FURNACE INTENSITY UPON EXPLODING.

LIQUID OXYGEN BOMBS ARE COMPARATIVELY NEW, BUT MILITARY EXPERTS SAY THEY DETERIORATE, OFTEN WITHIN AN HOUR, AND CANNOT BE MANUFACTURED AND STORED FOR FUTURE USE.

WHAT COMBATANTS IN ANY NEW WAR MUST FACE, HOWEVER, ARE SWIFTER AIRPLANES CARRYING HEAVIER BOMB LOADS, FASTER AND STRONGER TANKS MOUNTED WITH GUNS AND GAS-PROJECTORS, AND FASTER-FIRING HIGHER-VELOCITY GUNS--IN BRIEF, VASTLY IMPROVED EQUIPMENT ON EVERY HAND.

BUENOS AIRES, SEPT. 1-(AP)-SOUTH AMERICA, ANXIOUS TO MAINTAIN NEUTRALITY IN THE EUROPEAN CONFLICT AND KEEP ITS RAW MATERIALS MOVING TO THE OLD WORLD, LOOKED TO THE UNITED STATES TODAY FOR A SIGNAL WHICH MAY INDICATE THE COURSE OF THE SOUTHERN CONTINENT.

THE OUTBREAK OF HOSTILITIES BETWEEN GERMANY AND POLAND FOUND LATIN AMERICAN NATIONS AND THE UNITED STATES MORE NEARLY IN COMPLETE ACCORD THAN IN 1914. SEP 2-1939

THE THREE MOST POWERFUL SOUTH AMERICAN COUNTRIES--ARGENTINA, BRAZIL AND CHILE--HAVE FREQUENTLY DEMONSTRATED THAT THEIR INTERESTS ARE LINKED CLOSELY WITHTHOSE OF THE UNITED STATES, BRITAIN AND FRANCE. THERE HAVE BEEN INDICATIONS RECENTLY THAT THE CRISIS IN EUROPE HAS BEEN SWINGING ARGENTINA'S POLICY CLOSER TOWARD A STRONG WESTERN HEMISPHERE DEFENSE ALLIANCE WHICH SECRETARY HULL SOUGHT AND WHICH ARGENTINA REJECTED AT THE PAN-AMERICAN CONFERENCE IN LIMA, PERU, LAST DECEMBER.

EXPERIENCED OBSERVERS SAID THAT WHATEVER LEAD MIGHT BE TAKEN BY THE UNITED STATES, ARGENTINA, BRAZIL AND CHILE WOULD BE FOLLOWED BY THE OTHER LATIN AMERICAN NATIONS.

A STRONG BLOC OF ARGENTINE DEPUTIES AND CITIZENS HAS BEEN PRESSING FOR AN OPEN AVOWAL OF SUPPORT FOR THE BRITISH-FRENCH ALLIANCE.

PRESIDENT ROBERTO ORTIZ OF ARGENTINA STARTED TO SWING AWAY FROM THE ROME-BERLIN AXIS LAST MAY WHEN HE TOLD CONGRESS THAT UNILATERAL TRADE AGREEMENTS WITH GERMANY AND OTHER NATIONS WERE OBJECTS OF NECESSITY RATHER THAN DESIRE. INDICATING ARGENTINA'S GREATER DEPENDENCE ON THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE, THE BUENOS AIRES GOVERNMENT ON THE SAME DAY ANNOUNCED ITS DECISION TO NEGOTIATE A COMMERCIAL TREATY WITH THE UNITED STATES AND A NEW AGREEMENT WITH BRAZIL.

ARGENTINA HAS STRONG FINANCIAL REASONS FOR LEANING TOWARD THE UNITED STATES, FRANCE AND BRITAIN. BRITAIN IS HER BEST CUSTOMER, AND ARGENTINA KNOWS THAT IN WARTIME ENGLAND AND FRANCE WILL BE THE ONLY OLD WORLD COUNTRIES ABLE TO BUY HER WHEAT AND MEAT. ARGENTINA REMAINED NEUTRAL IN THE WORLD WAR, BUT THE RECENT PUBLICATION OF PURPORTED PRIVATE PAPERS OF WARTIME PRESIDENT HIPOLITO YRIGOYEN DISCLOSED THAT HE HAD SIGNED A DECLARATION OF WAR AGAINST GERMANY WHICH WAS WITHDRAWN AFTER BERLIN AGREED TO PAY INDEMNITIES FOR SUBMARINE ATTACKS AGAINST ARGENTINE SHIPPINGS. SEP 2-1939

WELL-INFORMED SOURCES IN SANTIAGO EXPRESSED THE OPINION THAT CHILI WOULD BE UNABLE TO FOLLOW ITS 1914 POLICY OF INDEPENDENT NEUTRALITY, BUT WOULD FAVOR A COMMON INTER-AMERICAN STAND IN ACCORDANCE WITH PAN-AMERICAN CONSULTATIVE AGREEMENTS.

CHILE, ATTEMPTING TO REPAIR A BATTERED ECONOMY, HAS BEEN DOING MUCH BARTER TRADING WITH GERMANY. BUT ITS POPULAR FRONT GOVERNMENT NEVERTHELESS INCLINES TOWARD THE DEMOCRACIES.

CHILE, LIKE ARGENTINA, IS CONSIDERING CREATION OF A FUND TO CUSHION THE ECONOMIC SHOCKS OF THE EUROPEAN CONFLICT.

BRAZIL FEARED SHE MIGHT SUFFER ECONOMICALLY DURING THE FIRST MONTHS OF ANY EUROPEAN WAR THROUGH CURTAILED EXPORTS OF COFFEE, COTTON AND CACAO, MUCH OF WHICH HAVE BEEN GOING TO GERMANY. THE HEAVY GERMAN POPULATION IN SOUTHERN BRAZIL, THE LARGE NUMBER OF ITALIANS IN SAO PAULO, BRAZIL'S LEADING INDUSTRIAL STATE, THE BIG POLISH COLONY IN PARANA, CAUSED MIXED FEELINGS.

BUT INFORMED BRAZILIANS GENERALLY BELIEVED THAT THE COUNTRY WOULD FOLLOW UNITED STATES LEADERSHIP AS IN THE WORLD WAR WHEN BRAZIL DECLARED WAR AGAINST GERMANY SHORTLY AFTER THE UNITED STATES DID.

COLOMBIA ALREADY HAS DECLARED THAT THE KEYNOTE OF ITS FOREIGN POLICY IS FRIENDSHIP WITH THE UNITED STATES. IN HIS LAST MESSAGE TO CONGRESS, PRESIDENT EDUARDO SANTOS SAID THAT DEFENSE OF THE PANAMA CANAL WAS VITAL TO ALL LATIN AMERICA AND PROMISED THAT COLOMBIA WOULD NEVER PERMIT AN ATTACK AGAINST THE CANAL FROM COLOMBIAN SOIL. THE COLOMBIAN CHAMBER APPROVED HIS POLICIES BY AN OVERWHELMING VOTE.

ECUADOR ALSO HAS DEMONSTRATED ITS INTENTION OF FOLLOWING THE UNITED STATES. PRESIDENT MOSQUERA NARVAEZ SENT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT A MESSAGE LAST WEEK SUPPORTING HIS PEACE APPEALS. SEP 2-1939

MOST OF THE OTHER LATIN AMERICAN NATIONS WERE UNDERSTOOD TO BE AWAITING A LEAD FROM WASHINGTON, BUENOS AIRES OR RIO DE JANEIRO, BEFORE MAKING NEUTALITY PRONOUNCEMENTS.

MEXICAN OBSERVERS WONDERED WHAT WOULD HAPPEN TO MEXICO'S EXPROPRIATED OIL. MEXICO HAS A BARTER DEAL WITH GERMANY WHEREBY IT SWAPS OIL FOR GERMAN PRODUCTS. MEXICO FEARED THIS INTERCHANGE WOULD BE HALTED.

ST.JOHN'S, NFLD., SEPT. 1-(CANADIAN PRESS)-A SERIES OF REGULATIONS RANGING FROM CENSORSHIP TO CONTROL OF PRICES WAS ANNOUNCED TONIGHT BY THE NEWFOUNDLAND GOVERNMENT AS THIS ISLAND COLONY PREPARED TO MEET THE EVENTUALITY OF WAR. SEP 2-1939

hat Neutrality aw Provides

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 (A. P.). — If President Roosevelt should put the neutrality law into effect these provisions would become operative:

1. Sale of arms to any belligerent would be illegal.
2. American travel on ships of belligerents would be prohibited.
3. Belligerents would not be permitted to float loans in this country, although normal business credits could go on.

Most of the nations likely to be involved in a European war could not borrow in this country anyway because of the Johnson act prohibting loans to defaulting debtors.

Cabinet Holds Midnight Meeting—Duce's Peace Bid Seen As Futile—Laborite In Commons Criticizes Government "Vacillation"

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sunday, Sept. 3—The British Cabinet held a brief midnight meeting less than three hours after Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain in an historic session of Parliament delayed decision on a declaration of war against Germany as a result of her invasion of Poland.

An announcement after the forty-five-minute session said no statement would be made, however, until later today (Sunday), when Parliament is scheduled to meet at noon for Chamberlain's report on results of last-minute peace proposals advanced by Premier Mussolini.

May Delay Statement

It was reported without confirmation that the Prime Minister's statement might be delayed until after 7.30 P. M.

The hastily summoned Cabinet Ministers made their way to No. 10 Downing street and out again later in inky blackness for the capital was blacked-out as an air-raid precaution. Only occasional flashes of lightning from a gathering storm lighted their way.

Their meeting followed a Saturday session of the House of Commons at which the Prime Minister held little hope that new peace moves from the Italian Premier would change the situation.

Meeting Stirs Speculation

Speculation concerning the Cabinet meeting centered on two possibilities: That a reply had been received from Hitler to Britain's latest warning to get out of Poland, or some communication had been sent to London by the French Cabinet, which also held a night session.

An authoritative source declared, however, that no reply had been received from Berlin to the warning voiced by Chamberlain in Commons Friday and the purpose of the Cabinet meeting remained a close secret.

SEP 3-1939

Allies To Set Time Limit

Chamberlain said yesterday that Britain and France would set a time limit for a German reply and expressed the belief he would be able to announce a definite decision when Parliament meets today.

"I anticipate there is only one answer I shall have to give the House," he declared.

SEP 3-1939

Mussolini's proposals, he said, were that German-Polish hostilities should cease and that Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Poland should immediately hold a conference to seek a settlement.

Hitler Reply Awaited

His only hope that Germany was considering the plan, he indicated, was based upon the fact that Hitler had not yet replied to British and French "last warnings" that they would go to Poland's aid unless German troops were withdrawn "promptly" from Polish soil.

"It may be," he said, "that the delay (by Hitler) is caused by consideration of the proposals put forward by the Italian Government."

Showdown Expected Soon

Chamberlain told the House the British and French governments expected to inform Germany within "the next few hours" how long they would wait for a reply before acting. Lord Halifax, Foreign Secretary, made an identical statement in the House of Lords.

Members of Parliament, who had been waiting since early yesterday afternoon for the statement, were visibly disappointed by the Government's decision, and opposition leaders were cheered when they objected to the delay.

Most of the members apparently had expected immediate declaration of war.

SEP 3-1939

Ovation

The Prime Minister was given an ovation as he entered the crowded House. Members leaned forward on the edge of their benches as he started reading his statement in low voice from small sheets of white note paper.

He was cheered when he declared "his Majesty's Government for their part will find it impossible to take part in a conference while Poland is being subjected to invasion, her towns under bombardment and while Danzig is being made subject to unilateral settlement by force."

Opposition Cry Voiced

Most of the statement, however, was received in silence and there was a chorus of "Oh! oh!" from the opposition side when he said:

1939

"If the German Government should agree to withdraw their forces his Majesty's Government would be willing to regard the position as being the same as it was before German forces crossed the frontier."

The House broke into an uproar as Laborite Arthur Greenwood arose at the end of Chamberlain's statement.

He was cheered for several minutes before he could start his speech.

"The delay might have been justified," he said, "but many of us on all sides of this House view with greatest concern the fact that hours went by and news came of bombing operations and today of an intensification of it. . . .

"There may be reasons why instant action was not taken. I wonder how long we can afford to vaccillate at a time when Britain and all Britain stands for and human civilization is in peril.

"I am greatly disturbed. An act of aggression took place thirty-eight hours ago, the moment that action took place one of the most important treaties of modern times automatically came into operation.

Would March In Unity

"If we march I hope we shall march in complete unity and march with France.

"There is a growing feeling in all quarters of the House that this incessant strain must end sooner or later and the sooner the better."

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal leader, indorsed Greenwood's statement and asked Chamberlain to convey to the French Government "the attitude of this House."

James Maxton, Laborite, was hooted from the floor when he made an anti-war speech urging the Government to "think thrice" before entering a conflict.

Wardlaw Milne, only member of Chamberlain's Conservative party to speak, said:

"Everybody knows the Prime Minister is devoted to peace. Everybody also agrees that we should march side by side with France but our pledge to Poland is Britain's, not France's.

First In Modern Times

Today's session of Parliament will be the first Sunday meeting in modern times.

In addition to hearing Chamberlain's statement members are to rush through new emergency legislation, including a measure conscripting men between 18 and 41.

This bill was passed through its important second reading yesterday.

Diplomatic activity continued at a high pitch. Both the French and Polish Ambassadors were in conference with Chamberlain late last night, apparently trying to clarify the situation before tomorrow.

Military and preparedness measures were pushed as if war were certain.

The British and French governments issued a joint statement declaring they "solemnly and publicly affirm their intention, should war be forced upon them, to conduct the hostilities with a firm desire to spare civilian population and to preserve in every way these monuments of human achievements which are treasured in all civilized countries."

One of the most important of the sixteen emergency measures enacted by Parliament last night is the Currency Defense Act, a sweeping financial measure of the broadest terms.

Gold May Be Utilized

Under this measure, gold stocks in the exchange equalization fund, which on March 31, 1939, held 4,949,000 fine ounces of gold (the United States Treasury price for a fine ounce of gold is $35), may be utilized for Government defense, materials and purchases. Exchange account gold is somewhat lower at present due to support for the pound sterling at the pegged rate of $4.68 before the pound sterling was freed last week.

The Currency Defense Act also authorized the use of postal orders as legal tender, as was done during the World War, and empowered the Bank of England to provide individual banks with currency out of Government funds to meet their customers' demands for currency.

Another of the emergency measures the Ministers of the Crown Act, would permit emergency enlargement of the British Cabinet.

BRITAIN'S WAR DECISION PUT OFF UNTIL NOON TOMORROW

LONDON, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—Great Britain tonight delayed any declaration of war against Germany at least until noon tomorrow, but Prime Minister Chamberlain declared in the House of Commons that "I anticipate there is only one answer I shall have to give to the House" at that time.

SEP 3-1939

His statement followed the revelation in the House of Lords by Foreign Secretary Halifax that Italy had proposed a five-Power conference to attempt to restore peace between Germany and Poland. Mr. Chamberlain made similar disclosures in the Commons.

Both Houses adjourned at 8:10 P. M. (3:10 P. M. New York time) until tomorrow at noon (7 A. M. New York time).

A British declaration of war had been expected throughout the day.

Mr. Chamberlain told the Commons that "I should be horrified if the House for one moment thought my statement (concerning the Italian proposal) betrayed the slightest weakening either of the British or the French Government in the attitude we have already taken."

After Mr. Chamberlain spoke Arthur Greenwood, Labor leader, declared "there is a growing feeling in all quarters of the House that this incessant strain must end sooner or later and the sooner the better."

"If we march I hope we shall march in complete unity and march with France," he said.

The statements by Mr. Chamberlain and Lord Halifax declared the "British Government is bound to take action unless German forces are withdrawn from Polish territory."

Accused by the Labor Opposition of "vacillating," Mr. Chamberlain said "it is difficult to synchronize action with our allies by telephone." He assured the Commons that he would make a statement of "definite character" when the House meets tomorrow.

Amid Labor cheers, Mr. Greenwood declared:

"I am greatly disturbed. An act of aggression took place thirty-eight hours ago. The moment that action took place one of the most important treaties of modern times automatically came into operation."

(He apparently referred to the British-French agreement to aid Poland in the event of the latter's attack.)

Mr. Chamberlain declared: "I am the last man to neglect an opportunity which I consider offers a chance of avoiding great catastrophe even at the last moment."

Lord Halifax indicated to the Lords that Britain's decision concerning war or peace with Germany had been delayed by consideration of the Italian proposal for a five-Power conference.

He struck a further note of peace when he said that "if the German Government should agree to withdraw their forces then the British Government would be willing to regard the position as being the same as before the German forces crossed the Polish frontier."

Britain and France consulted again concerning setting a time limit for the reply of the German Fuehrer to their "last warning" dispatched yesterday to Berlin.

Both Lord Halifax and Mr. Chamberlain declared that Britain and France could not enter the proposed five-Power parley until Poland was cleared of German troops and hostilities ceased.

Lord Halifax said that Britain "would not find it possible to take part in a conference while Poland was being subjected to invasion and her towns were under bombardment and Danzig had been made the subject of a unilateral settlement by force."

Lord Halifax's statement came

What Britain Demands.

"If the German Government should agree to withdraw their forces, then the British Government would be willing to regard the position as being the same as it was before the German forces crossed the Polish frontier," Lord Halifax said.

"The way would then be open to a discussion between the German and Polish governments in matters at issue between them on the understanding that any settlement arrived at was one that safeguarded the vital interests of Poland and was secured by an international guarantee."

The five-Power conference proposed by Italy, Lord Halifax said, would be between Britain, France and Italy and would involve cessation of hostilities.

"If the German and Polish governments wish that other Powers should be associated with them in the discussion the British Government would be willing to agree," he added.

"The British Government will be bound to take action unless German forces are withdrawn from Polish territory," Lord Halifax declared. "The British Government is in communication with the French Government as to the limit of time within which it would be necessary for the British and French governments to know whether the German Government was prepared to effect such withdrawal.

Status of Danzig.

"There is one other matter to which allusion should be made in order to make the present situation perfectly clear. Yesterday Herr Forster, who on August 23 had in contravention of the Danzig Constitution become head of the State, decreed incorporation of Danzig in the Reich and dissolution of the Constitution.

"Herr Hitler was asked to give effect to this decree by German law. At a meeting of the Reichstag yesterday morning a law was passed for reunion of Danzig with the Reich.

"The international status of Danzig as a Free City was established by a treaty to which his Majesty's Government is a signatory and the Free State was placed under the protection of the League of Nations.

"The rights given to Poland by the treaty are defined and confirmed by agreements concluded between Danzig and Poland. Action taken by the Danzig authorities and the Reichstag yesterday is final.

"It is a unilateral repudiation of this international instrument which could only be modified by negotiation.

No Recognition by Britain.

"His Majesty's Government does not therefore recognize the validity or the grounds on which the action of the Danzig authorities was based or the validity of this action itself or the effect given to it by the German Government."

The Commons plodded through wartime bills and the House of Lords twice adjourned while the Cabinet met unexpectedly and briefly.

Britain, fully armed and ready, expected the war decision announcement when the Commons assembled at 2:45 P. M. (9:45 A. M. New York time), but the Commons recessed at 6:23 (1:23 P. M., New York time), but Mr. Chamberlain did not appear at the first session.

The Commons passed through the important second reading stage the Government's conscription bill making men between the ages of 18 and 41 liable to military service. The vote was 340 to 7. Also passed through second reading—without a record vote—was a bill providing grants in the event of injury or death among the civil population by air raids.

The hasty summoning of the Cabinet followed a brief conference between American Ambassador Joseph [illegible] Mr. Chamberlain.

Polish Ambassador Count Edward Raczynski arrived at No. 10 Downing street while the Cabinet was in session but remained only five minutes. The Cabinet meeting ended at 5:22 P. M., London time.

King Meets Privy Council.

King George held a meeting of the Privy Council at 6 P. M., London time. It lasted only a few minutes, however, and dealt with matters arising from the emergency legislation Parliament has adopted in recent sessions.

Ernest Brown, Minister of Labor, in explaining the conscription bill to Commons, said it did not apply to northern Ireland.

Men in the designated age brackets will be called up from time to time by proclamation, he said, but no "considerable group" of new conscripts would be summoned at the outset.

Opposition to the man power conscription bill was voiced by James Maxton, spokesman for the small Independent Labor group, who urged conscription of private property. Laborites generally urged that the working classes not be forced to carry the burden of war. Josiah Wedgwood declaring that "the last few days we have seen the working classes in London sticking to their jobs while the better class people fled to the country."

He also said he had placed a bet that London would not be bombed for six months.

Appeal by Lady Astor.

Lady Astor appealed to the Government "not to send boys under twenty to the front."

War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha, answering criticisms of the bill, indicated that eighteen-year-old youths would not be called up first. He also said there would be no differentiation between married and single persons except in case of "exceptional hardships."

Forty minutes after Commons met both Sir John and Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax motored to 10 Downing Street to be with Mr. Chamberlain.

Up to noon no reply had been received from the German Government to Mr. Chamberlain's "last warning."

During the morning Lord Halifax received Polish Ambassador Count Edward Raczynski and Mr. Chamberlain received Arthur Greenwood, leader of the Labor opposition.

Greenwood later in the House had criticized [illegible] age limits of the conscription bill but said he would support it. He also demanded that "profiteering be stopped" and added that "he who seeks personal gain in these times is a traitor to his country."

Broadening the Cabinet.

The main entrance to the German embassy was bolted and barred as members of the staff brought luggage from their homes and piled it high in the embassy court for removal from the country.

The British Press Association said the Cabinet had been broadened, with the probability that four new Ministers would be added. They were said to include Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty during the world war. Later the Press Association said it understood that the national executive (administrative body) of the Labor Party decided it would not join in the War Cabinet.

The Polish embassy issued a statement that Germany's warplanes continued to bomb civilian populations, claiming "many victims . . . including women and children."

The Health Ministry announced today that 300,000 school children were safely evacuated from London yesterday and received at country havens. The evacuation continued today.

Virtually the whole British Isles were blacked out throughout the night. King George VI had signed an order in council for complete mobilization of Britain's Army, Navy and air force.

The morning press was virtually unanimous in accepting the inevitability of war. Long editorials were devoted to charges that the blame for war lies with Adolf Hitler.

"The whole proceedings in Parliament yesterday," declared the London Times, "were inspired by the conviction that the great evil is the spirit of faithlessness, of intolerance, of bullying and of 'senseless ambition' which is embodied in Herr Hitler and those who surround him.

Second War in Twenty-five Years.

The conviction overrides the horror of the thought that the civilized world is to tackle the same task twice in twenty-five years.

"The task will be done again, no matter what the effort required, and it will be done this time in a way to ensure that our children will not have to repeat it."

Extraordinary measures being rushed to completion included one to provide £500,000,000 (about $2,110,000,000) to meet emergency expenditures.

Others would declare a moratorium on the principal of mortgages on homes, provide for conscription of men between the ages of 18 and 41 years, demobilize soldiers temporarily to work in industries and, if necessary, regulate imports and exports.

Further emergency measures would provide for currency control and support and appoint additional [illegible] and [illegible] secretaries.

The Ministry of [illegible] already has taken over the railroads.

During the night the Board of Trade barred, except under special permission, export of certain commodities, including flour, vegetables and canned meats and fruits.

A large number of short term prisoners were said to have been released from London prisons.

Reports in parliamentary circles said Cabinet members already had handed their resignations to Chamberlain to facilitate a revision should it become necessary to form a war Cabinet.

The wheels were started turning yesterday when the Polish Ambassador, Count Edward Raczynski, invoked the British-Polish mutual assistance treaty. He called on British Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax to appeal for aid for his country, charging it was the victim of direct German aggression.

Prime Minister Chamberlain later, in his dramatic message to Parliament, also blamed Germany for starting hostilities.

"We shall stand at the bar of history," he declared, "knowing that the responsibility for this terrible catastrophe rests on the shoulders of one man—the German Chancellor."

A British white paper last night made public the secret British-German diplomatic exchanges in the Polish dispute and declared that Germany offered Poland her six-teen-point proposal for an adjustment without giving the Polish Ambassador time to communicate them to his Government.

People Are Resolute.

The Government remained stanch in its declarations to fulfill Britain's pledge to help Poland defend her independence, and even as gangs of half-naked laborers piled up sandbags and the nation grimly dug in, the people remained resolute.

The Times proudly pointed out the smoothness with which the evacuation of civilians from metropolitan areas was accomplished and [illegible] efficiency was greater than in 1914.

The Financial News said it was inevitable that sooner or later Britain would have to fight to check Germany's drive to world supremacy and warned that the struggle will be lengthy.

Britain, the Manchester Guardian said, has no enmity for the German people. But is charged that Hitler's system renders beneficient civilization impossible, and added, it is for the overthrow of this dictator and his system of government that we enter war.

The Birmingham Post said the Fuehrer's offense was worse than that of the former kaiser and the London Daily Express said the Fuehrer would go down to detestation as a gambler who inflicted new ruin and miseries on Germany.

Relieved at Showdown.

To the general public the resolution of days of tension into a definite showdown came as a kind of relief despite its grim implications. Taking the matter as definitely settled, the British people were saying:

"Well, it had to come. We might as well go ahead and get it over."

Women flat dwellers not participating in the evacuation of 3,000,000 persons from danger zones joined janitors and doormen in filling sandbags to protect walls against air raids. Women worked beside men in parks digging trenches, drove ambulances and did scores of other jobs to free men for military service.

English newspapers prominently displayed reports from Rome that the British Cabinet Ministers had announced [illegible] Italy would take no initiative in military operations.

They also devoted much space to Warsaw communiques reporting German planes shot down on bombing raids and to President Roosevelt's plea against bombings of civilians.

Most London newspapers published in full the British white paper on exchanges between Mr. Chamberlain and Chancellor Hitler.

What Chamberlain Said—Text of Statements Made to Parliament Tonight by Prime Minister Chamberlain in Commons and by Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax in Lords.

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 2—Following is the text of identic statements made to Parliament tonight by Prime Minister Chamberlain in Commons and by Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax in Lords:

Sir Nevile Henderson (British Ambassador to Berlin) was received by Herr von Ribbentrop (German Foreign Minister) at 9.30 last night when he delivered the message read to the House of Commons yesterday.

Herr von Ribbentrop replied he must submit the communication to the German Chancellor, and the Ambassador declared his readiness to receive the Chancellor's reply.

Up to the present no reply has been received.

It may be that the delay is caused by consideration of the [illegible] put forward by the Italian [illegible] namely, that hostilities should cease and that there should then immediately be a conference of the five powers concerned—Britain, France, Poland, Germany and Italy.

While appreciating the efforts of the Italian Government, his Majesty's Government for their part will find it impossible to take part in a conference while Poland is being subjected to invasion, her towns under bombardment and while Danzig is being made subject to unilateral settlements by force.

Would Agree To Status

His Majesty's Government will, as stated yesterday, be bound to take action unless German forces are withdrawn from Polish territory.

They are in communication with the French Government as to the limit of time within which it would be necessary for the British and French governments to know whether the German Government was prepared to effect such withdrawal.

If the German Government should agree to withdrawal of their forces, his Majestys' Government would be willing to regard the position as being the same as it was before the German forces crossed the frontier, that is, we would be open to discussion on the matters between the German and Polish governments on the understanding that the settlement was one that would safeguard Poland's vital interests and was secured by international guarantee.

If the German and Polish governments wished other powers to be associated with them his Majesty's Government would be willing to agree.

As To Danzig Matter

There is another matter to which mention should be made in order that the present situation should be made perfectly clear.

Yesterday Herr Förster, who on August 23, in contravention of the Danzig Constitution became head of state, decided the incorporation of Danzig in the Reich and Hitler was asked to give effect to this decree by German law.

At the meeting of the Reichstag yesterday morning a law was passed for the reunion of Danzig with the Reich.

The international status of Danzig as a Free City was established by treaty of which his Majesty's Government was a signatory, and the Free City was placed under the protection of the League of Nations.

The rights given to Poland in Danzig by treaty were defined and confirmed by agreements concluded between Danzig and Poland.

The action taken by the Danzig authorities and the Reichstag yesterday is the final step in the unilateral repudiation of this international instrument which could only be modified by negotiations.

His Majesty's Government, therefore, did not recognize either the validity of the grounds on which the action of the Danzig authorities was based or the validity of this action itself or of the effect given to it by the German Government."

Second Speech

The Prime Minister's second speech in the House of Commons tonight, in answer to criticism from Laborites, follows:

The Government is in a somewhat difficult position. With allies who have to communicate with one another by telephone it is difficult to synchronize thoughts and actions as quickly as if they were in the same room.

I should be horrified if the House thought for one moment that my statement betrayed the slightest weakening of attitude which French Government and we have already taken. I myself share the distrust shown by the House of maneuvers of this kind.

I would have been very glad if it had been possible for me to say to the House now that the French and ourselves were agreed to make the shortest possible limit to the time when action should be taken by both.

Anticipates One Answer

It is very possible that we may receive a reply to our communications with the French in the course of the next few hours. I feel certain I can make a definite statement tomorrow when the House meets.

I am the last man to neglect any opportunity of considering every serious chance of avoiding the great catastrophe of war, even at the last moment.

But, I confess in present case, I should have to be convinced of the good faith of the other side in any action which they took before I could regard this proposition, which has been made to us, one from which we could expect a reasonable chance of a successful issue.

I anticipate the only one answer that I can give to the House tomorrow. I hope myself that the issue will be brought to close at earliest possible moment so we may know where we are.

I trust that the House, realizing the position which I have tried to put will believe me—I speak in complete good faith and will not prolong the discussion which perhaps might make our position more embarrassing than it is.

White Paper Blames Germans

Britain Says Berlin Gave Polish Envoy No Chance to Wire Sixteen-point Plan.

LONDON, Sept. 2 (A. P.) (Passed through British censorship).—A British White Paper making public secret British-German diplomatic exchanges in the Polish dispute asserts that Germany broadcast her "sixteen-point proposal" for settlement of differences with Poland without giving the Polish Ambassador an opportunity to communicate them to his Government.

The following case was set forth by the White Paper last night:

On August 29, Chancellor Hitler, in a note handed to Sir Neville Henderson, British Ambassador to Berlin, said that, in spite of Poland's rejection of German proposals in March and subsequent "barbaric actions of maltreatment of the large German national group in Poland," he agreed to accept Britain's offer of aid in securing the dispatch to Berlin of a Polish emissary with full powers."

The German Government, Hitler said, "count on the arrival of this emissary on Wednesday, 30th of August, 1939," or twenty-four hours later.

At 2 A. M. on August 30, Prime Minister Chamberlain wired Ambassador Henderson that "we shall give careful consideration to the German Government's reply," but that it was "unreasonable to expect that we can produce a Polish representative in Berlin today."

At 6:50 P. M. of the same day Chamberlain again wired the Ambassador because of Germany's insistence on the arrival of a full-powered Polish representative.

Urged Normal Procedure.

"We cannot advise the Polish Government to comply with this procedure," Chamberlain said, and urged Henderson to suggest that the German Government "adopt the normal procedure" of handing their proposals to the Polish Ambassador for transmission to Warsaw.

The British Ambassador gave the British note to the German Minister for Foreign Affairs at midnight on August 30.

"Herr von Ribbentrop's reply," the White paper states, was to produce a long document which he read out rapidly in German. It was apparently the sixteen-point plan which the German Government have since published. When Sir Nevile Henderson asked for the text of these proposals, . . . Herr von Ribbentrop asserted that it was now too late, as the Polish plenipotentiary had not arrived by midnight."

During the afternoon of August 31, according to the White paper, the Polish Government learned of these developments and informed the British Government that they would authorize their Ambassador to advise Berlin that Poland had accepted Britain's proposals for negotiations.

Broadcasts Its Program.

"The Polish Ambassador in Berlin (Jozef Lipski) was not received by Herr von Ribbentrop until the evening of August 31," the White paper states. Immediately after the interview, the German Government broadcast its sixteen-point plan, asking primarily for the return of Danzig and plebiscite in the Corridor.

"M. Pipski at once tried to establish contact with Warsaw but was unable to do so because all means of communication between Poland and Germany had been closed by the German Government," the White paper concluded.

[In Berlin German officials heatedly denied Polish and British charges that Warsaw had had inadequate or no notice of Hitler's sixteen-point offer of adjustment with Poland.

[British radio reports there that Britain did not receive Hitler's program for transmission to Poland drew especial fire.

[It was stated emphatically that the proposals were given the British Ambassador and that the German Foreign Office waited two days for a Polish representative to come and get his copy.]

Agree War Will Be Long.

In their earlier negotiations Prime Minister Chamberlain and Chancellor Hitler had come to at least two major points of agreement:

1. That if there was a war, it would be a long and bloody one.
2. That settlement of Polish-German differences was essential before [illegible] could be established between Britain and Germany.

In the first of the ten-day series of communications, on August 22, Chamberlain said "no greater mistake could be made" than to assume the Russian-German nonaggression pact would keep Britain from going to Poland's defense.

"It would be a dangerous illusion," he wrote, "to think that, if war once starts, it will come to an early end, even if success on any one of several fronts on which it would be engaged should have been secured."

A day later Hitler stated:

"An incalculable war between Germany and England would be bloodier than that of 1914-18." Emphasizing the newly formed pact with the Soviet, he added:

"In contrast to the last war, Germany no longer would have to fight on two fronts."

In regard to closer British-German relations Chamberlain, in replying to Hitler's communications of August 23 and 25, wrote on August 28 that there must first be "a settlement of differences between Germany and Poland."

"Everything, however, turns upon the nature of the settlement and the method by which it is to be reached. On these points, the importance of which cannot be absent from the Chancellor's mind, his (Hitler's) message was silent . . . The German Government will be aware that his Majesty's Government have obligations to Poland by which they are bound and which they intend to honor.

"They could not, for any advantage offered to Great Britain, acquiesce in a settlement which put in jeopardy the independence of a State to whom they have given their guarantee."

He warned that failure to reach a just settlement would "ruin hopes of better understanding between Germany and Great Britain, would bring the two countries into conflict . . . and plunge the whole world into war from an outcome could be a catastrophe without parallel in history."

Hitler's answer on August 29 said:

"The German Government have never had any intention of touching Poland's vital interests or questioning the existence of an independent Polish State."

Allied Ultimatum

By the Associated Press

London, Sept. 2—Following is the text of the ultimatum handed to the German Government yesterday by the Ambassadors of Britain and France:

Early this morning the German Chancellor issued a proclamation to the German Army which indicated clearly that he was about to attack Poland. Information which has reached His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom and the French Government indicates that German troops have crossed the Polish frontier and attacks on Polish towns are proceeding.

In these circumstances it appears to the Governments of the United Kingdom and France that by this action the German Government have created conditions—namely, an aggressive act of force against Poland threatening the independence of Poland—which call for the immediate implementation by the Governments of the United Kingdom and France of the undertaking to Poland to come to her assistance.

I am, accordingly, to inform Your Excellency that unless the German Government are prepared to give His Majesty's Government an assurance that the German Government have suspended all aggressive action against Poland and are prepared promptly to withdraw their forces from Polish territory, His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom will, without hesitation, fulfill their obligations to Poland.

Paris Joins in Last Warning Sure of War

(By Associated Press)

Paris, Sept. 2.—France and Britain, through their highest spokesmen, declared definitely tonight that unless Adolf Hitler calls his troops out of Poland a general European war will commence.

It was understood generally that a final and formal notice to that effect would be delivered to the German Fuehrer in the course of the night.

The notice would require an immediate reply or at least one within a set time limit.

The British and French proposals were identical.

Premier Daladier, before the French Chamber of Deputies, and Foreign British Secretary Lord Halifax, before the British House of Lords, said negotiations still were possible if German troops cease hostilities and withdraw from invaded Poland.

On the bare shred of hope that Hitler might accept this proposal seemed to hang the chances of peace.

Every one here went on the assumption that he would not. In that case, it was agreed generally that France and Britain would have to start a war of assistance to Poland without much more delay.

President Albert Lebrun in a message read to Parliament today said:

"The future of civilization is at stake."

Daladier, addressing the crowded Chamber of Deputies, said no Frenchman will go to war with hatred for Germans at heart but all will have the knowledge "the very existence" of their country was in the balance.

After Daladier's speech and the reading of the message from President Lebrun, Parliament today voted a war budget of 69,000,000,000 francs (about $1,656,000,000), the bill implying the right of the Daladier Government to open hostilities at its discretion.

The Premier, comparing the difference between the present situation and the crisis last September told the Chamber of Deputies:

"Gentlemen, today it is France that commands."

The war in Poland, he said, is "a step in the march of the Hitlerian dictatorship towards world domination."

There were reports of another Italian attempt during the day to avert the catastrophe.

[illegible] this came to was not known. However, it seemed to be regarded as a gesture more than anything furnishing concrete hope.

Daladier took pains to pay tribute to Italy—France's ally in the World War and now Germany's axis partner.

"I am happy to render homage to the noble efforts of the Italian government," the Premier said, referring to Rome's proposal for a peace conference.

France Drafts New Ultimatum Demanding Immediate Reply

Deputies Grant Daladier Extreme Powers and Vote Him War Budget — Approval Is Unanimous.

PARIS, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—With Parliament's implied authorization to declare war on Germany, Premier Daladier and his Cabinet met at the War Ministry at 7:30 tonight (2:30 P. M. New York time), to frame a demand that Adolf Hitler reply to the British-French "last warning" of yesterday.

Diplomats said that the demand would be a new ultimatum to Hitler and would insist upon an immediate reply.

Both the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies unanimously approved a war budget of 69 billion francs (approximately $1,656,000,000) after hearing M. Daladier say that the Government was still willing to negotiate if Germany would cease hostilities in Poland.

Whether Premier Daladier uses the authority vested in him by adoption of the war budget depends upon the possibility — frankly viewed as slight—of Hitler availing himself of a last-minute loophole for peace.

The Premier told the finance committee after the Chamber session that he planned to call the Chamber to approve an actual declaration of war if that became necessary, but he may simply ask for approval after, rather than before, the action is taken.

"The Government will take the same chance as Parisians," M. Daladier told a Deputy who asked whether the Government planned to leave Paris immediately.

Next Few Hours Crucial.

President Lebrun joined the Premier in stirring appeals to the nation made before Parliament. Members of both houses applauded wildly, even the Communists joining in.

The situation as it now exists was described as this: Answers are still awaited to French and British virtual ultimatums to Germany, delivered yesterday. If they are not received within the next few hours and Germany continues her war on Poland, England and France, all observers agree, will have to act.

The Government bill in its final form provided forty-six billion francs (approximately $1,004,000,000) for national defense and the remainder for extraordinary civil credits.

Immediately after the war budget was adopted the Chamber adjourned amid cheers for the unyielding stand taken by Premier Deladier.

The Chamber rushed through the action as a demonstration of national union without debate after hearing an address by M. Herriot; a message from President Lebrun and the speech by M. Daladier outlining the French position.

Chamber Is Tense.

The Chamber met in a tense atmosphere from 3 to 3:55 P. M. (10 to 10:55 A. M., New York time), to hear from the nation's leaders. The session was resumed at 4:30 P. M. but lasted only six minutes, the members pushing through a quick vote. The recess was to permit the Finance Committee to approve the war budget.

Immediately after the Chamber session, Premier Daladier returned to his office in the War Ministry where he met Polish Ambassador Julius Lukasiewicz for a discussion of the latest news on the hostilities.

Legal experts in the Chamber confirmed M. Herriot's assertion that M. Daladier now had the power himself to declare war. They said that the voting of the huge war budget "for the defense of the honor and security of France" carried that authority.

The Premier told the Chamber:

"There is no Frenchman marching toward the lines who marches with hatred of the Germans, but he marches knowing the very existence of his country is at stake."

Without formally declaring war, M. Daladier bound France's fate to that of Poland by declaring:

"Is there a German-Polish war? No! There is a step in Hitlerian Germany's effort to dominate the world."

However, Premier Daladier left a slight hope for peace.

"Even at this moment, if the Germans leave Poland, if they stop their aggression, France will not refuse efforts for negotiation."

Says 'France Commands!'

"If representations are tried again we again are ready to associate in them," M. Daladier continued.

The Premier left no doubt, however, that France is determined to carry out her pledge of aid to Poland if war persists rather than to permit a dismemberment like that which befell Czecho-Slovakia at Munich last September.

"Gentlemen, today it is France that commands!" he said, concluding among the cheers of the chamber.

"Poland is the victim of aggression and is assured the support of nations of free men," M. Daladier declared.

While he spoke, William C. Bullitt, United States Ambassador; Sir Eric Phipps, the British Ambassador, and Julius Lukasiewicz, the Polish Ambassador, sat in prominent places in the diplomatic gallery. The Ambassadors of Rumania and Spain also were present.

Premier Daladier took pains to pay tribute to Italy—France's ally in the world war and now Germany's axis partner.

"I am happy to render homage to the noble efforts of the Italian Government," the Premier said, referring to Rome's proposal for a peace conference. "Efforts for peace, even though they remain sterile, will at least show responsibilities."

Herriot Excoriates Hitler.

M. Herriot told the Chamber: "In this moving moment many words are not necessary to consecrate the will for union which arises from every French heart.

"After twenty years' labor, which was not enough to repair the disasters of the last Germanic aggression, we are now in the presence of a new defiance.

"The man who made Austria disappear, who martyrized the Czechs, who peopled the whole world with exiles is using force once more with a mixture of brutality and deceit with cynical procedure which the Prime Minister of Britain already denounced yesterday."

M. Herriot said Poland—"this nation of fineness and culture to which we are linked by a long past"—was "now undergoing with legendary courage the blows of scientific barbarousness."

"We send it the ardent fraternal expression of our solidarity."

Of the Russian-German nonaggression pact M. Herriot declared it "arouses the reprobation of every right-thinking person."

The Premier told the Chamber that Chancellor Hitler was responsible for the outbreak of warfare in Europe, but that if eleventh-hour efforts were made to prevent a continuation of the conflict France would support them.

He read to the Deputies a message from President Lebrun declaring:

"The future of civilization is at stake! Be united! Vive la France!"

The Premier then delivered his own account of the crisis caused by the German invasion of Poland and the French and British mobilizations.

"The responsibility has been established," M. Daladier said in solemn tones.

The red and gold Chamber amphitheater was jammed with Deputies, some in army uniform.

"But if representations are tried again, we again are ready today to associate in them," the Premier said.

The Foreign Ministry announced at noon (7 A. M., New York time) that Ambassador Robert Coulondre had been received by Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop.

The Ambassador demanded immediate cessation of hostilities and withdrawal of German troops from Poland. Ribbentrop was said to have replied that Germany was not guilty of aggression, but promised to relay the Ambassador's words to Chancellor Hitler.

A similar step was taken separately by British Ambassador Sir Nevile Henderson, both the French and the British envoys warning that they would be forced to ask for their passports unless they received favorable replys.

Sources close to the French Foreign Ministry also said they had the impression that hostilities were stopped, at least temporarily this morning, but official confirmation was still lacking.

[In Berlin the high command said the German advance was continuing and had exceeded its objectives.]

Some Deputies in Uniform.

All deputies up to 48 years of age already have been mobilized. These appeared in uniform.

As the Chamber President, M. Herriot, opened the session, after a short whispered conversation with Premier Daladier at the tribune, there was silence through the great chamber. It was packed to overflowing for the historic session with deputies, French notable and foreign diplomats.

As the session began, deputies heard reports that the farthest German advance into Poland was only three miles at Czarnkow, in the westernmost tip of Poland.

A report also spread in the lobbies of the Chamber of Deputies that the German armies have suspended operations in Poland. This report said Germany's armies had not withdrawn but were resting in their positions a few miles within Poland.

The purpose of any such tactics, some deputies close to the Government said, would be to try to force Great Britain and France to talk on unfavorable terms.

The Polish embassy denied the report. French officials said they could not confirm it although they said they had the impression that the German numerical strength in Poland was not great and that German objectives were limited.

Hitler was attacked by the press. French leaders, seeing a last hope of avoiding war gone, declared "our conscience is clear."

The initial line-up of Powers may find Spain and Hungary neutral and Turkey and Rumania benevolent neutrals. But leaders feared Russia intended some kind of aid to Germany because of the Soviet-German no-aggression pact. There was also speculation on whether Italy would remain neutral.

Through a hot September night Paris was evacuated by an ever-growing stream of humanity.

Thousands of school children had been sent away. Last night their parents left to join them in country havens.

United States Embassy Is Busy.

The United States embassy, travel bureaus and shipping offices were flooded with queries from Americans on the quickest ways to leave.

Actually mobilization has been under way for several days, but the official order which accompanied yesterday's proclamation of a state of siege became effective only today.

One minute past midnight came the "zero hour" of general mobilization.

It was the signal for a flood of khaki to well up in the streets and flow out toward troubled frontiers.

Hours later the mobilization was proceeding methodically with much of the same machinery and many of the same men used to execute the last such call to the colors on August 2, 1914.

And London Seek azi Accord On Civilians

Paris, Sept. 2 (A.P.)—France and Britain announced tonight in a joint communique they would ask Germany if she would agree to wage war without the bombardment of civilian populations and without the use of gas.

The statement, issued by Premier Edouard Daladier's office under the title "Joint French-British Declaration," said both Governments already had instructed their high commands not to bombard civilians.

It added that the two powers would conform to the 1925 League of Nations provisions outlawing the use of poisonous and asphyxiating gas.

Virtual Statement Of War Rules

The joint declaration, a virtual statement of the rules under which Britain and France have decided to wage war, said that if the Germans refused to agree to them the two allies would reserve the right to "take whatever action they consider appropriate."

The communique:

"The governments of France and the United Kingdom solemnly and publicly affirm their intention to conduct hostilities which may be imposed upon them with the firm desire to spare civil populations and to spare in every possible measure monuments of human civilization.

In Accord With Roosevelt

"In this spirit they received with profound satisfaction President Roosevelt's appeal concerning air bombardments. They are entirely in sympathy with the humanitarian sentiments which inspired this appeal. They replied in perfect accord.

"Moreover, they already have sent express instructions to the command of their armed forces in order that only strictly military objectives in the narrowest sense would be bombarded by air, by sea or by land artillery.

"Concerning land artillery bombardments, objectives which do not present clearly defined military interest should be excluded, particularly large urban agglomerations outside the battlefield, and even destruction of sections and buildings with interest to civilization should be avoided.

Pledge As To Submarines

"Concerning the use of naval forces, including submarines, the two governments pledge themselves strictly to rules formulated by protocol in 1936 concerning submarines which was accepted by almost all civilized nations.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—Under the protocol, which had Britain, France, Italy, Japan and the United States as its original signatories, submarines in time of war are forbidden to sink a merchant ship until the crew, the passengers and the ship's papers are afforded a safe haven. The protocol also outlawed the "sunk without trace" practice which prevailed during the height of the German submarine campaign in the World War.]

"Moreover, they plan even to employ their air forces against commercial vessels at sea only in conforming to recognized rules applied to warships in the field of sea warfare.

Ban Poison Gas Warfare

"Finally, the two allied governments again affirm their intention to abide by terms of the protocol of Geneva of 1925 banning in case of war the use of asphyxiating or toxic gases and bacteriological warfare.

"A request will be addressed to the German Government to know if it can give similar assurances.

"It is understood that if an adversary does not observe certain restrictions to which the governments of France and Great Britain have agreed to give as a limitation to their armed forces these governments reserve the right to any action which they consider appropriate."

"Hitlerian Dictatorship" Threatens World, Daladier Tells Deputies

CONFLICT DECLARED MORE THAN GERMAN-POLISH WAR

Called New Phase Of "March Toward Domination Of Europe"—France Ready To Fight For Honor And Security, Premier Asserts

[By the Associated Press]

Paris, Sept. 2—The French Government's statement of policy as read to the Chamber of Deputies today by Premier Edouard Daladier and to the Senate by Vice-Premier Camille Chautemps follows:

Gentlemen:

The Government yesterday decreed general mobilization. The entire nation is replying to its call with a grave, resolute calm. Young men have rejoined their regiments. They now cover our frontiers. The example of courage and dignity they have just given the world should dominate this debate.

In the great spirit of national fraternity they have forgotten all which even yesterday might have divided them. They no longer recognize any service except service of France. In addressing the grateful salute of the nation to them let us take an oath to show ourselves worthy of them.

Duty To Present Facts

The Government had to put France in a position to act in accordance with its vital interest and honor. It has a duty now to present you the facts fully, with frankness and clarity.

Several days ago peace was already in danger. German claims on Poland risked precipitating a conflict.

I will show you in instant how all the pacific forces in the world combined during all these days to save peace. But just when hope was held that all these renewed efforts were going to be crowned with success, Germany abruptly reduced them to nothing.

During the day of August 31 the crisis reached its culminating point. When Germany had finally made known to England she would accept direct negotiation with Poland, Poland, despite the terrible menace of sudden military invasion from Slovakia by German armies, attempted immediately to resort to the pacific method.

At 1 o'clock that afternoon M. Lipski, Polish Ambassador to Germany, asked an interview with M. von Ribbentrop. Peace seemed saved. But the Foreign Minister of the Reich only agreed to receive M. Lipski at 7.45 P. M. While the latter brought the agreement of his Government to direct conversations, the German Minister refused to communicate the German claims to the Polish Ambassador under the pre- that the latter did not have full power to accept or refuse them immediately.

"That Was A Lie"

At 9 P. M. the German radio announced the nature and extent of these demands. The radio added that Poland had rejected them. That was a lie. That was a lie because Poland never even knew what the terms were.

And on September 1 at dawn the Führer gave his troops the order to attack.

Never was aggression more evident, more unjust. Never in order to justify it have such lies and cynicisms been put to work.

So war was launched even as the most powerful forces and the most respected authorities were placed in the service of peace; even as the entire world did its best to bring the two parties into direct negotiations in order to settle pacifically the differences between them.

The Pope And Roosevelt

The Chief of Christianity raised his voice of reason and fraternity. President Roosevelt addressed moving messages and proposed a general conference. Neutral nations took action to offer their impartial good offices.

Is it necessary for me to say that each of these appeals met the immediate and heartfelt welcome of the French Government? I myself, gentlemen, I considered it my duty as a Frenchman to intervene directly with Chancellor Hitler. The chief of the German Government informed me on August 25 through our Ambassador at Berlin, M. Coulondre, that he deplored that in the event of armed conflict between Germany and Poland, German blood and French blood might be spilled. I immediately transmitted to the Führer a positive proposal inspired by a lone desire to save peace, then in danger, without delay.

You have been able to read texts. You know the reply which was made to me. I say no more.

But we have not been rebuffed by the failure of our advance and we made a second attempt which M. Chamberlain undertook with magnificent persistency. The documents exchanged between London and Berlin have been published. On one hand appears impartial loyalty and perseverance: On the other obstruction, evasion and escape.

Tribute To Italy

I also am happy to pay tribute to the noble efforts of the Italian Government. Even yesterday we did our best to realize a union of all of goodwill in order to at least stop hostilities and try to substitute methods of conciliation and arbitration to use of violence.

These efforts for peace, even if they have been unavailing up to the present, have at least shown Germany's responsibilities. They assure Poland the victim, of the effective support and moral solidarity of the nations of free men.

That which we did before the beginning of hostilities we are ready to do again. If an advance for conciliation is renewed we are ready to associate ourselves with it again. If fighting stops, if the aggressor returns to his frontiers, if free negotiation can again begin, believe me, gentlemen, that the French Government would spare no effort in order to permit, even today, its success in the interests of world peace.

More Than Nazi-Polish War

But time presses. France and England could not accept the destruction of a friendly people—the forerunner of new attempts of violence directed against themselves. Is it really only a German-Polish conflict? No, gentlemen, it is a new phase in the march of the Hitlerian dictatorship toward domination of Europe and the world.

How, in fact, can we forget that German demands on Polish territory have been written for a long time on the map of Greater Germany and that it was only hidden for several years to make other conquests easier? As long as a German-Polish pact was profitable to Germany it was respected by Germany. The day when it became an obstacle to his march toward hegemony, he did not hesitate to denounce it.

We are told today that once German demands on Poland are satisfied Germany will promise the whole world a perpetual peace. We know this promise already. On May 25, 1935, Chancellor Hitler promised not to intervene in the internal affairs of Austria and not to attach Austria to the Reich. And on March 11, 1938, the German army entered Vienna. Chancellor Schuschnigg was thrown into prison for having dared defend the independence of his country and none can say what his true fate is after so many sufferings. But it seems that Schuschnigg's provocations determined the invasion and enslavery of his fatherland.

Ambitions Unmasked

On September 12, 1938, Chancellor Hitler declared that the Sudeten problem was an internal affair which concerned only the German minority of the Bohemia and Czecho-Slovak Government. A few hours later he unmasked his ambitions, pretending that they were made legitimate by the violence of Czech provocations.

September 26, 1938, Chancellor Hitler declared that Sudeten territory represented the last territorial demands which he had to make in Europe.

March 14, 1939, M. Hacha was called to Berlin, summoned for the hardest sort of coercion to accept an ultimatum.

A few hours later Prague was occupied despite the signatures given. There again Chancellor Hitler tried to blame his victims for the responsibility which falls only on an aggressor.

January 30, 1939, finally Chancellor Hitler praised the non-aggression pact which he had signed five years before with Poland. He halted this accord as a true, free understanding and solemnly confirmed his intention to respect its terms.

His Acts That Count

Hitler's acts, not his words, count.

What, therefore, is our duty? Poland is our ally. We contracted with Poland in the treaties of 1921 and 1925. These treaties have been confirmed.

I said in the Tribune Chamber May 19, last: "Following Colonel Beck's trip to London and the engagements of a reciprocal guarantee contracted by Britain and Poland, we took in agreement with courageous, noble nation necessary measures to immediate direct application of our treaty of alliance."

Parliament unanimously approved such a policy.

Since then we have never ceased in diplomatic negotiations and public declarations to show our faith in these agreements.

Our Ambassador in Berlin many times has reminded Chancellor Hitler and his associates that if Germans attack Poland we would fulfill our engagements.

And September 1 at Paris Monsieur, the Minister of Foreign Affairs told the Ambassador of Germany in France:

France has defined engagements toward Poland. These engagements have again been strengthened during recent events and in consequence, France will be at Poland's side immediately as soon as Poland itself takes arms.

Poland has been the object of a most unjust, brutal aggression. Nations which guaranteed her independence are called upon to intervene for her defense. Britain and France are not powers which go back on their signature.

Note To Germany

Last evening, September 1, the Ambassadors of France and Britain made a common representation to the German Government. They placed the following communication of the French Government in the hands of M. von Ribbentrop:

Early this morning the German Chancellor issued a proclamation to the Germany Army which clearly indicates that he was on the point of attacking Poland.

Information reaching the French Government, and his Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom, indicates that troops crossed the Polish frontier and that attacks against Polish cities are in progress.

In these conditions it seems to the French and United Kingdom governments that by its action the German Government has created conditions (this is an act of force of aggressive character against Poland, threatening the independence of the country) which call for the execution by the governments of France and the United Kingdom of their engagements toward Poland to come to her aid.

In consequence I must inform your Excellency that unless the German Government is disposed to give the French Government satisfactory assurances that the German Government has suspended all aggressive action against Poland and is ready to withdraw its forces promptly from Polish territory, the French Government will fulfill its obligations with regard to Polish Government without hesitation.

Honor And Interests

So, gentlemen, it is no longer only the question of the honor of our country.

It is also a question of protecting its vital interests.

For a France which would deny its signature would soon become a conquered France. Isolated without allies, without support, soon would expose herself to a terrible attack.

What is the guarantee given for our eastern frontiers, for our Alsace, for our Lorraine, worth after denials of guarantees given to Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland?

Made more powerful by their conquests, gorged with spoils of Europe, masters of inexhaustible natural riches, aggressors would turn themselves soon against France with all their forces.

Our honor is, therefore, today the gauge of our security. It is not this abstract honor, this archaic honor of which conquerors speak to justify their violence. It is the dignity of a pacific people who have no hatred for any people in the world and who never have engaged themselves except for safety, its liberty and life.

3024—2953

What Price Honor

At the price of our honor we would only buy a precarious, revocable peace and when we would have to fight tomorrow, having lost the esteem of other nations, we would be nothing more than a miserable people fated for defeat and servitude.

I am sure that there is not a single Frenchman who could have such thoughts. But I know, gentlemen, that it is hard for those who have consecrated all their life to the defense of peace, who always have been animated by the ideal of peace, to reply by force to the undertakings of violence. I, chief of the Government, shall not make in these tragic hours an apology for war.

I fought as most of you. I remember it.

I shall not utter one of those words which real veterans consider blasphemous. I shall simply accomplish my duty as an honest man.

While we deliberate, Frenchmen rejoin their regiments. None of them have hate in their hearts for German people. None of them will let themselves be intoxicated by a call to violence and brutality. But all are ready to do their duty with that calm courage which a conscience without reproach inspires.

What Frenchmen Think

You, gentlemen, who know what Frenchmen think, you who even yesterday were among them in our provincial cities and our fields, you who saw them leave, you will bear me out if I evoke their thoughts here.

They are pacific men, but they are resolved to all sacrifices to defend the dignity and liberty of France. If they replied to our appeal as they did without hesitation, without murmur, it [illegible] because they all felt that the [illegible]tence of France is in danger. [illegible] know better than anyone that nothing could make France mobilize to throw herself into a haphazard venture.

They are not Frenchmen who have risen to invade the territory of a foreign state. Their heroism is the heroism of defense and not the heroism of conquest. When France rises it is because she feels threatened.

Voice Of The Empire

It is not only France which has arisen but also all of that immense empire which lives under the protection of our tri-color flag. From all corners of the world moving testimonies of loyalty reach the mother country this day. To the union of all French- comes from across the seas the reply of the union of all the peoples who live under our protection and who are in danger. They offer us their support if we still must use our force. If all moral sense, if all glimmer of reason has vanished from our adversaries.

If we do not keep our engagements, if we let Germany crush Poland in a few months, in perhaps a few weeks, what will we say to France if France again must be called up before aggressor?

Then these soldiers, now so resolved, will ask us what we have done with our friends. They will be alone under the most terrible of threats and perhaps will lose that confidence which inspires them now.

In these hours when the destiny of Europe is decided, France speaks to us through the voice of her sons, through the voice of all those who accepted the supreme sacrifice if it becomes necessary. Let us find again, like them, the spirit which has inspired all heroes of our history. France rises up with such enthusiasm only when she has faith to fight for her life, her independence. It is France which commands today.

IL DUCE SEEKS TO PREVENT SPREAD OF WAR

Hopes To Arrange Negotiated Settlement By 5-Power Parley.

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Sept. 2— Premier Mussolini today sought to prevent Polish-German hostilities from spreading into a general European war by arranging a negotiated settlement.

Conferences which the British and French Ambassadors had with Count Galeazzo Ciano, Foreign Minister, were believed to be connected directly with an Italian proposal of a five-power conference disclosed in London by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Lord Halifax, Foreign Secretary.

The possibility of halting the German-Polish conflict and arranging a peaceable settlement was believed to have been discussed at the diplomatic conferences, but no official information was forthcoming.

Asked To Use Influence

Some foreign observers believed, however, that Mussolini had been asked to use his influence on Adolf Hitler to halt fighting in Poland, call his army back and negotiate a settlement of his demands on the Poles.

Since authoritative Italians have declared il Duce would continue his efforts to arrange peace, he was believed still to be active in that direction tonight.

Here it was regarded as certain that any five-power conference proposed by il Duce would not be merely for settling the German-Polish conflict but would be aimed at complete revision of the Treaty of Versailles.

Would Seek Concessions

Under such a revision, Italy and Germany would seek political and economic concessions which they consider necessary to end European tension once and for all. This long has been il Duce's idea, and Italian newspapers recently have been stressing it as the only real solution.

Italy has been demanding from France concessions concerning Tunisia, The Suez Canal and Jibuti, French Somaliland port.

On the other hand, foreign observers considered that immense difficulties lay in the way of any immediate settlement which would prevent Britain and France from going to war against Germany.

The chief difficulty, they believed, would be in halting the forward push of the German war machine.

Border Fighting Cited

Some hope seemed to lie in reports that the fighting still was confined to the frontier, that the main bodies of troops apparently have not yet met in combat and that Germany may have encountered obstacles to plans for a quick campaign.

Fascist newspapers indicated the belief that the war might end quickly if Germany could occupy Danzig and the Corridor. On the other hand, the expiration of the British-French ultimatum was believed near at hand. Both governments have demanded withdrawal of German troops from Poland.

Comment was lacking in Rome on a French report that Paris and London had replied favorably to Mussolini's proposal. Italians noted, however, the favorable recognition of both Prime Minister Chamberlain and Premier Daladier of the Duce's peace efforts.

Look To Mussolini

Italians have expressed the belief all during the crisis that Mussolini might be the eventual peacemaker. The main question in Rome tonight was whether there remained time for further negotiation before the British and French go to Poland's aid.

Some foreigners thought Mussolini might have issued his Cabinet's declaration of virtual neutrality to keep himself in a position to act as peacemaker.

Responsible Fascists doubted, however, the suggestion that Mussolini might split Italy away from the German military alliance in case the peace efforts fail.

Idea "Fantastic"

One authority said any idea of "cutting" relations between Germany and Italy was "fantastic."

The framework of a few air-raid shelters appeared in the streets of Rome today. They consisted chiefly of wooden frames with space to be filled with sandbags.

Foreign Minister Ciano conferred with Hungarian Minister Baron Frederic Villani. It was reported that Hungary was looking to Italy for leadership in the peace move.

Meanwhile, Premier Mussolini was reported to have conferred with King Vittorio Emmanuel today on Italy's policy of watchful waiting.

King Arrives

The King arrived in Rome this morning from his summer palace at San Rossore and immediately received the Premier.

The important commentator, Virginio Gayda, in Il Giornale d'Italia, noted uneasily that French and British war preparations made it seem that only a miracle could prevent a "more general explosion."

Italy, he said, rested on her arms, confident she had done everything possible to avoid war. He said she was following events "with maximum political and diplomatic vigilance."

Other important press spokesmen wrote in practically the same vein.

Neutrality Expected

In the absence of definite indications to the contrary, the feeling still prevailed in foreign circles that Italy would remain neutral as long as her territory escaped attack.

Italians went about their affairs with little show of even thinking about the war in Poland. Gasoline sales were forbidden all drivers except diplomats, taxicabs, trucks and those having special permits. Taxicabs were limited to two and a half gallons daily; trucks were allowed twice that.

Many Italians expected to enjoy their usual Sunday traveling for the last time tomorrow, when the popular excursion trains make their last trips.

Trust Mussolini

Newspapers said they all had faith in Mussolini. To foreign observers it seemed they trusted in him to keep them out of war. The press unanimously refrained from mention of the "pact of steel" as it usually calls the military alliance empowering Hitler to call on Mussolini for military help.

Newspaper accounts were frankly pro-German. Britain and France were held responsible for hostilities, but the comment lacked the extreme bitterness of previous attacks on those countries. There was widespread belief that the British and French Ambassadors were offering concessions in return for Italian neutrality.

Precautions Adequate

The Government has announced military precautions taken were deemed adequate. One new development was the recruiting of thousands of student pilots. Italy is supposed to have more than 10,000 pilots trained or in training.

Some foreigners canceled plans to leave the country following Italy's declaration of a decision to refrain from military initiative. This, with her pledge to respect Swiss neutrality seemed assurance that the Swiss frontier would remain open.

Text of Lebrun Message

PARIS, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—Following is the text of the message of President Albert Lebrun to Parliament:

Gentlemen, you are meeting at a critical hour in our national life.

War has broken out in central Europe, men are killing one another. Innocent victims are falling under aerial fire.

How have we come to that? Two peoples had differences to settle. They could have done it by free, loyal negotiations as they were advised to do on all sides.

At the moment their plenipotentiaries were going to meet, Germany brutally attacked Poland, creating thus a state of war which nothing could justify.

England and France, resolutely attached to a policy of prudence, wisdom and moderation, did all which was humanly possible to avoid this crisis.

The voices of the chiefs of their governments were joined to those of the highest moral and political authorities of the world to call men, who held war or peace in their hands, to reflect before unleashing the abominable plague.

It was in vain.

And unless they still wish at this hour to hear the voice of the universal conscience which rises toward them, the worst eventualities are augured.

With great calm, cold resolution and perfect order, France has taken the dispositions which her security and loyalty to her engagements require.

Already for several days young men have been mounting guard on the frontiers. Today general mobilization calls all forces to the defense of the homeland.

As interpreter for the nation, I address to our armies of land, sea and air the affectionate salute and expression of unanimous confidence of the country.

The population in the interior also is accomplishing its full duty. A union of citizens, more sacred than ever, has been realized spontaneously once more. Firmness in spirit, discipline, hope—that is what animates them to the very depths themselves.

They understand that even more than the destiny of the homeland it is the liberty of the world and the future of civilization which is at stake.

They will be able to lift their souls to the heights of greatest resolution.

Let us be united: Vive la France.

Italian Sees Allied Envoys

Foreign Minister Ciano and Ambassadors of Britain and France Confer.

ROME, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—Count Galeazzo Ciano, the Foreign Minister, conferred again today with the British and French ambassadors as Italy pursued her policy of watchful waiting in the face of an apparently imminent European war.

The British Ambassador talked with Count Ciano for about thirty minutes. Shortly afterward Ambassador Poncet of France called at the Foreign Ministry.

Mussolini had a lengthy audience with King Vittorio Emmanuel in which he reported on the Italian situation arising from the conflict. Il Duce was believed to have explained to the King, who had just returned from his country home, why the Government was observing neutrality.

Believe Bargaining Began.

Diplomatic quarters watched keenly for any hint of what Italy would say if Germany called on her for aid. Following conferences with Foreign Minister Ciano yesterday, there was widespread belief that the British and French Ambassadors were offering concessions in return for Italian neutrality and, possibly, greater ones, for Italian entry into the war alongside Britain and France.

Meanwhile, Hungary was reported also to be watching Italy closely and to be more inclined to follow Mussolini than Hitler.

Newspapers were frankly pro-German in their accounts of the situation but they refrained from all such exaltations of the "pact of steel," binding Rome and Berlin, as were published daily until recently.

Italians and foreign observers alike considered this especially significant, and thought it meant at least that Mussolini was burning no bridges behind him.

The press held Britain and France responsible for the outbreak of hostilities, but the comment lacked the extreme bitterness of other attacks on those countries in recent years.

Mussolini's newspaper, Il Popolo D'Italia, said Hitler's proposals to avoid bloodshed with Poland were "fair, loyal and honorable, even for Poland."

Morning newspapers published part of Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech in which he told the House of Commons the final Hitler proposals had never been submitted to Poland and Britain in time for their consideration. This was the first indication to Italians that there had been two sides of the highly controversial question of the proposals. Up to now, only the German side had been published here.

Italy remained calm. Newsboys were prohibited from yelling headlines, so as not to alarm the people unduly.

The Government announced the recruiting of 1,000 youths for training as pilots.

'Watchful Waiting.'

Italy's attitude of "watchful waiting" was emphasized by Giovanni Ansaldo, editor of the Ciano family's newspaper, Il Telegrafo of Leghorn. Signor Ansaldo expressed "human sympathy" for fighters of both sides, especially the Germans.

"Regarding the particular situation in Italy . . . it is one of watchful waiting for development of events," he wrote. "Italy is today more than ever at the orders of Il Duce in absolute and complete unity of spirit."

Italy's coastal cities will continue to be darkened nightly to accustom the residents to this precaution. The public was told that siren blasts would announce air raids and that to avoid confusion, factories would cease blowing whistles. The peasants in some sections were warned to keep their homes darkened at all times.

Italy received a Swiss declaration that Switzerland "will maintain and defend with all the means at its disposal the inviolability of its territory" and will renew the country's "humanitarian works" of the last war impartially. Paul Ruegger, the Swiss Minister, who presented the declaration, also handed the Foreign Office a neutrality declaration on behalf of the Principality of Leichtenstein.

Malta Expects Trouble.

VALETTA, Malta, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—(Passed by the British censor.)—The Governor of the British Island of Malta in a broadcast today declared that the outcome of an imminent war with Germany was not in doubt.

He added: "We all fervently hope nothing will occur to end the age-long friendship between Italy and Great Britain."

The Governor said that the evacuation of harbor areas was now unnecessary, but counseled the islanders to be alert to take cover if warnings are sounded.

NAZI TROOPS PUSH FORWARD INTO CORRIDOR

Gdynia Bombed—Control Of Air Over Poland And Of Baltic Claimed

Berlin Hails Arrival Of New Russ Envoy And Military Mission

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Sept. 2—Nazi troops moving swiftly but as effectively as a steamroller—according to high command communiques—tonight continued their advance over the lowlands and lakes of Pomorze (the Polish Corridor) and hilly regions of Silesia.

At the same time the British and French Ambassadors awaited the reply to their Governments' final "warnings" delivered to the Foreign Office last night. Authoritative German sources said they did not know when Adolf Hitler's replies would be made.

Diplomatic Relations Off

Meanwhile, diplomatic relations with Poland were broken off in fact when Polish Ambassador Jozef Lipski left Berlin early today.

The German Ambassador to Warsaw, Hans von Moltke, has been in Berlin for some time.

Sweden has accepted the office of conducting Polish affairs in Germany. The Netherlands is conducting the Reich's affairs in Poland.

Russian Mission Arrives

The army's progress frequently was announced by radio. Further news cheering Germans tonight was the arrival of five members of the Russian military commission to negotiate a military accord with the Nazis, and the new Soviet Ambassador, Alexander Schkvarzeff, with a new embassy councilor—both hand picked by Vyacheslaff Molotoff, Russian Foreign Commissar.

Schkvarzeff will be received by Hitler tomorrow for presentation of his credentials. The Ambassador will be accompanied by the head of the Russian military commission, Gen. Maxim Purkajev.

The Russians were given a rousing welcome at the airport when they arrived from Moscow, via Sweden. Another welcome awaited them as their limousines, flying hammer-and-sickle flags, passed the Reich Chancellery in Wilhelmstrasse en route to the hotel.

The crowd, which for days has been before the Chancellery, raised vigorous "Heils" and gave the Nazi salute.

Corridor Practically Cut Off

The supreme high command announced that the Corridor was practically pinched off, trapping Polish soldiers remaining in its extreme northern tip.

Troops advancing from West Prussia were north of Kulm, only a few miles from their comrades driving west from East Prussia. (The Corridor lies between East and West Prussia, separating East Prussia from Germany proper.)

It was stated the West Prussian corps had reached the Vistula river at that point, leaving but a small gap to close.

Grudziadz, where the Polish cavalry schools are located in an old fortification on heights overlooking the Vistula, apparently still was held by the Poles.

Gdynia And Hela Bombed

The high command's communique stated that naval aviators had bombed Gdynia, Poland's Baltic port, and the strong Polish fortification on the peninsula of Hela in Danzig harbor. It claimed Germany was in absolute control of the air over Poland and of the Baltic Sea.

It gave a long list of Polish cities or towns, including Warsaw, in or near which "military objectives" were bombed.

"The fighting group assigned south of the upper Silesian industrial area is nearing Biala and has captured Pless," the communique continued. "Northward, thereof, the Polish bunker line was broken through. North of the industrial area our troops are approaching Warthe (river).

"Detachments of armored cars are proceeding north of Czestochowa (Czenstochau) in the direction of Radomsk. Weilun has been captured.

"Detachments assigned above Kempen are rapidly approaching Sieradz," the communique added. "The P[o]meranian group of fighting f[orces] have crossed the Brahe river, and powerful thrusts began to reach Vistula river southwest of Grudziadz (Graudenz).

"Thereby a connection has been almost perfected with the army group assigned from East Prussia in the direction of Grudziadz. Polish army sections in the northern part of the Corridor have been cut off.

"Cleaning up of Tuchel and Heide is now in progress. An attack ordered from East Prussia southward also began promptly. German troops are advancing toward Przansnysz.

The German air force today conducted lightning-like formidable blows against military objectives.

"Annihilation" In Air

"Numerous Polish planes were annihilated in air battle. On the ground a great number of military aviation plants were attacked, especially at Gdynia, Krakow, Radom, Lodz, Demelon, Brest, Tarnopol, Lublin, Luck, Gotab, Warsaw-Okocie, Posnan-Lawica.

"Planes in hangars and on runways went up in smoke. In addition, tracks were destroyed on important railway lines, military transport destroyed and columns engaged in retreat were bombed."

Munitions Plant Explodes

The communique said a munitions factory at Skarzske-Kanienna exploded after an attack.

"In consideration of today's successes," the communique added, "it may be taken for granted that the Polish fighting force has been struck basically and most severely."

The communique said the German air force was in unlimited control over "the entire Polish space and is now at disposal for further tasks to protect the Reich."

"Naval forces before Danzig Bay fired this morning on fortifications above Hela and war harbor of Hela. The marine aviation groups repeatedly attacked the war harbor of Gdynia with bombs."

The railroad from Silesia to Gdynia, completed through a French loan a few months ago to carry coal to Gdynia harbor, was reported cut early today above Bydgoszcz.

Jablonka Pass Stormed

To the south troops advanced into the hilly mining area of Silesia, reaching Pszczyna and Bielsko. Jablonka Pass, most important gateway in the small Carpathians, on the Polish-Slovak frontier, was stormed and taken, the communique reported. Cieszyn and Oderberg, both of which Poland took from Czecho-Slovakia last October, were said to be in German hands. Oderberg is an important rail head.

Neumarkt, in the Tatra Mountains, was reported taken yesterday. This indicates the international winter resort of Zakopane, in the Tatras, is surrounded if not taken.

The Government announced today that Chancellor Hitler had replied favorably to President Roosevelt's appeal not to bomb open towns. The Chancellor said he had announced in the Reichstag his intention not to do so unless the enemy started it.

Economics Minister Walther Funk, in a talk to directors of the Reichsbank, gave assurances that the Reich's financial and economic situation was unmolested by war, hence it would be unnecessary to take special measures to protect the reichsmark.

On the other hand, Maj. Gen. Konstantin Hierl, labor service leader, announced that a speeding up already has been decreed in the labor service to enlist all girls from seventeen to twenty-five years who were not already engaged in special srvices. The girls will be assigned to duties of helping farmers and mothers.

Hitler May Make His Seizure, Then Offer To Talk

Possibly upon attaining these objectives, for which he said he would fight until they were achieved, Hitler will be ready to tell the British and French that he is willing to quit.

Informed quarters indicated that the reply to them, which is to be made sometime today, depended upon the military situation.

The newspaper Nachtausgabe this afternoon carried another report on the military situation from the high command. Its communique said:

"German troops on the afternoon of September 1 successfully continued to advance on all fronts.

"Early this morning forward movements were continuing everywhere. Jablonka Pass was quickly conquered. Numerous Nazi High Command Declares Meanwhile That Invasion of Poland Is Being Pushed in Spite of Resistance.

By Louis P. Lochner

Berlin, Sept. 2—Adolf Hitler and his advisers are framing an answer to the "final warnings" of Britain and France.

German sources intimated that London and Paris had asked whether Germany were ready to cease operations in Poland even now and negotiate.

The communications were delivered by the British and French Ambassadors here last night.

Meanwhile, the army's high command informed the Associated Press that the advance of German troops into Poland was continuing despite Polish resistance and dynamiting of roads and bridges. The command said the objectives not only had been reached but had been exceeded.

Teschen And Four Other Towns Reported Taken

Teschen has been captured, officers declared, and north of that city on Poland's southwestern border the German troops from Silesia are advancing along the line Pless-Nikolai.

Klobuik, northwest of Czestochowa, has been captured also, officers said, as has Wieroszow, east of Kenten, and Schildberg. In the Polish Corridor the coal transport railway between Bydgoszcz and Gdynia was reached west of Kulm. Tczew also is in German hands.

This would indicate that Germany is trying to get possession of the Corridor as quickly as possible, in addition to having made Danzig part of the Reich.

enemy planes were annihilated when our air force attacked and destroyed Polish airdromes."

Polish Ambassador Leaves Berlin

Jablonka Pass is the most important gateway into southern Poland from Slovakia.

The German press today carried undated official news-agency reports from the Corridor saying the swastika was flying in all villages with German population. The people are gratefully "heiling" the German troops, these reports said.

Polish Ambassador Josef Lipski left Berlin this morning. Asked whether this meant a rupture of diplomatic relations, one authorized person said:

"Call it that, if you will. It's hard, however, to apply old terms to this new situation. Many accepted terms of international law go by the board in these days."

Nazis Flatly Deny Using Fire Bombs Or Gas

It was understood that Sweden took over Poland's interests in Germany, just as Germany arranged to have the Netherlands represent her if the German Embassy in Warsaw closes. Officials here were unable to say whether that had happened yet.

The British and French Embassies continued to function. Both Ambassadors Henderson and Coulondre were on the job, awaiting Hitler's reply.

Categorical deniels were issued by authoritative quarters that Germany was using or, in the course of present operations, had used gas or incendiary bombs.

Foreign correspondents were asked to deny on the basis of their own experience that any Polish bombs had fallen on Berlin.

Russian Military Commission Due In Berlin

Beginning Sunday noon, correspondents were told, military communiques will be issued only once daily. Except for events of the greatest magnitude—such as the capture of Warsaw or another large city—there are to be no other announcements.

A Russian Military Commission of four or five high officers was said to be due in Berlin today. As the new Soviet Ambassador also is expected immediately, informed quarters believed all would come in one plane.

Informed quarters considered it significant that the new Ambassador, Alexander Shkhartzeff, is a textile expert. As the question of raw materials and other supplies is vital to Germany in case of a long war, such an envoy is regarded as the right man in the right place.

Troops from East Prussia steamed into Danzig, which the commander of the German Army, Col. Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, declared had become a zone of military operations.

Albert Förster, Nazi head of Danzig's civil government immediately took possession of the area's railways formerly operated by Poland, their rolling stock and harbor w[illegible]es.

Berlin political circles warned that Britain "will pay the bill" if it enters a war against Germany.

"Germany is ready to fight even a ten-year war for its rights and the final peace of Europe," said a commentary issued by the official news agency.

Berlin Buildings Sandbagged Against Air Raids

Berlin's first night blackout as a protection against possible air raids passed uneventfully, with no signs of undue alarm among civilians.

Sandbags were laid across basement windows of business houses to protect air-defense cellars. Museums took similar steps to guard valuable art objects.

Civilians trained for emergency police work were called out to relieve regular police for patrol duty in occupied areas behind the army.

Throughout Berlin fire and police emergency squads were held in constant readiness to respond to any major catastrophes. Small fires and minor accidents were attended to by trained civilian squads chosen from occupants of each building.

Radio Ban Issued, Bombing Of Civilians Denied

The newly created Cabinet Council for National Defense in its first decree prohibited Germans from listening to foreign radio reports. The decree laid down penalties as severe as death for "spreading false reports." This appeared to be a reaction to radio bulletins from Warsaw and other cities regarding German bombings of Polish towns, which Berlin sources said were false.

The army denied that its planes had bombed open Polish cities. "Official investigation shows that all such assertions are untrue," it said in a communique. "The German air force has attacked only military objectives."

The commentary in which the official news agency declared Germany was ready to fight ten years, if necessary, also answered what it termed English efforts to blame Germany for the failure of diplomatic negotiations preceding the present conflict.

"The Only Real Aggressor Is Great Britain"

Declaring England has "not played fair" and had demonstrated through unconditional support of Poland that she wanted a European war, the commentary continued:

"England today still faces the choice of whether it wants to plunge the world into misery, but its politics of the last months and the aims it thereby pursued leave no doubt that it will not be deterred from the consequences of European catastrophe.

"The only real aggressor, therefore, from the political and historical viewpoint, is Great Britain, while the Polish Government functions only as a subworker."

The capture of Westerplatte by the cruiser Schleswig-Holstein was announced last night. The communique said the capture followed a short but sharp bombardment of the Polish guards.

Charge Of Bogus Offer To Poland Denied

The official interpretation of the situation was that no state of war exists between Poland and Germany. Hope was expressed [illegible] would in official quarters that the German expedition into Poland would not lead to a general war.

German officials heatedly denied Polish and British charges that Warsaw had inadequate or no notice of Hitler's sixteen-point offer to adjust his dispute with Poland. They said Hitler's program had been given to the British Ambassador, and that the German Foreign Office waited two days for a Polish representative to come and get his copy.

This was in response to radio reports that Britain did not receive Hitler's program for transmission to Poland.

Sixteen Points Now Apparently Dead

Indications that the sixteen points no longer would stand as German's offer were seen in admissions by informed persons that if, for example, Katowice in Polish Silesia should be "liberated," it might be permanently retained by the Reich. Hitler's sixteen points made no mention of Silesia.

The German nation, although somewhat stunned by the sweep of the first day's events, rallied behind Hitler. Economy measures were put into effect as civilians began to adjust themselves to life on a martial basis.

Schools were closed, store-window lighting was forbidden after 9 P. M., and private cars and trucks were requisitioned for military use. Restaurant bills of fare were cut 30 a minimum. State operas and theaters shut their doors.

Arrangements were made to evacuate the American Embassy and consulate staffs from Berlin by train during the morning.

BOMBERS WOUND 30 OTHER CIVILIANS IN WARSAW AS APARTMENT HOUSE IS HIT

Eyewitness Tells Of Scenes Of Horror—Huge Craters Blasted In Ground—Bitter Land Battle Reported In Silesia

By HELMER W. PETERSON
Associated Press Correspondent

Warsaw, Sept. 2—Twenty-one dead and more than thirty wounded were counted tonight after a German bomb had struck an apartment house in a Warsaw workingmen's quarter.

The bombs tore off the side of the apartment house as if it had been made of paper. Rescue workers still were clearing away the resultant pile of debris in a search for further casualties when I inspected it.

Huge Crater Dug By Bomb

One of the bombs had dug a crater fully twenty feet in diameter and the open ground was piled high with furniture and belongings.

In the center of a large park in the southern section of Warsaw I saw where a bomb had struck a simple wooden dwelling, killing two persons and wounding one. In an open field near the Vistula river, where ten light bombs apparently had been released simultaneously, they had dug craters in a 100-yard circle.

Witnesses Take Refuge

With me on this tour of inspection of damage done by the German air bombings were C. Burke Elbrick, secretary of the American Embassy; Clifford Norton, charge d'affaires of the British Embassy, and officials of the Polish Foreign Office.

During the tour the party twice was forced to take refuge because of air-raid alarms, five of which in all, sounded through the city today. Once we took cover in a shallow dugout filled with workingmen, their wives and their crying children.

Bombs Smash Windows

The worst scene of damage was at Kolo, the workingmen's quarter, where, in addition to wrecking one apartment building, the bombs had smashed windows in several others.

An old man gulped back tears as he said his wife and two children were dead. A woman, still staring blankly into space, said:

"My husband is gone."

Evacuation Under Way

A large-scale evacuation of women and children was under way from the center of Warsaw to the suburbs and nearby villages after the air-raid sirens sent residents scurrying to cover.

The fifth alarm lasted an hour, with sporadic outbursts of anti-aircraft fire. Americans reported they saw nine planes, presumably German, high over the center of the city. A Polish-American reporter saw one German plane shot down in a dog-fight with two Polish pursuit ships near Otwock, ten miles from Warsaw.

Anti-aircraft guns were heard in action on the city's outskirts after the fifth alarm sounded at 2.45 P. M. and the attackers apparently were driven off.

120 Bombs Dropped

An official news service communique stated that yesterday German raiders dropped 120 bombs on Warsaw and its vicinity, killing ten and wounding twenty-five in Warsaw proper, with the number of casualties in the suburbs still undetermined.

Although official information was lacking, it was reported tonight that severe fighting between Polish and German land forces was proceeding in Silesia, where the Germans are attempting to pinch off Katowice by attacks from two directions.

A radio announcement at 4 P. M. claimed that Polish troops still were holding the Westerplatte munitions base in the harbor of Danzig.

Truce Possibility Seen

Reports were meager, however, as there was considerable speculation on the reasons for the lack of information. Some observers suggested the remote possibility of a momentary truce pending another effort to effect a settlement between Germany and Poland.

Official Polish Telegraph News Agency communiques were confined to delayed reports of earlier developments.

The news agency said 130 persons, mostly women and children, were killed in ninety-four Nazi air bombardments.

Thirty-four German planes were reported shot down, 100 tanks captured and more than 500 Germans taken prisoner.

Seventy of the tanks were said to have been taken following a sharp engagement near Wielun, a few miles inside the Polish border, opposite Breslau.

The most severe air bombardment was reported at Wielun, where the Polish news agency said the hospital was set afire.

Isolated homes, cities, towns and villages were said to have been objects of the air attacks. Civilians were reported bombed and machine-gunned on open highways.

The agency added that a number of women and children were "brutally" removed to East Prussia from a number of German-occupied towns and villages in Pomorze (the Polish Corridor).

Warsaw's bakeshops were without bread because virtually all bakers had been called to military service.

August Cardinal Hlond, Primate of Poland, sent a message to President Ignatz Moscicki that the Catholic Church in Poland "is praying for the victory of our heroic army."

Moscicki declared Poland under a "state of war," superseding the "state of national emergency" decreed yesterday. Parliament assembled in an extraordinary session to enact emergency war measures.

Accustomed To Alarms

Warsaw's population appeared to be becoming accustomed to the air-raid alarms, proceeding in orderly fashion to shelters and cellars when the sirens wailed.

Scenes recalling Japanese air bombardments of Chinese cities and the Spanish civil war were enacted, however, as civilians ran to shelter.

This correspondent was caught in the downtown section when one of today's alarms sounded and took refuge in an open archway with a group of policemen, streetcar motormen, women and children.

The adults talked in low whispers. The children, not knowing what it was all about, were terror stricken.

Refuges from western Poland and the Corridor are crowding into Warsaw. One sees many small children struggling along with the oldsters, all carrying heavy bundles of personal belongings.

New war posters appearing during the day showed a soldier jabbing with a bayonet at a bloody hand grasping a Nazi insignia.

Boy Scouts and other youth organizations have been called to duty to assist in anti-air raid precautions.

Takes Over Gasoline

The Government took over all supplies of gasoline and announced that hereafter it would be issued only on special permits, thus greating reducing automobile traffic.

All privately owned paintings in the Warsaw Art Gallery are being removed to safer places.

William Morton, United States consul, announced his safe arrival at Brzesc-Litewski (Brest-Litovsk), where a Polish-American evacuation center has been established. The embassy has arranged with the Latvian Government to permit Americans to escape through Riga without visas, thus expediting their movement.

Warsaw Raided From Air.

WARSAW, Sept. 2 (A. P.) (4 P. M.)—Air raid sirens sounded throughout Warsaw five times today, but German warplanes reached the city only after the last alarm in mid-afternoon. Anti-aircraft guns were heard firing against the raiders, but information was lacking immediately on the results of the engagement.

Thousands of residents scurried into basements and other shelters, leaving the streets deserted as the sirens wailed.

The Polish Telegraph Agency reported at noon today that 130 persons had been killed, a majority of them women and children, in ninety-four air raids by Nazi bombers since the Germans launched their invasion of Poland.

The agency said that the attacks were made on isolated homes as well as cities, towns and villages. Civilians were reported being bombed and machine-gunned on open highways.

The most severe bombardment was reported at Wielun, near Czestochowa, in southwestern Poland, where the municipal hospital was said to have been set afire.

Up until noon, the news agency said, it was without information regarding the progress of the German invasion. It said that the air raids were being conducted throughout Poland.

First Day of War.

The Polish agency said that a number of women and children were being "brutally" removed to East Prussia from a number of small towns and villages occupied by German troops in the Corridor.

The news agency said that the first day of military activities resulted in the destruction of sixteen German tanks and one armored train and the capture of more than 500 German prisoners.

A communique stated that thirty-three German airplanes had been shot down, including twenty bombers.

August Cardinal Hlond, Primate of Poland, sent a message to President Ignace Moscicki declaring that the Catholic Church in Poland "is praying for the victory of our heroic army."

Poland Under State of War.

President Moscicki declared Poland under a "state of war," today as official reports said Polish forces were resisting German invasion on three fronts. The "state of war" supersedes the "state of national emergency" decreed yesterday.

An extraordinary session of Parliament assembled to enact emergency war measures, and the German Charge d'Affaires was handed his passports with a request that he leave Poland.

Under instructions from his Government, the Netherlands Minister assumed charge of German affairs.

The first heavy impact of the undeclared war came from German warplanes, which bombed more than a score of cities, including Warsaw, in advance of the three invading German armies.

Sirens sounded two air raid alarms in Warsaw at 7:55 A. M., but German planes failed to appear. There was a heavy mist.

The Government announced it had answered President Roosevelt's appeal for nations to refrain from bombing civilians by issuing army orders not to bomb open cities or expose civilians to direct or indirect danger.

The first heavy impact of the undeclared war came from German warplanes, which bombed more than a score of cities, including Warsaw, in advance of the three invading German armies.

A Government communique admitted many civilians were killed and wounded on the first day of the fighting. It was said officially, however, that the air raids had inflicted only slight damage to vital services.

Throughout the nation today's dawn was awaited fearfully, with all Polish cities darkened.

In addition to five air raids on Warsaw yesterday, a communique said Nazi raiders also bombed the following cities: Kutno, Lwow, Krakow, Gdynia, Katowice, Augustow, Brodbica, Tczew, Radomsko, Torun, Tunel, Krosbo, Trzebiba, Jslo, Tomaszew, Misk-Mazowiecski, Grodno, Biale-Podlaska, Radom, Pultusk, Korbryn, Plock and Otwock.

German Attacks Called Unprovoked.

It proclaimed, however, that Germans were making unprovoked attacks, and Polish civilian losses already made Germany's compliance with the humanitarian request doubtful.

Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz addressed a message to Poland's army, declaring:

"The time has come to fulfill our duty as soldiers. You are fighting for existence and for the future of Poland.

"For every step the enemy takes on Polish soil he must pay heavily in blood.

"Confident in the righteousness of our cause and God's justice, each of us must make a supreme effort for honor and justice.

"Victory will be ours and our allies."

The Government decreed censorship on telephone, telegraph and mail facilities.

A German warplane, it said, fired the first shot in the war by bombing Puck yesterday at 5:20 A. M. (12:20 A. M., New York time Friday).

The Poles declared they shot down sixteen German war planes and captured two German armored trains. They admitted the loss of two Polish planes.

Many Bombs Declared Duds.

An air defense communique said many of the German bombs were duds and failed to explode.

On the ground, other official reports asserted, Polish troops were fighting back spiritedly against the German forces and were holding fast.

The most violent fighting, a General Staff communique declared, was in Silesia, one of the three main sectors of the German drive.

The German columns were pointed from East Prussia against Dzialdowo and Mlawa; from Pomerania against Chojnice at the narrowest point of Pomorze (the Polish Corridor), and from Breslau against Katowice.

Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, who was made commander-n-chief of all Poland's armed forces yesterday, and designated as successor to President Ignace Moscicki should the presidency becomes vacant during the war, broadcast a message of encouragement to Polish soldiers defending the Westerplatte a munitions dump opposite Danzig.

Gdynia Under Fire.

Gdynia, the Polish port on the same harbor as Danzig, was reported kept under heavy bombardment.

President Moscicki summoned Parliament into extraordinary session beginning today.

It will adopt emergency financial, economic and military measures to run the nation during the war.

One company of Poles reported it was holding Westerplatte, despite three German attacks and bombardment by the German naval training ship Schleswig-Holstein.

[A German communique reported capture of Westerplatte.]

Official reports on air-raid tolls were confined to the terse statement that civilian casualties were severe "since most attacks were on unfortified cities." There was no estimate of the number of dead and injured.

Many women and children were known, however, to have been killed or injured when German planes bombed a refugee train at Kudno, seventy miles west of Warsaw, yesterday.

Officials also said bombs had fallen on a hospital for feebleminded Jewish children just outside Warsaw, causing many casualties and also on a health resort for tuberculosis sufferers at Otwock, on the Vistula River ten miles from here.

Five times between dawn and nightfall German raiders came over the Polish capital yesterday.

They failed to hit railroad or highway bridges across the Vistula River or, as far as could be ascertained, any military objectives.

The day's longest and severest raid lasted for an hour and a half.

Anti-aircraft batteries encircling Warsaw made it impossible for the German planes to dive low to reach their objectives.

Targets, apparently, were Government buildings in the center of Warsaw and the bridges across the Vistula which, if put out of commission, could seriously impede communications between western Poland, the coast and Warsaw.

Although tremendous explosions shook the city and the populace underwent terrific strain, there was no panic.

U. S. Woman In Poland Tells Of Fleeing Nazi Air Raiders

Takes To Auto With 9-Year-Old Son And Runs Gantlet Of Anti-Aircraft Guns

SEP 3-1939

The following story was written for the Associated Press by an American woman now resident in Poland, a former reporter of the Richmond (Ind.) Palladium.

By MRS. W. J. MACHEDA
[The former Helen Robinson]

Warsaw, Sept. 2.—At home in Katowice I was awakened Friday morning by German airplanes overhead and anti-aircraft guns opening up.

Since the previous night's news had been disturbing, I decided to leave immediately as Katowice was certain to become the scene of heavy German attacks.

I packed a bag and started driving my car with my 9-year-old son, Jan. Taking outside roads in order to avoid bombing of Katowice's streets, I met hundreds of other refugees hurrying along in the open country's comparative safety.

Especially along a road near Czestochowa, which runs close to the German border, were all highways and paths full of peasants attempting to escape. Some drove cows some carried children and their household belongings. Some of them were bowed under the burden of heavy bundles slung over their backs.

Then German planes soared over the roadway, and we were suddenly between anti-aircraft fire from both sides. Soldiers halted me once to have me take a wounded man, but when they saw my small son they waved me on and took the following car.

Germans staged another raid while I was passing through Radomsko. I saw several houses seriously damaged and was told thirty were killed and sixty were wounded there, but I didn't want to linger for a personal survey.

Finally arriving in Warsaw, I was telephoning the American consulate for advice when German warplanes staged their big (Friday) afternoon raid.

That's enough for one day and I plan to leave via Riga, Latvia, if and when possible, although it now looks almost impossible.

My husband, a Polish citizen, is still carrying on his mining enterprise on the Slovak-Polish border. My son wants to go to America immediately and bring back cowboys to fight Hitler.

Corridor Is Split in Two, Germans Report; Large Polish Force Bottled Up in the North

BERLIN, Sept. 2 (AP).—The supreme high command issued a communique tonight announcing that Polish forces in the north of the Polish Corridor had been cut off and that "the advance of German troops has brought further quick successes on all fronts."

SEP 3-1939

"The fighting group assigned south of the Upper Silesian industrial area is nearing Biala and has captured Pless," the communique said. "Northward thereof the Polish bunker line was broken through. North of the industrial area, our troops are approaching Warthe (river).

"Cleaning up of Tuchel and Heather is now in progress. An attack ordered from East Prussia southward also began promptly. German troops are advancing toward Przansnysz.

"The German air force today conducted lightning-like formidable blows against military objectives.

"Numerous Polish planes were annihilated in air battle. On the ground a great number of military aviation plants were attacked, especially at Gdynia, Crakow, Radom, Lodz, Demelon, Brest, Tarnopol, Lublin, Luck, Gotab, Warsaw-Okocie, Posnan-Lawica.

"Planes in hangars and on runways went up in smoke. In addition, tracks were destroyed on important railway lines, military transports derailed and columns engaged in retreat were bombed."

The communique said a munitions factory at Skarzske-Kanienna exploded after an attack.

SEP 3-1939

"In consideration of today's successes," the communique added, "it may be taken for granted that the Polish fighting force has been struck basically and most severely."

The communique said the German air force was in unlimited control over "the entire Polish space and is now at disposal for further tasks to protect the Reich."

"Naval forces before Danzig Bay fired this morning on fortifications above Hela and war harbor of Hela," the communique said. "The marine aviation groups repeatedly attack the war harbor of Gdynia with bombs."

NAZIS DECLARE ARMY HAS CUT CORRIDOR

Say Forces From East and West Have Met—Polish Cities Are Bombed Again—Hitler Drafting Reply to Allies.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—The German radio announced today that two German columns which had entered Pomorze (the Polish Corridor) from the east and west had effected a junction, thus bottling up the Polish forces in the northern part of the Corridor.

'Purely Military.'

BERLIN, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio announced tonight that a great number of air attacks on purely military objectives in Poland had completely established the German conquest of Polish air.

The announcement also declared that the German Navy completely dominates the Baltic.

TEXT OF COMMUNIQUES

Berlin, Sept. 2 (AP)—The text of yesterday's High Command communiques:

"In pursuance of German fighting activity starting from Silesia, Pommerania and East Prussia, the expected initial successes were attained today on all fronts.

"Troops advancing from the south over mountains reached the line Neumarkt-Sucha. South of Maerich Ostrau the River Olso was crossed near Teschen.

"South of the industrial region our troops are advancing regularly at a point on the same height with Katowice. Troops sent from the Silesia area are advancing in a steady flow in the direction of Czenstochau.

"In the corridor our troops are approaching Brahe and have reached the Netze at Nakel.

"Close to Graudenz (Grudiasz) there is fighting. Forces advancing from East Prussia are fighting far in on Polish soil.

CITE AIR RAIDS

"The German air force, in repeated powerful raids today, attacked and destroyed military plants on numerous Polish airports at Sich, Rahmel, Putzig, Graudenz, Posen, Plock, Lodz, Tomaszow, Rabom, Kattowitz, Krakau, Lemberg, Brest and Terespol.

"In addition, several battle squadrons effectively supported the advance of the army. The German air force thereby succeeded in winning air supremacy (luftherrschaft) with the Polish space although strong forces were held in reserve in central and western Germany.

"Parts of the German sea forces took positions before Danzig Bay and are rendering the Baltic safe. The training ship [illegible]wig-Holstein lying in Neufahrwasser opened fire on Westerplatte, occupied by Poles. In Gdynia the naval harbor was bombarded by the air force."

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 2.—D. N. B., official German news agency, reported from Maehrisch-Ostrau today that German troops captured the town of Oderberg, on the southwest Polish-Czechoslovakian frontier, last night.

Oderberg is an important railway crossroads. The Poles seized it first when the Czechoslovak state went to pieces. The campaign for the conquest of Polish Silesia was considered greatly advanced by the fall of Oderberg.

SEP 3-1939

London, Sept. 2 (AP) (Passed through British [illegible]—An Exchange Telegraph (British news agency) dispatch from Zurich, Switzerland, said today that railroad stations in three towns in German Silesia had been heavily damaged by artillery bombardments.

The dispatch said the stations were at Gleiwitz, Ratibok and Beuthen.

Bad weather conditions, it added, are hampering German bombing squadrons.

Exchange Telegraph also reported today that a Warsaw broadcast at 12.39 P. M. (6.39 A. M., E.S.T.) asserted that about a hundred German tanks had been disabled near Wielun.

The broadcast said that a total of thirty-four German planes had been shot down since the beginning of the German invasion.

The British Broadcasting Company, in a news summary today, said that a Polish telegraph agency report declared 130 persons had been killed, 12 of them soldiers, in 94 German air raids on Polish territory.

The number of seriously wounded, the report added, "is large."

The broadcast also quoted an official Polish communique, signed by Marshal Smigly-Rydz, as saying the Polish Army had generally repulsed the German attack.

women and two men were wounded by fragments of bombs, and "many" were killed or wounded when a train carrying women and children from the capital was bombed near Kutno, sixty miles west of Warsaw.

It added that German planes early today bombed Kielce, Radom, Modlin, Pultusk, Kobryn, Warsaw and Krakow. The raids extended to many cities in central Poland, the embassy said, "which constitutes a real undisputed act of aggression."

Reich Bomber Reported Grounded In Lithuania

Craft Said To Have Been Disabled By Polish Fire—League Commissioner Arrives

Kaunas, Lithuania, Sept. 2 (AP)—A German bombing plane disabled by Polish fire landed yesterday at Bartininkai, southern Lithuania, according to reports received here today.

Prof. Karl J. Buckhardt, League of Nations comissioner to Danzig, who was ousted when the Free City was rejoined to the Reich yesterday, arrived from Danzig.

He asserted that Albert Förster, Nazi chief of Danzig, gave him just two hours to pack and depart. Every ten minutes during his packing, Buckhardt said, Gestapo (secret police) agents asked him whether he was ready to leave.

He said he was obliged to abandon a valuable library.

4 Killed, 6 Hurt at Plock

PARIS, Sept. 2 (AP).—A Polish telegraphic Agency dispatch from Warsaw today said that German planes had raided Plock, killing four persons and wounding six. The agency said that three German planes dropped fifty-five bombs on the city of Warsa, where one person was killed and three wounded. The Germans also raided the health resort at Iwonicz.

Raids on Poznan and Lwow

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 (AP).—The Polish Press Bureau reported today that the city of Poznan, Poland, had been bombed by German planes today for the second time.

Several civilians were killed, the bureau said. It added that planes proceeding from Slovakia had bombed the city of Lwow three times. One civilian was killed and several wounded in this raid, the report added.

Berlin Radio in an Air Raid Warning.

BERLIN, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—The Berlin radio broadcast at 6:10 P. M. (1:10 P. M. New York time) today a warning that an air raid on Berlin was expected tonight. The population was asked to remain calm "even if bombs fall."

Slovakia Expects Slice of Poland

BRATISLAVA, Sept. 2 (AP).—An official Slovak communique expressed confidence today that the German army would seize Polish territory for Slovakia.

"The whole nation is convinced that the evolution of events will automatically return those Slovaks that have been torn away by force in Northern Slovakia to the Slovak state," the communique said.

(The Polish Embassy in London said the Polish Foreign Minister had received a note from the Slovak Minister to Warsaw protesting against the "suppression of Slovakia by the Third Reich" and saying the Slovak people will furnish "armed resistance against German forces." It was not known on what authority he made this statement.)

The Slovak communique said:

"Great tension of the international situation has no unfavorable influence on Slovakia. The population of Slovakia, preserving all necessary calm and forethought, are carrying on daily work with the greatest of security. There are no signs whatever of panic or fear of the future found in neighboring states. The Slovakia population believes in victory for the Slovak cause."

POLES SAY REICH BOMBS CIVILIANS

Embassy in London Tells of Plane Raids.

LONDON, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—Asserting that Germany "stands before the world as a wanton aggressor," the Polish embassy in London today said: "It is not only military objectives which are being bombed by the German military air force.

"This morning German aviation again bombed unfortified towns, claiming many victims among the civilian population.

"Contrary to the declaration of Herr Hitler, the above cities bombed are of no military importance whatsoever and the numerous casualties were all among the civilian population, including women and children."

It said that Polish anti-aircraft guns near Krakow brought down three German planes, that four more were shot down near Gydnia, and that near Chojnice Polish troops captured an armored German train.

In an air raid on Warsaw this morning, the embassy said, three

RUSSIAN ARMY MISSION LANDS AT NAZI CAPITAL

New Soviet Ambassador Also Arrives to Relieve Pact Negotiator.

LATTER RETURNS TO MOSCOW

Successor Is Hailed in Berlin as 'Right Man' for Germany—He's a Textile Expert.

BERLIN, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—Alexander Shkvartzev, the new Soviet Ambassador to Germany, and seven members of a Soviet Military Mission landed at Templehof Airdrome today at 5:34 P. M. (12:34 P. M., New York time).

The presentation of the new Ambassador's credentials to Hitler will be speedier perhaps than that of any diplomat arriving here since the advent of Nazism.

It was considered significant here that the new Ambassador is a textile expert, hence a practical man of affairs who later went into diplomacy.

As the question of raw materials and other supplies is most vital to Germany in the event of an extended conflict, a man versed in this question is regarded as the right man in the right place at the Soviet embassy in Berlin.

Brass Band Reception.

A large crowd of officials gathered to meet the visitors and a brass band lined the runway. Baron von Doernberg, Chief of Protocol of the German Foreign Office, greeted the new Ambassador as he stepped from the plane.

A number of army Generals shook hands with their Soviet colleagues, all of whom were dressed in mufti and wearing soft hats.

The cordiality of a reawakened Russo-German friendship was underscored at the reception formalities.

The new Ambassador reviewed a guard of honor. The company's commander reported to the Ambassador, saluting with drawn saber.

The party finally left for the Soviet embassy via Unter den Linden. The Soviet motor caravan, flying small hammer and sickle flags, was wildly "heiled" as it passed Wilhelmstrasse and the Chancellery, where a large crowd had been milling about today.

MOSCOW SENDS NEW ENVOY TO NAZI CAPITAL

Negotiator of Treaty With Hitler Is Relieved by A. A. Shkhartzeff.

LATTER BUT 39 YEARS OLD

Textile Specialist Is Believed to Have Served as Secretary to Foreign Commissar.

MOSCOW, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—Soviet Russia has "relieved" her Ambassador to Germany, Alexei F. Merekaloff, of his duties, it was disclosed today. A. A. Shkhartzeff was appointed to succeed him.

Merkekaloff, who handled much of the important negotiations for the recently signed non-aggression pact between Russia and Germany, was relieved "in connection with his appointment to other work."

It was learned that the new Ambassador has been extremely close to the Commissar for Foreign Affairs, Vyaschelaff Molotoff. Shkhartzeff was recently in Moscow as a specialist in the Soviet Textile Scientific Institute. At one time he was sent to Berlin as a special adviser. It is understood that he was once Molotff's personal secretary. He is 39 years old.

Merekaloff, it was believed, will receive a special assigment at the Foreign Office here in relation to the Soviet's new foreign policy, since he has been in Berlin for a year and a half and is a specialist on Russo-German relations. The extreme change in Soviet foreign relations since the removal of Maxim Litvinoff as Foreign Commissar and the signing of a non-aggression pact with the Reich is believed in unofficial circles to be responsible for the diplomatic switch.

Newspapers Satisfied.

Soviet newspapers today lauded Russia's position as compared to that of the western European States.

The Government newspaper Izvestia said that the country had a "completely independent" foreign policy, asserting that the Soviet Government was carrying out "the principle of Lenin in the peaceful co-existence of two (political) systems."

The Communist party newspaper Pravda said: "Western Europe is plunged into alarm but Moscow is bright and as cheerful as always. . . . There is no danger of war with Germany. Amateurs who attempted to make other people pull their chestnuts fro mthe fire are protecting their bank cellars with sandbags. Some of them may burn their own fingers."

This was an obvious reference to Great Britain and France.

However, anti-air raid blackouts are being carried out nightly in various parts of the city.

Polish Prime Minister Says "We Shall Win"

Tells Parliament "Joseph Pilsudski Taught Us How To Win Liberty And Defend It"

London, Sept. 2 (AP)—Exchange Telegraph (British news agency) said tonight the Polish wireless had announced that Prime Minister Slawoj Skladkowski told a meeting of the Polish Parliament:

"War has been imposed on us. We accept the challenge. We have been attacked and we are fighting. We shall win this war because Joseph Pilsudski taught us how to win liberty and how to defend it. We shall win this war under the supreme command of Marshal Smigly-Rydz and, by the holy passion of our Lord, he will lead us to victory.

"We are in the second day of the war. The tremendous rush of historic events does not hold any terrors for us. We know that the fortunes of war are changeable but the unconquerable Polish army will defeat the historic enemy of our country and crush Teutonic arrogance."

HITLER ACCEPTS ROOSEVELT PLEA ON CIVILIAN RAIDS

Agrees Not to Bomb Cities From Air if Poland Does

Not Do It Either.

BERLIN, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—The Government announced today that Adolf Hitler had replied favorably to President Roosevelt's appeal to belligerents in a possible European war to not bomb open (unfortified) towns and cities. Hitler's reply was made yesterday.

Hitler pointed out he already had announced his agreement with this principle through his Reichstag address of yesterday and that he always had held this view. It was self evident, he added, that the enemy must observe the same rule.

The text of Hitler's reply, which was handed yesterday to Alexander Kirk, American charge d'affaires, follows:

"The view sponsored in the message of President Roosevelt that laws of humaneness demand under all circumstances to desist in connection with military actions from throwing bombs on non-military objects corresponds decidedly with my own standpoint and has ever been advocated by me.

"I therefore unconditionally accept the proposal that Governments involved in the present hostilities make public declaration to that effect.

"As far as I am concerned I have already in today's Reichstag speech publicly announced that German air fighting forces have received a command to limit themselves to military objects in their combative actions.

Other Powers Agreed Too.

"A self-evident precondition for letting this command stand is that opposing air forces stick to the same rule.

"(Signed) Adolf Hitler."

(Great Britain, France and Poland have agreed to President Roosevelt's suggestion. The United States Ambassador in Rome received an oral reply from the Italian Foreign Office which was not made public, but it was believed that acceptance was indicated in view of the Cabinet's decision to refrain from taking the "initiative" in any military operations.)

Nazis Warn Holland.

Hitler replied to Mr. Roosevelt soon after his Reichstag speech, handing his answer to American Charge d'Affaires with the request that he "bring it immediately to the attention of the President of the United States."

It was officially announced that Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop sent a note to the Polish embassy here advising the Polish Government that German air forces received a command to limit themselves to military objects during action in Poland.

The note further said the command would stand only so long as opposing forces observed the same rule.

Should Poland not fulfill this precondition, the note stated, "strongest reprisals" would be taken.

ENVOY RECALLED

Japanese Ambassador to Italy Ordered Home.

TOKIO, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—Recall of Toshio Shiratori, Ambassador to Italy and long an advocate of a military alliance among Japan, Germany and Italy, was reported today by Domei, Japanese news agency. Poor health was given as reason for his orders to return to Japan.

[However, the Japanese Government, since signature of the German-Russian non-aggression pact, has turned back on the policy of close co-operation with the Rome-Berlin axis for which Shiratori had fought.]

Worker for Axis Alliance

Ambassador Shiratori, along with his diplomatic colleague, Gen. Hiroshi Oshima, Ambassador to Germany, was well in advance of his government in his eagerness to commit his country to an alliance with the axis.

Shiratori and Oshima helped negotiate the original German-Japanese anti-Comintern pact, which was concluded in November, 1936. At that time Shiratori was Minister to Sweden, making occasional trips to Germany, and Oshima was military attache at Berlin.

Only a month ago, before Germany and the Soviet Union announced their non-aggression pact which projected Japan into the role of an international free lance, these two ambassadors met in Italy for the announced purpose of concluding preparations for Japanese adherence to the Italo-German military alliance. In May they had threatened to resign unless Japan joined the alliance.

Shiratori became known throughout the world as the Foreign Office spokesman in Tokio during Japan's conquest of Manchuria. It was from this post that he went to head the legation in Sweden in 1933. He became notorious for his undiplomatic language after November, 1931, when he accused Henry L. Stimson, then American Secretary of State, of "flying into fulminations" in an interview in which the Secretary was misquoted as having said that the Japanese Army was "running amuck."

Shiratori is fifty-two years old and is an expert at poker, golf and Japanese chess.

Anglo-Turkish Love Feast

Ankara, Turkey, Sept. 2 (AP)—British Ambassador Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Huguessen today handed President Ismet Inonu a personal message from King George VI expressing "the greatest satisfaction in knowing that Great Britain and Turkey are firmly linked in the bonds of friendship in these anxious moments."

President Inonu gave the Ambassador a reply expressing Turkey's reciprocation of these sentiments.

Italy Moves Troops Back From Border Of Egypt, Officials Hear

Alexandria, Sept. 2 (AP)—(Passed by censor) High Egyptian sources said today that Italian troops are being moved back from the Italian Libyan-Egyptian frontier.

Italy's decision not to take the initiative in any military operations attendant upon the German-Polish conflict was interpreted to mean there was no imminent danger of Egypt being involved in hostilities. At the same time Egyptian and British forces are cooperating closely for defense against any emergency. Many Germans have departed from Egypt in the face of developments at home.

All measures to implement the British-Egyptian treaty have already been taken and Egypt stands ready to support her ally, Britain, in the event of war with Germany. Martial law was proclaimed, effective today, and full powers to maintain internal security were vested in the Premier, who also is Minister of the Interior.

BALKAN STATES CALMEST AREA OF OLD WORLD

Neutrality, Even Though Precarious, Seems Assured For Present

Italy's Aloofness From German-Polish Hostilities A Big Factor

R. B. PARKER

[By the Associated Press]

Budapest, Sept. 2—Neutrality—precarious though it may be—today seemed assured for the time being for southeastern Europe.

The Balkans, traditional tinder box of Europe and site of the outbreak of the World War, was the calmest part of Europe. With the press of the various nations sharply divided over the question of responsibility for the Polish-German undeclared war, five countries—Hungary, Yugoslavia, Rumania, Bulgaria and Greece—bent all efforts to stay clear of northern Europe's conflict as long as possible.

All Seems Calm In Turkey

The sixth southeastern European country, Turkey, which is linked with France and Britain in a mutual assistance treaty, reportedly has taken no measures so far which would indicate hostilities were expected in this part of the world.

Bulgaria and Hungary, at least for the time being, have completely soft-pedaled the territorial claims on Rumania which many observers had expected would furnish the spark to set off southeastern Europe simultaneously with a northern conflict.

Italy's aloofness, at least for the moment, from the German-Polish conflict plays a big part in the calm in this part of the world. Should Italy enter the war, southeastern Europe believes war must follow for Turkey, which thereupon becomes an active enemy of Fascists.

To Germany's Interest

The neutrality of this region, according to diplomatic observers, is working to the interest of Germany, regardless of the individual nations' reasons for remaining quiet.

France and Britain thereby lose another possibility to get at Germany from the east as they did in 1917.

Another factor that diplomats see as favoring Germany is the maintenance of good commercial relations between the Reich and Balkan states, thus assuring the Nazis of ample foodstuffs and raw materials.

Defines Yugoslavia's Stand

Premier Cvetkovic of Yugoslavia declared in a speech today that Belgrade would take up arms only if directly attacked. All indications were that Bulgaria would follow Yugoslavia's lead.

Hungary has offered minority treaties to Rumania and Yugoslavia as proof of her will for neutrality. Rumania has officially expressed disinterestedness in any conflict of the big powers.

All southeastern Europe has taken precautionary military measures but they are far short of mobilization. They consist principally of rationing foodstuffs and taking other common precautions.

NORTHERN EUROPE WAITING TENSELY

Expects Quick Decision on a General War.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—Neutral countries in northern Europe anxiously waited today to learn whether the German-Polish conflict would become, within the next few hours, a general European war.

News that all German radio stations were hooked up together and that regular programs had been canceled awaiting an important announcement brought listeners in groups to family and public radios.

Danish newspapers carried a German communique to the effect that Adolf Hitler's troops were victoriously advancing, capturing Teschen, Schildberg, Kulm and Dirschau among other places.

There was a dearth of direct news from Poland, but the Danish Agency reported that the Sejm (Parliament) was meeting in special session in Warsaw. Newspapers carried unverified reports that Warsaw was bombed and a Polish denial that the capital was in flames.

There was no indication here of what Hitler's answer to the British-French last warning would be, but it was reported that Ambassador Nevile Henderson and Robert Coulondre would see German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop soon for what might be a final interview.

Some papers published a report that Premier Mussolini had been encouraged by Paris to undertake an eleventh-hour attempt at mediation.

All towns between the German Siegfried and the French Maginot lines were reported deserted.

Latvian Declaration Signed

RIGA, Latvia, Sept. 2 (AP).—President Karlis Ulmanis today signed a declaration that Latvia would keep her neutrality. At the same time, some reservists were called to the colors.

Danish Parliament

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 2 (AP).—The Danish Parliament, in session to consider the European crisis, was expected to adopt a neutrality declaration this afternoon.

It was understood five classes would be called to the colors, raising Denmark's armed strength to a total of 45,000 men.

Informed sources said Danish currency would remain tied to the British pound.

Luxembourg's Appeal

Luxembourg, Sept. 2 (AP)—The Luxembourg Government tonight appealed to its people to refrain from any partisanship which would conflict with the neutrality policy of the tiny country wedged between Germany and France.

Citizens were urged not to loiter near frontiers.

Finland Declares Neutrality.

HELSINKI, Finland, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—President Kyosti Kallio last night issued a decree that "during the war arisen between Germany and Poland, Finland will observe complete neutrality."

WAR IN EUROPE GIVES SHANGHAI JITTERS ANEW

Citizens Of Prospective Belligerent Nations Rub Elbows There

Expect Japan Will Stay Neutral—Ships Flee Chinese Port

[By the Associated Press]

Shanghai, Sept. 2—Shanghai's foreign population nervously watched the rapid-fire developments in Europe today amid uncertainty over the repercussions that war might bring to the international city where troops and citizens of prospectively belligerent nations rubbed elbows.

One lone French sloop and a tiny Italian gunboat were the only foreign war vessels left in the Whangpoo river, normally choked with warcraft. All the large British, Italian and French ships slipped out of the river during the last week.

British Fleet Off Coast

Ships of the British China seas fleet—heavy and light cruisers, destroyers, an aircraft carrier and submarines—were reported at various points along the coast between Hongkong and North China. The location of the other departed vessels was unknown.

All indications here pointed to Japan remaining neutral. Japanese shipping schedules were continuing without interruption and no move had been made to evacuate large Japanese colonies at Hongkong and Singapore.

Japanese Plans Upset

Well-informed foreign sources believed, however, that only the circumstances created by the German-Soviet non-aggression pact had upset Japanese plans to occupy the International Settlement of Shanghai and, possibly to attack Hongkong in the event of a European war.

Such plans had been reported under discussion recently, but the present impression was that Germany's action had made the anti-Comintern pact a dead issue for the Japanese. Some foreign observers argued, Japan could gain nothing by stirring up trouble in the Orient.

Meanwhile, the position of German citizens in Shanghai and Tientsin was considered similar to 1914, when they were interned by the British for the duration of the war.

Three German Liners At Kobe

Italian and German merchantmen scurried to safety in prospective neutral ports as the outbreak of war became imminent. Three German passenger ships, the Scharnhorst, Elbe and Kulmerland, were reported tied up at Kobe. The Italian liner Guilio Cesare remained at Shanghai after canceling its regular passenger sailing, but was reported to be preparing to depart with 200 Italian marines, constituting the Italian defense force.

One thousand British Seaforth Highlanders were held in readiness to move within twenty-four hours, and similar instructions went to the Durham regiment at Tientsin. The Durham withdrawal would leave Tientsin without British forces as the gunboat Sandwich expected sailing orders momentarily.

Danes Take Measures For War Protection

Copenhagen, Sept. 2 (AP)—(Passed by Censor)—The right to postpone military service was canceled today as the Danish Parliament drafted a series of emergency measures.

The Parliament approved organization of an air-raid precaution service and issued an order to doctors to serve where needed. It ruled that private property can be expropriated and hoarding was forbidden.

The World War Extraordinary Commission was recreated and prepared to confiscate stocks, issue ration cards and regulate prices.

Prime Minister Thovald Staunting and Peter Munch, Foreign Minister, received Ulrich von Hassel, German Ambassador-at-large, and Fritz Fink, German Minister to Denmark.

BOSTON, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—William Cardinal O'Connell, dean of the Roman Catholic hierarchy in the United States, asked priests of the Boston archdiocese today to offer prayers at each daily mass until further notice for the cause of world peace.

Yugoslav Appeal to Army

BELGRADE, Sept. 2 (AP).—War Minister Milan Medic today asked the Yugoslav army to be ready at a moment's notice to make any sacrifice for the homeland.

He congratulated the army on the discipline it had displayed in the current crisis.

Yugoslav political circles expressed satisfaction Hungary and Bulgaria apparently intended to remain neutral in any European conflict. These circles were especially pleased by the Italian attitude of neutrality.

Windsor Will Fly Home

SEP 3 1939

[By the Associated Press]

Paris, Sept. 2—British sources close to the royal family said the Duke of Windsor was flying back to England in a day or two for the first sight of his homeland since his abdication from the throne December 10, 1936.

It was believed the Duchess, the former Wallis Warfield, his American-born wife, would go with him.

These sources said the former British King sent for his private pilot who left Farnborough, England, this morning for the Riviera, where the Duke and Duchess have been living.

The plane's departure time for England was not disclosed. Thus, the imminent threat of war has ended a voluntary exile of nearly three years in which Windsor plunged for "the woman I love." He abdicated as King on December 10, 1936, and arrived in France two days later.

Taken Little Action

He has taken little action of political importance since November 5, 1937, when labor objections caused him to abandon a proposed survey of labor conditions in America.

He lately stepped into the public eye again with a radio appeal as "a simple citizen of the world" to King Victor Emmanuel of Italy to try to save the world peace.

The Duke, always intensely patriotic, has indicated his desire to serve his country again if needed.

"I am now a very happily married man," he once said, "but my wife and I are neither content nor willing to lead a purely inactive life."

There have been rumors lately of an "important job" awaiting him in England if his country went to war, but there has been no indication of what it would be.

Shuttled In France

The Duke and Duchess have shuttled between Paris and the Riviera, taking their pastimes where they found them. They have passed this summer at the Chateau de la Croe on the Mediterranean at Cap d'Antibes.

The impression in British circles familiar with the Duke was that the man who was brought up to reign over the British Empire was chafing at his exile and desired to return home where he could put his energies and talents to use.

At the height of his brief reign, on July 26, 1936, Edward VIII came to France to dedicate the monument to Canada's World War dead at Vimy Ridge. Nearly 100,000 persons, massed in the valley below the monument, followed his movements and cheered his words like those of an idol.

Abdication Crisis

Soon afterward, the crisis broke over his intention to marry Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, and the King who had come to the throne January 20, 1936, left it December 10 of the same year.

On the night of June 3, 1937, he and the Duchess, just married at the Chateau de Cande in the Loire Valley at Monts, boarded a train at Laroche-Migennes and traveled across Europe to their honeymoon at the Schloss Wasserleonburg in Austria.

They came to Paris in September and a typewritten note, issued at the Hotel Meurice October 3, announced the Duke's first postrule project—a survey of housing and working conditions in Germany and the United States.

But a later note, handed out November 5 at the Meurice, announced the trip to America was off because of "grave misconceptions which have arisen and misstatements which have appeared regarding the motives and purposes of the industrial tour."

1938 Was Tranquil

The next year, 1938, proved comparatively tranquil for the Windsors. They spent the spring in the Chateau de La Maye at Versailles, now the home of fugitive King Zog of Albania. In the summer, they took the Chateau de la Croe on the Riviera.

That fall they returned to Paris, to stay again at the Meurice, and had two significant meetings there—one with the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, November 11, the other with Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax, November 24.

Took New Home

This year, the Duke and Duchess took their new home on the fashionable Boulevard Suchet near the Bois de Boulogne. The Duke became a sort of honorary member of the American colony, attending parties at the United States Embassy and the American Club. Most of his time was passed in playing golf on nearby courses.

He planned a trip to French Morocco in April, but went only as far as the Riviera and then canceled the journey because of the crisis over Germany's occupation of Czecho-Slovakia and Italy's conquest of Albania.

The Duke heartily enjoyed a brief flurry of activity during a subsequent tour of World War battlefields, when he broadcast to the United States an appeal for peace, May 8, from Verdun.

Thereafter, he subsided again into inactivity.

HOW IT WENT IN '14

Britain Gave Germany but 24 Hours to Halt Invasion.

LONDON, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—The business of declaring war is comparatively a simple proposition.

Here's the way it was done in 1914:

On August 3, Great Britain sent Germany a twenty-four hour ultimatum demanding that it cease the invasion of Belgium.

No reply was received within the time limit and at 11 P. M., August 4, 1914, the British Government issued this announcement:

"Owing to the summary rejection by the German Government of the request made by his Majesty's Government for assurances that the neutrality of Belgium would be respected, his Majesty's Ambassador in Berlin has received his passports and his Majesty's Government has declared to the German Government that a state of war exists between Great Britain and Germany."

At midnight, King George V presided over a meeting of the Privy Council at Buckingham Palace and signed the proclamation of war. It was posted on public notice boards the following day.

French Speeches '14 Have Familiar Ring Now

SEP 3-1939

Germany on the March Again, Only Characters Differ

PARIS, Sept. 2 (AP).—The characters were different but the issue, in French eyes, was the same as the French Parliament convened today, twenty-five years after its historic session of Aug. 4, 1914. Then, as now, an extraordinary assemblage was precipitated by Germany on the march.

Listen to the speech of the President of the Chamber in 1914: "Frenchmen, who for forty-four years have made every sacrifice to the cause of peace, today are ready for every sacrifice for the holiest of causes—safeguarding the civilization and liberty of France and Europe."

Notice the similarities, too, in the message to the Republic by its then President, Raymond Poincare, which followed:

France, "as watchful as she is pacific, is prepared." France's enemies would meet "our valiant covering troops now at their battleposts."

Then, as now, the country was "closely united," according to the President, and preserving her "coolness," which has been maintained "ever since the opening of the crisis."

Then, as now, statesmen talked of the "sacred union", of support from her loyal friend, England"; of "absurd German pretexts for war."

LOOK FOR CHURCHILL

British Political Circles Expect Him in Cabinet.

SEP 3 1939

LONDON, Sept. 2 (A. P.) (Passed through British censorship.)—The British Press Association said today "There is a strong impression in political circles that Winston Churchill will join the Government shortly."

It added: "Mr. [Anthony] Eden's return is not regarded as so probable, and it is at present too early to say what is likely to be the position of Opposition leaders such as Mr. [Arthur] Greenwood [Labor], and Sir Archibald Sinclair [Opposition Liberal]."

Britain Is Ready For War to Finish

SEP 3 1939

LONDON, Sept. 2 (A. P.). (passed through British censorship).—Typical of the almost unanimous acceptance by the British press that war is inevitable was this comment today in the Times of London:

"Since Herr Hitler has chosen war, in spite of the many chances given to him up to the last hour to avoid it, war there must be.

"There was abundant evidence yesterday of that, in Mr. Chamberlain's words: 'We are ready.'"

The newspaper proudly pointed out the smoothness with which the removal of children, women, invalids and the aged was carried out in London and other metropolitan centers.

It said British efficiency and spirit were better than in 1914 or 1938.

URGES BRITISH UNITY

Archbishop of Canterbury Appeals to People.

LONDON, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—(Passed through British censorship).—The Archbishop of Canterbury, in an appeal for loyalty, calm and unity, said today, "let us allow no feelings of hatred or ill will toward our enemies to stain the honor of our cause."

"May God defend the right," he prayed.

Writing in the Canterbury Diocesan Gazette, the Archbishop said Adolf Hitler was "the last man to listen to peaceful persuasion," but added "we have no feelings of enmity toward the German people."

"Rather, we have a feeling of sympathy," he continued. "Their minds have been bemused by what can only be called unscrupulous propaganda and we believe that in their hearts they long for peace as truly as ourselves."

SEP 3 1939

Government Also Tightens Its Blackout Restrictions

SEP 3 1939

LONDON, Sept. 2 (AP).—Thousands of babies donned into anti-gas protective helmets today as Sir John Anderson, in charge of air-raid precautions, issued circular instructions. The government also tightened restrictions for the second straight blackout tonight.

Anti-gas helmets, huge affairs which look like a sleeping bag topped by divers' helmets, have been issued at the rate of several thousand a day for children under two and a half years. About 2,000 were issued, along with instructions for use, to children in the most vulnerable areas of the metropolitan section today.

Air-raid wardens were irked by failures in many sections to observe last night's blackout and promised penalties for similar omissions tonight.

War: Zoo Kills Snakes

SEP 3-1939

LONDON, Sept. 2 (AP).—Keepers of the London zoo today destroyed with gas scores of poisonous snakes, spiders and scorpions as a war precaution to eliminate the danger of their escape during air raids.

SEP 3-1939

London Exchange to Stay Closed.

LONDON, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—The Stock Exchange Committee announced today the exchange would remain closed on Monday.

The market suspended sessions on Friday. The official announcement attributed the move to a disruption of transportation facilities incident to the evacuation of sections of the civil population of London as an air raid precaution. Brokers were told that they would be notified when trading would be resumed.

Today's announcement said that the usual fortnightly settlement of brokerage accounts, scheduled for Thursday, September 7, had been postponed to September 21.

France Begins Placing Finances on War Basis

Removes Rule Requiring 35% Coverage on Bank Notes

PARIS, Sept. 2 (AP).—France started putting her finances on a war basis today.

A decree published in the official journal suspended the requirement for the Bank of France to maintain a 35 per cent coverage in gold and foreign exchange of bank note circulation. The last statement, as of Aug. 24, showed the bank held 62.64 per cent coverage as compared with 65.35 per cent on Aug. 17, bank note circulation having jumped from 123,000,000,000 francs to 129,000,000,000 in the week.

The same decree ordered withdrawal from circulation of five-franc coins in nickel and ten and twenty franc pieces in silver. The Bank of France was authorized to issue five, ten and twenty franc paper notes. A later decree will set the date at which the coins will cease to have legal value.

A convention concluded Sept. 29, 1938, between the Finance Ministry and the governor of the Bank of France also was approved by the decree. That convention provided for just such measures as were taken today but it was not put into force last year because the crisis then ended in the Munich settlement the next day.

Other decrees also published in the official journal provided, principally, authorization for the stock market to move from Paris; opening of a treasury account of 1,200,000,000 francs (about $29,220,000) for the development of merchant shipping; removal of budget limits for military expenditures on mobilization.

[The Order of the Iron Cross was created in 1813 during the War of Liberation and was revived in 1870 during the Franco-Prussian War and again during the World War. Hitler himself received the Iron Cross, first class, for his exploit in May, 1918, in capturing a French dugout single-handed after calling upon an imaginary platoon to follow him to the attack.]

U. S.-Canada Travel High Along Niagara

SEP 3 1939

BUFFALO Sept. 2 (AP).—Week end travel across the United States-Canadian border assumed peacetime holiday proportions today, despite the fact that tourists had been barred from favorite Niagara Falls and Niagara River viewpoints on the Canadian side.

Irish Mobilize Reserves; Dublin Has First Blackout

SEP 3 1939

DUBLIN, Sept. 2 (AP).—The Irish army mobilized all reserves and Dublin had its first blackout tonight.

Prime Minister DeValera told an emergency session of the Dail (Parliament) that his policy was to keep Ireland out of any European war. The Dail passed an emergency powers bill for control of food, currency, transport and shipping.

DeValera declared Ireland would try to maintain neutrality as long as possible in any European conflict.

In an obvious reference to British rule of Northern Ireland, De Valera said:

"So long as a part of Ireland is subject to force by a stronger nation it is only natural that the people should look to their own country first."

SEP 3 1939

James Dillon told the Dail that a majority of Irish sympathy was on the side of Poland and against Germany and Russia.

Compulsory blackouts were ordered, beginning tonight.

The emergency powers bill provides for censorship of the press. The measure also permits arrests without warrants.

The delegates representing a membership of 103,000 German-Americans adopted a resolution blaming Hitler's "barbarous destruction" for "destroying the good reputation of Germans throughout the world."

CANADA ALMOST ON WAR BASIS

GROCERS LIMIT SALE OF SUGAR

Dominion's Defense Forces Near Maximum Strength.

SEP 3 1939

TORONTO, Sept. 2 (Canadian Press).—Marching soldiers, uniformed men on guard at bridges, public works and utilities, the refusal of grocers to sell more than a few pounds of sugar at a time, brought to Canada the reality of war abroad today.

The Dominion's defense forces, rallied to service yesterday by proclamation of Prime Minister Mackenzie King, neared war-time strength. Parliament members headed for Ottawa and the special session next Thursday which will decide the extent of Canada's co-operation "at the side of Great Britain."

Provincial Cabinets mapped plans for guarding the power and industrial plants. Recruiting offices were opened. The Defense Purchasing Board asked bids for manufacture of 28,000 pairs of ankle boots for the Canadian military forces. The German exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition was closed.

Pending the meeting of Parliament, the Government prepared to meet any emergency that might arise "in the event of the United Kingdom becoming engaged in war in the effort to resist aggression"—in the Prime Minister's words.

King's proclamation of the war measures act of 1914 put the militia, air and naval services on an active-service footing. Defense Minister Ian Mackenzie said the permanent naval services already are on active duty and the reserve forces will be called up as required.

The militia, to be known as "the Canadian Active Service Force," can serve only in Canada, but the regular troops could be sent abroad immediately.

Means Co-operation.

The term of co-operation with the mother country, which Parliament will be asked to provide, is being worked out in consultations with the British Government. It was not anticipated that any details would be disclosed pending an actual British declaration of war, but it was believed that only the formality of Cabinet sanction was needed to make some emergency measures effective.

These, made possible under the war measures act, would give the Government wide powers, including control of shipping and transportation, trade and commercial censorship and expropriation of private property.

Sea Raider Of 1914

Officer Of Emden, Reich Scourge Of Shipping, Recalls Adventures

SEP 3 - 1939

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 2—"Emden at Penang!"

That message, crackling out over the wireless from the British straits settlement in the fall of 1914 caused a score of Allied war vessels to change their course. A new hunt was on for the most famous of German wartime sea-raiders, the commerce-destroying light cruiser Emden.

Memories of that early morning at Penang, of the chase that followed, of the Emden's bitter end on an Indian Ocean beach, brought to the eyes of the taciturn German naval attache here this week the glow of youthful adventure.

Vice-Admiral Robert Witthoeft-Emden, the attache, was Oberleutnant (Lieutenant, junior grade) Witthoeft, the Emden's chief torpedo officer on her 30,000 mile cruise off the Coast of Asia.

Like U. S. Business Man

A gray-haired pleasant man of 53, Admiral Witthoeft would pass for an American business man. A bit weatherbeaten, yes. But that might come from golf. There is nothing about him of the devils that British shipping circles thought he and his fellow officers were 25 years ago.

The reason they thought that, the admiral calmly related, was that the Emden sank fifteen British merchantmen and two Allied men-of-war within three months and five days. In addition, it captured five other commercial vessels which either were released or converted to German use.

"But remember this," the one-time raider added in his gutteral English, "not one life was lost aboard all those merchant ships."

That brought on the story of how the Emden took her prizes—a story much the same as those of other famous German raiders, Count Felix von Luckner's Seeadler (Sea Eagle), the converted Hamburg-America liner Kronprinz Wilhelm, the cruiser Moewe, the Wolf. Those raiders and others less publicized sent a half million tons of British shipping to the bottom. Count Von Luckner alone was credited with causing a $25,000,000 loss to the Allies.

Carried False Face

For them all the Emden set the pattern. She captured her first prize, the Russian liner Rjasan, on the day England declared war on Germany, August 4, 1914.

A few days later, her crew had rigged up a false face for the well-known "swan of the East," as the sleek 3,600-ton cruiser was known up and down the China coast.

Out of canvas and lumber they built a sham funnel that could be set on her afterdeck to make the Emden—a three stack ship—resemble a four-funneled British cruiser then operating in the same waters.

Working by day and by night, she would sneak close to a merchant steamer, run up her German flag and signal: "Stop. Silence your radio."

Fired If Necessary

If the ship kept moving, the Emden fired a shot or two over her bow. Every time, the merchantmen obeyed.

"Then we sent prize crews aboard," the Admiral related, "removed the captured vessel's crew to one of our auxiliaries (the Emden nearly always had a collier or some other friendly ship following her) and took what we wanted."

"We took food and all kinds of supplies—and soap," he added, chuckling that often the grimy officers and men were badly in need of the latter commodity.

After the Emden's cutters had taken off the last load of supplies (literature concerning the Emden's exploits say there were sometimes coops of chickens, often cigarettes and whisky in addition to more prosaic items) the Germans opened the seacocks of the captive vessel, set off a few explosion cartridges and abandoned ship.

Tracks Are Covered

If there was any delay in the sinking, the Emden fired a few shells into the wavering hulk. There must be no tracks to tip off enemy war vessels that the raider was near.

Sometimes the Emden left the steamship lanes far at sea to run close in shore. Once she shelled oil tanks at Madras, India, Admiral Witthoeft said.

Then there was that day at Penang—October, 28, 1914.

Admiral Witthoeft said the Emden moved into the 1,000 yard wide mouth of the harbor—"it was like a sleeve"—at first dawn. The goal was the disabling of war and merchant vessels docked at the tiny island off the Malay states.

"A French destroyer was keeping watch for us, we later found out," the admiral related, "but a very bad watch it was. Nothing tried to stop us."

Both Torpedoes Strike

Through the dim light the Emden sighted the Russian cruiser Jemtschug at anchor. Sneaking to within a few hundred yards of its prey the German fired one, then two torpedoes. Both hit. There was a terrific explosion aboard the Jemtschug.

In the harbor come suddenly to life, a French destroyer far down the "sleeve" blazed away, but her shots fell short. In no danger from that quarter the Emden crew was startled by billows of smoke at the harbor entrance.

Fearing a trap, she turned and headed straight at what she believed an enemy warcraft. It turned out to be a small civil boat, but the Emden was near the harbor entrance and decided to keep going.

Outside she met the lookout, the French destroyer Mousquet. Engaged her and sank her, hesitating long enough after that to pick up thirty-seven survivors. Another French destroyer, the Fronde, trailed her away, but the Emden plowed through the seas. The Fronde was broadcasting to Allied warships and bases for miles around that the Emden was within her grasp.

On Last Assignment

A few days later the little German sailer sent her captives, including the Mousquet crew, ashore on a new prize and was off to her last assignment.

Out in the Indian Ocean there is an important British cable station in the Keeling or Cocos Islands (not the Cocos where President Roosevelt fishes off Central America). Telegraph cables from India to Australia and from Australia to Africa cross there.

Important as a message center to British forces, the station became the target for an Emden raid. Landing a wrecking party of fifty on Direction Island in the group, the Emden stood calmly offshore awaiting the arrival of one of her auxiliaries.

Smoke on the horizon was identified as coming from the friendly ship and the Emden permitted the vessel to come within 10,000 yards.

Maritime Group Asks War Risk Compensation

SEP 3 - 1939

West Coast Federation, In Letter To Roosevelt, Says It Will Demand Pay Increase

San Francisco, Sept. 2 (AP)—The Maritime Federation of the Pacific advised President Roosevelt today it would ask a war risk compensation of $250 a month and a war risk life and disability insurance policy of $25,000 in behalf of each crew member of American ships sailing in war zones.

The federation said it also wanted a fifty per cent. wage increase for the unlicensed personnel, effective immediately upon entry of their ship into such trade. The federation, an organization with C. I. O. leanings, is composed of several of the major maritime unions of the West Coast.

"We cannot allow," wrote Bruce Hannon, secretary-treasurer, to President Roosevelt, "a state of war or declaration of national emergency to be used as a weapon of union-smashing forces to wipe out the civil rights of the American people."

F. D. Won't Be Rushed Into War Decisions

SEP 3 1939

White House, State Department Demand Clearer Picture Before Taking Action

Washington, Sept. 2 (AP)—Surface developments in Europe today left Washington officials uncertain as to what the next turn of events might be, but some were inclined to draw encouragement from the apparent slackening in hostilities between Germany and Poland.

There was no word of any major clash between German and Polish troops, and this was regarded in some quarters as at least a faint indication that a general European war might yet be averted.

Both the White House and the State Department made it plain that this Government would take no steps to invoke the Neutrality Law until a clearer picture of the European situation was obtained.

REPORTS CONFUSING

At Secretary Hull's press conference, a reporter recited press reports from abroad, and asserted that they were confusing to observers here.

Hull said that his reports, too, failed to bring any concrete outline of developments. He said he felt it was a sound policy for the State Department not to publicize rumors and reports which might be proved incorrect within from three to six hours.

In other official quarters, observers said they were unable to add up" such developments as the seeming slowing down of military operations, the French expression of willingness to participate in a last-minute peace effort if German "aggression" were halted, and Chancellor Hitler's decision to delay reply to Great Britain's most recent note.

F. D. WON'T BE RUSHED

Along with Hull, Stephen Early, White House secretary, emphasized that the Administration would await further developments before it takes any major steps. He said President Roosevelt would not be "catapulted or rushed into a decision" on invoking the Neutrality Law or calling a special session of Congress.

Mr. Roosevelt started work today on the address he will make to the nation at 10 o'clock Tuesday night, a talk which was officially described as designed to "allay anxiety and relieve suspense" in this country.

The form of the address necessarily will depend, however, on European developments, and one said it thus would not be completed until late Sunday.

The Chief Executive arranged to see Army and Navy intelligence heads daily to study the European situation, and had his first conference with them this forenoon. A large map has been installed in the White House to facilitate this study. High State Department officials will have access to the President at all times.

BIG FOREIGN SHIP REGISTRY LIKELY

SEP 3 - 1939

Increase Is Expected in U. S. Merchant Marine.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—War abroad may mean a tremendous increase in the American merchant marine, if events follow the pattern of the world war prior to the entry of the United States into that conflict.

From July, 1914, to June 30, 1915, registry of foreign-built ships under the American flag increased by 148 vessels of 523,000 gross tons. The next year 70,000 tons were added, and another 67,000 tons in 1917 brought the new registry before the United States' declaration of war to 660,000 tons.

The rush to register under the American flag was obviously a move to enjoy the rights of a powerful neutral. It may have had some effect on this country's negotiations with Great Britain over rights on the high seas in the early years of the war.

Until the Panama Canal act of 1912 no ship built outside of the United States could be registered under the American flag. But that law opened the door to foreign-built vessels less than five years old. Three weeks after the war began the five-year limitation was removed by the ship registry act of 1914.

The tremendous increase in tonnage the first year brought on an acute shortage of officers, because of requirements that United States ships be commanded by Americans. A proclamation was issued to permit holders of foreign licenses to help operate American ships. It became known as the "red ink" ticket rule because of a special license stamp.

American registry had been sought as a protection for ships of belligerent nations as far back as the Franco-Prussian war of 1871.

NEWS DELAYED, NOT SUPPRESSED

Newspaper Men Reveal Difficulties in Filing Their Dispatches

European censorship is delaying news but so far as known there has been no suppression of the truth as newspaper men see it, the Associated Press said today.

Chief difficulties are encountered in London where Thursday evening censors walked unannounced into communications offices and took possession. Many dispatches have been held for as long as five hours there. No dispatches come through with the former speed of cable and wireless companies.

Berlin, center of German military information, has a mild censorship but Associated Press correspondents had no evidence that any dispatches had been suppressed or distorted. Transmission from Berlin at present is more rapid than from other capitals.

Paris has a theoretical censorship even in peace time which now is functioning actively but with fair speed.

Moscow and Rome maintain a "responsibility censorship" as Berlin did formerly. That means the correspondent may be punished by expulsion from the country if he sends out news considered dangerous or too antagonistic.

Telephone Calls Halted

Much of the present difficulty was caused by the British interruption of news telephone communications Thursday because news from many European capitals normally was transmitted through London.

Since there is no longer open telephonic communication between London and other capitals news is sent directly to New York from Berlin, Moscow, Rome and elsewhere.

That serves to avoid any possible British censorship of such foreign dispatches and also prevents delay.

Farley Sleeps on Deck as Manhattan Sails.

WASHINGTON OFF FOR EUROPE

Normandie and Rome Still Held at New York Piers.

COBH, Ireland, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—The United States liner Manhattan sailed homeward last night with 1,700 aboard, 500 in excess of its ordinary passenger list.

Accommodation was provided on deck for Postmaster-General James A. Farley, who embarked with other Americans fleeing European hostilities.

Six hundred Americans besieged the shipping office at Cobh, pleading for accommodations on the Manhattan, but only 200 could be taken.

British liners have canceled calling at Cobh. Travelers who were due to return to America on British and German lines appealed to the United States Line for passages home.

The President Harding, which sails from here on September 6, will take on many stranded Americans.

The American consul appealed to hotels and private houses to provide lodging for American refugees waiting on ships.

It was believed Cobh might be made the terminus for United States liners on this side of the Atlantic.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—The State Department said today that its special division to handle repatriation of American citizens in Europe would be headed by Breckinridge Long, former Ambassador to Italy.

SHIPS TO SAIL BACK FOR ALL STILL ABROAD

New Emergency Schedules Adopted To Speed Evacuation

Outbound Liners Carrying Extra Cots—Sand Bags Protect Engines

SEP 3-1939

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 2—Thousands of American war refugees streamed home on a dozen ships tonight as American shipping adopted new emergency schedules to evacuate those remaining in Europe.

The United States Lines announced its next four incoming ships—the President Roosevelt, the Manhattan, the Washington and the President Harding—would sail back to Europe as soon as possible.

Along with half a dozen other liners, the Washington left New York today for Europe carrying 750 emergency cots for the return trip, and 375 passengers, forty-eight of them American citizens.

Sails For Europe

The newly camouflaged British Franconia, with a bomb-protective layer of sandbags on her engine hatches and her bridge roof, sailed for Boston and Europe with 135 passengers.

The American steamer Exeter, the Norwegian Stavangerfjord and the American Scanpenn also sailed, along with the Dutch Zaandam and Pennland.

Four American flags six by nine feet were painted on the Scanpenn's sides, and two cloth flags were draped on her decks. She carried 23 passengers and 150 emergency cots.

Sailing Postponed

The British Carinthia's sailing was postponed to tomorrow as she took on a coating of dull battleship gray. At Quebec, the Europe-bound Cunarder Ausonia paused while a crew painted on similar camouflage.

Four empty German ships were at sea hurrying home—the Bremen, which sailed from New York Wednesday; the Columbus, which left Havana early today after abruptly dropping off 750 cruise passengers, and the St. Louis and the New York, which left here earlier in the week.

The British liner Queen Mary is due Monday from Southampton with 2,332 passengers, 250 over normal, along with the British Samaria with 809 passengers, from Liverpool, and the American Banker with 103 from London.

Liner Roosevelt Due

Due Tuesday with hundreds more war-fleeing Americans are the President Roosevelt with 583 passengers, from Havre; the French Champlain from Havre; the Dutch Veendam from Rotterdam; the American Scanstates from Copenhagen, and the Polish Batory, with 642 passengers from Gdynia.

Due Wednesday are the Manhattan, with 1,513 passengers, from Havre, and the American Importer from Liverpool.

The Swedish liner Kucgsholm sailed from Gothenburg tonight with 1,259 passengers, 945 of them Americans, the Swedish-American line reported. She is due here September 11.

To Sail Back Tuesday

The United States Lines announced the President Roosevelt would sail back Tuesday noon for Queenstown, Southampton and Havre; the Manhattan Saturday for Queenstown, Plymouth and Havre; the Washington, due back here the sixteenth, returning the twentieth for Queenstown, Plymouth and Havre; and the President Harding, due the eighteenth, returning the twenty-third for Queenstown, Southampton and Havre—all returning from Europe as soon as possible.

In port here, stalled indefinitely, were the French Normandie, the British Georgic and the Italian Roma, the only sizable Italian ship in the Western Hemisphere.

Nazi Ship Reported Trailed By British

SEP 3-1939

San Francisco, Sept. 2 (AP)—The German merchant ship Portland, unheard from since it sailed from Everett, Wash., Wednesday, was reported tonight being trailed by three British naval vessels somewhere off the Pacific Coast.

The Marine Exchange of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce received the information, but attaches said they were not at liberty to disclose the source of it.

Color to the report was lent by the fact that, although the Australian cruiser Perth and the Canadian destroyers Ottawa and Resitgouche had been scheduled to arrive here Tuesday, it was later announced they would not come to San Francisco.

"No Information"

Inquiries as to the vessels' whereabouts at the British consulate here brought a reply, "No information."

On normal schedule, the Portland would have arrived at Portland, Ore., two days ago. Mackay Radio said had not been able to communicate with the ship.

Should war be declared, the merchantman would be considered legitimate "booty" if overtaken by a British naval vessel.

The Portland's American passenger list left the port at Everett after being held virtual prisoners several hours while port authorities conferred concerning the vessel's status.

AMERICANS STAY IN REICH

More Than 50 Intend To Remain There, Come What May

Berlin, Sept. 2 (AP)—Come what may in Europe, more than half a hundred American citizens, mostly representatives of American business firms and newspapermen, plan to remain in Germany if possible.

SEP 3-1939

An American Chamber of Commerce survey disclosed there are about fifty Americans in Berlin and thirteen in Hamburg. The families of most reporters are still here, but virtually all tourists have left.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—Two hundred American tourists left Copenhagen today for Goteborg, Sweden, to board the Kungsholm for the United States. The Kungsholm will carry 1,500 Americans, among them Representative Richard Wigglesworth, Republican, of Massachusetts, and Senator Alexander Wiley, Republican, of Wisconsin.

Bremen Keeps Location Secret

Copenhagen, Sept. 2 (AP)—Agents of the North German Lloyd said today the liner Bremen, en route from New York without passengers, was "somewhere at sea" but they could not give its exact whereabouts. They expected the liner to reach Bremen tomorrow or Monday.

(The Bremen sailed from New York Wednesday night, after it had been held two days while Government inspectors searched the ship for contraband. It has not been heard from since, radio messages going unanswered as the captain apparently endeavored to keep the $20,000,000 liner's position a secret.)

U. S. TO GO SLOW ON DECLARING ARMS EMBARGO

Roosevelt Won't Be Rushed Into Invoking Present Neutrality Law.

EARLY STATES HIS POSITION

Meanwhile Bloom Declares Act Will Be Quickly Smashed When Congress Meets.

SEP 3-1939

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt will not be "catapulted or rushed" into a decision on invoking the neutrality act, a White House official said today.

Asserting that the President intends to go slow, Stephen Early, his press secretary, said that the language of the law left it to the President to decide when a state of war exists.

Many "nice and deep questions" are involved, he said, and "no man today is going to be catapulted or rushed into a decision on any one of those points."

"Certainly I don't think the President will be," he added with the further comment that the intention to move slowly applied also to a decision on when Congress would be summoned to consider revision of the neutrality law.

While the President himself has said that a decision on invoking neutrality and calling Congress must await developments, Mr. Early declared today that for all practical purposes the neutrality law requires the President to issue a proclamation when war is declared. So far no war has been declared, he added. To illustrate, he cited the fact that Japan and China have been in an undeclared war for many months and no neutrality proclamation has been issued.

As one of the "deep questions" involved Mr. Early continued, it was not certain whether it would be considered a declaration of war if Great Britain and France, through their Parliaments, merely voted to carry out their agreement to assist Poland.

Two Views of Embargo

Meanwhile two congressional leaders stood on record today for and against the arms embargo law.

Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, a leader of the group which prevented action at the last session on the administration's proposal to repeal the ban on arms shipments to warring nations, issued a warning last night that if United States would enter the European conflict the arms embargo were repealed.

SEP 3-1939

However, Representative Bloom of New York, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, predicted the prohibition on arms sales to belligerents would be thrown out at a special session. He said initial replies to inquiries sent Democratic House members who voted for the embargo last session indicated many had changed their minds.

Radio Talk Tomorrow.

It was announced that the President had started a schedule under which he would receive the Army and Navy Intelligence chiefs once a day to go over European developments with the use of a large map.

The President made no appointments other than these today.

His aids said that they did not expect him to complete until late tomorrow—because of fast changing developments— the fifteen-minute radio address he will make to the nation tomorrow at 10 P. M., New York time.

The address, officially described as an effort to "allay anxiety and relieve suspense" of the American people, will be broadcast over four national networks and translated into six languages for rebroadcast by short wave to the world.

Secretary Hull declined to discuss today what bearing the declaration of a "state of war" by Poland might have on our neutrality policy.

Students of international law recalled that the United States declared a "state of war" in 1917 instead of making a direct declaration of war against Germany. These persons said that the declaration of a "state of war" presumes aggression by another nation, while an actual declaration of war is a positive statement of determination to wage war against another country.

Hitler's Reply

Secretary Hull received today Chancellor Hitler's favorable reply to President Roosevelt's request that European nations refrain from bombing civilian populations and open cities. It was transmitted to the State Department last night by the American Charge d'Affaires at Berlin, Alexander C. Kirk.

Mr. Hull told reporters that he had no new information from Europe. He added that the situation abroad was now so kaleidoscopic that he would not undertake to give out rumors and reports of developments which might require correction within a few hours.

Some authorities felt the President might include in his radio address a reply of some sort to Hitler who, replying indirectly in the third person yesterday to Mr. Roosevelt's two peace pleas of last week, said that Germany had "left nothing undone" in trying to settle its dispute with Poland in a "friendly manner."

PARIS, Sept. 2 (AP).—More than 1,000 American refugees from war-threatened Europe were left stranded today by a government order halting departure of the French liner Ile de France, just as she was about to sail.

The American Embassy said the French government had assured it the liner would sail "eventually," but the vessel still was at LeHavre 24 hours after her scheduled departure.

The United States announced both the President Harding and Washington will be turned around at LeHavre and will sail, probably next Saturday, to accommodate the large number of Americans in Europe still awaiting transportation home.

Kungsholm will carry 1,500 Americans.

STOCKS, GRAINS UP ON POSSIBLE PROFITS OF WAR

Activity In Chicago Pit Reaches Volume Not Seen Since World War

SEP 3 1939

New York Exchange Has Busiest Saturday In Nearly Four Years

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 2—Financial and commodity markets churned feverishly today as Wall Street and La Salle street tried to gauge the hazards and possible profits of war.

The dramatic buying that had swept into grains, shares of industrial corporations, and sensitive raw materials, continued for an hour, then subsided.

Prices surged upward on top of yesterday's steep advances, then lost part of their gains, but trading swelled to proportions not witnessed in years.

Busiest Saturday In Years

In the Chicago grain pit, it reached a volume not seen since the World War, and the New York Stock Exchange experienced the busiest Saturday in nearly four years.

The relaxing of buying pressure was attributed to a disinclination to go over the long Labor Day week end—no one knew what fateful developments in the direction of war or peace it might bring—too heavily committed. Yesterday the financial sector thought major war seemed inevitable; today some thought there was still an eleventh hour chance of averting it.

Some Of Day's Movements

Here are some of the day's market movements:

Stocks rose $1 to more than $5 a share, then several issues fell back $1 or $2 from the top. Steels, coppers, chemicals, rubbers, sugars and aircrafts were heavily bought.

Wheat at Chicago advanced as much as 5 cents, one day's limit, then fell back to close ⅜ to ⅜ cents a bushel above yesterday, 9 to nearly 10 cents over a week ago.

Staples such as crude rubber for future delivery, raw hides and cocoa, in which trading stopped when they rose the limit permitted in a single day yesterday, finally attracted substantial offerings and prices dipped under yesterday's close.

Cotton, not traditionally a war-boom staple, lost 5 to 70 cents a bale. It was a Saturday holiday in the raw sugar market, where prices jumped the limit of ¼ of a cent yesterday in some of the most strenuous buying efforts in the staple marts.

In metals, leading producers of copper jacked up the price ¼ of a cent to 11 cents, and zinc ¼ of a cent to 5 cents a pound.

Steps taken by the Federal Reserve Bank to cushion the market for United States Government bonds proved effective, and while there was further selling, losses were modest compared with yesterday, largest decline in Treasuries amounting to $6.25 per $1,000 par value bond. Foreign bonds were again depressed, but some of the domestic corporation issues recovered.

Offerings Withdrawn

SEP 3 1939

While sensitive markets were churning, manufacturers and merchants found it difficult to transact business in several lines. Most leading sugar refineries were said to have withdrawn quotations to wholesalers, pending clarification of the temporary market confusion.

Also, in primary markets some leading interests were said to have withdrawn offerings of hides and leather, woolen and worsted goods, some chemicals and drugs, while some buyers made efforts to protect themselves against shortages. Meantime, ocean shipping remained disorganized.

Of course, the long week-end contributed to the general confusion. Business circles pointed out the war confusion has been acute for only a couple of days, and things may clarify quickly. Also, it was noted that latest business statistics were encouraging. The Associated Press seasonally adjusted weekly index of industrial activity advanced this week to the highest level since October, 1937.

Most Heavily Traded Stocks

Here are some of the most heavily traded stocks, showing today's closing price, and the change from yesterday and a week ago:

	Price.	Day's Gain.	Week's Gain.
United States Steel	$55.37	$1.37	$0.62
Bethlehem	68.25	3.25	10.12
Armour (Ill.)	5.37	.37	1.50
Cuban-Am. Sugar	6.37	.37	2.75
Anaconda Copper	30.00	1.87	5.25
Kennecott Copper	38.37	.12	5.62
General Motors	46.00	1.12	1.12
U. S. Rubber	41.50	.50	1.50
Baldwin Locomotive	13.62	.37	2.75

Among higher-priced issues, du Pont closed at $169.50, up $6.50 today, and $9.50 for the week.

Preoccupation in speculative circles was with securities of companies calculated to benefit from war buying or from increases in raw-material prices.

Effect Of War On Trade

War, it was expected, might increase raw staple prices first, through causing a sudden demand to supply and feed armies; second, through taking a large part of the world out of production; third, through interference with shipping, increasing the cost of getting such staples as rubber and tin that come long distances, and fourth, through the possible inflationary effects of huge government spending by nations already heavily in debt.

Business analysts pointed out that immediate effect upon retail prices would probably be unimportant, but that inventories were modest in most lines, and the effect of war could readily become noticeable in the not distant future.

Fighting Abroad Will Help U. S. and Producers, 300 MILLION BUSHELS HERE

SEP 3 1939

Theoretical Market Value Is Up $12,000,000 in One Day.

CHICAGO, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—American farmers, having retained ownership of a larger proportion of their grain corps than ever before, are in excellent position to benefit economically from any commodity price advance that might accompany a protracted European war, grain market experts said today.

Large quantities of grain harvested during the past three seasons now are in the producers' hands, having been held off the market because of low prices and the inducements offered by Government loans.

Sealed in cribs and granaries under Government loans are more than 300,000,000 bushels of wheat and corn which otherwise might have been marketed.

The price advance scored in domestic grain markets in one session yesterday after the outbreak of hostilities abroad increased the theoretical market value of this huge supply more than $12,000,000.

Fighting Answers Question.

Fighting in Europe began on the very day that thousands of farmers who have received loans aggregating $146,000,000 on more than 257,000,000 bushels of corn were expected to decide whether they should pay off their loans and redeem the corn, obtain loan extensions for another year or default and turn the grain over to the Government.

The fact that corn prices have been below loan rates for some months convinced grain experts that farmers either would extend the loans or default to the Government. A sudden spurt in the price, such as occurred yesterday, changed the picture, traders said.

A general war of long duration, pushing corn prices above loan levels, would dissipate the farmers' and Government's problem of carrying a large supply of old corn in addition to a big 1939 crop, they predicted.

Nation Long on Grain.

A similar situation exists in wheat. As of August 23, grain farmers had pledged 57,500,000 bushels of 1939 wheat as security on loans believed to average around 61 cents a bushel on the farm.

Even more wheat is believed to have been shipped to elevators and terminal markets with farmers eligible to obtain loans retaining ownership pending application. This is an unusual situation in grain marketing procedure.

The nation has large supplies of all grains. There was a large carryover of old corn and wheat and the harvest of wheat, corn, oats, rye and barley this season will approximate 4,427,000,000 bushels.

CRISIS FINDS AMERICA AND REICH AT ODDS

Relations Are Held More Strained Than At Start Of World War

SEP 3 1939

Austria's Debt And Punitive Customs Held Two Chief Issues

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 2—The outbreak of war in Europe finds German-American relations far less cordial than in 1914 when the World War began.

War finds the capitals of both countries without their respective Ambassadors. Already nine months have passed since President Roosevelt called Ambassador Hugh R. Wilson home for report and consultation following a severe anti-Semitic outbreak. He has not been returned to his post and there is no evident intention of sending him back. German Ambassador Dieckhoff has been absent from his post for the same length of time.

Debt Still Unsettled

In the last year and a half the United States and Germany have found it almost impossible to settle problems that rose between them.

A series of notes passed between them on the subject of Austria's debts to the United States Government (around $24,000,000, plus about $20,000,000 in debts to private American investors), but no settlement has been reached. Germany alleges she cannot pay the obligations of the country she took over unless the United States takes into account the unfavorable trade balance with this country. This Secretary of State Cordell Hull will not do.

SEP 3 1939

On Trade Blacklist

Another series of exchanges has taken place on the subject of mistreatment of American Jews in Germany.

German exports to this country not only pay higher duties than the products of other countries because she is on the American economic black list, but they also pay punitive customs because countervailing duties of twenty-five per cent. were levied on the grounds that Germany subsidizes exports. With different systems of trade dividing them, commerce between the two nations has declined markedly in the last several years.

Agree On Inheritances

Two points of difficulty between the two governments have been eased slightly in recent months. An agreement was concluded whereby American citizens who receive inheritances from Germans will have a little less trouble getting their heritage out of Germany. And Hitler agreed to a more orderly exodus of Jewish refugees.

Two recent developments in this country have concerned German-American relations. In June a mixed-claims commission decided that the explosions that occurred at the Black Tom and Kingsland arsenals, New Jersey, in 1916-1917 were the result of German sabotage. American claims against Germany for $50,000,000 were validated. This was a reversal of a decision made by the commission at Hamburg in 1930, which accepted the industrial accident theory.

A second development was the investigation started by the Securities Commission into the issue of $73,000,000 in German bonds in this country. The SEC ruled that before the bond issue could be approved, the commission must have information concerning the German budget, the German public debt, gold and foreign exchange, etc. The German Embassy declared that the demands for information were such that no sovereign government could comply with them.

German activities here have been investigated by the House Committee on Un-American Activities. German spies were convicted in a spectacular trial in New York some months ago. The United States, after granting an export license for helium for the new German dirigible, refused to sell the gas to Germany. This Government refused to recognize Germany's acquisition of Czecho-Slovakia. The State Department backed Czech Minister Hurban in his defiance of the German Embassy's demand that he turn over the legation to the embassy.

President Roosevelt has repeatedly condemned European dictators and appealed indirectly to the German people on several occasions. Reichsführer Hitler did not even deign to reply directly to Mr. Roosevelt's appeal to him in April. Instead, he made a public speech in which he derided democracies and shot many shafts of sarcasm at Mr. Roosevelt.

Business Group Thinks Trade Advances Will Be Consolidated

Many There, Caught With Askimark Credits, Already Jittery

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 2—Businessmen here expressed the belief today several factors place this country in a favorable position to consolidate its trade gains in Latin America in the event of a general war in Europe.

They said the situation in 1914 was that the United States played second fiddle to Europe in Latin-American markets, but that this country today is supplying more than a third of Latin-America's needs.

They said also they were encouraged by the recent announcement the United States and Argentine Governments intended to negotiate a trade agreement.

New Argentine Policy

The announcement made by both Governments was regarded as signalizing Argentine departure from its previous policy of restricted, bilateral trade in favor of the more liberal exchange and multi-lateral trade policies embodied in Secretary of State Cordell Hull's trade agreements program.

The Argentine decision was expected to exert a powerful influence on other South American countries with bilateral policies, including Uruguay and Chile.

In analyzing the outlook, businessmen said Germany, as a result of its trade agreement with Russia, would probably offer less competition in the Latin-American market.

From Russia

The raw materials she obtained heretofore from Latin America, they said, would probably be bought, in some measure, from Russia, a nearer source of supply, less likely to be shut off from Germany in the event of war.

In addition, they said, much of Germany's manufactured goods would go to Russia in payment, and thus be diverted from Latin-American markets.

Most important factor in favor of the United States maintaining its trade supremacy in the Western Hemisphere, according to these experts, is the experience in foreign commerce obtained during the past twenty-five years.

Other Factors

Others then mentioned were:

An improved merchant marine, with the east coast of Latin America named No. 1 trade route.

Adequate industrial organization to meet foreign-trade demands, which did not exist in this country in 1914.

Growth of New York as a foreign-exchange center. (In 1914, London was the undisputed center of foreign exchange.)

SEP 3 1939

Preparation

Careful preparation by Federal and private financial organizations to meet the emergency demands of war time.

More efficient credit machinery, including the Export-Import Bank, although, according to these analysts, much yet remains to be done to perfect the operation of the credit machine in foreign trade.

Increased Latin American confidence in the United States and a pronounced willingness to buy this country's products, coupled with a greater degree of self-sufficiency in the other American republics.

The war scare in Europe, catching many Latin American traders with accumulated askimark credits in Germany and facing difficulties in obtaining deliveries, also uncertainty over the future of the European market, caused many of them to restrict further sales to Germany and turn to the United States.

A shortage of manpower and materials in Germany, because of the heavy demands of mobilization, caused further delays in German production for export to Latin America.

One result, reported in a dispatch to the Commerce Department from Venezuela, was a "noticeable trend" by local agents of German firms to representatives to reenter the market, because of the loss of experienced sales representatives.

Informed persons here said this trend had also been reported from other countries, and might cause considerable shift to American products.

Commerce Department officials said meanwhile the United States had able difficulty for Germany in improved the type of it was sending to Latin America.

Knockout Blow: Still A Theory

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 2—Nine out of ten military experts believe that if a general war breaks out in Europe, Germany will try to deliver a quick knockout punch to Great Britain.

But those same experts strongly doubt that "lightning" war by Germany would bring Britain to her knees in a hurry. The lightning game can be played both ways.

Since Munich, French and British air forces have been rapidly strengthened. Even conceding numerical superiority to the Axis, bombing planes from the democracies could give important industrial cities of Germany and Italy heavy doses of dynamite.

Fleet Still Strong

Furthermore, experts say it would be impossible for Germany swiftly to break through the powerful Maginot Line and the No. 1 army of the world.

Germany's tremendous force of bombing planes unquestionably could inflict terrific damage to English shipping and industrial centers. But the English could keep going as long as their fleet remained Europe's premier sea power. And the consensus of the experts is that Nazi bombing planes or submarines could not destroy or cripple British dreadnoughts.

One veteran naval observer says the only way big British or French battleships could be destroyed from the air would be to "anchor them at one place for several days and to lock up their anti-aircraft gunners."

Still A Theory

Aviation bombardment could do heavy damage also to French industrial cities, transportation centers and arteries, but it couldn't knock out enough strategic highways and railroads to render impotent France's steel fortresses and large, well-trained army.

Even with Italy's air force augmenting German squadrons, military men believe the odds still would run heavily against speedy smashing of the British-French combination.

Lightning war, they say, still is a theory, not a fact.

Most experts will tell you it still takes infantry to seize and hold a position and in the Spanish and Sino-Japanese wars, as well as the World War, eighty per cent. of the casualties were inflicted by the artillery. Infantry and artillery don't move like lightning.

Huge squadrons of mechanized forces are largely post-World War products. They've never been used in a large-scale modern conflict.

Italians Tried Them

The Italians tried them, so the grapevine says, in their recent Po Valley maneuvers. The results, it is said, were disappointing.

Franco's motor air forces failed notably to achieve quick victory in Spain. But the Nationalists' cavalry made a far superior showing to the tanks on both sides.

In war it's still difficult to swing from the ground and deliver a haymaker.

Old Laws Bolster Chances of U.S. To Avoid War

Give President Almost As Much Power as Does Neutrality Act

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—President Roosevelt has a broad range of powers, aside from those conferred by the Neutrality Act, which he may exercise to preserve American neutrality.

Some are remnants of the World War, some were put on the United States statute books before the World War. As a whole they give the President about as much power as does the Neutrality Act. All are designed to keep Americans from helping one side or the other in a conflict.

By virtue of a law of 1917 the President, in a war in which the United States is a neutral, may detain any armed vessel, American or foreign, in an American port until it is proven to him that the ship will not be employed against any nation with which the United States is at peace and that it will not be sold to a belligerent nation.

May Order Ship Searched.

The President may order the ship searched, may even order its crew off the boat if his suspicions are aroused.

He may require the owner of a vessel to give an oath before departure of his vessel from an American port that his cargo will not be transshipped or, if it is to be transshipped, to make a full statement as to whom, where, etc.

He may prevent the departure of a ship when he has reason to believe it will carry fuel, arms, ammunition, men, supplies, dispatches or information to any warship of a belligerent. This, however, is also covered by the Neutrality Act of 1937.

Has Many Other Powers.

The President also enforces a wide variety of provisions of the United States Penal Code of 1909 relating to the maintenance of neutrality. The Code covers many activities of Americans that might prejudice American neutrality. It forbids:

Accepting and exercising a commission to serve a belligerent by land or sea;

Enlisting in the service of a belligerent as a soldier, marine or seaman on board any warship;

Enlisting another person in such service;

Hiring another person to leave the United States with the intention of enlisting.

Fitting out or arming and commissioning any ship to be employed in the service of a belligerent;

Increasing the guns of a belligerent warship or increasing their caliber;

Setting on foot or providing or preparing the means for any military expedition.

Still More Provisions.

Here are other provisions the President will enforce:

No belligerent warship is to be permitted to make use of an American port from which a vessel of an opposing nation has departed, until at least 24 hours after the latter ship left.

A warship must leave within 24 hours after its entrance into an American port except in case of bad weather or of requiring provisions for its crew or of needing repairs. But it must leave as soon as possible after 24 hours without taking on supplies beyond what may be necessary for her immediate use. The same warship may not again fuel in an American port until after three months have passed.

If there are several vessels of belligerents in an American port, they must leave alternately, first a vessel of one side, then a vessel of the other.

Citizens Must Be Neutral.

No person within the territory or jurisdiction of the United States may take part, directly or indirectly, in the war.

The President also can proclaim that American ships may not carry arms or soldiers to belligerents or attempt to break any blockade which may be carefully established and maintained.

He may proclaim that Americans who claim protection of this government and misconduct themselves [illegible] a belligerent will do so at their own peril.

Mrs. Roosevelt Surprised Hitler Can Sleep At Night

First Lady, In Column, Voices Sympathy For German People But Questions Führer's Integrity

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 2—Eleanor Roosevelt in her column "My Day" said "it is hard to see how he (Hitler) can sleep at night and think of the people in many nations whom he may send to their deaths."

Continuing in the column, she said: "At 5 o'clock this (Friday) morning our telephone rang (in Hyde Park) and it was the President in Washington. He told me Hitler was about to address the Reichstag, so we turned on the radio and listened."

Mrs. Roosevelt told of a letter she received from a German friend, asking her to try and see Germany's point of view.

"As I listened . . . this letter kept returning to my mind. How can you feel kindly toward a man who tells you that German minorities have been brutally treated, first in Czecho-Slovakia and then in Danzig, but that never can Germany be accused of being unfair to a minority.

"I have seen evidence with my own eyes of what this same man has done to people belonging to a minority group—not only Jews, but Christians, who have long been German citizens.

"Can one help but question his integrity?

"And how can you say that you do not intend to make war on women and children and then send planes to bomb cities?

"No, I feel no bitterness against the German people. I am deeply sorry for them. . . . But for the man who has taken this responsibility upon his shoulders I can feel little pity."

Law Forbids U.S. Citizens To Enter Foreign Armies

1917 Code Provides Fine of $1,000 and 3 Years in Prison

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 (AP).—A statute enacted in 1917 makes it illegal for American citizens to enlist in any European army for hostilities abroad.

A fine of not more than $1,000 and imprisonment for not more than three years are the penalties.

In addition, any American citizen who enlists in a foreign army and takes oath of allegiance to the government he is serving loses his American citizenship.

In the past the State Department has taken the position that citizens who enlist in the military services of foreign states cannot expect to receive the protection which the United States ordinarily accords to its citizens.

Numerous Americans enlisted in the Spanish civil war, but records here show no convictions on charges of violating the enlistment statute.

Seaplanes Go to Halifax To Fly Morgenthau Home

Secretary Due Today on Cutter From Norway

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 (AP).—Two Coast Guard seaplanes have arrived at Halifax, N. S., to fly Henry Morgenthau jr., Secretary of the Treasury, to Washington as soon as the Coast Guard cutter Campbell docks.

The cutter is bringing him home from Norway and is expected to arrive tomorrow.

One of the planes, piloted by Lieut. R. L. Burke, will go to St. Johns, N. F., in case the Campbell docks there.

Weather permitting, the Treasury secretary will be flown non-stop to Washington. The planes were dispatched last night from the Coast Guard air station at May[illegible], N. J.

[illegible] Verne, director of the Louvre, has requested, it was announced today, that all paintings loaned by the Louvre to the exhibition, Masterpieces of Art, at the World's Fair, be held there or certainly in the United States until further notice.

One of the Louvre paintings on display at the art pavilion at the World's Fair is "The Funeral of Phocion," by Nicholas Poussin. Attached to the back of the painting is the admonition: "In the event of war or the danger of war, 'The Funeral of Phocion' must be the first painting removed to the underground vaults in the Louvre."

5-Million Contract Let for Warplanes

Washington, Sept. 2 (AP)—Pressing ahead with its expanded defense program, the War Department announced tentative award today of a $5,000,000 contract for observation planes to the Curtiss Aeronautical Division of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation, Buffalo, N. Y.

Following its usual custom, the department did not announce how many planes would be acquired. It said, however, that the ships would be high-wing, all-metal monoplanes of the latest design. They will be powered with Pratt-Whitney radical engines and will have retractable landing gears, wing flaps and individually-operated wheel brakes.

Approves Issuance Of Continued Invitation To All Nations Exhibiting.

New York Display Viewed As One Way Of Furthering Ideal Of Peace

SEP 3-1939

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 2—President Roosevelt authorized today the issuance of an invitation to foreign countries participating in the New York World's Fair to continue their participation in 1940 and declared the ideal of all nations "must be a world of peace."

The fair originally was scheduled to end November 1. The President told Mayor LaGuardia and Grover Whalen, fair president, yesterday he would like to see the exposition continued for a second year.

Statement By President

The President's statement said:

"I have today authorized an invitation to the foreign countries and nations participating in the New York World's Fair to continue their participation in 1940. I take particular pleasure in extending this invitation at this particular time.

"The world is disturbed by armed strife, but the continuing ideal of all nations must be a world of peace.

Emphasis On Progress

"The continuing emphasis of nations must be on the progress of civilization and not on its destruction. The continuing hope of the nations must be that they will increasingly understand each other.

"The New York World's Fair is one of the many channels by which this continuing conception of peace may be made known.

"The duty rests on all of us to keep these channels open."

New York, Sept. 2 (AP)—New York's World's Fair officials said tonight that the fair "hopes to continue through another year," but indicated that its running in 1940 depended upon the continued participation of foreign nations.

A few hours after President Roosevelt had authorized issuance of invitations to foreign countries now represented to carry on in 1940, Harvey D. Gibson, board chairman of the fair, declared:

"We add our hope to that of the President that the foreign nations will accept his invitation. It seems particularly appropriate at this time that the fair be a channel by which a 'continuing conception of peace may be made known' to the world."

In a companion statement, Grover Whalen, fair president, said the "acceptance of this invitation by the sixty participating countries, the League of Nations and Pan-American Union will be a great stride forward toward a better understanding among nations and for the peace of the world."

IT WAS THE FIRST MARCH OF RECRUITS, BUT IT WAS STRICTLY BUSINESS. THERE WERE NO BANDS PLAYING, NO FLAG WAVING AND NO CHEERS. PEOPLE WATCHED THEM--STARTLED A LITTLE--THEN WENT THOUGHTFULLY ON THEIR WAY.

THE STREETS RAPIDLY TOOK ON A DULL DEFENSE MAKEUP. ONE NEW WRINKLE WAS THE USE OF A CLEAR ADHESIVE PAPER ON WINDOWS TO PREVENT SHATTERING. BARRICADES WERE EVERYWHERE AS MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN FILLED SANDBAGS AND [illegible] AS VICIOUSLY AT HOMES AS AT SOLDIERS ON THE BATTLEFIELD.

British War Machine In High Gear

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 3—Great Britain and France went to war against Germany today.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's announcement of the momentous decision was followed quickly by a series of fast-moving acts to place the nation on a war-time basis.

The announcement came fifteen minutes after teh expiration of an 11 A. M. ultimatum to the Nazi Government to withdraw from invaded Poland.

France Joins Old Ally

France joined her old ally five minutes after her own 5 P. M. deadline passed without a reply from Hitler.

In a weary voice that sometimes faltered, Chamberlain announced Britain's fateful decision in a broadcast to the empire. He was followed by King George, who broadcast an appeal to his subjects to stand united in the hour of conflict.

Prime Minister Chamberlain immediately formed a new wartime Government which took in Anthony Eden, former Foreign Secretary, as Dominions Secretary and which included Winston Churchill as First Lord of the Admiralty, his old World War post.

The King approved appointment of Lord Gort as commander-in-chief of the British field forces; Maj. Gen. Sir Edmund Ironside as chief of the Imperial Defense Staff, and Sir Walter Kirke as commander-in-chief of the home forces.

Duke Of Kent Serves

The Admiralty announced that the Duke of Kent, youngest brother of King George, had taken up a war appointment, the nature of which was not disclosed.

Another communique said Britain had commissioned armed merchant ships as auxiliary cruisers and has provided convoys for her merchant shipping around the world.

"Their royal navy is fully mobilized and at its war stations in full strength, supplemented by a number of fully commissioned armed merchant ships as auxiliary cruisers," the communique said.

Luxuries Banned

War restrictions designed to conserve Great Britain's financial resources will be put into effect tomorrow. A ban was placed on importation of a number of commodities which were termed luxuries in order to conserve exchange for war purposes.

The Government today announced rationing of gasoline would be made effective September 16.

The public will be informed tomorrow how to obtain ration books.

Meanwhile, the Government advised, owners of private motor vehicles use them only for essential purposes.

Colonial and Dominion circles said they expected virtually all parts of the widespread empire to give full cooperation to the "mother country."

It was to this empire that King George broadcast his appeal.

Forced Into Conflict

"We have been forced into a conflict," said the monarch. "We are called with our Allies to meet the challenge of a principle, which if it were to prevail would be fatal to any civilized order in the world."

The King was alone in a room at Buckingham Palace as he spoke. Queen Elizabeth listened from another room.

In his broadcast, the 70-year-old Prime Minister told the nation:

"This morning the British Ambassador in Berlin handed the German Government a final note stating that unless we heard from them by 11 o'clock that they were preparing at once to withdraw their troops from Poland a state of war would exist between us.

"I have to tell you now that no such undertaking has been received and in consequence this country is at war with Germany. . . .

"May God bless you all and may He defend the right. It is evil things that we shall be fighting, against brute force, bad faith, injustice, oppression and persecution.

"And against them I am certain that right will prevail."

Later in a five-minute speech before the House of Commons Chamberlain declared:

"It is a sad day for all of us but for none is it sadder than for me.

"Everything I had worked for, hoped for and believed in during my public life has crashed into ruins.

"Their is but one thign left for me and that is to devote what strengths and powers I have to forwarding victory of the cause for which we have to sacrifice ourselves.

"I can not tell what part I may be allowed to play but I trust I may live to see the day when Hitlerism has been destroyed and a restored and liberated Europe has been reestablished."

Members of the House rose and cheered the Prime Minister as he sat down.

Lord Halifax, Foreign Secretary, made a similar speech in the House of Lords.

Handed His Passports

Halifax announced that Theodore Kordt, German charge d'affaires, had been handed his passports. The German Ambassador to London has been absent from his post for some time and was reported on vacation in Germany.

Britons took the news of war with apparent calm.

Small groups strolled the streets as on an ordinary Sunday, laughing and joking.

The only difference was that many carried gas masks slung over their shoulders and army trucks sped through the streets carrying troops and equipment.

Air Raid Alarm Heard

Scarcely had Chamberlain completed his radio broadcast before a general air raid warning sounded.

Crowds rushed to shelters and the streets remained deserted for half an hour.

The Air Ministry later issued a communique explaining the warning was given when an unidentified plane was sighted off the South Coast, but that it was identified afterward as a "friendly craft" and the all-clear signal was given.

The sirens sounding the clear signal could be heard in the House as the Speaker took his chair.

The public was prepared for the war declaration by a communique broadcast earlier giving the terms of the British ultimatum and asking listeners to stand by for the Prime Minister's statement.

Ultimatum Given

The ultimatum was that a "state of war" would exist between Britain and Germany at 11 A. M., unless Germany agreed before that time to suspend action against Poland [illegible] withdraw her forces immediately.

Thus the state of war actually started at 11 A. M. [illegible].

The Government's action met almost universal approval in the House of Commons, where leaders of opposition parties and World War leaders such as Lloyd George, wartime Prime Minister, and Churchill pledged their support.

Arthur Greenwood, Labor leader who spoke immediately after Chamberlain concluded, said:

"The intolerable agony of suspense is over. We know the worst. The hated word 'war' has been spoken by Britain in fulfillment of her pledge and her unbreakable intentions to defend the liberties of Europe. . . .

Poland Greeted

"Poland we greet as a comrade whom we shall not desert. Naziism must be finally overthrown."

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal leader, joined with Greenwood in a tribute to the Polish people, saying: "The world should know the British people are inexorably determined to achieve what the Prime Minister said to end this Nazi domination and build an order based on justice and freedom."

Lloyd George said he often had disagreed with the foreign policies of the Government, but in this case "they can do no other than they have done."

Parliament immediately considered a group of defense measures carried over from yesterday.

Draft Bill Passed

Both Houses quickly passed a bill for conscription of men from 18 to 41 years for military service.

The Government also announced several precautionary measures including the closing of all theaters and motion-picture houses and banning all outdoor and indoor sports gatherings.

It was announced also that [illegible] banks would be closed tomorrow but would reopen Tuesday.

In mid afternoon a royal commission gave the King's assent to the military conscription act and other war legislation passed by Parliament yesterday and last night.

CHAMBERLAIN FORMS NEW WAR CABINET

Churchill Made First Lord Of Admiralty, Eden Dominions Secretary

SEP 4 - 1939

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 3—Anthony Eden, former Foreign Secretary, was taken into the Cabinet today as Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain formed a new wartime Cabinet which included Winston Churchill as First Lord of the Admiralty.

Eden, who broke with Chamberlain over his "appeasement" policy in 1938, was named Dominions Secretary.

While Eden's post technically will be outside the inner group called "the War Cabinet," it was announced that "in order that the Dominions Secretary may be in the best position to mtaintain contact between the War Cabinet and the Dominions, Eden will have special access to the Cabinet."

To Lead Nation At War

Thus the two British statesmen considered best known in the United States were brought into a widened Cabinet to lead a Britain at war.

Tonight the Admiralty announced that the Duke of Kent, youngest brother of King George, had taken up a war appointment. Its nature was not disclosed immediately.

Churchill returned to the Admiralty post he held during the World War as the Government took on the lines of super-control which David Lloyd George used during the last conflict.

Succeeds Inskip

Eden succeeded Sir Thomas Inskip, who in turn was made Lord Chancellor in succession to Lord Maugham.

The Lord Privy Seal, Sir John Anderson, swapped posts with Home Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare. Sir John also was given the title of Minister of Home Security, thus pursuing the direction of civilian defense.

Lord Stanhope became Lord President of the Council, succeeding Lord Runciman.

The net result of the Cabinet shakeup was the addition of Eden, Churchhill and Hankey while Maugham and Runciman retired.

War Declared

The new wartime Cabinet was formed shortly after Britain declared war on Germany, with Chamberlain remaining as Prime Minister.

A communique said the Cabinet was created along the lines of that which was formed in 1916 and guided Britain's destiny through the World War.

Sir Samuel Hoare, former Minister of Home Affairs, became Lord Privy Seal, and Lord Hankey was made Minister without portfolio.

The first meeting of the War Cabinet was set for tonight.

"The Prime Minister has decided to reconstitute the Government and set up a War Cabinet on the lines of the War Cabinet established in December, 1916," an announcement from No. 10 Downing street said.

Invited Resignations

"He accordingly invited his colleagues to place their resignations collectively in his hands. In order to enable new arrangements to be put into effect the King has approved the under-mentioned appointments and a War Cabinet has been constituted as follows:

"Prime Minister and First Lord of the Treasury Chamberlain.

Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir John Simon.

Foreign Secretary, Lord Halifax.

Minister of Coordination of Defense, Lord Chatfield.

First Lord of the Admiralty, Winston Churchill.

Secretary of State for War, Leslie Hore-Belisha.

Secretary for Air, Sir [illegible] Wood.

Lord Privy Seal, Sir Samul Hoare.

Minister without portfolio, Lord Hankey.

Dominion Secretary, Eden.

Chamberlain had an audience with King George concerning the changes tonight and it was said that further appointments might be expected.

BRITISH NOTE MADE WAR DECLARATION

X

Formal Statement Handed to German Envoy in London by Foreign Office Executive

SEP 4 - 1939

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—The British Ministry of Information today issued a statement on how the formal declaration of war was made against Germany. The communiqué said:

"A state of war now exists between Great Britain and Germany. At 11 o'clock this morning Mr. R. Dunbar, head of the Treaty Department of the Foreign Office, went to the German Embassy, where he was received by Dr. [Theo] Kordt, Chargé D'Affaires. Mr. Dunbar handed to Dr. Kordt a notification that a state of war existed between Great Britain and Germany as from 11 o'clock, British Summer Time, this morning. This notification constituted the formal declaration of war.

"This morning, twenty minutes after the expiration of the time limit laid down in the British ultimatum to Germany, Herr Von Ribbentrop [German Foreign Minister] invited Sir Nevile Henderson [the British Ambassador] to call upon him and gave him the German reply.

"This proved to be a document of some eleven pages, the main point of which was a refusal by the German Government to give any assurance about the withdrawal of troops [from Poland].

"The remainder of the reply consisted of propaganda of which the sole purpose seems to be an attempt to lay the blame for the present war on the shoulders of Great Britain.

"In accordance with customary diplomatic usage, full facilities are being extended to Dr. Kordt, the German Chargé D'Affaires, to enable him and the staff of the German Embassy to leave the country. Their departure will take place very shortly.

"Facilities are being extended equally to German consular officers to enable them to leave England.

"An assurance has been received from Dr. Kordt that full facilities are similarly being extended to Sir Nevile Henderson and the staff of the British Embassy in Berlin and to British consular officers in Germany.

"The United States Government have acceded to the request of His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom, to take charge of British interests in Germany, which accordingly have been entrusted to the United States Embassy in Berlin.

"The charge of German interests in Great Britain has been taken over by the Swiss Legation in London."

Empire Rallies Behind Britain In War on Reich

Australia and New Zealand Declare War as Colonies Vote Full Co-operation

SEP 4 - 1939

LONDON, Sept. 3 (AP).—Almost all parts of Great Britain's wide-flung empire were expected tonight, in Colonial and dominion circles here, to give full co-operation to the "mother country" in her armed conflict with Germany.

Already steps were being taken in many parts of the empire to back up the pledges of loyalty and cooperation which poured in to the British government before Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain announced his decision to wage war in defense of Poland.

Canada placed all the branches of her armed forces on an active service footing and proclaimed the war measures act of 1914 as tangible proof that she would back up Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King's message to Chamberlain yesterday.

Similar action was taken in Australia by a proclamation empowering the calling for war service of navy, military, air force and civil [illegible].

New Zealand has informed the British government she will support fully Britain's determination to honor her pledges to Poland. A proclamation declaring a state of emergency also has been read, and other war precautions have been taken. Nearly fifty rich Indian potenates have given their support to Britain, and others were expected to follow suit.

Newfoundland, Palestine—even remote Tonga in the mid-Pacific—and other British possessions have either pledged loyalty and material assistance or have taken measures preparatory for war.

South Africa's position was not clearly defined. There has been much discussion there recently whether material assistance would be given to Britain in the event of war. Premier Gen. J. B. M. Hertzog announced in Parliament yesterday that he would make a statement soon on his country's attitude "in connection with its possible war position."

Ireland Desires Neutrality

DUBLIN, Sept. 3 (AP).—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera announced in the Dail (Parliament) today after an all-night session that the government of Ireland wished to remain at peace with Germany and all other [illegible] and maintain its neutrality [illegible].

He said the German Ambassador had informed him of Germany's peaceful attitude toward Eire.

Armed Merchant Ships Supplement British Navy

Commissioned To Be Auxiliary Cruisers; Convoys Revived

SEP 4 1939

LONDON, Sept. 3 (AP).—Great Britain has commissioned armed merchant ships as auxiliary cruisers and has provided convoys for her merchant shipping around the world, the Admiralty announced tonight.

A communique said:

"The Royal Navy is fully mobilized and at its war stations in full strength, supplemented by a number of fully commissioned armed merchant ships as auxiliary cruisers.

"The Admiralty, profiting by past experience, have already taken certain measures which were only slowly developed during the last war. Among these is the re-introduction of the convoy system for merchant shipping to assist the merchant navy in its vital duty of insuring the overseas traffic of the British Commonwealth and its allies."

British Fishing Fleet Recalled

LONDON, Monday, Sept. 4 (AP).—All British [illegible] sels off the east coast of Scotland south of Lat. 57° (which cuts across Northern Scotland) were instructed to return to their harbors in a British broadcast early today.

SEP 4 1939

Raid Sirens Sound in London

LONDON, Sept. 3 (Delayed by censor) (AP).—Air raid sirens sounded in alarm in London today at 11:32 a. m. (6:32 a. m., New York time). The whole city was sent to shelters by the wail of the alarm and all-clear signals were sounded seventeen minutes later.

SEP 4 1939

More than an hour later, the Air Ministry issued the following:

"At 11:30 a. m. an aircraft was observed approaching the south coast. As its identity could not be readily determined an air raid warning was given. It was shortly afterward identified as a friendly aircraft and an all clear signal was given."

Orders were issued forbidding the sounding of whistles or sirens except by police or air-raid precaution wardens. The system of air raid warnings was reviewed, with unneeded urgings to "listen for them."

Churches and other places of worship will not be closed but the government immediately broadcast orders shutting all motion picture houses and other theaters until further notice.

It added that they would be reopened in the future in less vulnerable sectors. Sports gatherings outdoors and indoors were also prohibited as well as all other entertainments. The government "earnestly" requested the people not "to gather in large numbers." Such meetings, it added, greatly increased the dangers of death from bombing.

Steel-helmeted A. R. P. squads went into immediate action as every London air raid siren screamed. A few pedestrians on the sunlit streets ran for shelters.

The all clear signal, sounded first at 11:49 a. m., was repeated intermittently until noon.

Immediately after the air raid sirens screamed "all clear," King George VI and Queen Elizabeth attended a brief prayer service at Buckingham Palace. All air raid precautions exercises were carried out at the palace and a crowd waiting outside for a glimpse of the Ministers scattered as soon as the first warning sounded.

Crowds on Streets Banned

LONDON, Sept. 3 (passed by censor) (AP).—The government laid down a series of strict orders and precautionary measures for the citizenry today. Uppermost was a prohibition regarding crowds on streets and a warning that gas masks should be carried at all times.

The government urged the population not to crowd together at any time or in any circumstances and to keep off the streets as much as possible.

"To expose yourself unnecessarily adds to your danger," said one of the measures broadcast over the nation and heard by King George VI and Queen Elizabeth as they listened to the radio in their private room in Buckingham Palace.

The government announced that rationing of gasoline would be made effective on Sept. 16. The public will be informed tomorrow how to obtain ration books. Meanwhile, the government advised owners of private motor vehicles should use them only for essential purposes.

To conserve exchange for war purposes, the Board of Trade announced a ban on the importation of the following commodities, terming them luxuries: Pottery, glass, cutlery, clocks, watches, textile goods, apparel, shoes, certain chemicals, paints, soaps, typewriters, automobiles, perfumes, musical instruments, toilet articles, toys, games and luxury foodstuffs.

Evacuation in Scotland

The Ministry of Information announced that the removal of mothers and children from danger areas in Scotland had been completed. The last of 143,600 were sent from Edinburgh, Glasgow, Dundee, Rosyth and Clydebank. Up to last night 485,900 had been removed from Scotland cities.

Restrictions to conserve Great Britain's financial resources will be put into effect tomorrow. A ban will be placed on new capital issues and on export of bank notes, gold, securities and foreign exchange, except with treasury permission. Holders of gold and foreign exchange, including United States dollars, will be required to offer them for sale to the treasury.

The postoffice savings banks and other savings banks will be closed tomorrow only to "complete measures for adapting themselves to the emergency."

The stock exchange announced it would reopen "as soon as possible." (Trading was discontinued Friday with the official explanation that it was because of disruption of communications due to evacuation of civilians.)

Paris, In Darkness, Armies Mass At Front, Calmly Awaits Word Of First Clashes—Daladier Forecasts Victory In War "Hitler Chose"

[By the Associated Press]

Paris, Sept. 3—France joined Great Britain in war against Germany today, and 8,000,000 Frenchmen moved toward the front.

The long-feared conflict broke after eleventh-hour peace efforts came to nought. News of the first armed clashes was awaited in a spirit of calm in the darkened and partially evacuated capitals.

Huge armies, numbered on each side in millions, faced each other behind heavily fortified defense lines. Aviation—the unknown quantity—was the prime subject of speculation.

Says Hitler "Chose" War

Dispatches from Poland, where the war started Friday with German invasion, said fighting continued, but up to a late hour news of the opening of Anglo-French hostilities against the old foe across the Rhine was lacking.

Premier Edouard Daladier, in a three-minute broadcast, solemnly assured the French people they would be victorious in the war Hitler "chose."

"The responsibility for bloodshed," the Premier said, "rests entirely upon Hitler's Government. The future of peace was in Hitler's hands. He chose war."

"Last Appeal To Reason" Fails

Emphasizing Franco-British efforts to avoid war, Daladier said that, even today, both nations gave the German Führer a last chance. Daladier said today's communication to Berlin was a "last appeal to reason."

He called the German Government the "most despicable of tyrannies," and added that in going to Poland's aid France also is "fighting to defend our land, homes and liberty."

The Premier said the British and French Ambassadors to Berlin had—this time, setting a limit by the clock—informed Germany if she ceased hostilities in Poland and withdrew her troops, peace negotiations could be opened.

In each case, he said, the Nazi Government answered "no."

Nazi Diplomats Leave Paris

German Charge d'Affaires Brauer and 130 other members of the German Embassy and consulate staffs departed from Invalides Station at 11.08 P. M. Emergency precautions had been taken to guard them en route from France by way of Belgian.

Ambassador Johannes von Welczeck already was in Germany when France and Germany went to war. He had left six weeks ago.

Because of the secrecy surrounding the departure, only a few people saw the Germans off.

French Consul General Dulignier, Police Prefect Langeron and other French officials bade them good-by.

One German Woman In Tears

Through the coach windows one German woman was seen with her head buried in the arms of another, with tears rolling down her face.

Steel-helmeted Mobile Guards, their rifles glinting in the dim air-raid-precaution lights, guarded the party as it entrained.

The French Government announced officially that Germany had refused to give a "satisfactory answer" to France's ultimatum for withdrawal of Reich troops from Poland, automatically putting France at war with her historic enemy across the Rhine.

The Foreign Ministry issued a communique which said: "M. (Robert) Coulondre, the Ambassador of France, was received at 12.30 P. M. by M. (Joachim) von Ribbentrop, Foreign Minister for the Reich.

"He asked if he was in a position to give a satisfactory reply to the communication of September 1. M. Ribbentrop replied negatively.

"As a result," the communique said, "M. Coulondre, after recalling for the last time the heavy responsibility assumed by the Reich in engaging in hostilities against Poland without a declaration of war, and by not replying to suggestions of the French and British governments, made known that the French Government, starting today, September 3, at 7 P. M. would be under obligation to fulfill engagements contracted toward Poland and which are known to the German Government."

While the final communique converting Europe's war of nerves into a war of arms was being issued to the press at the Foreign Ministry, Premier Daladier conferred at the War Ministry with Air Minister Guy LaChambre.

8,000,000 Men Move Eastward

France's reborn air force was in a state of alert to ward off any lightning attack.

France and Britain watched the clock this momentous day, awaiting Germany's promised "winged lightning" war, as the world asked "What will be the strategy of this new conflict."

France moved 8,000,000 men eastward. Her navy and the giant naval forces of her British ally have been in battle positions for a week. Militarists agreed it might be some time before Britain will be able to furnish a substantial land force.

Her naval air force, which has rapidly expanded since Munich, will be an instant weapon.

France And Siegfried Line

The Germans tried their "lightning" war through Belgium in 1914 and almost reached Paris before the Anglo-French armies, later aided by the Americans, stopped them.

Some military experts believe Germany's Siegfried line must be cracked and believe the French could do it. Others held to a defensive war as the best tactics, but that was before they knew Italy would not automatically be fighting alongside Germany. Then they envisaged Italy as a good flanking target, because of difficulties of defending her long coast line.

When Hitler told the Reichstag last Friday he did not need Italy in his Polish campaign, some believed he was only making Italian unwillingness to fight.

Waits Beyond Last Minute

France waited until the last minute and even five minutes after the war-deadline, in the hope Germany would accept the French proposition to withdraw from Poland.

Although Ambassador Coulondre reported immediately to the Foreign Office that von Ribbentrop had given him a negative response, French authorities waited until five minutes after the deadline before drafting the final communication to the world that announced the existence of a state of war between France and Germany.

It was announced that as soon as Ambassador Coulondre left the German Foreign Ministry, where he demanded his passport, he went to the United States Embassy to ask that the American envoy look after French interests in Germany.

"Stupid, Tragic," She Sobs

The German Embassy staff was still in Paris an hour and a half after Germany and France were at war—but they were making obvious preparations to leave.

A buxom woman secretary asked if she was departing, replied: "Not yet," and then burst into tears.

"Ah, this war," she sobbed. "It stupid, tragic."

The corridors of the Embassy were piled high with luggage. The narrow street in front was closed and guarded by a large division of police.

A special officer arrived at 6.16 P. with a large, square envelope addressed to the charge d' affaires. Observers speculated that it might contain passports.

Last Hours Of Peace

The last hours of peace were those of a city and nation already prepared for and resigned to France's third war with her hereditary enemy within the memory of many living Parisians.

When the fateful hour passed there was nothing to mark the turning point in the nation's history.

There were no ringing bells or sirens to announce the country was at war, but evening nwespapers appeared at once on the streets emblazoned with the one word "War."

Predict It Won't Last Long

Along the wide, tree-lined boulevards, Parisians sat when the ominous hour of 5 struck, and drank good-by rounds with friends who were mobilized, friends who were leaving for the armies and friends who were enlisting.

An aged proprietor of one boulevard cafe spoke a phrase on many men's lips: "We will come out of it soon, but it is too bad. There will be many dishes broken."

A taxi driver taking his last fare before taking his cab to an army garage and reporting for mobilization, said: "Hitler and his boys have never had a fight yet—now we will show them they have been playing with real dynamite and the war won't last long.

France was tense, but calm, as the last sands of peace ran out and the moment arrived which most of the civilized world had hoped against hope might never be.

Diplomatic formalities of the occasion, stripped of ceremony, had been completed some hours before, when French Ambassador Coulondre bade a stiff good-bye in Berlin to Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop and prepared to leave the German capital.

Why Britain Acted First

The reason France did not act simultaneously with Britain was explained by the fact that French forces were nearer Germany and could go into action more quickly, while Britain needed a few hours to mass her fighting strength.

Most Frenchmen had joined their regiments under the general mobilization order which became effective yesterday. A drizzling rain added to the deserted appearance of Paris streets.

Prime Minister Chamberlain's radio announcement of Britain's declaration of war—which meant certain similar action by France—was heard by only a few in Paris.

Premier Daladier received Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet at the War Ministry at that historic moment.

French circles said France's diplomatic position was "excellent," and that it appeared that Germany might be fighting alone.

Strategy Seen In Italy's Stand

So far as Italy was concerned, diplomatic circles said: "There still is a game to be played out there."

It was the feeling in these circles that Hitler's statement before the Reichstag that he did not need Italy's help, was merely to cover up the action of Germany's Axis partner in maintaining a policy of virtual neutrality.

The Foreign Minister conferred during the day of feverish activity with Sir Eric Phipps, the British Ambassador, and Jules Lukasiewicz, the Polish Ambassador to Paris.

Air Raid Toll Put At 1,500

A forecast of what might come was reflected in a commuique from the Polish Embassy here which said German air raiders killed 1,500 persons in Polish towns Friday and Saturday, despite German agreement to confine bombing to military objectives and avoid unfortified towns and cities.

"A barbarious bombing took place at the city of Czestochowa, the Polish Lourdes, where homage is paid to the miraculous Virgin, and the city is in flames," the communique said.

Paris Under War Regulations

A communique issued by the Water Distribution Department and announced on huge posters, said: "The population is invited not to waste water and keep at home a sufficient supply for domestic use for at least forty-eight hours."

Subway service was cut down, busses almost were eliminated from the streets, leaving most Parisians on foot except those who resurrected their old bicycles.

One white-mustached old gentleman, with a Legion of Honor ribbon in his buttonhole and a derby hat on his head, peddled sedately down the boulevards on a bicycle with a little girl perched on the handlebars, a gas mask across her shoulder.

Forty of Paris' 120 postoffices were closed as the result of mobilization of postal workers. Many letters left Paris today without postage, addressed to mobilized men at the front.

30.24-2981

The produce markets, which usually open shortly after midnight, did not open until between 9 A. M. and midday in order to use sunlight instead of floodlamps.

Warning Against Profiteering

The Ministry of National Economy issued a warning against profiteering and declared anyone selling goods at abnormal prices would immediately have their shop closed.

Parisian store windows, as well as residential windows, were plastered with strips of criss-crossed adhesive to prevent glass shattering in the event of air raids.

Signs designating bomb shelters and the number of persons that could be accommodated were along almost every Paris street.

Von Stroheim Volunteers

Posters on police stations announced that certain Foreign Legion units were open to volunteers and many foreigners living in France were quick to take advantage.

Thousands of foreigners are already enrolled, including the Austrian cinema actor and director Eric von Stroheim, who is well known in the United States and recently has been working with French movie companies.

Relight Flame

PARIS, Sept. 3 (AP).—While France was declaring a new war on Germany today crowds gathered around the tomb of the Unknown Soldier of the War under the Arc d'Triomphe.

War veterans of the 22d and 32d Battalions of the Alpine Chasseurs marched to the arch for the usual evening ceremony of relighting the flame which burns over the tomb. After the ceremony men and women pressed close around. Many women dropped to their knees and prayed. Others laid small homemade wreaths and bouquets of garden flowers on the tomb, which was covered with blooms.

Americans still in Paris flooded the American Embassy with a new deluge of requests for information on how to leave the country, but interest in the opening of the strife was even more in evidence than anxiety about getting out of France, judging by the groups discussing developments or reading the war news.

"If it begins to look like Britain and France are going to take a licking, I think we should do something about it," said Dewitt Pond jr., of New Rochelle, N. Y. "But that doesn't include sending any army over here."

Among Americans seen at the embassy were Florence Kossoff and Linda Lavallier, both of New York. Among other Americans still in France were Dr. Wesley Carroll, Rye Beach, N. Y.; Francis Gervey, Long Island City, Queens, and Roland Guerard, New York.

French Get U.S. Hospital Beds

PARIS, Sept. 3 (Passed through British censorship) (AP).—Most beds in the American Hospital of Paris were turned over today to the French military, after removal of twenty-two adults and six babies to Etretat, near Le Havre. Those seriously ill have not yet been evacuated. Both institutions will remain under an American governing board. Forty of a total of 130 beds, however, were set aside for emergency American cases.

PARIS, Sept. 3 (AP).—France and Great Britain went to war against Germany in defense of Poland and the "liberty of nations" on the 156th anniversary of the signing of the definite Treaty of Versailles which gave the United States its independence from England. The treaty was signed Sept. 3, 1783.

French-British Military Plans Remain Secret

SEP 4-1939

Infantry Again Expected to Play Leading Role; Air Effectiveness Unproven

PARIS, Sept. 3 (AP).—Where and how the British-French forces will go to the aid of Poland is a closely guarded military secret. Many military experts, however, predicted today that the mud-slogging infantrymen will again play a vital role, despite modern emphasis on airplanes and fast-moving mechanized forces of war.

It was recalled that many persons thought that the World War would be over by Christmas, 1914. It lasted more than four years and some militarists foresee an even longer and bloodier conflict in this reversion to those days.

The German command has filled its famous Limes, or Siegfried, line on the west, facing France's army. This series of saw-toothed steel and concrete barr[illegible]d with concrete casemen[illegible]uilt for defense. Many [illegible]believe it will be used for just that.

France's Maginot line was built for defense, too, but the question was asked everywhere as to whether the French armies would leave it for an offensive thrust. Some say that the Limes line must be cracked and many believe the French can do it.

Military observers here believe that Chancellor Adolf Hitler revealed his strategy in dispatches from Berlin today which quoted him as saying that Poland must be crushed first.

"If you do your duty," he was quoted as saying, "the battle will be ended with success in several weeks in the East and the entire force of 90,000,000 men will be behind you."

German emphasis on the construction of airplanes, tanks and submarines leads to the belief she will mass her air force on British-French naval units, airplane factories and rail junctions and then on civilian centers.

Submarines, it was agreed, would be an aid against blockading battleships. At the same time, officials said the British ships are equipped with heavier armor, rapid-fire anti-aircraft guns and with a secret super-detector that can spot running submarines or those stationary on the ocean floor.

The theory that airplanes are effective against warships has never been settled satisfactorily. The Spanish civil war witnessed the destruction of a few ships but ship enthusiasts contend that it did not prove the theory "against British equipment." In the event Italy should enter the war on Germany's side, the combined fleet tonnage of the axis powers, would be less than half that of Great Britain and France.

Some military men pointed out that mass air attacks did not demoralize the populations of Valencia and Barcelona in Spain, but there again, those attacks are conceded to be unequal to what the Germans might do on Paris and London.

13,581-TON LINER SAYS ATTACK CAME 200 MILES WEST OF NORTH SCOTLAND

U. S. Embassy Confirms Presence Of Nationals On Vessel—Checks Up On Passengers' Names. London Shocked By News

[By the Associated Press]

SEP 4-1939

London, Monday, Sept. 4—The British liner Athenia was torpedoed and sunk today with 1,400 passengers aboard, many of them Americans.

The Ministry of Information said the 13,581-ton ship reported to the Admiralty she had been torpedoed 200 miles off the Hebrides, west of northern Scotland.

There was no hint as to injuries or rescues of passengers.

It was said, however, the Athenia was adequately equipped with lifeboats.

The announcement said some Americans were aboard the Athenia and the United States Embassy confirmed it.

The Embassy could not immediately say how many, however. One source put the number at 200.

Passenger List Sought

An attache said the Embassy was in touch with the consulate at Liverpool attempting to get the number and a list of passengers' names.

The Athenia, bound from Liverpool for Montreal, Canada, is registered at Glasgow, Scotland, and owned by the Donaldson Atlantic, Ltd.

She was built at Glasgow in 1932 and recently reconditioned on an extensive scale involving reconstruction of her entire passenger quarters.

Followed Air-Raid Alarm

The announcement was issued by the Ministry within an hour after an air-raid signal had shocked London wide awake in the early morning of Britain's second day at war.

Actually, it was within less than eighteen hours of Britain's formal declaration of a state of war with Germany.

Sub Warfare Recalled

SEP 4-1939

German submarine warfare against British shipping during the "unrestricted" attack in 1917 sent down 1,134 ships. An additional 841 ships were attacked by submarines, but escaped.

Encounters with mines cost the British 137 ships in the same year, and enemy surface craft sank 38. In all, the savage attack by Germany in an effort to "starve out" the British Isles accounted for 3,500,000 tons in ships.

The Allies destroyed seventy-five submarines.

The sinking of the British liner Lusitania, with loss of 1,198 lives, occurred in 1915.

By the close of 1917, the Allies had established a convoy system which was markedly effective. Up to armistice days, 581 Allied ships had fallen victim to German submarines in 1918.

By The Associated Press

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Sept. 4 (Monday).—All persons on board the sunken British liner Athenia, except some killed by a German torpedo, were reported saved today.

An agent of the ship's owners here issued the report.

He said all survivors had been picked up by other vessels.

SEP 4-1939

Mostly Canadians, Some Americans

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3 (AP).—Stephen Early, secretary to President Roosevelt, said tonight that the torpedoed Athenia was "carrying mostly Canadians and some Americans," according to official reports received here.

Mr. Roosevelt received an official dispatch telling of the torpedoing. The reports said the ship was "rapidly sinking."

"I'd like to point out," Early said, "that according to official information the ship had come from Glasgow to Liverpool and was bound for Canada bringing refugees.

"I point this out to show that there was no possibility, according to the official information, that the ship was carrying any munitions or anything of that kind."

High Seas Become Aquatic Jungle, Studded With Rich Prizes For War Raiders

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Monday, Sept. 4—The World War practice of torpedoing passenger ships at sea was renewed today soon after the declaration of war.

Anxiety spread over the breadth of the Atlantic, where thousands of Americans are fleeing the war zone.

The attack on the British liner Athenia, operated by the Cunard-White Star out of Glasgow, recalled the heavy loss of merchant ships in the World War, and to Americans the sinking of the Cunarder Lusitania, which precipitated America's entrance into the great conflict more than twenty-two years ago.

SEP 4-1939

Anxiety Grows Deeper

Cunard officials in New York did not know how many American and Canadian refugees might have been coming home aboard the Athenia, but consular offices in Glasgow last week reported some 600 Americans were there clamoring for passage home.

The anxiety over Americans at sea deepened after the electrifying report the Athenia had been attacked and was sinking off the Scottish coast.

The Cunard liner Carinthia, wearing a new dull camouflage, slipped out of New York harbor yesterday under sealed orders handed over to the captain by the British consulate.

May Have Escort

Whether the attack on the Athenia might change the Carinthia's plans could not be determined, but presumably the vessel steamed on across the perilous Atlantic, hoping to escape attack by its new paint job—and possibly by convoy of British warships that have been prowling the coastal waters.

The high seas, particularly the North Atlantic, have become an aquatic jungle studded with rich prizes for warring nations of Europe.

Greatest single item of possible booty among the fifty-four liners on the Atlantic was the $25,000,000 British Queen Mary, due in New York today.

J. P. Morgan On Board

Many of its 2,385 passengers, including J. P. Morgan, are Americans fleeing homeward.

Speculation centered on the pride of the Nazi merchant marine, the $20,000,000 Bremen. After a rigid two-day search by American customs agents it sailed Wednesday night for Bremerhaven without passengers.

Although the British Admiralty denied last night a report that the Bremen had been seized, two British naval vessels known to have been in United States coastal waters disappeared Wednesday night and were believed likely to have trailed the 989-foot Bremen, one of the biggest passenger vessels afloat.

Europa In Germany

Its sister ship, the Europa, was in port in Germany.

The French kept the palatial Normandie at a New York pier, its departure indefinitely postponed. They value it at $60,000,000. It was expected to remain in port.

Many another vessel of France, Britain, Poland and Germany was in peril, however.

The Ile de France sailed yesterday from Havre for New York, its passengers mostly Americans.

Samaria Due Today

The Cunarder Samaria is due here from Liverpool today with 809 passengers.

The French liner Champlain is due in New York tomorrow, and the De Grasse, eastward bound, is due at Havre Wednesday.

No positions were available for the German liners New York, St. Louis and Columbus, which were believed to be speeding homeward. The New York and the St. Louis left here early last week without passengers. The Columbus dropped 745 cruise passengers at Havana Friday under orders to proceed to Bremen at once.

Roma At New York

The Italian liner Roma was the only ship of that line in New York. The Rex, Saturnia and Conte di Savoia were in Italian ports, and the Vulcania was due in New York Friday.

The United States liner Manhattan sailed for New York Saturday from Cobh, Ireland, with 1,700 passengers—500 in excess of its normal capacity—taken aboard at Cobh and Havre. Approximately 400 others vainly clamored for passage. The ship is due in New York Wednesday.

John M. Franklin, president of the United States Line, announced the President Roosevelt, the Manhattan, the Washington and the President Harding would return to Europe ahead of schedule and as quickly as practicable with extra cots to swell the normal passenger capacity.

Washington En Route

The Washington sailed from New York Saturday and due in Havre next Saturday. It carried 375 passengers, 75 per cent. of whom booked passage in the last two days.

The President Roosevelt, with 538 passengers, is due in New York tomorrow. The American Banker, with 103, is to arrive today, and the American Importer on Wednesday. The American Trader is due in New York September 11.

The Gdynia America liner Pilsudski, from Gdynia and Copenhagen, is due in New York tomorrow with 642 passengers.

SEP 4-1939

Kungsholm Is Coming

The Swedish American Line flagship Kungsholm, due here September 11, is bringing 1,259 passengers, of whom 945 are Americans. Two hundred of them caught the liner Saturday at Gothenburg, Sweden.

The Queen of Bermuda, taken off the New York-Bermuda run last week, was speeding eastward to England, camouflaged and without passengers.

The Cunard White Star liner Franconia, hastily camouflaged here Friday night and Saturday, sailed Saturday, with piles of sandbags protecting its decks from bombs.

Cunarders At Sea

The Cunard White Star liners Acquitania, the New Mauretania, the Ascania, Laconia and Ausonia are all headed for English ports. Other British ships headed eastward for England are the Empress of Australia, the Duchess of York, the Transylvania and the Letitia.

American liners heading for Europe, seventeen in addition to the Washington, include the President Harding, the American Merchant, American Shipper and American Farmer, the Scanpenn, the Exeter and the Excalibur.

The Van Dyck and the Arandora Star, chartered by the Cunard White Star Line after the British Government requisitioned the Scythia and the Brittanic, are headed for New York with many Americans among their passengers.

POLISH FORCE REPELS EFFORT TO TAKE DUMP

Little Garrison In Danzig Harbor Bombarded From Sea And Air

Retaliates With Machine-Guns In Holding Westerplatte Munitions

[By the Associated Press]

Danzig, Sept. 3—After three days of bombardment from sea and air, a little Polish garrison still held the Wester-Platte munitions dump in Danzig harbor tonight.

An unknown number of soldiers were making a heroic defense within the red-walled property located on a peninsula jutting out into the harbor. They were still there at 11.30 P. M. (5.30 P. M., E.S.T.).

[Editor's Note—This dispatch was the first word direct from Danzig on the fighting there since Germany's annexation of the former Free City early Friday morning.]

Thirty airplanes dropped between fifty and sixty bombs on the Westerplatte yesterday, but the Poles still retaliated with machine-gun fire.

Cleared For Further Raids

A whole section of the nearby Danzig population now has been cleared out by military preparation, apparently, for further bombardment. The German infantry so far has not attempted to take the Westerplatte.

A battle, which cost approximately twenty lives occurred Friday and Saturday in the heart of old Danzig for possession of the Polish postoffice.

Seventy Poles entrenched themselves in the big stone building, warding off with machine guns all efforts of Danzig police to take it by storm. Light artillery was called into action and blasted open the front of the building.

Gasoline Poured On Building

Yesterday, water and gasoline on top of it were poured into the building and set afire. This broke the resistance.

Those Poles who were not killed were taken prisoners.

There were rumors, not immediately confirmable, that Marian Chodacki, the Polish High Commissioner to Danzig, still was in the city.

The British and French consuls departed, leaving the United States Consul, Chester Kuykendall, to handle their interests.

Thrust From Slovakia Feared

SIANKI, Poland, Sept. 3 (AP).—All available troops were rushed from the neutral Hungarian frontier today to meet a threatened invasion from Slovakia.

The guards remaining at the frontier fraternized with the Hungarians while listening to Warsaw radio reports of German bombing of Polish cities. Peasants, shopkeepers and soldiers alike are confident that Poland will repel all attacks.

Little Sianki is twenty miles from Turka, which already has been bombed, and the populace courageously awaited a possible attempt by German troops to blast the rail line to Hungary, which runs through here.

Sianki, having no anti-aircraft guns, strained its ears for the warning drone of German planes. Every train running through was darkened. There were blackouts in near-by Hungarian villages.

Some soldier-farmers tilled the fields; girls filled postoffice vacancies. Prices on food and clothing remained unchanged and panic buying was scorned as unpatriotic.

The British and French declarations against Germany obviously cheered the determined Poles.

Sianki's military commander permitted The Associated Press correspondent to telephone his Warsaw office; otherwise, civilian communication was at a standstill.

Foreign Planes Seen Flying To Northward Of The Netherlands

Amsterdam, The Netherlands, Sept. 3 (AP)—Planes of an unknown nationality were reported tonight to have been seen flying north of The Netherlands, outside the three-mile territorial limit.

No squadrons, however, were seen over the capital of this neutral nation, according to reliable information.

From several frontier points in the eastern section of the country, German patrols were said to have been sighted across the border in Germany.

Germans Using Gas In Their Air Raids, Says Polish Envoy

[By the Associated Press]

London, Monday, Sept. 4—The Polish Ambassador to London last night declared new German air attacks in all parts of Poland disclosed the civilian population was suffering, with the Germans using gas in their raids.

Declaring Poland's armies were fighting bravely with an undaunted spirit, the Ambassador declared September 3 was "an historic day for Poland as well as for Europe" because of the implementing of the mutual-assistance treaty signed by Britain a week ago.

Fighting On German Soil

An Exchange Telegraph (British news agency) dispatch from Warsaw early today reported Polish troops had crossed the German frontier north of Breslau and were fighting on German soil.

Quoting a Polish short-wave radio broadcast, the agency said the troops had crossed between Rawicz and Leszno. These towns are on the border, about twenty-five miles apart and approximately forty-five miles north of Breslau.

The report said Polish cavalry was in the action.

Polish Army C[illegible]ique

LONDON, Sept. [illegible]—The Exchange Telegraph, [illegible]tish news agency, in a dispatch [illegible]n Warsaw, quoted the Polish supreme command communique issued at 7:30 p. m. (2:30 p. m., E. D. T.) as follows:

"During the day the German air force carried out raids on numerous unfortified towns, including Warsaw, Deblin, Radom and Krakow (Crakow).

"Near Radom and Krakow twenty-six enemy aircraft were brought down. The total number brought down today was sixty-four.

"The Polish losses amounted to eleven machines. German raiders did not spare the peasant population working in the fields near their villages.

"Considerable enemy forces launched a strong attack in the direction of Silesia and the region of Podhale. Under the pressure of the enemy, Polish forces were compelled to abandon Czestochowa on the Silesian frontier.

"Our lines were slightly pressed on the Silesia sector. In the north Polish troops recaptured Puck and Orlowo. In the maritime province of Westerplatte the Polish garrison is holding out heroically."

Envoy Denies Warsaw Heard Conference Plan

Raczynski Quoted Italy Sailing Reported Proposal

LONDON, Sept. 3. (delayed by censor) (AP).—Exchange Telegraph Agency, British news agency, said today that Count Edward Raczynski, Polish Ambassador in London, informed it that "the Italian government did not approach Poland" concerning a reported five-power conference to settle German-Polish issues.

"Apart from the declarations made yesterday in the British Parliament and apart from contradictory reports in the press," the agency quoted him, "the Polish government has not knowledge of such a scheme."

Exchange Telegraph said the Ambassador declared that "any talk of such a conference" would be "ludicrous and fantastic" as long as "a single enemy soldier stands on Polish soil."

Polish Crowds Cheer Allies in Joyous Scenes

Sing in Warsaw's Streets Until Warned of Raids; U.S. Envoy Is Acclaimed

WARSAW, Sept. 3 (AP).—Tremendous crowds enacted scenes of enthusiasm today when they learned of British-French declarations of war that brought the powerful allies into the war against Germany. The scenes still were in progress all over Poland tonight despite grim reminders of war already in progress.

It took repeated radio warnings against possible air attacks to clear the streets of wildly cheering and singing crowds.

In their enthusiasm the crowds found themselves gathering around even the neutral embassies, including that of the United States, where they chanted "Long live the United States." Finally Ambassador Anthony Joseph Drexel Biddle jr. appeared and waved from a window.

The automobile of a British military attache was literally deluged with flowers as he drove along a street.

A more sober note was injected, however, by an official communique reminding Warsow's residents of the war. It said that the Town Hall and Bank of Poland buildings were destroyed during aid bombing yesterday at Piotrkow in Lods Province. The railway station was partially destroyed at Kalisz, a town burned by the Germans in 1914.

During a brief air raid alarm here at 3:15 p. m. (10 a. m. E. S. T. or daylight-saving time), it was reported that one German plane broke through Warsaw defenses but was shot down.

The War Office Official Journal published a decree granting amnesty for all crimes committed before Aug. 31, including military offenses, provided the offenders were still in Poland and mobilized. President Ignace Moscicki decreed the establishment of a war budget provding tax increases and suspension of bank transfers for a week.

(Warsaw dispatches reaching Paris said Germans had begun dropping men in parachutes behind the Polish lines to cut wires and dynamite bridges.)

It was announced that Josef Lipski, Polish Ambassador to Berlin, was returning to Warsaw by way of Denmark. Members of the German Embassy here left for home via Riga, Latvia.

During the celebration of the western powers' decision to come to Poland's defense, women pelted flowers at Josef Beck, the Polish Foreign Minister, and Sir Howard Kennard, the British Ambassador, when they stepped on the balcony of the British Embassy.

"Long live Poland," said Sir Howard, in Polish. "We will fight side by side against aggression and injustice."

Beck told the crowd that "Britain and Poland have locked hands in a fight for freedom and justice."

"Britain will not be disappointed in Poland and Poland will not be disappointed in Britain," he declared.

U. S. Envoy To Poland Narrowly Escapes As Nazis Bomb His Villa

Warsaw, Sept. 3 (AP)—United States Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., and his family as well as six other Americans narrowly escaped death or injury today when a German plane bombed his villa.

During the same raid in which the Ambassador's villa was bombed, officials reported incendiary bombs were dropped near an airfield at the outskirts of Warsaw killing three persons, injuring ten and destroying six houses.

The Ambassador said a German bomber power dived over his home and dropped six bombs, one of which damaged badly an adjoining villa. The Biddle house was damaged slightly and windows were broken, but none of the occupants, including the Ambassador and his wife and Miss Peggy Schulz, was injured.

The Warsaw radio station broadcast an air-raid warning and said the German planes dropped "something looking like candy" over Wilno, but added that it actually was poisonous chemical.

It was stated officially that over 200 were killed and twenty-three houses were destroyed in heavy bombing at Bydgoszcz Friday and Saturday.

The Warsaw Official Journal published a decree granting amnesty for all crimes committed before August 31, including military offenses, provided the offenders were still in Poland and mobilized.

President Ignace Moscicki decreed the establishment of a war budget providing tax increases and suspension of bank transfers for a week. He also decreed the introduction of military tribunals.

Children Among Victims

A general staff communique issued earlier said the Germans had lost thirty-seven warplanes in the first two days of fighting and Poland had lost twelve.

Again, the communique said, Germans showed no regard for absence of military objectives in their bombing raids. It said thirty persons, including five children, were killed and fifty-eight injured in a bombardment of Lublin.

Public Schools in Poland Will Reopen on Sept. 11

Parliament Votes Members in Army May Keep Seats

WARSAW, Sept. 3 (AP).—The Polish government announced tonight that public schools would reopen Sept. 11 except where they have been converted into hospitals. The announcement was regarded as a sign that Poland would attempt to maintain normal life despite the undeclared war.

The Sejm (parliament) approved a bill permitting members to join the army without forfeiting their seats.

Jewish Ukrainian minority representatives declared their loyalty to the Polish state. Heads of the Russian Orthodox and Protestant churches and the union of rabbis followed Augustus Cardinal Hlond, primate of Poland, in calling for prayers for Polish victory.

Poles Asked To Watch For Parachute Jumpers

Told By Warsaw Broadcast That Germans Descended At Isolated Points

London, Sept. 3 (AP)—Exchange Telegraph reported from Warsaw that a Polish broadcast today told of German parachute jumpers descending from planes at isolated points in Polish territory to attempt to cut communication lines.

The broadcast appealed to the public to cooperate with authorities in apprehending and disarming German soldiers dropping behind the lines, the news agency said.

In an air encounter over Poznan late in the day, Exchange Telegraph said, six German bombers were shot down near Wolbrom after dropping gas bombs.

HITLER LEAVES SECRETLY FOR POLISH FRONT

Goes To Join Soldiers After Rejecting British-French Ultimatums

Accuses England Of Pursuing Policy Of World Conquest

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
Associated Press Correspondent

Berlin, Sept. 3—Führer Hitler today rejected ultimatums of Britain and France demanding he withdraw his forces from Poland and, after these two nations declared war against the Reich, left Berlin for a secret destination on the Polish front. He drove in a limousine with shaded headlights.

The Führer's departure to join his soldiers capped a busy day in which he issued a detailed reply to the British ultimatum, addressed an 800-word appeal to the German people to justify his course and rally the nation behind him, and separate messages to his two armies on the eastern (Polish) and western (French) fronts.

Predicts Victory

To the western army he said:

"If you do your duty, the battle in the east will be victoriously decided in a few weeks. And then the strength of our entire ninety millions stands behind you."

The duty of the western army, as he outlined it, is to guard "as unshakeably as a wall of steel and iron the border of the Reich against every attack in a fortification which is a hundred times stronger than the never-conquered west front of the Great War."

He was speaking of the newly completed Siegfried line.

To "Burst Open Ring"

As for the eastern front, he said, "I have decided to burst open the ring laid around Germany!" He added:

"The non-aggression and consultation pact with Soviet Russia gives us assurance of a policy of peaceful agreement with this greatest empire of the East."

Air Victory Over Warsaw

Meanwhile the German official news agency DNB reported late tonight seven Polish planes and one balloon had been destroyed in an air raid on Warsaw.

It was reported there were no German losses on this expedition.

The army command announced the German troops in Poland were progressing inland and had captured Czestochowa, rail center on the Warta river in Silesia. This town also is an important religious town, possessing the Black Madonna, visited annually by 200,000 pilgrims. German authorities denied the madonna was damaged by bombs.

Army Progress Claimed

A communique issued at 9.50 A. M. said German troops had "progressed successfully on all fronts deep into Polish territory," capturing Berent as well as Czestochowa.

It reported the Germans had "frustrated" an attempt of Polish troops in the Corridor north of Chelmno to break through a line which had cut them off.

Another military dispatch stated the Germans had crossed the Vistula river east of Pless and captured fortifications south of Nikolai, east Prussian town about twelve miles northeast of Marienwerder.

Still another communique stated a brick bridgehead at Tscew, the only one across the Upper Vistula, had been destroyed by the Poles. The Poles also were reported to have blasted dikes along the Upper Vistula near Tscew, flooding adjacent lowlands.

The Germans reported a Polish bombardment of Beuthen, on the Silesian frontier, which began Saturday was continued today with some damage.

The suburb of Schomberg was reported to have been bombarded heavily today as a continuation of an unabated attack started Friday. Schomberg is a dense populated workers' town. The German reports said the worst fire was concentrated in the center of the town, the shells destroying a church and a school.

The German command also announced Germany had lost 21 airplanes Friday and Saturday, and that Polish losses for the two days were 120 craft. No casualties were mentioned.

Leaves For Front

Hitler left his Chancellery for the front shortly after 10 P. M. The city was in a complete blackout.

His car went slowly through the large, mostly silent crowd standing in the dark Wilhelmplatz.

On behalf of the German Government and people, Hitler rejected the ultimatum presented by the British Ambassador, Sir Nevile Henderson, at 9 A. M., the deadline given for withdrawal of German troops from Poland.

The newspapers issued extra editions of one page each, distributed free, announcing the Führer's refusal of the ultimatum and the British declaration of war.

News Heard In Silence

Several hundred persons silently heard the grave news from loudspeakers as they stood in front of the Chancellery. The crowd later swelled to several thousand.

By 7 P. M. silent crowds stretched for blocks in the Wilhelmplatz gazing at the white stone Chancellery. In the early evening thousands of sandbags appeared as if by magic and were piled up against the low windows.

Berlin was prepared for possible air attack tonight.

HITLER WITH ARMY ON EASTERN FRONT

Leaves Berlin After Placing Blame for War on Britain—Allied Envoys Depart

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 3.—Chancellor Hitler, in a broadcast appeal to Germany, today accused Britain of encircling Germany to further British ambitions for world domination.

Herr Hitler declared in his broadcast that because he mobilized the German people against the Versailles Treaty, Britain tried to prevent Germany from obtaining needed living space.

"The British Government is mistaken about one thing," he declared. "The Germany of 1939 is no longer the Germany of 1914, and the Chancellor of the present German Reich is no longer Bethmann-Hollweg (Chancellor in 1914)."

Herr Hitler said that except for British support Poland would not have resisted a peaceful revision of her frontiers.

"Let England understand that today 90,000,000 human beings are united in the German Reich.

"They are determined not to let themselves be choked off by England," he said.

"The German people knows that the British people as a whole cannot be made responsible for all this.

"It is that Jewish plutocratic and democratic upper crust which among all peoples of the world desires to see only obedient slaves and which hates our new Reich because it sees in it the model for social work which it fears might prove contagious also in their own country."

Herr Hitler's proclamation to the eastern army said that "although Germany has no demands to make on any State west of the Reich, although Germany demands no territorial revision of this region, although Germany often made the offer to both England and France for a cordial understanding, and even more, friendship, the British Government, aroused by war agitators known to us from the times of the World War, decided to let the mask fall and proclaim a state of war under a threadbare pretext."

To his eastern army Hitler said:

"For months England has been carrying on its policy of encirclement, followed before the last war. For this purpose it seeks to make use of all European states and peoples.

"Poland was chosen to play the all-important role in this encirclement front when the Soviet Union declined to subordinate its own interests to those of England.

"Continuous persecution of Germans in Poland and a battle begun with every means against the Free City of Danzig came next to hard measures on the eastern front necessary for the security of the Reich.

"Soldiers of the east army! In two days you have already accomplished achievements which all Germany looks on with pride. I know you recognize the tasks assigned to you, and that you will do your utmost to grind down and crush the enemy.

"The west wall, completed with tremendous efforts, meantime will shelter and defend Germany. I myself, as an old soldier in the World War and supreme commander-in-chief, will join you at the front today. Signed, Adolf Hitler."

Then the Fuehrer sent this proclamation to his army on the western front:

"Although Germany has no demands to make on any state west of the Reich, although Germany considers any territorial revision in this territory, although Germany often made offers to both England and France for a cordial understanding, even more, friendship, the British government, aroused by war agitators, known to us from World War times, has decided to let the mask fall and proclaim a state of war under a threadbare pretext.

"For months it supported Polish attacks against the life and security of German nationals such as in the Free City of Danzig with promises immediately to help Poland if Germany should defend itself against such attacks. . . .

"Now that Poland, conscious of this protection, has undertaken most aggressive acts against the Reich's territory, I have decided to burst open the ring laid around Germany!

"The non-aggression and consultation pact with Soviet Russia gives us assurance of a policy of peaceful agreement with this greatest empire of the East.

"For two days portions of the German Army in the east have entered battle in answer to Polish aggressive acts in order to establish a peace which would guarantee the German people life and liberty.

"After forty-eight hours their advance has been accompanied by success everywhere. Although only a small part of the air force has entered the action in the east it controls the air over entire Poland.

"The German people and your comrades in the east expect now of the soldiers on the west front that you will guard as unshakeably as a wall of steel and iron the border of the Reich against every attack in a fortification which is 100 times stronger than the never-conquered west front of the great war.

"If you do your duty [illegible] battle in the East will be victoriously concluded in a few weeks. And the strength of the entire 90,000,000 stands behind you. As an old World War soldier and supreme commander-in-chief, and trusting in you, I am joining today the east army.

"Our plutocratic enemies will know that a Germany different from the Germany of 1914 faces them."

The duty of the Western Army, as he outlined it, is to guard "as unshakeably as a wall of steel and iron the border of the Reich against every attack in a fortification which is a hundred times stronger than the never-conquered West Front of the Great War."

Herr Hitler started for the east front shortly after 10 P. M. tonight. He left the Chancellery in a limousine with shaded headlights while the city was in a complete blackout.

The car made its way slowly through the large, mostly silent crowd standing in the dark Wilhelmplatz.

A few in the crowd near the driveway broke through the small police guard and shouted, "Fuehrer, command; we follow till death."

The deepest secrecy was maintained as to what part of the front Herr Hitler would visit or how he would travel.

Meanwhile, the British and French Ambassadors bowed out of Germany today with the cold punctilio of tradition almost at the same time that a new Russian envoy was being formally accepted with extraordinary dispatch and a great show of enthusiasm by street crowds.

Robert Coulondre, for France, and Sir Nevile Henderson, for Britain, said their formal goodbyes to Joachim von Ribbentrop, the German Foreign Minister, in a scene that departed from tradition in the fact that the old custom of handing back passports was abandoned.

Sir Nevile called a second time on Herr von Ribbentrop at 11:30 A. M. and departed five minutes later.

The crowd outside applauded him, but aside from a slight wave of the hand he gave no sign of recognition.

M. Coulondre left the German Foreign Minister's office at 12:28 P.M.

TIES OF SLOVAKIA TO REICH STRESSED

War Minister Warns Army It Holds Nation's Future In Hands

Premier Tiso Praises Germany For Keeping Hands Off Interior Affairs

[By the Associated Press]

Bratislava, Sept. 3—Slovakia's fully mobilized army of 300,000 was told today by Gen. Ferdinand Csatlos, War Minister, that Slovak interests had "become allied to the German army and in hostile relationship with Poland."

His army, the Minister said, again was "facing historic trial."

Slovakia already is a base for German military operations against Poland.

"Hostilities," Csatlos went on, "have now started. Slovakia will be judged now and in future according to the Slovak troops' merit in battle. The maintenance of the nation depends upon their firmness, discipline, coolness."

His proclamation followed a speech in which Premier Josef Tiso declared Germany had "wonderfully refused to mix in the interior affairs of Slovakia."

His Program For Army

The army, the Premier added, "will defend our independence and recover our historic territories from Poland."

A correspondent skirted the entire length of the Slovak-Hungarian border in Ruthenia tonight and found all roads barred by German patrols.

In contrast, the Polish-Hungarian frontier was open and a Hungarian sergeant waved clasped hands to indicate Hungary's friendship for Poland.

The presence of only nominal Hungarian forces in upper Ruthenia was taken to mean that Poland was under no pressure in that area.

Death For Espionage Decreed By Germany

Insurgency Also To Carry Same Penalty—Punishment For Other Crimes Announced

Berlin, Sept. 3 (AP)—Two extraordinary war-time decrees, applying the death sentence for espionage and insurgency and stern punishment for other military crimes, were made effective in Germany tonight.

The death penalty also was decreed for any soldier or civilian who attempts to weaken the army or the people in their "defense determination" or who seeks to evade military service in any form.

A decree made effective immediately created border zones along the sea and facing Poland in Bohemia in which foreigners and questionable persons are not allowed. Foreigners may pass through these areas on trains.

Dikes Reported Opened

BERLIN, Sept. 3 (AP).—The German official news agency, D. N. B., announced tonight that the Poles had pierced Weichsel (Vistula) River dikes in the region of Dirschau (Tczew) near the Danzig border, flooding the lower lands of the river valley. The Germans were in complete possession of Dirschau and Danzig, the agency said.

The announcement added the Poles had destroyed the Liessau bridgehead and the [illegible] river bridges near Dirschau.

On Southwestern Front

LONDON, Sept. 3 (AP).—Exchange Telegraph (British News Agency) said today that the German radio had announced that the German Army had crossed the River Warthe (Warta) this morning east of Wielun in southwestern Poland.

An attempt by Polish detachments, virtually cut off in the Polish Corridor from the rest of Poland, to break through to the south was said to have been halted.

France And Britain Expected To Ask For Definite Statement

Use Of Ports By Nazis For War Supplies One Question Up

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Sept. 3—Italy maintained a position tonight of virtual neutrality, though benevolent toward her Axis ally, Germany.

Whether this situation would long prevail now that Great Britain and France were at war with Germany was the dominant question in Rome.

The British and French governments were expected to ask the Italian Government within a few days for a precise declaration of Italy's intentions. For the moment official circles were silent and the press failed to give a clear indication of Italy's further course of action.

Officials declined to discuss the situation in the absence of any declaration authorized by Premier Mussolini.

Exact Stand Sought

Reliable sources said the British and French would want to know Italy's position exactly because of the duties involved in a neutrality stand—if that was to be Italy's course. One of these duties would be the prevention of delivery of such contraband as war supplies to belligerents.

The Italian intention of doing nothing for the time being was indicated by the announcement that while street lighting in cities would remain reduced, the blackout as a precaution against air raids would be suspended.

War already had affected the Italian's life, however. All dance halls have been closed and cafes, restaurants and other such places were ordered closed an hour before midnight. This was the last day for private motoring and gasoline supplies were exhausted at filling stations. Tomorrow only [illegible] with military permits will be allowed to run.

To Keep Up German Trade

Italy's intention to maintain normal trade relations with Germany was reported in official circles. It was said that while there might be a stoppage of a day or two in shipping it would be only for an adjustment of a balance for payments through clearing houses.

Failure of the British and French governments to involve Italy in their dispute with Germany was considered here as sufficient assurance Italy would not be attacked.

The question immediately arose in many minds, however, as to whether Hitler might call upon Italy for aid. The question was particularly pressing in view of the changed situation since last Friday when the German Führer publicly withheld such a call in his historic and impassioned speech before the Reichstag.

Use Of Ports By Question

Another question uppermost in Italian minds was whether Germany might not count on the use of Italian ports for supplies, including those of her new economic partner, Russia, through the Black Sea. This would be especially pertinent if the British Navy blockaded German ports, as appeared probable.

Diplomatic sources indicated Britain and France were counting on Italy to remain neutral, rather than go to war on Germany's side.

As evidence of this assumption, they cited public tributes by both Prime Minister Chamberlain and Premier Daladier to il Duce's peace efforts.

There were indications, however, that the Rome Government foresaw the possibility of Italy's involvement in the manner in which defense measures continued.

Responsible sources represented Mussolini as having made strong efforts to dissuade Hitler from the Polish campaign and negotiate a settlement.

War Declaration No Surprise

British and French declarations of war failed to surprise well-informed Italians, who based their only hope for avoidance of general European conflict on the possibility that Hitler might halt his armies after cutting through the Polish Corridor.

Gayda, one of the most authentic Italian editors, wrote in Viva Voce Italia that Germany, after two days' fighting, "does not appear far from occupation of all Polish territory she demanded as her natural right."

He added, however, that Germany could not "be expected to withdraw from positions now firmly fixed by a victorious march of her armed columns."

For that reason, he advised Italians to refrain from "hasty optimism" based on the possibility of localizing the war and settling the Polish-German dispute by negotiation.

In the past, Mussolini's Government has insisted it would refrain from any initiative in military operations, giving the impression that she would stay out of war unless attacked.

Military Authorities Take Measures To Protect Port

Saint John, N. B., Sept. 3 (Canadian Press)—A partial blackout cloaked Saint John in semi-darkness tonight as military authorities took precautionary measures for the protection of this port.

FRANCO IN APPEAL TO LOCALIZE WAR

Spanish Generalissimo's Plea Directed To Common Sense Of Governments

Broadcast Points To Years Of Suffering In Own Nation's Conflict

[By the Associated Press]

Burgos, Sept. 3—Generalissimo Francisco Franco late today broadcast a peace appeal to the world for localization of the German-Polish conflict.

Franco's appeal was addressed to the "common sense and responsibility of all governments of those nations" involved in strife to exert every effort for localizing the conflict.

His broadcast was made a few hours after Britain and France declared war on Germany, which helped Franco win the bitter three-year Spanish Civil War which ended last spring.

Believes Spain Will Stay Out

"With the authority which allows me to speak, having suffered three years of war and the pressure of conflict for the liberation of my country," Franco said, "I address myself to the nations in whose hands lies the responsibility for a catastrophe without antecedent in history."

While he spoke Spain had 400,000 men still under arms, but Spaniards were calm in the belief their nation would not be involved in a European war.

"I appeal so that they will avoid the suffering and tragedy which we Spaniards suffered, notwithstanding the limitation on employment of means of destruction, horrors which will be a hundred times worse in a new war," he said.

Germs Of Future Wars

"It is a great responsibility to extend the conflict to scenes and places distant from the focal point of the war without reason or justification. The extension, without benefit for the belligerants, would produce intense and insuperable disturbances for the economy of the world, incalculable losses in riches and paralysis of commerce with grave effects on the standard of life of the [illegible] masses.

"The more there is fighting now, the more we sow germs of future wars.

"Under these conditions I appeal to the common sense and responsibility of the governments of those nations to exert every effort to localize the present conflict."

Neutral Russia Expects to Sell Supplies to All

Example of U. S. Is Cited; New Envoy to Berlin Is Received in Formal Pomp

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Sept. 3.—Sources close to the Soviet government emphasized tonight that they expected to remain neutral in a European war. They strongly hinted that in no case would their army march at the side of Germany's.

At the same time these sources pointed out that they expected to lend economic aid both to Germany and her foes. The terms of the new loan credit arranged by Germany for Russia were believed to be a determining factor in this arrangement.

The Russians, in supporting their plan to lend economic aid to both sides, asserted that during the Chinese - Japanese war and the Spanish civil war the United States sold munitions and other goods to both parties, and asked why Russia should not follow suit.

Precautionary measures, including the requisitioning of certain foodstuffs, were said to have been taken by the Soviet Union. There has been no mobilization order but an undisclosed number of reserves were ordered to register immediately in case they are needed. It was reported unofficially that service had been suspended on eight domestic airlines, presumably to enable use of the planes for transporting soldiers to the frontiers.

Unofficial reports circulated tonight that the Polish Ambassador had served notice on the Soviet Union of "Germany's aggression against Poland" and asked Russia's intentions. The Polish envoy was understood to have said that "Poland has accepted the war forced upon her by aggression."

[The new Soviet Ambassador to Berlin, Alexander Schwkarzeff, was welcomed in the German capital with Nazi fanfare amid rumors that close Soviet-German relations might lead to a military pact.]

The appointment of a new Soviet military attaché to Berlin was announced. The new appointee is M. A. Purkaieff.

The fact that Britain and France actually had gone to war with Germany, until recently considered a powerful potential enemy of Russia, made such a deep impression here that it might have a great influence on Soviet policy.

The viewpoint of the average man was that he could not picture himself fighting side by side with Germany, with whom Soviet Russia signed a non-aggression pact Aug. 24. He expected Russia to remain neutral, but did not exclude the possibility of entering the war on the side of Britain and France.

Sunday is not a holiday in Russia, which rests on every sixth day, so long lines formed at newsstands to learn of the war declaration. Newspapers for the first time since the war crisis arose gave long accounts of events in central Europe. The papers emphasized Russia's policy of "peace and independence."

Hitler Accepts New [illegible]

BERLIN, Sept. 3 (AP).—Alexander A. Shkvarzev after little more than eighteen hours stay in Berlin, was formally accepted today as the Soviet Union's Ambassador to Germany.

The Fuehrer acted in record time in accepting the envoy of the Moscow government with which Nazism will develop the closest relations, presumably leading to a military pact. At almost the same time the British and French Ambassadors, Sir Nevile Henderson and Robert Coulondre, bade farewell to German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop.

The Soviet representative was received with all the pomp and circumstance attending the presentation of a foreign ambassador's credentials. There was one exception, however—the S. S. (Elite) guards no longer wore their customary black but were clad in the field gray of the army. Police in attendance had tin containers with gas masks slung over their backs.

The arrival of two Swastika-carrying limousines with the Russians was preceded by an honor guard of the army marching through the Wilhelmstrasse with a brass band blaring. A curious Sunday crowd stood patiently for two hours in the brilliant sun awaiting the Russians and vociferously heiled their arrival.

Dutch Reaffirm Neutrality

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands, Sept. 3 (AP).—An official statement broadcast by the Netherland Government today reaffirmed its neutrality.

"In connection with the situation of war that now exists between some nations, the Netherland Government wants to declare that it will keep a strictly neutral attitude," the statement said.

The Netherlands maintained a state of mobilization with the military holding extraordinary powers of supervision over civilian life where it was required.

It was announced officially that men in the Netherland East Indies subject to military service need not return to the homeland until further notice.

The broadcast announcement of Britain's war declaration caused little outward excitement. The feeling had been general that European affairs had reached the point where a conflict between Germany and the western democracies was almost inevitable.

Disappointment was evident, however, over the failure of Queen Wilhelmina's offer to mediate the dispute.

Restraint Urged on Swiss

BERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 3 (AP).—Switzerland, which kept out of the World War successfully, took prompt measures today to escape the new European strife. The press radio division of the army staff issued a proclamation that said:

"A new war in Europe has become a reality. These tragic circumstances should not be used to satisfy a desire for sensational news. The population is urged to give preference to our Swiss newspapers as well as our own means of information."

Parliament already has granted emergency powers to the Federal Council to maintain neutrality and has elected Colonel Henri Guisan as general and Commander in Chief of the army to defend, if necessary, Switzerland's independence and territorial integrity.

All private telephone communications with foreign countries were suspended by military authorities until further notice.

Denmark Voices Neutrality

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Sept. 3 (AP).—Denmark issued today a declaration of neutrality and voiced the expectation that the integrity of her borders would be recognized by both sides in the European war.

The Norwegian Admiralty today radioed all Norwegian ships at present en route to belligerent countries to proceed to the nearest Norwegian or neutral port.

Danube Lands Work to Form A Neutral Bloc

Italy Reported Interested in Efforts of Hungary, Yugoslavia, Rumania, Bulgaria

BUDAPEST, Sept. 3 (AP).—An official report that Hungary, Yugoslavia, Rumania and Bulgaria were working to form an elastic neutrality bloc was accompanied here today with authoritative expressions of belief that Italy would be deeply interested in such an effort.

Diplomatic quarters reported that the Yugoslav Minister at Rome had been in constant contact with Count Galeazzo Ciano, Mussolini's Foreign Minister, and that Italy's friendship with Hungary, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria was close.

The Yugoslav Foreign Office commented that this projected four-power plan to stay out of war did not mean a joint neutrality pact as such, but added: "Naturally, nations with the same idea of neutrality will have much in common."

News of Great Britain's declaration of war was broadcast on all government radios in southeastern Europe. In Belgrade, Yugoslavia, street crowds shouted "long live England!" In Bucharest the Union Jack appeared on some private houses.

HUNGARIAN NAZIS SPLIT BY SYMPATHIES

Most Of Party's Deputies Openly Show Favor To Poland

Government Censor Cuts Holes In Pro-Ger[illegible] Editorial

[By the Associated Press]

Budapest, Sept. 3—Hungary's Nazi party, torn with dissension over its differing war sympathies, threatened to split wide apart today even before its probable dissolution by the Government.

While the Government censor slashed holes in a pro-German editorial in the Nazi newspaper written by "Führer" Kalman Hubay, the Hungarian traditional friendship for Poland set the fifty Nazi members of the lower House of Parliament to quarreling bitterly among themselves.

Plan Sympathy Demonstration

It was understood most of them openly sympathized with Poland against Germany.

The incongruous situation was best shown by the plan of several Nazi deputies to hold a sympathy demonstration in front of the Polish Legation. A similar attempt to demonstrate before the German Legation by other Hungarian Nazis was effectively curbed by energetic police with sabers a week ago today.

Recall Bela Kun Regime

Adolf Hitler's pact with Soviet Russia has led to quarreling among Hungarian Nazis who remember with detestation the Hungarian Communist regime of Bela Kun in 1919.

If the party survives its internal wrangling it appeared likely to be finished off by the Government.

Premier Count Paul Teleky, under his emergency powers program, has asked for the right to curb the right of assembly and the right of political organization, a power which sources close to the Government said was aimed at the Nazis.

Former Kaiser Follows War On Huge Wall Map Of Poland

Old Man Of Doorn Sits At Radio And Hears Great Britain's Declaration Of War

[By the Associated Press]

Doorn, Sept. 3—The former German Kaiser, vanquished and exiled by last World War, followed the new one tonight before a gigantic map of Poland hung in the great hall at Doorn.

Methodically and with the precision of one long versed in warfare he placed little colored pins to indicate the positions of the opposing armies, their advances and retreats, and to show towns bombarded and objectives falling to the German arms.

When Britain declared war this morning the bent old man, once the "all-highest" of the German Empire, sat hunched before a radio.

Can't Make Statements

He was one who could listen to the momentous decision without fear of the decree forbidding Germans to heed foreign stations under [illegible] imprisonment or possible death.

Exiled in a neutral country, the ex-Kaiser can make no statement upon world events. He is known, however, to have followed Hitler's activities in greatest detail.

"Up to a year ago, before the annexation of Austria," recounted one who goes frequently to Doorn, "the Kaiser was a great admirer of Hitler. He felt the Nazi Government was better than previous regimes in Germany. But now he is gravely concerned.

"'Hitler is living dangerously,' he declared about a year ago. 'Let him take care.'"

There is no doubt, in the minds of many, that a dream of restoring the Hohenzollerns to power in Germany inspires the ex-Kaiser in his patient charting of the war's course.

He does not dream for himself, say those who have access to the Doorn household, but for his favorite grandson, Prince Louis Ferdinand.

The story is told frequently that a bill of succession has existed for a number of years, tucked away perhaps until one day it can be signed. If such a paper exists, it may have been among those piled high on the huge oak table over which the ex-Kaiser bent this afternoon [illegible] reading glasses through [illegible].

Books, maps, newspapers and the radio, provide the old man of Doorn with information. He followed the Spanish civil war and keeps abreast of the Japanese campaign in China as part of his daily routine.

"In good health, he has always found it difficult to adjust himself to the inactive life of Doorn," is a remark attributed to his wife, Princess Hermine, who, with one of her daughters, is now with the ex-Kaiser at Doorn.

Windsor Awaiting Plane To Take Him to England

Duchess Expected to Go, Too; Weather Delays Trip

PARIS, Sept. 3 (AP).—The Duke of Windsor—the former King Edward VIII of England—waited anxiously on the Riviera today to start a plane flight home, British sources said.

A private plane he summoned for his first trip to his homeland since he gave up his throne for the American-born "woman I love" was grounded by bad weather at Farnborough, England, but was expected to take off as soon as conditions permitted.

His Duchess, the former Wallis Warfield, was expected to accompany him. Just as for the Duke, it would be her first visit to England since Windsor's abdication on Dec. 10, 1936. They came to France and were married in this country.

It has been reported that the British government had a "duty" in mind for the Duke, but its nature was not made known here.

Meanwhile, awaiting his departure the Duke was said to be in almost constant communication with London.

Germans in Hongkong Are Interned by British

Several Glad to 'Get 2 Meals a Day' Far From Fatherland

HONGKONG, Sept. 3 (AP).—German residents in this outpost of the British Empire were rounded up tonight for internment in a requisitioned Catholic church school around which a barbed-wire fence was stretched.

Just how many had been held was not ascertainable. A majority had left before Great Britain's declaration of war. Several told newspaper men that they would rather "get two meals a day in the Hongkong prison camp than return to the Fatherland."

The authorities tonight appealed for 2,000 volunteers to take training as wardens in air-raid precautions.

Hongkong was on a complete wartime basis. Decrees regulated the conduct of individuals the movement of ships and aircraft and the operation of communications.

"Gate ships" took up positions at the entrance of the harbor, and all ships must pass between them. Civil aircraft likewise was made subject to military regulations. Any plane contravening them is liable to be shot down by the defense guns. At present, Pan American Airways, Pan American's semi-Chinese subsidiary, China-National Corporation; Imperial and Air-France are calling regularly at Hongkong.

4 Nazi Ships Off Peru

Callao, Peru, Sept. 3 (AP)—It was reported, without official confirmation, that four German vessels—the Monserrate, Osorno, Muenchen and Fisland—are now in Peruvian waters.

German Ship Deserter Seized at Maine Border

Disagreed With Hitler, He Tells Immigration Officials

FORT KENT, Me., Sept. 3 (AP).—Immigration officials reported today the arrest of a German seaman who, they said, told them he had deserted the German steamer Hermann Sauber at Chatham, N. B., last month because he disagreed with the Hitler regime.

The man, who gave his name as Johannes S. Kinder, twenty-four years old, was picked up at Upper Frenchville, on the Maine-New Brunswick border. Officials quoted him as saying he had escaped from an Edmundston, N. B., jail. He was to be taken to Bangor.

Two other members of the ship's crew, who left the vessel at Chatham, were captured, Chief Immigration Inspector Roy F. Kent said, by Canadian Mounted Police on the New Brunswick side of the border as they attempted to swim the St. John River to enter Maine.

Cruise Boat Trailed 4 Hours By Submarine On Trip To Havana

Miami, Fla., Sept. 3 (AP)—One of the 750 American cruise passengers put ashore in Havana by the liner Columbus told a Miami Herald reporter today the ship had contacted a submarine and a small vessel, apparently a tender, at sea.

The informant declined to be quoted by name.

The story said the submarine fell in behind the liner and followed for four hours, apparently communicating with it by radio. The ship's commander, Capt. Wilhelm Daehne, was quoted as announcing that the ship was acting under German naval orders.

The cruise passengers are now on their way to homes in the Washington, New York and New England areas. They boarded two special trains for the North after being brought here from Cuba by the steamer Florida.

Sellersville, Pa., Sept. 3 (AP)—Fritz Kuhn told a rally of his German-American Bund today that "Adolf Hitler will lick the whole of Europe."

Speaking before 2,000 at the Deutschhorst Country Club, Kuhn declared they could "best serve the Fatherland and show that their heart is with Germany by being absolutely neutral."

Roosevelt's Speech

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 3—Here is the text of President Roosevelt's radio address:

Tonight my single duty is to speak to the whole of America.

Until 4.30 this morning I had hoped against hope that some miracle would prevent a devastating war in Europe and bring to an end the invasion of Poland by Germany.

For four long years a succession of actual wars and constant crises have shaken the entire world and have threatened in each case to bring on the gigantic conflict which is today unhappily a fact.

It is right that I should recall to your minds the consistent and at times successful efforts of your government in these crises to throw the full weight of the United States into the cause of peace. In spite of spreading wars, I think that we have every right and every reason to maintain as a national policy the fundamental moralities, the teachings of religion and the continuation of efforts to restore peace—for some day, though the time may be distant, we can be of even greater help to a crippled humanity.

Would Avoid Use Of Force

It is right, too, to point out that the unfortunate events of these recent years have been based on the use of force or the threat of force. And it seems to me clear, even at the outbreak of this great war, that the influence of America should be consistent in seeking for humanity a final peace which will eliminate, as far as it is possible to do so, the continued use of force between nations.

It is, of course, impossible to predict the future. I have my constant stream of information from American representatives and other sources throughout the world. You, the people of this country, are receiving news through your radios and your newspapers at every hour of the day.

You are, I believe, the most enlightened and the best informed people in all the world at this moment. You are subjected to no censorship of news, and I want to add that your government has no information which it has any thought of withholding from you.

Verify All Reports

At the same time, as I told my press conference on Friday, it is of the highest importance that the press and the radio use the utmost caution to discriminate between actual verified fact on the one hand and mere rumor on the other.

I can add to that by saying that I hope the people of this country will also discriminate most carefully between news and rumor. Do not believe of necessity everything you hear or read. Check up on it first.

You must master at the outset a simple but unalterable fact in modern foreign relations. When peace has been broken anywhere, peace of all countries everywhere is in danger.

It is easy for you and me to shrug our shoulders and say that conflicts taking place thousands of miles from the continental United States, and, [illegible], the whole American hemisphere, do not seriously affect the Americas—and that all the United States has to do is to ignore them and go about our own business. Passionately though we may desire detachment, we are forced to realize that every word that comes through the air, every ship that sails the sea, every battle that is fought does affect the American future.

For True Neutrality

Let no man or woman thoughtlessly or falsely call for America sending its armies to European fields. At this moment there is being prepared a proclamation of American neutrality. This would have been done even if there had been no neutrality statute on the books, for this proclamation is in accordance with international law and with American policy.

This will be followed by a proclamation required by the existing Neutrality Act. I trust that in the days to come our neutrality can be made a true neutrality.

It is of the utmost importance that the people of this country, with the best information in the world, think things through. The most dangerous enemies of American peace are those who, without well-rounded information on the whole broad subject of the past, the present and the future, undertake to speak with authority, to talk in terms of glittering generalities, to give to the nation assurances or prophecies which are of little present or future value.

Puts Ban On Profiteering

I myself cannot and do not prophesy the course of events abroad—and the reason is that, because I have of necessity such a complete picture of what is going on in every part of the world, I do not dare to do so. And the other reason is that I think it is honest for me to be honest with the people of the United States.

I cannot prophesy the immediate economic effect of this new war on our nation but I do say that no American has the moral right to profiteer at the expense either of his fellow-citizens or of the men, women and children who are living and dying in the midst of war in Europe.

Some things we do know. Most of us in the United States believe in spiritual values. Most of us, regardless of what church we belong to, believe in the spirit of the New Testament—a great teaching which opposes itself to the use of force, of armed force, of marching armies and falling bombs.

The overwhelming masses of our people seek peace—peace at home, and the kind of peace in other lands which will not jeopardize peace at home.

We have certain ideas and ideals of national safety and we must act to preserve that safety today and to preserve the safety of our children in future years.

To Keep War From Americas

That safety is and will be bound up with the safety of the Western Hemisphere and of the seas adjacent thereto. We seek to keep war from our firesides by keeping war from coming to the Americas. For that we have historic precedent that goes back to the days of the administration of President George Washington. It is serious enough and tragic enough to every American family in every State in the Union to live in a world that is torn by wars on other continents. Today they affect every American home. It is our national duty to use every effort to keep them out of the Americas.

And at this time let me make the simple plea that partisanship and selfishness be adjourned; and that national unity be the thought that underlies all others.

This nation will remain a neutral nation, but I cannot ask that every American remain neutral in thought as well. Even a neutral has a right to take account of facts. Even a neutral cannot be asked to close his mind or his conscience.

I have said not once but many times that I have seen war and that I hate war. I say that again and again.

I hope the United States will keep out of this war. I believe that it will. And I give you assurances that every effort of your Government will be directed toward that end.

As long as it remains within my power to prevent, there will be no blackout of peace in the United States.

Germany Says London Balked Peace in Poland

Charges Interference of British Led to Strife That Brought on War

BERLIN, Sept. 3 (AP).—The text of Adolf Hitler's reply to the British ultimatum, as broadcast here today by the National Broadcasting Company, follows:

The German Reich government has received the ultimatum of the British government dated Sept. 3, 1939. The German government has the honor to reply as follows:

First: The German government and the German people refuse to accept from the British government the ultimate requests or to fulfill them.

Second: Since a good many months, a condition exists at our eastern borders which in effect amounts to war.

After the Versailles treaty had cut Germany to pieces, all German governments were refused a peaceful solution of these problems. The National Socialist government, too, has made efforts after the year 1933 to bring about a revision of the worst mistakes committed under the Treaty of Versailles by peaceful means.

It was in the first place the British government which made every practical revision impossible by their intransigeant position.

If it had not been for the British government interfering, the German people and the German government are convinced that between Germany and Poland a satisfactory arrangement could have been brought about and a men of all peoples, for some time after the dictates of Versailles had been delivered, considered as unbearable for a big nation, as well as detrimental to the political and economic interests of the east of Europe, unbearable in the long run and, therefore impossible to execute.

British statesmen were in line with these declarations when they said that the solution imposed forcibly on Germany in the east would only lead to future wars. In order to avoid this danger, it was the desire of all German governments, and particularly the intention of the present National Socialist people's government here, that a solution be found.

It was the responsibility of the policy of the British Cabinet to have put obstacles in the way of such a peaceful revision.

Third, the British government in an unprecedented step in human history, has given plenipotentiary powers to the Polish government to undertake whatever actions Poland might want to consider. The British government gave assurances to the Polish government, no matter under what circumstances, that it could take steps of defense against no matter what provocative actions. The British government assured its military support to Poland in such a case.

Thereupon, the Polish terror against the people residing in the territories once severed from Germany and particularly against the German people there, assumed proportions which could no longer be borne.

The Free City of Danzig particularly was dealt with in contradiction to all the legal stipulations, first economically and then in matters of customs policies and was even menaced with destruction, only to be completely submitted in a military sense and to be severed from communications with the outside world.

All this the British government knew very well. The British government was informed of the infringements against the laws which determined the statute of Danzig and by giving plenipotentiary powers to Poland, the British government has approved of all these illegal acts.

Moved by the suffering of the German people who were being tortured and inhumanly treated by the Polish authorities, the German government, which for five months had been looking on patiently without taking any aggressive action against Poland, has only addressed this morning a warning to the Polish government that these conditions would be unbearable in the long run. The German government also made it plain that it will take measures of self defense in case other help was not granted to the German population.

All these facts were well known to the British government. It would have been easy for them to exercise a strong influence in Warsaw and to exhort the rulers that they should apply principles of justice and humanity, and also to observe the stipulations they had entered into. The British government has not done so. On the contrary, by constantly insisting on the obligations that she come to the rescue of Poland under all circumstances, the British government has only encouraged the Polish government to continue in the criminal attitude which was endangering the peoples of Europe.'

The British government could have saved the peace of Europe, but it has refused the proposals of Mussolini, although the German Reich's government had stated their willingness to consider these proposals. The British government, therefore, is responsible for all the suffering and all the unhappiness which now will come over so many nations.

Fourth, after all the attempts to bring about a peaceful solution and to reach an agreement accordingly, after all these efforts had been made impossible by the intransigeance of the Polish government which was being backed up by England, and, after the conditions similar to civil war which had persisted for a number of months at the eastern border of Germany without the British government raising any objections whatsoever, and after these conditions had grown to a point where they amounted to overt attacks on German territory, the German government decided that it was unbearable for a major power to tolerate the continuance of these conditions and the menace which was coming from outside. Also, it was necessary in the interest of the domestic peace of the German people to bring an end to these conditions.

After the governments of the democratic countries had sabotaged all the possibilities of revision which still could have been applied to secure the peace and tranquillity and the honor of the German Reich, the German government decided that Poland's attacks would have to be counteracted by similar measures. The German government is not willing to tolerate conditions in order to make it possible for Great Britain to execute her obligations to Poland. The German government is not willing to tolerate conditions similar to those now existing in Palestine, which is a British protectorate.

Particularly, and above all, the German people are not willing to continue to be ill-treated by the Poles.

Fifth, the German government has therefore refused all attempts to force Germany by ultimatums, that the German Army, which has taken steps for the protection of the country, should be withdrawn, which would amount to restoration of conditions of restlessness and injustice as they have existed before.

The thread that Germany would otherwise be attacked in war is in complete harmony with the intention of the large number of British politicians as announced over a number of years. The German government and the German people have assured the British people time and again that they are desirous of bringing about an understanding with them, and even to establish a close friendship.

If the British government has refused to consider all these offers, and now makes a reply consisting in overt acts of war, this is not the responsibility of the German people and its government, but exclusively of the British Cabinet. Those men who for years have been preaching the destruction and eradication of the German nation are primarily to be held responsible. The German people and its government do not have the intention, as it seems Great Britain has, to rule the world, but they are determined to defend their own freedom and independence and primarily their own lives.

The intention which has been communicated to us on behalf of the British government by Mr. King Hall—an intention to destroy the German people even more than they have been destroyed by the Versailles Treaty—this intention we hereby take notice of, and we shall therefore reply to all acts of attack coming from England, no matter under what form, with the same weapons.

Hitler Appeal to Nation

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 3.—Following is the text of Chancellor Hitler's appeal to the German people today:

For centuries England has pursued her aim to make European peoples defenseless in pursuance of the British policy of world conquest by proclaiming a balance of powers according to which England claimed the right to attack and destroy, on a threadbare pretext, the European States which from time to time appeared most dangerous.

Thus it once combated Spanish world power, later Holland, then the French and, since 1871, Germany. We ourselves were witnesses to England's encirclement fight against the Germany of prewar time.

Just as the German Reich, under National Socialist leadership, began to recover from the terrible effects of the Versailles dictate and threatened to overcome the crisis, British encirclement immediately set in again.

British war agitators before the World War lied that their battle concerned only the House of Hohenzollerns of German militarism, that they had no designs on German colonies, that they did not intend to take our commercial fleet from us, and then they forced the German people under the Versailles dictate.

Faithful fulfillment of this dictate would have exterminated, sooner or later, twenty million Germans. I undertook to mobilize the resistance of the German nation against that and again to guarantee the German people work and bread.

Charges Hypocrisy to Britain

However, in proportion as the peaceful revision of the Versailles dictate of force appeared to succeed and the German people again to live, the new English encirclement policy began. The same war agitators as before 1914 went to work.

Innumerable times I have offered England and the English people agreement and the friendship of the German people. My entire policy was built up on the thought of this understanding.

I was constantly repulsed by hypocritical declarations. Always new pretexts were sought to cramp the German space of living [Lebensraum] and there were attempts, although we never threatened British interests, to make our life difficult and even to throttle it.

England induced Poland to that attitude, which made peaceful understanding impossible. Through its guarantee declaration it gave the Polish Government the prospect of provoking Germany without any danger—more, to allow it to attack.

The British Government, however, is mistaken about one thing: the Germany of 1939 is no longer the Germany of 1914, and the Chancellor of the present German Reich no longer is Bethmann-Hollweg. [Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg was German Chancellor in the World War.]

Says Poles Ignored W

I have already announced in my speeches at Saarbruecken and at Wilhelmshaven that we would defend ourselves against the British encirclement policy. Above all, I left no doubt that despite all patience and forebearance, the Polish attacks against Germans, as well as against the Free City of Danzig, must come to an end.

Strengthened through the British guarantee declaration and through the assertions of British war agitators, Poland thought it could disregard this warning. For two days the Germany Army has been fighting in the East in order to reestablish the security of the Reich's territory.

Polish resistance will be broken by our soldiers. Let England understand that today ninety million human beings are united in the German Reich. They are determined not to let themselves be choked off by England.

They have not conquered by war forty million square kilometers on this earth, as England has. But they have the will to live on land which belongs to them, and not to allow England to take this life from them.

The German people know that the British people as a whole cannot be made responsible for all this. It is that Jewish plutocratic and democratic upper crust which, in all peoples of the world, desires to see only obedient slaves and which hates our new Reich because it sees in it a model for social work which it fears because it might prove contagious also in their own country.

The battle against this new effort to destroy Germany we now are taking up. We will fight with national socialistic determination. British money, power, and politicians, however, will learn what it means to want to draw national socialistic Germany into war without any cause!

Holds Resolution Is Inexorable

I was aware for months that the goal of these war agitators was formed for a long time. The intention to attack Germany on any favorable opportunity was certain. Resolution, however, to lead and repel this battle was even more certain.

Germany will never again capitulate! Life under a second and even worse dictate of Versailles has no sense. We have never been a slave people, and never want to be in the future.

Whatever sacrifices Germany has had to make in the past for continuance of our people and our Reich, they ought not to have been greater than those which we are ready to undertake today.

This resolution is inexorable. It stipulates, therefore, thoroughgoing measures. It compels, above all, this rule on us:

When a soldier fights on the front, no one should profit through war. When a soldier falls on the front, no one at home should avoid his duty.

As long as the German people, through its history, was united, it was never conquered. Only the disunity of 1918 led to the collapse. Whoever sins against our unanimity and unity must expect nothing else than that he will be annihilated as an enemy of the nation.

If our people in each manner fulfills its highest duty, then the Lord God who always has given His grace to him who was determined to help himself, will also stand by us.

Chamberlain War Statements

LONDON, Sept. 3 (AP).—The text of Prime Minister Chamberlain's radio proclamation of war between Great Britain and Germany follows:

This morning the British Ambassador in Berlin handed to the German government a final note stating that unless we heard from them by 11 o'clock [British summer time, 6 a. m. E. D. T.] that they were preparing at once to withdraw their troops from Poland a state of war would exist between us.

I have to tell you now that no such undertaking has been received and in consequence this country is at war with Germany.

You can imagine what a bitter blow it is to me that all my long struggle to win peace has failed. Yet I cannot believe that there is anything more or anything different that I could have done that would have been more successful.

Up to the very last it would have been possible to arrange a peaceful and honorable settlement between Germany and Poland, but Hitler would not have it. He had evidently made up his mind to attack Poland, whatever happened, and although he now says that he put forward reasonable proposals which were rejected by the Poles, that is not a true statement.

The proposals were never shown to the Poles, nor to us, and although they were announced in the German broadcast on Thursday night, Hitler did not wait to hear comment on them, but ordered his troops to cross the Polish frontier next morning.

His action shows convincingly that there is no chance of expecting that this man will ever give up his intention of using force to gain his will.

Address by the King

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—The text of the appeal of King George VI to his subjects in all parts of the world today follows:

In this grave hour, perhaps the most fateful in our history, I send to every household of my peoples, both at home and overseas, this message, spoken with the same depths of feeling for each one of you as if I were able to cross your threshold and speak to you myself.

For the second time in the lives of most of us, we are at war. Over and over again, we have tried to find a peaceful way out of the differences between ourselves and those who are now our enemies; but it has been in vain.

We have been forced into a conflict, for we are called, with our allies, to meet the challenge of a principle which, if it were to prevail, would be fatal to any civilized order in the world.

It is a principle which permits a State, in the selfish pursuit of power, to disregard its treaties and its solemn pledges, which sanctions the use of force, or threat of force, against the sovereignty and independence of other States.

Such a principle, stripped of all disguise, is surely the mere primitive doctrine that might is right. And if this principle were established throughout the world, the freedom of our own country and the whole British Commonwealth of Nations would be in danger.

But far more than this, the peoples of the world would be kept in the bondage of fear, and all hopes of settled peace and of security, of justice and liberty, among nations, would be ended.

This is the ultimate issue which confronts us. For the sake of all that we ourselves hold dear, and of the world order and peace, it is unthinkable that we should refuse to meet the challenge.

It is to this high purpose that I now call my people at home and my peoples across the seas who will make our cause their own.

I ask them to stand calm and firm and united in this time of trial.

The task will be hard. There may be dark days ahead and war can no longer be confined to the battlefield, but we can only do the right as we see the right, and reverently commit our cause to God. If one and all we keep resolutely faithful to it, ready for whatever service or sacrifice it may demand, then with God's help, we shall prevail.

May He bless and keep us all.

And he can only be stopped by force.

We and France are today, in fulfillment of our obligations, going to the aid of Poland, who is so bravely resisting this wicked and unprovoked attack on her people.

We have a clear conscience. We have done all that any country could do to establish peace. But a situation in which no word given by Germany's ruler could be trusted and no people or country could feel itself safe has become intolerable.

And now we have resolved to finish it. I know you will all play your part with calm courage. At such a moment as this the assurances of support we have received from the Empire are a source of profound encouragement to us.

When I have finished speaking, detailed announcements will be made on behalf of the government. These need your close attention.

The government have made plans under which it will be possible to carry on the work of the nation in the days of stress and strain which may be ahead of us. These plans need your help. You may be taking your part in the fighting services or as a volunteer in one of the branches of civil defense. If so, you will report for duty in accordance with the instructions you receive.

You may be engaged in work essential to the prosecution of the war, for maintenance of the life of people in factories, in transport and public utility concerns and in the supply of the other necessaries of life. If so, it is of vital imporfance that you should carry on with your job.

Now may God bless you all and may he defend the right. For it is evil things that we shall be fighting, against brute force, bad faith, injustice, oppression and persecution. And against them I am certain that right will prevail

Chamberlain Speaks To House Of Commons

London, Sept. 3 (AP)—Following is the text of Prime Minister Chamberlain's statement to the House of Commons:

When I spoke last night to the House I could not but be aware that in some parts of the House there were doubts or bewilderment as to whether there had been hesitation or vacillation on the part of the Government.

If I had been in the same position as members and not in possession of all information I might have felt the same.

SEP 4-1939

We were in consultation all day yesterday with the French Government and we felt that the intensified action which the Germans were taking against Poland allowed of no delay in making our position clear.

British Statement To Berlin

Accordingly, we decided to send to our Ambassador in Berlin instructions which he was to hand at 9 o'clock this morning to the German Foreign Secretary, which read as follows:

"Sir, in a communication which I had the honor to make to you on September 1, I informed you on the instructions of his Majesty's principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs that unless the German Government were prepared to give satisfactory assurances that the German Government would suspend all aggressive action against Poland and were prepared promptly to withdraw their forces from Polish territory, his Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom would without hesitation fulfill their obligations to Poland.

No Reply Received

"Although this communication was made more than twenty-four hours ago no reply has been received. German attacks on Poland have been continued and intensified.

"I have accordingly to inform you that unless, no later than 11 A. M. British Summer Time, today, September 3, satisfactory assurances to the above effect have been given by the German Government and have reached his Majesty's Government in London, a state of war will exist between two countries as from that hour."

No such undertaking was received by the time stipulated and, consequently, this country is now at war with Germany.

I am in a position to inform the House that, according to arrangements made between the British and French governments, the French Ambassador in Berlin is at this moment making a similar demarche accompanied also by a definite time limit.

"We Are Ready"

SEP 4-1939

The House has been made aware of our plans and as I have said we are ready.

It is a sad day for all of us but for none is it sadder than for me.

Everything I had worked for, hoped for, and believed in during my public life has crashed into ruins.

There is only one thing left for me and that is to devote what strength and powers I have to forwarding victory of the cause for which we have to sacrifice ourselves. I cannot tell what part I may be allowed to play, but I trust I may live to see the day when Hitlerism has been destroyed and a restored and liberated Europe has been reestablished.

Daladier's Speech To France

SEP 4-1939

PARIS, Sept. 3 (AP).—Following is a translation into English of Premier Edouard Daladier's radio address tonight to the French nation:

Frenchmen and Frenchwomen:

Since dawn Sept. 1, Poland has been the victim of one of the most brutal and most cynical aggressions. Her frontiers have been violated. Her cities have been bombarded. Her army resists heroically against the invader. Responsibility for bloodshed rests entirely on the Hitler government.

Future peace was in Hitler's hands; he chose war. France and England multiplied their efforts to save peace. Even this morning they made an urgent effort to open pacific negotiations.

Germany answered us with refusal.

She refused to reply to all the men whose voices were raised these last few days in favor of peace in the world. She wishes the destruction of Poland in order to insure rapidly her domination of Europe and servitude of France.

In aligning ourselves against the most despicable of tyrannies, in honoring our word, we are fighting to defend our land, our homes, our liberty.

I know in my own conscience I worked without ceasing, without respite, against war until the last minute. With emotion and with tenderness I salute our young soldiers who are now going to do their sacred duty as we ourselves have already done. They can have confidence in their chiefs, who are worthy of them and who already have led France to victory.

The cause of France is the cause of justice. It is the cause of all peaceful and free nations. She will be victorious.

Frenchmen and Frenchwomen, we are waging war because it is forced on us. Each of us will be at his post on French soil—on that soil where respect and human dignity finds one of its last refuges.

You will all unite your efforts in the deep feeling of union and fraternity to save France.

Vive la France!

Premier King's Statement

By The Canadian Press.

OTTAWA, Sept. 3.—Following is the text of the address given by Prime Minister Mackenzie King over the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation national network today, which was repeated in French by Justice Minister Ernest La-Pointe:

SEP 4-1939

For months, indeed for years, the shadow of impending conflict in Europe has been ever present. Through these troubled years, no stone has been left unturned, no road unexplored in the patient search for peace.

Unhappily for the world, Herr Hitler and the Nazi regime in Germany have persisted in their attempt to extend their control over other peoples and countries, and to pursue their aggressive designs in wanton disregard of all treaty obligations nad peaceful methods of adjusting international disputes. They have had resort increasingly to agencies of deception, terrorism and violence.

It is this reliance upon force, this lust for conquest, this determination to dominate throughout the world, which is the real cause of the war that today threatens the freedom of mankind.

The fate of a single city, the preservation of the independence of a particular nation, are the occasion, not the real cause of the present conflict.

The forces of evil have been loosed in the world in a struggle between the pagan conception of a social order which ignores the individual and is based upon the doctrine of might, and civilization based upon the Christian conception of the brotherhood of man with its regard for the santity of contractual relations and the sacredness of human personality.

Quotes Roosevelt Statement

As President Roosevelt said on opening Congress on Jan. 4:

"There comes a time in the affairs of men when they must prepare to defend not their homes alone, but the tenets of faiths and humanity on which their churches, their governments, and their very civilization are founded. The defense of religion, of democracy and of good faith among nations is all the same fight. To save one, we must make up our minds to save all."

This, I believe, is the position in which all nations that cherish free institutions, individual liberty and social justice find themselves today.

I need not review the events of the last few days. They must be present in the minds of all. Despite her unceasing efforts to preserve the peace of Europe, the United Kingdom has today, in the determination to honor her pledges and meet her treaty obligations, become involved in war.

This morning, the King, speaking to his people at home and across the seas, appealed to all to make their own the cause of freedom which Britain again has taken up.

Canada has already answered that call. On Friday last, the Government, speaking on behalf of the Canadian people, announced that in the event of the United Kingdom being engaged in a war to resist aggression, they would, as soon as Parliament meets, seek its authority for effective co-operation by Canada at the side of Britain.

SEP 4-1939

As you are aware, I have all along felt that the danger of war was such that Parliament should not be dissolved, but be available to consider any emergency that might arise.

Parliament will meet Thursday next. Between now and then, all necessary measures will be taken for the defence of Canada. Consultations with the United Kingdom will be continued. In the light of all the information at its disposal, the government will then recommend to Parliament the measures which it believes to be the most effective for co-operation and defence.

Has Pledges of Cooperation

That Parliament will sanction all necessary measures, I have not the least doubt. Already, I have received from the leader of the Opposition and from representatives of the other parties in the House of Commons assurances of their full appreciation of the gravity of the situation and of their desire to see that such measures are adopted as, in the present crisis, will best serve the national interest.

SEP 4-1939

Our first concern is with the defence of Canada. To be helpful to others, we must ourselves be strong, secure and united.

In anticipation of a state of war, the government has already availed itself of the provisions of the War Measure Act, to take essential measures for the defence of our coasts, our land and our people. As has already been announced, the militia of Canada, the Naval Service and the Air Force are already on active service.

This morning these measures were supplemented by others including the putting into effect of the "Defence of Canada Regulations." Measures have also been taken to prevent profiteering in the necessaries of life. Of the latter measures my colleague, the Minister of Labor, will speak to you in a moment.

In what manner and to what extent Canada may most effectively be able to cooperate in the common cause is, as I have already stated, something which Parliament itself will decide. All I need to add at the moment is that Canade, as a free nation of the British Commonwealth, is bringing her cooperation voluntary. Our effort will be voluntary.

The people of Canada will, I know, face the days of stress and strain which lie ahead with calm and resolute courage. There is no home in Canada, no family and no individual whose fortunes and freedom are not bound up in the present struggle.

I appeal to my fellow-Canadians to unite in a national effort to save from destruction all that makes life itself worth living, and to preserve for future generations those liberties and institutions which others have bequeathed to us.

Modern War Hell on Wheels and Wings

Infantry Still Keystone, but Needs Support

How Armies' Tactics Have Changed in 20 Years Is Outlined as War Flares

SEP 4-1939

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3 (AP).—If war is hell, as Sherman said, then Europe's latest conflict is likely to be hell on wheels—and wings.

Increasing the mobility of armed forces, equipping them with more stronger and swifter wheels and wings, appears from a synthesis of American military comment to be the significant advance in martial science since the last great war.

Fundamental principles of warfare, American experts say, have not changed a jot, but the means of executing those principles have. Nor have any notable new weapons been contrived, although the old ones have been improved, chiefly with the aim of increasing mobility, that prime essential for attack, and hence for winning wars.

Exactly how much they have been improved, how well the major European powers are supplied with them, and how well prepared their soldiers are to use them remain to be seen on the battlefields. To be watched, however, are (1) tanks and other armored vehicles, (2) airplanes and (3) artillery, plus (4) the weapons used to combat them.

War of Trenches Recalled

1. During the World War concentrated machine-gun fire drove soldiers into the ground, quickly changing the war from one of maneuver to one of position. Whole armies were stalemated along entrenched fronts for months.

The British introduced tanks as an antidote for machine-gun fire. The first were cumbersome, unreliable, and were sent into battle in such small numbers at the beginning that they made no great offensive showing.

Experience in Spain twenty years later, said Lieut. Col. G. M. Barnes, of the United States Army, "demonstrated that tanks, when used in an attack, must be employed en masse and, moreover, must be given the aid of combined arms, including artillery support."

Germany, at least, with its tanks concentrated in corps of 1,200 each, seems prepared for mass attack.

Not only in Germany, however, but elsewhere, motorization and mechanization of armies advanced so rapidly after the British beginning in 1916 that military men began to wonder if wars of maneuver might not be revived by restored mobility.

The progress of mechanization was reviewed last year by Lieut. Col. P. R. Davison and Maj. E. M. Benitez, of the United States Army. They reported that:

France had one mechanized division, a second being formed, a third planned and a fourth suggested, with trends toward motorization rather than mechanization.

Great Britain had all infantry battalions at home motor-mechanized, while ten of the twenty-two cavalry divisions were to be mechanized or motorized.

Germany had built a road network especially for mechanized forces, numbering three armored divisions, to be expanded to six.

Italy had been experimenting with three types: a fast division, a motorized division and a mechanized brigade.

Russia was reported to have five divisions and nine independent brigades fully motorized, with 3,000 to 4,000 tanks.

Poland was not included in the survey, but it is known to be weak in motorization, strong only in traditional horse cavalry.

Col. Davison and Maj. Benitez pointed out, as so many others have, that Germany, prevented by the Versailles treaty from rearming until 1935, "has made herself free to acquire the most modern equipment."

Significantly, the chief of the German army's high command is an outstanding exponent of mechanized warfare, Wilhelm Keitel.

Besides putting armies on wheels and strengthening tanks, the world's armorers also have contrived tanks with chemical sprays, flame throwers and cannon as large as 45 mm.

Fortified Lines in Way

Whatever mobility these land battlewagons restore to armies, most observers agree, they cannot pierce such fortifications as the Maginot Line and the Siegfried Line. [The latter is sometimes called the German Limes, from the Latin for any frontier fortification.] Neither can

2. "Once wars were won by defeating an army. The next war may be won by destroying the people that furnish the army," Maj. J. Halpin Connolly wrote in "The Infantry Journal" recently.

"Surely the enemy will not strike the fortified position, but the basis of the whole army—industry and the people. . . . But in any event, no man will throw an army against an intact Maginot-type line. He will but commit suicide. And since both contestants have a fortified zone, what can one expect?"

The millions who have fled Europe's cities in horror know what to expect: bombardment. The effects of aerial bombardment on noncombatants are well known from China and Spain.

Conclusive tests are yet to be made of the effectiveness of aircraft over the battlefield. World War armies first used planes for something they never had been able to do easily before: Look behind the front lines of the enemy.

Gradually, the plane developed into an offensive weapon also, and today fighters fly at 300 miles an hour and bombers penetrate upward of 1,500 miles from their bases, carrying bombs weighing as much as a ton.

Some experts reason that only planes can win modern wars, because only planes can attack, but many others persist in the theory that the air force is only an auxiliary arm to the infantry that advances, takes and holds ground.

Capt. Wendell G. Johnson concluded early this year that "the Spanish civil war has shown that no one arm by itself can dominate the battlefield. Infantry remains the decisive arm, but it can no longer win a battle with its own means as was often done prior to the World War. Today infantry is helpless in offensive combat, unless strongly supported by auxiliary arms—artillery, mortars, aircraft, tanks."

3. Capt. Johnson and others observe that infantry's flat-trajectory artillery is valueless to cover the advance of motorized and foot troops. Howitzers and mortars that shoot over the heads of advancing troops and drop upon the enemy are advocated by those experts.

Here again enters Germany's advantage in delaying re-armament. Maj. J. R. Ernest Dupuy and Maj. George Fielding Eliot reported in "If War Comes":

"Since 1918 all nations have experimented with improved types of material, but, the cost of replacement being prohibitive, the World War stocks still remain as their main resource for the next war. Germany, profiting by the mistake of the past and following the trend of the present, has eliminated the light gun in favor of a howitzer. . . . Forced to build from nothing, the Reich is said to have constructed sufficient of these weapons to equip her entire army."

While no new gases have been reported since 1918, and none was used in Spain, armies are not neglecting equipment for gas attack and defense by air and land.

4. Each new attack weapon, in fact, eventually produces a defense. It's an army axiom.

Since the World War, anti-tank guns have appeared, the best firing twenty-five to thirty rounds a minute. In Spain, one general found that a 65-mm. gun was needed, since some tanks carried 45-mm. cannon. But blazing bottles of gasoline often served soldiers as well as guns.

Photographs of the French-German borders and of numerous roads throughout Europe show how tank attacks might be stopped by steel and concrete studs and barriers.

All these modern arms, however, require trained men to operate them. "The more complicated the device," wrote Maj. Dupuy and Maj. Eliot, "the less its value in untrained hands."

Latest figures on trained forces were:

Army—France, 250,000 regulars, 5,500,000 reserves; Germany, 1,000,000 and 4,000,000; Italy, 1,000,000 and 6,500,000; Poland, 280,000 and 1,500,000; Russia, 1,500,000 and 16,500,000; Great Britain, 208,500 and 360,000.

Air force—France, 65,000 regulars and 7,000 reserves; Germany, 200,000 and 25,000; Italy, 105,000 and 350,000; Poland, 10,000 regulars; Russia, 100,000 regulars; Great Britain, 85,000 regulars, 26,000 reserves.

Some observers hold, however, that training alone is not always enough. "In a huge, modern war-army the emotional factor is greater than in the days of small armies of skilled soldiers," said Maj. Connolly.

That imponderable factor is an unknown quantity in Nazi Germany, yet untried in prolonged warfare. Maj. Dupuy and Maj. Eliot remarked that "Polish spirit may be considered excellent; training good"; that France's army was the best in Europe, largely because of its officer corps, staff and organization, and that the reserve of the highly mechanized British Army "is excellent in quality, but deficient in numbers."

At sea, Britain and France are clearly masters, although there again the effect of new inventions is unpredictable. German submarine raiders devastated British shipping for months during the World War, despite England's sea superiority.

Germany now has 50 submarines, Italy 105, with 28 more scheduled. France has 75 ready for use in the Mediterranean. Unknown is the potential usefulness of torpedo boats which, swift and elusive as water bugs, dart in and out of harbors to scuttle far more formidable flotillas.

British Fleet's Job Seen Easier Than in 1914

Washington Experts Expect Quick Control of Seas, but Call Any Attack Difficult

SEP 4-1939

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3 (AP).—The big immediate task facing the British fleet, as at the outbreak of the World War, is to clinch command of the high seas and assure the safety of ships supplying England with food and war materials.

The task is less formidable than a quarter-century ago, in the opinion of students of sea warfare. Some expect it to be completed in short order, enabling British and French sea power to concentrate on offensive action against Germany.

Such action is possible on three fronts—the Baltic, North and Black Seas—but immense difficulties would have to be surmounted.

The task of assuring the safety of sea lanes appears less formidable than in 1914-'18 even though Germany is credited by official naval reports with nearly twice as many undersea raiders as at the start of the World War. Germany had twenty-seven in commission then to fifty now.

Submarine Defenses Improved

Since the World War, however, submarine detection devices have been improved, the convoy system developed near the end of the war has been perfected, and the longer range of aircraft permits easier spotting of submarines.

Further, Britain and France do not now have to immobilize as large a force to guard again a foray by a challenging German surface fleet.

Germany has never rebuilt its sea power to the 1914 level since its high seas fleet was sunk in Scapa Flow, after the armistice.

Thus more British and French ships are free to convoy merchantmen and hunt submarines than in the World War.

Britain alone has a five-to-one margin over Germany in naval tonnage—1,381,373 to 244,340 tons of ships actually in service. France is credited with 554,503 tons.

Two of the three offensive possibilities open to the British fleet present the same likelihood of heavy losses and defeat as resulted from the British World War attack on the Turkish land forces controlling the Dardanelles.

See Reich Controlling Baltic

Some experts dismissed as impracticable any attempt to wrest control of the Baltic from Germany. An attacking fleet would have to force passage from the North Sea through the narrow Kattegat, protected by mines and submarines.

Before an attack could succeed on the German North Sea coast, the bristling fortifications on the island of Helgoland would have to be put out of commission and then German coastal guns would have to be faced.

The remaining offensive possibility—reaching Germany and aiding Poland through the Dardanelles and the Black Sea—hinges on whether Italy and Rumania remain neutral and upon the attitude of Turkey.

For the present, some unofficial sea strategists expect the British main fleet to remain divided as in peace time. The home fleet has already taken its war position in the Orkney Islands, commanding the North Sea and the entrance to the Baltic, while the Mediterranean fleet is concentrated with the French forces in the Mediterranean to defend Britain's lifeline from India.

Neutrality Act Extends Beyond Arms Sales Ban

Loans, Travel and Shipping Restrictions Included

SEP 4-1939

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3 (AP).—This country's new neutrality act, when invoked by the President, puts the following restrictions into effect:

Americans are forbidden to sell, and American ships are forbidden to carry, arms and implements of war to any warring powre or to any other nation for trans-shipment to a belligerent.

American ships, however, may transport any other materials anywhere they choose. Foreign ships, including those of belligerents, may come to the United States and take cargoes other than actual arms and munitions.

Americans cannot make loans to warring nations, except normal, short-term commercial credits, and are forbidden to collect money for them or travel on their vessels.

American merchantmen trading with belligerents cannot arm themselves for protection against attack on the high seas.

The President may close United States harbors to submarines and armed merchantmen of belligerents if such action is deemed advisable to safeguard this country's neutrality or other interests.

U. S. Silences Its Officers

Army and Navy Told to Make No Statements Regarding War

SEP 4-1939

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3 (AP).—Army and Navy officers received orders today to keep utterly silent on events connected with the European war and any American developments, it was learned on high authority. The orders were described as "no statements, no speeches."

Advices went to the Army, Navy and Coast Guard that Great Britain and France were now at war with Germany and that they were to govern themselves accordingly.

U.S. to Restrict Movements at Panama Canal

Presidential Proclamation Expected to Define Rules for Belligerent Warships

SEP 4-1939

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3 (AP).—A Presidential proclamation concerning the use of the Panama Canal by belligerent warships will be issued shortly, an official predicted today.

It will contain a long list of rules governing the conduct of warships in the Canal or in the Canal Zone, the length of their stay and the restrictions that may be placed upon them.

Generally, it was said, the regulations have two main purposes: One is to preserve American neutrality to as high a degree as possible; the other is to prevent naval clashes from occurring close to the canal.

It was believed today that the regulation would follow these lines, more or less:

A warship would be permitted to pass through the canal only after its commanding officer had given written assurance that the regulations laid down by the United States authorities would be faithfully observed.

A warship could not revictual or take on stores in the Canal Zone except on written authorization of the canal authorities. In any event, no supplies could be sold directly by the United States government.

War Movements Barred

A warship could not embark or disembark troops, munitions or war materials in the Canal Zone.

A warship could not remain longer than twenty-four hours in the Canal

1939

Zone except in cases of distress, and even in those cases it would have to depart as soon as possible.

A warship of one belligerent would have to stay in the Canal Zone for twenty-four hours after the departure of a warship of its enemy. This would tend to prevent the Canal Zone from being used as a strategic starting point for raids and to keep naval clashes from occurring too close to the canal. Moreover, a warship could not leave the Canal Zone until twenty-four hours had passed after the departure of a merchantman of the enemy belligerent.

No more than three warships of a belligerent and its allies could be in either terminal port of the canal, and no more than three could be in transit through the canal at any one time. The total number of warships of one power in the Canal Zone could not be more than six.

The repair facilities of the Canal Zone could not be used by a warship except in case of actual distress.

Belligerent warships would be forbidden to use their radios except in the navigation of the canal.

Aircraft of belligerents would be forbidden to fly over the Canal Zone.

Officials believe that with these rules they will be able, first, to keep the canal open despite a vast war; second, to obviate any accusations that the canal was being operated un-neutrally; third, to prevent any damage to the canal itself.

SAYS CZECHS WILL FIGHT

Envoy to U. S. Forecasts Units in France and Poland

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3 (AP).—Vladimir E. S. Hurban, Czecho-Slovak Minister, said today that the people of Czecho-Slovakia would organize forces in France and Poland to fight Germany.

His statement said:

"The people of Czecho-Slovakia, now under temporary domination of barbarian Nazi forces, are entirely on the side of the Allies, who took up the German challenge to civilization in the whole world. Every Czecho-Slovak, according to his ability, will help the Allies, Great Britain, France and Poland, to eliminate this common danger.

"The sacrifice of Czecho-Slovakia last year evidently weakened, in a military sense, our striking power. Unable to organize a military action in our own land, Czecho-Slovak army units will, nevertheless, be organized in France and Poland. The glorious traditions of the Czecho-Slovak legions in the first World War will lead them again to victory."

3 Plane Plants Rush Work on Allies' Orders

Los Angeles Factories Run Sunday to Beat Embargo on Unfilled $25,650,000

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 3 (AP).—Three major aircraft manufacturers in this area continued operations today to complete and deliver to consignees at the harbor the remaining $25,650,000 of an original $61,000,000 series of orders from Great Britain and France.

Terms of orders placed by the two democracies with the Douglas, Lockheed and North American factories guarantee the trio against losses occasioned by an embargo on their products, spokesmen for the companies said.

Lockheed was spurring delivery of the remaining $9,850,000 worth of twin-engined bombers to England by flying them to Canada. An order for 250 of the planes at a cost of $27,000,000 was placed by Great Britain with Lockheed.

British Order 90 Per Cent Filled

At Los Angeles Harbor yesterday twenty-two BT-9 basic trainers destined for France went aboard French freighters. Twelve more were to leave the port today.

Turning 103 planes off the production line last month, North American has been able actually to place aboard ships bound for Europe 90 per cent of a 400-craft order of combat planes for Great Britain.

Douglas's $12,000,000 contract for an undisclosed number of 350-mile-an-hour twin-engined attack bombers for the French is the least advanced of the three major firms' orders. Engineering on the huge contract was only recently completed, and none of this type of ship as yet has been delivered.

The keynote of the three companies' future policy was sounded by Donald Douglas when he announced: "The Douglas Aircraft Company will properly and scrupulously follow every law of the United States. We will abide by the State Department's wishes in every respect."

Embargo Would Hit Plane Sales

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3 (AP).—An immediate effect of proclamation of the neutrality act would be to cut off British and French purchases of airplanes in this country. While the exact status of the huge orders they have placed here is not known, it is believed that hardly more than half at the most, have been filled.

The latest official figures are as of July 31. Up to that time, Britain and France had received exports licenses for munitions—mostly airplanes—totaling $121,432,419 and had received delivery of munitions worth $36,170,352.

How many airplanes these figures represented has not been made public, but military experts have estimated that the sum represented by the licenses would purchase about 1,450 planes.

23 French Planes Shipped

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Sept. 3 (AP).—Loaded with twenty-three bombing planes destined for the French Air Ministry, the freighter Wyoming, of the French Line, sailed today for Le Havre, France. Departure of the vessel, first of a belligerent nation to leave this port, was preceded by a conference between British and French consular authorities as well as officials of the shipping line.

A spokesman for the line said the ship would be met in the Caribbean by British and French destroyers after passing through the Panama Canal.

French Freighter Ready To Sail With Airplanes

Vessel, With Twenty Of Craft Aboard, Awaits Orders Near New Orleans

New Orleans, Sept. 3 (AP).—Loaded with twenty airplanes and a general cargo, the French-bound freighter Vermont, of Campagnie Generale Transatlantique, anchored in the Mississippi below this city today.

Capt. J. Biraben, of the Vermont, said he was sailing for France, but awaiting instructions as to which port.

He said he did not know the type or manufacturer of the planes.

General Pershing Silent As He Studies War News

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—General John J. Pershing today followed closely the news of Europe's renewal of the war he helped fight twenty-one years ago, but he made no comment.

His aide, Colonel George E. Adamson, said that General Pershing was "quite interested," but would say nothing unless the War Department requested a statement.

Approaching his 79th birthday on Sept. 13, the General is in Walter Reed Hospital for a medical check-up.

Wilson's Resignation Called Invasion Protest

Roosevelt Reported Consenting If Hitler Began a War

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3 (AP).—An official said today that Hugh R. Wilson, who resigned as Ambassador to Germany last Friday, did so as an act of protest against Hitler's drive into Poland.

It was asserted that Mr. Wilson had made up his mind for some weeks that if Hitler began a war he would immediately tender his resignation to President Roosevelt.

He discussed his determination with the President, Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, and Under Secretary Sumner Welles, and had their consent to act as he did.

Mr. Wilson began his new duties today as second in command of a special division of the State Department created to help evacuate Americans from Europe.

Wilson, in' 14 Plea, Urged Thoughts Be Impartial

Called on Americans to 'Put Curb on Sentiments'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3 (AP).—President Roosevelt's statement tonight that he could not ask Americans to "remain neutral in thought" toward the European war recalled President Woodrow Wilson's 1914 appeal for citizens to "be impartial in thought as well as in action."

The first World War President, in a message to "my fellow-countrymen" on Aug. 18, 1914, said, in part:

"The United States must be neutral in fact as well as in name during these days that are to try men's souls. We must be impartial in thought as well as in action, must put a curb upon our sentiments as well as upon every transaction that might be construed as a preference of one party in the struggle before another."

U. S. Red Cross Plans Aid

Davis Sees State Department Officials on Relieving Suffering

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3 (AP).—Norman Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross, conferred with officials of the State Department today to determine the most efficacious way the Red Cross could assist in relieving suffering in Europe.

Mr. Davis, who was United States Ambassador-at-Large for some years, said his plans were not yet complete.

Pan-American Action Proposed to Roosevelt

President Santos of Colombia Wires Offer to Collaborate

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3 (AP).—President Roosevelt received today from President Eduardo Santos of Colombia a suggestion of joint Pan-American action during the European war.

Mr. Roosevelt thanked the Colombian President for his offer of collaboration.

The telegram from President Santos, unofficial reports indicate, is backed by similar messages en route from heads of other Latin American states, and recalls the Venezuelan government's proposal soon after the outbreak of the World War. Venezuela then proposed that "the task of defining neutral rights . . . should be intrusted to a congress of neutrals."

SEP 4 1939

(ADVANCE) WASHINGTON, SEPT. 3-(AP)-PLEADING THAT AMERICA FACE EUROPE'S HAVOC WITH "NATIONAL UNITY," NOT SELFISH PARTISANSHIP, PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT TONIGHT SOLEMNLY PROMISED THE NATION HIS UTMOST EFFORT TO KEEP THE COUNTRY NEUTRAL.

"AS LONG AS IT REMAINS WITHIN MY POWER TO PREVENT," HE SAID IN A BROADCAST ADDRESS, "THERE WILL BE NO BLACKOUT OF PEACE IN THE UNITED STATES."

SEP 4-1939

A NEUTRALITY PROCLAMATION IS IN PROCESS OF PREPARATION IN ACCORDANCE WITH INTERNATIONAL LAW, HE ASSERTED. IT WILL BE FOLLOWED, HE ADDED BY ANOTHER INVOKING THE COUNTRY'S NEUTRALITY LAW, WHICH BANS SHIPMENTS OF ARTICLES OF WAR TO THE BELLIGERENTS.

1939

30.24-2991

30.24-2991

THEN THE PRESIDENT MADE A REMARK WHICH REMINDED MANY OF HIS LISTENERS OF HIS EFFORTS TO REVISE THE NEUTRALITY LAW IN SUCH A WAY AS TO SCRAP THE ARMS EMBARGO.

"I TRUST THAT IN THE DAYS TO COME OUR NEUTRALITY CAN BE MADE A TRUE NEUTRALITY," HE ASSERTED.

HE DID NOT SAY ANYTHING ABOUT A SPECIAL SESSION OF CONGRESS TO REVISE THE LAW, ALTHOUGH HE IS GENERALLY EXPECTED TO CALL SUCH A SESSION.

ESSENTIALLY, THE SPEECH WAS AN EXPOSITION OF THE VIEW THAT A WAR ANYWHERE ENDANGERS PEACE EVERYWHERE, THAT ECONOMICALLY, THE EUROPEAN CONFLICT WILL LAY A HEAVY HAND UPON THE UNITED STATES, BUT THAT BY DILIGENT EFFORT THE UNITED STATES CAN BE KEPT OUT OF THE MELEE.

AN OLDER GENERATION OF LISTENERS HARKED BACK TO 1914, WHEN THE PRESIDENT SAID THAT WHILE THE NATION WILL REMAIN NEUTRAL, HE COULD NOT ASK THAT "EVERY AMERICAN REMAIN NEUTRAL IN THOUGHT AS WELL." AT THE OUTSET OF THE FIRST GREAT WAR, WOODROW WILSON ASKED THAT AMERICANS REMAIN NEUTRAL "IN THOUGHT" AS WELL AS IN ACTION.

LONDON, SEPT. 3-(AP)-THE BRITISH ADMIRALTY TONIGHT DENIED THE ACCURACY OF A REPORT PICKED UP BY THE MUTUAL BROADCASTING SYSTEM IN A SHORT WAVE BROADCAST FROM PARIS THAT THE $20,000,000 GERMAN LINER BREMEN HAD BEEN CAPTURED BY THE BRITISH NAVY. K LONDON, SEPT 3-(AP)-WHITE-MANED DAVID LLOYD GEORGE, BRITAIN'S WORLD WAR-TIME PREMIER WHO HAS GOADED THE GOVERNMENT FOR YEARS TO REARM AND TO INCREASE FOOD PRODUCTION AT HOME, PRESSED HIS POINT AGAIN TODAY JUST BEFORE THE HOUSE OF COMMONS RECESSED.

"IT'S NO USE ASSUMING THAT THE WAR IS GOING TO BE A VERY SHORT ONE," THE VITRIOLIC 76-YEAR OLD VETERAN SAID. "EVERYBODY HOPES FOR THE BEST BUT I AM NOT AT ALL SURE THAT A SHORT WAR WOULD BE BEST FOR US.

SEP 4-1939

"IF IT'S GOING TO BE A LONG WAR WE SHALL BE CONFRONTED WITH VERY GREAT DIFFICULTIES WITH REGARD TO THE CARRIAGE OF FOOD."

ON NUMEROUS OCCASIONS LLOYD GEORGE HAS ASSAILED THE GOVERNMENT'S FAILURE TO INCREASE FARM PRODUCTION IN ENGLAND ITSELF.

"WE CAME NEARER TO DEFEAT OWING TO A FOOD SHORTAGE THAN WE DID FROM ANYTHING ELSE IN THE GREAT WAR," HE SAID IN A SPEECH ON MARCH 11, 1936. "I CANNOT UNDERSTAND WHY, WHEN THE GOVERNMENT ARE THINKING OUT THE WHOLE PROBLEM OF WAR AND POSSIBLE DANGER, THE GREATEST DANGER OF ALL SEEMS TO HAVE BEEN LEFT OUT OF ACCOUNT ALTOGETHER."

REITERATING THAT THE GOVERNMENT WAS "NEGLECTING THE WEAKEST LINK" IN THE EVENT OF WAR, IN AN ADDRESS MADE MARCH 12, 1937, HE CALLED THE ATTENTION OF COMMONS IN A 40-MINUTE ADDRESS AGAINST "GROTESQUE INADEQUACY" OF THE GOVERNMENT'S ALLOCATION OF $1,500,000 OUT OF A $7,500,000,000 REARMAMENT BILL TO INCREASING HOME PRODUCTION.

SEP 4-1939

HE ASSERTED GERMANY RECLAIMED 4,000,000 ACRES WHILE BRITAIN WAS ALLOWING LAND TO GO OUT OF CULTIVATION.

CAPT. HENRY D. MARGESSON REPLIED THAT AN EARLY OPPORTUNITY FOR DISCUSSION OF THE SUBJECT WOULD BE PROVIDED AND THAT PLANS ALREADY WERE IN AN ADVANCED STATE OF PREPARATION.

FRAULEIN MUTTERER WAS TAKEN OFF THE CUNARD-WHITE STAR (BRITISH) LINER GEORGIC, WHERE SHE HAD WORKED FOR FIVE YEARS AS AN INTERPRETING STEWARDESS, AND STARTED BACK TO ENGLAND IN THE BRIG OF THE CUNARD LINER CARINTHIA.

"SHE'S JUST UNLUCKY ENOUGH TO BE A GERMAN, POOR KID," SAID CHIEF STEWARD THOMAS BRENNAN.

HE QUOTED HER AS SAYING, "EVEN THOUGH I SAIL IN THE BRIG AND BE KEPT UNDER SURVEILLANCE AT SEA, I WOULD RATHER BE GOING TO AN ENGLISH PRISON CAMP THAN BE RETURNING TO GERMANY AS A 'FREE' CITIZEN."

HOURS BEFORE BRITAIN DECLARED WAR ON GERMANY THE NIGHT OF AUG. 4, 1914, PRESIDENT WILSON HAD PROCLAIMED THIS COUNTRY'S NEUTRALITY.

CONGRESS WAS IN SESSION AT THE TIME AND IMMEDIATELY PROVIDED $2,500,000 TO FACILITATE THE EVACUATION OF THOUSANDS OF AMERICANS STRANDED IN EUROPE. THE SENATE ALSO ADOPTED A RESOLUTION DIRECTING MR.WILSON TO OFFER THE GOOD OFFICES OF THE UNITED STATES IN EFFECTING PEACE.

IN THE PRESENT CRISIS, PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ALREADY HAS MADE NUMEROUS ATTEMPTS TO AVERT THE CATASTROPHE AND MANY OFFICIALS SAID IT WAS A FOREGONE CONCLUSION THAT HE WOULD INVOKE THE NEUTRALITY LAW AND CALL A SPECIAL SESSION OF CONGRESS TO CONSIDER ITS REVISION.

ON THE PARALLEL SIDE OF THE PICTURE, BOTH THE WILSON AND THE ROOSEVELT ADMINISTRATIONS STROVE TO BUTTRESS THE UNITED STATES AGAINST THE ECONOMIC SHOCKS OF FOREIGN WARS.

IN 1914, CONGRESS ENACTED EMERGENCY CURRENCY LEGISLATION TO INSURE A PLENTIFUL SUPPLY OF CASH FOR THE NATION'S BANKS AND TODAY THE TREASURY WAS READY WITH A NUMBER OF FINANCIAL SAFEGUARDS WHICH OFFICIAI SAID WOULD BE PUT INTO EFFECT SOON.

THE WILSON CABINET MET ON AUG. 4, 1914 AND TALKED OF NOTHING BUT THE WAR. PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT HAS CALLED HIS CABINET TO MEET AT 2 P.M. TOMORROW.

WHEN PRESIDENT WILSON PROCLAIMED AMERICA'S NEUTRALITY IN 1914, HE DID NOT BAR THE SHIPMENT OF MUNITIONS TO BELLIGERENTS AS THE PRESENT NEUTRALITY LAW WOULD IF INVOKED.

HE DID, HOWEVER, PROHIBIT ENLISTMENT OR RECRUITING OF SOLDIERS IN THIS COUNTRY FOR SERVICE WITH FOREIGN POWERS AND THE ARMING OF VESSELS FOR FOREIGN SERVICE. THE LAW NOW PROVIDES THAT CITIZENS WHO LEAVE THIS COUNTRY FOR SERVICE IN FOREIGN ARMIES LOSE THEIR CITIZEN SHIP.

UNITED STATES WATERS WERE DECLARED NEUTRAL BY PRESIDENT WILSON AND THEIR USE BY ARMED VESSELS OF THE BELLIGERENTS "UNFRIENDLY AND OFFENSIVE." HE STIPULATED THAT WHERE SUCH VESSELS OF OPPOSING BELLIGERENTS WERE IN AMERICAN PORTS AT THE OUTBREAK OF HOSTILITIES, THEY COULD LEAVE.

NEW YORK,SEPT.3--BUSINESS EXPANSION AND HIGHER PRICES WERE SEEN IN FINANCIAL CIRCLES TONIGHT AS PROBABLE RESULTS OF THE EUROPEAN WAR UPON THE ECONOMY OF THE UNITED STATES.

INCREASED EMPLOYMENT, AND A RISING NATIONAL INCOME OFFSET TO SOME DEGREE BY HIGHER LIVING COSTS WERE SEEN AS COROLLARY DEVELOPMENTS.

BANKERS AND BUSINESS MEN HAD BEEN PREPARED FOR THE NEWS THAT ENGLAND AND FRANCE HAD DECLARED WAR BY THE BEGINNING OF GERMAN-POLISH HOSTILITIES FRIDAY. BEFORE LEAVING THEIR OFFICES FOR THE LONG LABOR DAY WEEKEND, THEY HAD TAKEN MANY STEPS IN PREPARATION.

THESE INCLUDED PRICE JUMPS IN A NUMBER OF MATERIALS IMPORTANT IN INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND IN WAGING WAR. SOME SUPPLIERS WITHDREW QUOTATIONS ENTIRELY, PENDING DEVELOPMENTS.

STEEL MEN SAID THEY WERE UNABLE TO CONTRACT FOR FUTURE PURCHASES OF FERRO-MANGANESE, MOLYBDENUM, AND TUNGSTEN, VITAL REQUIREMENTS IN MAKING ALLOYS USED IN ARMAMENT. SEP 4-1939
PRODUCERS WOULD CONTRACT TO MAKE DELIVERY BUT WOULD NOT NOW NAME PRICES.

SIMILAR CONDITIONS PREVAILED IN SUGAR HIDES, TIN, LEATHER, WOOL GOODS, WOOD PULP, BURLAP, SOME CHEMICALS AND DRUGS.

MERCHANTS WERE UNEASY LEST VANUFACTURERS DISSATISFIED WITH PRICE USE THE WAR AS AN EXCUSE TO BOOST THEM. SEP 4-1939

SAUL COHN, PRESIDENT OF THE NATIONAL RETAIL DRY GOODS ASSOCIATION, WARNED RETAILERS "THERE SEEMS TO BE NO NEED OF UNDUE BUYING OR RUSHING TO ACCUMULATE ORDERS." HE SAID SUCH ACTION WOULD OF ITSELF AFFECT THE PRICE LEVEL, AND IMPAIR PURCHASING POWER.

WHEAT AT CHICAGO ROSE ABOUT 10 CENTS A BUSHEL LAST WEEK, AND FLOUR PRICES WERE INCREASED 60 CENTS TO $1 A BARREL. PRINCIPAL SUGAR REFINERS WITHDREW PRICE LISTS FRIDAY, AFTER THE RAW SUGAR FUTURES MARKET JUMPED 1/4 OF A CENT A POUND, THE DAY'S MAXIMUM PERMITTED. IT WAS CLOSED YESTERDAY.

THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF FOOD DISTRIBUTION, A TRADE ASSOCIATION, ADVISED ITS MEMBERS THAT HIGHER FOOD PRICES WERE IN PROSPECT. SEP 4-1939

POINTING TO SWEEPING ADVANCES IN PRICES OF GRAINS, LARD, COTTONSEED OIL, COFFEE, SUGAR AND COCOA IN 1914, THE INSTITUTE SAID: "WITH THAT RECORD BEFORE THEM, GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE WILL MAKE QUICK DEALS FOR A LARGE PROPORTION OF THE AVAILABLE SUPPLY IN EXPORTING COUNTRIES AS RESERVES FOR THEMSELVES AND TO PREVENT THESE SUPPLIES FROM TRICKLING THROUGH INTO GERMANY."

IT SAID THERE WAS NO TELLING HOW HOW FAR THAT KIND OF BUYING WOULD SPREAD INTO OTHER FOODS, BUT: SEP 4-1939

"WE DO KNOW GREAT QUANTITIES OF CANNED MEATS, CANNED TOMATOES, CANNED MILK, CANNED FISH, DRIED FRUITS AND PRESERVES WILL BE WANTED FOR MILLIONS OF MEN. THAT DEMAND SPREAD RATHER SLOWLY IN 1914. THIS TIME IT WILL COME MORE QUICKLY."

"THE SURVEY WARNED, HOWEVER," THESE FOODS WILL NOT BE BOUGHT IMMEDIATELY WITHOUT REGARD TO PRICE. THE BRITISH DON'T BARGAIN THAT WAY."

"OUR SUPPOSED SURPLUSES OF MANY FOODS)WHICH DON'T AMOUNT TO MUCH IN PROPORTION TO ANNUAL CONSUMPTION, WILL START TO DISAPPEAR,

1939

30.24-3001

30.24-3001

AND WILL BE HELD FOR HIGHER PRICES," IT CONCLUDED.

ONE PROMINENT SPOKESMAN OF THE FOOD PROCESSING INDUSTRY, HOWEVER, SAID AMERICANS SHOULD BE REASSURED AS TO THEIR FOOD SUPPLY, WHICH HE SAID WAS MORE THAN AMPLE FOR THE MOMENT, AND "WITH PRODUCTION CAPACITY AVAILABLE TO MEET ANY KIND OF EMERGENCY DEMAND."

HE SAID THAT WITH 50,000 MANUFACTURERS IN THE FIELD, IT WAS SO HIGHLY COMPETITIVE THAT RUN AWAY PRICES SEEMED UNLIKELY. HE ALSO POINTED TO THE EXTRAORDINARY CONTROL POWERS OF THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT.

THE OUTSTANDING FOODS FOR WHICH THE UNITED STATES MUST LOOK TO FOREIGN COUNTRIES FOR LARGE SUPPLIES, HE POINTED OUT, ARE SUGAR AND COFFEE, OF WHICH THE BIG SUPPLIERS, CUBA AND BRAZIL, ARE IN THIS HEMISPHERE.

SEP 4-1939

BUSINESS AND FINANCIAL LEADERS WERE DISINCLINED TO TRY TO PREDICT HOW IMMEDIATELY THIS COUNTRY WOULD FEEL THE EFFECTS OF WAR BUSINESS, AND TO WHAT LENGTHS THE WAR STIMULATION WOULD CARRY.

THERE WAS GENERAL AGREEMENT, HOWEVER, THAT THE ACTION OF THE SECURITIES MARKETS LAST WEEK INDICATED THERE WOULD BE NO SUCH SHOCK TO THE AMERICAN ECONOMY AS OCCURRED IN 1914. AMERICAN BUSINESS DID NOT BEGIN TO FEEL THE EFFECTS OF WAR BUYING IN THE FIRST WORLD WAR UNTIL IT WAS SIX TO NINE MONTHS OLD. THISITIME, IT WAS AGREED, IT WILL COME MORE QUICKLY.

HOW THE NEUTRALITY LEGISLATION IS INTERPRETED, OR POSSIBLY ALTERED, OF COURSE, WILL HAVE AN IMPORTANT BEARING. BUT PRESENT LEGISLATION FORBIDS EXPORT ONLY OF ARMS, MUNITIONS AND IMPLEMENTS OF WAR, AND PREVENTS EXTENSION OF OTHER THAN NORMAL SHORT-TERM COMMERCIAL CREDIT TO BELLIGERENTS. IT IS ESTIMATED, HOWEVER, ENGLAND AND FRANCE CAN RAISE SOME BILLIONS OF CASH.

SEP 4-1939

SOME THOUGHT IT MAY BE A MONTH OR SO BEFORE AMERICAN MERCHANDISE BEGINS TO FLOW TO EUROPE, BECAUSE OF THE DISRUPTION OF SHIPPING. THIS ALSO MAY HAVE ITS EFFECT ON IMPORTS. IN ADDITION TO COFFEE AND SUGAR, TWO BIG INDUSTRIAL STAPLES WHICH AMERICA NEEDS FROM ABROAD ARE RUBBER AND TIN, BUT THEY COME FROM THE EAST INDIES, AFRICA AND SOUTH AMERICA, RATHER THAN EUROPE.

EXPECTATIONS THAT ACTUAL BEGINNING OF MAJOR WAR WOULD NOT HAVE THE SHOCK IT DID IN 1914 WERE BASED ON SUCH FACTORS AS THESE:

1..THE ELEMENT OF SURPRISE SO DISTURBING IN 1914 IS LACKING. THERE HAS BEEN A SERIES OF "WAR SCARES" THE PAST YEAR. AFTER HAVING DECLINED ON THESE SCARES, THE STOCK MARKET TURNED AROUND AND ROSE SHARPLY LATE FRIDAY AND YESTERDAY, AS TRADERS BEGAN BUYING SHARES OF COMPANIES EXPECTED TO PROFIT FROM WAR BUSINESS.

2..THERE HAS BEEN A COMPLETE METAMORPHASIS IN AMERICA'S POSITION IN 25 YEARS FROM A DEBTOR NATION, VULNERABLE TO GOLD WITHDRAWALS, TO A CREDITOR NATION, GLUTTED WITH GOLD.

3..IN 1914, THE BUSINESS CYCLE WAS IN A DOWN TREND. LATELY IT HAS BEEN STRONGLY UPWARD.

SEP 4-1939

4..ENGLAND HAS ALREADY MOBILIZED HER SUBJECTS' FOREIGN SECURITY HOLDINGS, TO PREVENT THEIR BEING DUMPEKBMN THIS MARKET.

ASSOCIATED PRESS FOREIGN AFFAIRS WRITER

SEP 4-1939

NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 3--THIS WAR WAS BOUND TO COME SOONER OR LATER.

By Dewitt MacKenzie - N.Y., Sept. 3 - This war was bound to come sooner or later.

IT WASN'T INEVITABLE THAT IT SHOULD GROW OUT OF THE GERMAN-POLISH CONTROVERSY---FOR THAT WAS INCIDENTAL TO THE MAIN ISSUE.

BUT THE LINES OF THE DISPUTE WERE SO DRAWN BETWEEN HERR HITLER AND THE ANGLO-FRENCH BROTHERHOOD THAT THERE HAD TO BE A SHOWDOWN IN THE LONG RUN.

EUROPE COULDN'T SERVE TWO MASTERS.

THIS TERRIBLE EVENTUALITY GRADUALLY HAD SUNK HOME IN THE MINDS OF THE UNHAPPY GENERAL PUBLICS AS THE "WAR OF NERVES" PROGRESSED. AND WHEN THE BREAK CAME MANY PEOPLE IN ALL COUNTRIES FOUND THEMSELVES IN AGREEMENT WITH THE FAMOUS BRITISH LABOR LEADER, ARTHUR GREENWOOD, WHO EXPRESSED RELIEF IN A DRAMATIC SPEECH IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS THAT THE "AGONY OF SUSPENSE" WAS AT LAST OVER.

AS ANOTHER POSSIBLE GENERAL WAR STARTED TO BLAST ITS ROUTE OF DEATH AND DESTRUCTION THROUGH EUROPE, BOTH SIDES TAXED EACH OTHER WITH AGGRESSION AND LAID DOWN THEIR AIMS.

SEP 4-1939

THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES, CHARGING THAT HERR HITLER IS OUT FOR WORLD DOMINATION, ARE BENT ON SMASHING HIM AND HIS CREED.

"I TRUST I MAY SEE THE DAY," SAID BRITISH PREMIER CHAMBERLAIN TO A TENSE HOUSE OF COMMONS," WHEN HITLERISM HAS BEEN DESTROYED."

AND ACROSS THE CHAMBER ARTHUR GREENWOOD ROSE UP AS LEADER OF THE LABOR GROUP, AND ECHOED:

SEP 4-1939

"NAZIISM MUST BE OVERTHROWN."

ALMOST SIMULTANEOUSLY HITLER MADE ANSWER BY CHARGING ENGLAND WITH "TRYING TO USE ALL EUROPEAN STATES AND PEOPLES TO ENCIRCLE GERMANY". BRITAIN IS ACCUSED OF HAVING EGGED ON POLAND TO RESIST SETTLEMENT OF THE DISPUTE WITH GERMANY.

SO NOW NAZIDOM DECLARES ITS INTENTION OF BREAKING UP THIS ALLEGED ENCIRCLEMENT, TO GIVE GERMANY FREEDOM TO CARRY OUT HER PROGRAM OF EXPANSION AND DEVELOPMENT.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN SUMMED UP THE BRITISH VIEWPOINT SUCCINCTLY WHEN HE DECLARED IN HIS RADIO PROCLAMATION ANNOUNCING WAR:

"HIS (HITLER'S) ACTION SHOWS CONVINCINGLY THAT THERE IS NO CHANCE OF EXPECTING THAT THIS MAN WILL EVER GIVE UP HIS INTENTION OF USING FORCE TO GAIN HIS WILL.

"AND HE CAN ONLY BE STOPPED BY FORCE."

I SHALL NOT SOON FORGET THE FIRST TIME I HEARD ALMOST THOSE IDENTICAL WORDS FROM ANOTHER GREAT OFFICIAL OF THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIANCE. IT WAS LAST DECEMBER, NOT LONG AFTER CZECHO-SLOVAKIA WENT TO THE SACRIFICIAL ALTAR AT MUNICH, AND IT WAS WHEN I LEARNED THAT ENGLAND AND FRANCE HAD DECIDED TO CRACK DOWN ON HITLER.

I WENT TO THIS FAMOUS STATESMAN (WHOM I SHALL NOT NAME) AND SAID TO HIM:

SEP 4-1939

"I HAVE NOT COME TO YOU FOR AN INTERVIEW, BECAUSE I KNOW YOU CANNOT GRANT THAT, BUT I NEED YOUR HELP. I SEEM TO SENSE A CHANGE IN THE ANGLO-FRENCH POLICY TOWARDS GERMANY. I CAN'T PUT MY FINGER ON IT, HOWEVER, AND I SHALL BE GRATEFUL IF YOU WILL TELL ME WHETHER THERE HAS BEEN ANY CHANGE AND, IF SO, WHAT IT MEANS."

THE STATESMAN WEIGHED THIS UNUSUAL REQUEST FOR AN INSTANT AND THEN SAID:

"WE HAVE DECIDED AFTER LONG EXPERIMENT THAT THE POLICY OF APPEASEMENT IS USELESS. WE HAVE COME RELUCTANTLY TO THE CONCLUSION THAT HITLER ISN'T SUSCEPTIBLE TO ANY MORAL SUASION, BUT ONLY TO FORCE

30.24-3003

30.24-3003

"THE MAN IS MAD---".

MY INFORMANT CAUGHT HIMSELF QUICKLY, AND WITH OBVIOUS CONCERN AT THIS REMARK.

"I MEAN," HE CORRECTED HIMSELF," THAT HE IS A MAN WITH A DANGEROUS OBSESSION. HE MUST BE SMASHED."

THAT WAS THE BEGINNING OF THE NEW ANGLO-FRENCH POLICY OF GREATER FIRMNESS TOWARDS THE NAZI CHIEFTAIN. STILL, MR.CHAMBERLAIN FOUND IT DIFFICULT TO ABANDON HIS SCHEME OF APPEASEMENT, A PROGRAM WHICH HAD BROUGHT HIM MUCH ADVERSE CRITICISM, BOTH AT HOME AND ABROAD. IMPELLED IN PART BY HIGHLY RELIGIOUS MOTIVES, HE PURSUED PEACE, ALTHOUGH HE DID AT THE SAME TIME GET HIS REARMAMENT MACHINE GOING FULL '033$.

SEP 4-1939

SO FINALLY WE ARRIVE, AFTER NUMEROUS GRAVE EUROPEAN CRISES, AT THE MOMENT WHEN "THE MAN WITH THE UMBRELLA", AS MR.CHAMBERLAIN IS KNOWN, GOES BEFORE PARLIAMENT AND IN A VOICE BREAKING WITH EMOTION EMPLOYS LANGUAGE WHICH I HEARD NINE MONTHS AGO FROM ANOTHER:

"AND HE CAN ONLY BE STOPPED BY FORCE."

THE QUESTION WHICH I HAVE HEARD MOST OFTEN IN THE LAST FEW HOURS IS:-"HOW LONG WILL THE WAR LAST."

IT IS TOO SOON TO MAKE SPECULATION ALONG THAT LINE VERY PROFITABLE, BUT THIS MUCH WE CAN SEE VERY CLEARLY:

A GREAT DEAL DEPENDS ON WHAT POLICY RUSSIA PURSUES.

GERMANY ENTERS THE CONFLICT WITH A MIGHTY FIGHTING MACHINE, BUT LACKING THE SINEWS NECESSARY FOR A PRTTRACTED STRUGGLE, IF THE ESTIMATES OF FOREIGN ECONOMIC EXPERTS ARE CORRECT.

THE REICH IS WIDELY HELD TO LACK THE FOOD-STUFFS, RAW MATERIALS AND OTHER SUPPLIES VITAL TO THE PROSECUTION OF A LONG WAR.

HERR HITLER IS SAID TO HAVE BEEN BANKING ON A QUICK, DECISIVE SMASH AT HIS OPPONENTS.

THE SOVIET UNION, WHICH HAS JUST SIGNED A NON-AGRESSION PACT WITH GERMANY, POSSESSES MOST OF THE THINGS WHICH GERMANY LACKS. VERY RECENTLY, THOUGH PRIOR TO THE SIGNING OF THE NON-AGGRESSION PACT, RUSSIA AND GERMANY MADE A TRADE AGREEMENT FOR A HUGE EXCHANGE OF MATERIALS AND GOODS.

SHOULD RUSSIA NOW DECIDE TO PROVIDE GERMANY WITH THE NECESSITIES FOR A PROSECUTION OF WAR, IT WILL HAVE A MARKED BEARING ON THE TREND OF HOSTILITIES.

THIS MOST CERTAINLY MUST BE A MATTER OF DEEP CONCERN TO FRANCE, ENGLAND AND POLAND.

GETN THIS CONNECTION, GERMANY IS MAKING EVERY EFFORT T RUSSIA AND JAPAN TO CONCLUDE A NON-AGGRESSION PACT. THE POINT IS, OF COURSE, THAT IF RUSSIA AND JAPAN SHOULD BECOME INVOLVED IN WAR--AND THERE ALWAYS IS A CHANCE OF THAT, SO LONG AS RELATIONS CONTINUE AS UNFRIENDLY AS AT PRESENT--THIS WOULD HAMPER RUSSIA IN PROVIDING GERMANY WITH SUPPLIES.

SEP 4-1939

JAPAN HAS BEEN LOOKING THIS PROPOSITION OVER WITH A WEATHER EYE. IT IS SAID SHE ISN'T VERY ENTHUSIASTIC OVER THE IDEA.

THE PRESENT POSITION OF ITALY--ONE OF NEUTRALITY SO FAR AS CONCERNS THE ACTUAL BEARING OF ARMS--WAS WHOLLY EXPECTED.

IT HAS BEEN WELL KNOWN AMONG OBSERVERS FOR SOME TIME THAT THE GENERAL PUBLIC OF ITALY HAS NO STOMACH FOR WAR ON BEHALF OF NAZIDOM

WHOSE POLICIES ARE DECIDEDLY OUT OF FAVOR WITH THE AVERAGE ITALIAN. FOR THIS REASON, AMONGST OTHERS, IT WOULD HAVE BEEN SURPRISING TO SEE SIGNOR MUSSOLINI TRY TO LEAD HIS COUNTRY INTO WAR IN SUPPORT OF HERR HITLER.

ALSO, IT WAS UNDERSTOOD THAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE INTENDED TO CONCENTRATE IN A DRIVE AGAINST ITALY, BOTH BY LAND AND BY SEA, IF IL DUCE ENTERED THE CONFLICT. THAT PRESUMABLY ENTERED INTO HIS CALCULATIONS, AS WELL.

AT THIS JUNCTURE THERE IS MUCH SPECULATION AS TO WHETHER MUSSOLINI WILL CONTINUE TO MAINTAIN A "HANDS OFF" ATTITUDE.

British Reply to Suggestion That One of Their Mines Was Responsible by Saying None Was There.

SEP 3-1939

LONDON, Sept. 4 (A. P.).—A rescue fleet, guarded by guns of British destroyers, was officially reported today to have saved all but the few persons killed by the explosion which sank the Donaldson liner Athenia, which British officials said was torpedoed by a German submarine in the open North Atlantic.

There were 1,347 passengers and crew aboard, which included United States citizens listed tentatively at 313.

American Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy sent the following cable to the State Department at Washington today:

"All on Athenia rescued except those killed by explosion. The Admiralty advises me survivors picked up by other ships. List of casualties later. Thank God."

A German news agency release given out here by Baron von Heisicker of the German diplomatic staff vigorously denied that Germany was responsible for the sinking of the Athenia.

The release included this statement:

"We can only say that, in accordance with the definite instructions of Der Fuehrer, the German armed forces are doing nothing contrary to international law and treaties signed by the Reich. The way in which the report of the sinking has been circulated can only be regarded as an attempt to influence American public opinion in favor of those who want a further widening of the conflict."

The Admiralty said today that there were no mines in the North Atlantic where the Athenia went down. This was in response to German suggestions that a British mine might have broken loose and caused the sinking.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 4 (A. P.).—Reports in Stockholm indicated today at least 1,000 persons had been saved from the torpedoed British liner Athenia.

These reports said the Norwegian ship Knud Nelson had taken aboard 800 and the Swedish yacht Southern Cross had picked up 200 survivors.

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Sept. 4 (A. P.).—All persons aboard the sunken British liner Athenia, except some killed by a German torpedo, were reported saved today.

An agent of the ship's owners here issued the report. He said all survivors had been picked up by other vessels.

SEP 5-1939

First Ship Torpedoed.

LONDON, Sept. 4 (A. P.).—Great Britain and France were joined with Poland today in a war against Germany—a war that within its first twenty-four hours saw a British merchantman sunk at sea.

The British Ministry of Information said the ship was torpedoed with 313 United States citizens among the more than 1,400 persons aboard her.

The victim of the torpedo was the Donaldson Atlantic lines Athenia which sank about 200 miles west of Hebrides, off Northern Scotland, before daybreak of the second day of warfare between Germany and Britain.

Bulletins from British Government agencies failed to give the number of dead. The main basis for hope was the announcement which the Athenia's master, Capt. James Cook, wirelessed:

"Passenger and crew except those killed by explosion took to boats and were picked up by various ships."

This announcement was made by the ship's line and was confirmed by the Admiralty.

It was established offically, however, that Brtish destroyers were on the scene of the disaster, 250 miles west of Inishtrahull, northern Ireland.

It was believed that the loss of life would be small. It was recalled that in previous torpedo disasters a comparatively small number were killed by the explosion of the torpedo.

Plenty of Lifeboats.

Added to this was the fact that rescue operations were aided by the Athenia's more than adequate lifeboat seats. There were reported to have been lifeboats for 1,830 persons.

It also was presumed that Capt. Cook had been rescued before he sent his latest message and that he would not have left the ship until the last passenger or crewman alive was off it.

The captain and most of his crew of 246 were Glasgow men. Some of them had been in vessels torpedoed in the first world war.

In the absence of a complete passenger list there was a possibility these listings involved some duplication.

The Athenia was estimated to have been carrying about 1,420 persons—1,100 passengers and a crew of 320.

Germany, too, apparently was to feel the might of Britain's Navy as its first taste of warfare with the nation whose sea power was overwhelming in the world war twenty-five years ago.

British Fleet Fully Mobilized.

The British home fleet was in full mobilization and its ships at their battle stations, evidently to enforce a blockade of Germany.

British Admiralty orders for control of contraband and searches of ships indicated Britain's blockade of Germany was put into force quickly following the declaration of Prime Minister Chamberlain.

The state of war began at 11 A. M. (6 A. M., Eastern daylight time), when a British ultimatum to Germany to call her armies out of Poland expired without an answer from Berlin.

Seven hours later a similar French ultimatum to Germany expired.

Thus, Britain and France were joined again as they were in 1914, this time in fulfillment of their pledges to help Poland defend her independence.

Plans, carefully made against the fateful day that Prime Minister Chamberlain said could be no longer avoided, were rushed into force.

A high war command was named.

The King approved appointment of Lord Gort as commander-in-chief of the British field forces, Major-Gen. Sir Edmund Ironside as Chief of the Imperial Defense Staff and Sir Walter Kirke as commander-in-chief of the home forces.

The Prime Minister installed a War Cabinet.

He reinstated Anthony Eden, making him Dominions Secretary but giving him special access to the inner councils, and made Winston Churchill First Lord of the Admiralty, the post he held in the world war.

The Admiralty leaped to the protection of British merchantmen on the high seas.

War restrictions, to protect life, conserve precious supplies and maintain order and morale, were put into immediate effect.

Colonies Pledge Loyalty.

Colonial and Dominion circles expected swift pledges of loyalty and co-operation from throughout the scattered empire.

Canada already has placed her armed forces on an active service footing. New Zealand has announced she will support Britain in war. From elsewhere also have come promises of support.

There was no sign among leaders or in the press of dissent from the messages King George VI gave the people and Prime Minister Chamberlain gave the empire and Parliament yesterday.

War quickly struck home to Britain.

Twice within the first eighteen hours after the Prime Minister's historic proclamation, the wail of air-raid alarm sirens sent Britons scurrying to shelter.

But they proved false alarms both times, and "all clear" signals sounded without signs of dreaded enemy warplanes.

The first alarm came hardly before Mr. Chamberlain had finished speaking the words from the Cabinet room of 10 Downing street that told the British empire "this country is at war with Germany."

Men with flags, whistles and steel helmets—Britain's diligently rehearsed air raid precaution wardens—sprang into the streets. Pedestrians fled for shelter.

A Large Area Blacked Out.

Seventeen minutes later at 11:32 A. M. a long clear note of the siren ended the suspense, and the terror of an air alarm in the darkness of a blacked-out country at war.

The first warnings screamed at 2:28 A. M. (8:28 P. M., Eastern standard time, Sunday) and the danger signal was not lifted until almost two hours later, at 4:12 A. M. (10:12 P. M., Eastern standard time).

The Ministry of Information said the alarms were sounded over London and parts of the Midland and northeastern counties. Cause of the alarm was unexplained. "No details are yet available," the Ministry said.

To save exchange for war purposes, a ban was placed on the importation of several commodities classified as luxuries.

The list, announced by the Board of Trade, included pottery, glass, cutlery, clocks, watches, textile goods, apparel, shoes, certain chemicals, paints, soaps, typewriters, automobiles, perfumes, musical instruments, toilet articles, toys, games and luxury foodstuffs.

The public was to be informed today how to obtain ration books for gasoline, rationing of which will become effective September 16. The Government advised owners of private motor vehicles to use them for essential purposes only.

Ban Put on Securities.

Also to become effective today were restrictions designed to conserve Britain's financial resources. A ban was decreed on new capital issues and on export of bank notes, gold, securities and foreign exchange, except with Treasury permission. Holders of gold and foreign exchange, including United States dollars, will be required to offer them for sale to the Treasury.

All banks were ordered closed today, but authorized to reopen tomorrow. For savings banks, the order was issued so they could "complete measures for adapting themselves to the emergency."

The Stock Exchange, which had discontinued trading Friday during the removal of civilians from London, announced it would reopen "as soon as possible."

Both houses of Parliament enacted a bill for conscription of men 18 to 41 years of age for military service. A royal commission gave the King's assent to all new war legislation.

The Government also announced the closing of theaters, indoor and outdoor sports events, with the admonition that large crowds increased bombardment perils.

The British Admiralty notified British merchant vessels that "all ships are liable to examination by the British contraband control service."

The search order indicated that Britain's naval blockade of Germany quickly followed the war proclamation.

Convoy System Reintroduced.

The Admiralty reintroduced the convoy system for protection of merchant fishing vessels from the east coast south of latitude 57, which cuts across northern Scotland.

"British ships coming under any of the following categories," the Admiralty said, "will not normally be detained longer than is necessary to establish their identities:

"1. Ships on Government charter.

"2. Ships bound direct for British or allied ports, which will discharge all their cargo and passengers in such ports.

"3. Ships whose last port of call was British or Allied and which have a special war clearance therefrom."

Other vessels, it was indicated, may be required to put into central contraband bases.

Besides disposing the home fleet, a step completed in advance, Britain commissioned armed merchant ships as auxiliary cruisers.

Besides Canada, Australia rallied behind the mother country with a proclamation empowering the calling for war service of naval, military, aerial and civil defenses. Reports from Cairo to London said that Egypt had broken off diplomatic relations with Germany.

Nearly fifty Indian potentates gave their support and others were expected to follow. Newfoundland, Palestine and other territories under the British flag—even remote Tonga in mid-Pacific—have pledged loyalty or taken measures in preparation for war.

The position of South Africa, where there has been much recent discussion of policy in the event of war involving Britain, has not been defined, but Premier-General J. B. M. Hertzog told Parliament yesterday he would make a statement soon.

Gibraltar, Britain's "rock guarding the western gateway of the Mediterranean," received the war declaration with wild scenes of enthusiasm. Sailors, soldiers and civilians paraded in outbursts of patriotism.

The public was prepared for the war declaration by a communique broadcast earlier, giving terms of the British ultimatum and asking listeners to stand by for the Prime Minister's statement.

King Makes His Appeal.

King George broadcast an appeal to his vast empire to stand fast in its hour of conflict. He spoke alone from a room in Buckingham Palace after the Prime Minister had spoken.

"We have been forced into a conflict," solemnly declared the monarch. "We are called with our allies to meet the challenge of a principle, which if it were to prevail, would be fatal to any civilized order in the world."

The Prime Minister, both to the people and to the House of Commons, again had declared Britain exhausted every hope of peace before resorting to force.

Wearily, in a flat voice that sometimes faltered and showed the strain of weeks of crisis, the seventy-year-old Prime Minister told radio listeners throughout the empire that Germany had not responded to the British ultimatum.

"Consequently," he said, "this country is at war with Germany."

"Up to the very last," he said, "it would have been possible to arrange a peaceful and honorable settlement between Germany and Poland, but Hitler would not have it. . . .

"May God bless you all and may he defend the right. It is evil things that we shall be fighting, against brute force, bad faith, injustice, oppression and persecution.

"And against them I am certain right will prevail."

Soon afterward Mr. Chamberlain went to Parliament, where the state of war, which the House of Commons had expected him to announce the night before, already was known.

An Ovation for Chamberlain.

He was given a thunderous ovation, repeated five minutes later when he sat down after saying:

"I have had my share of us, but for me it is sadder than for me.

"Everything I had worked for, hoped for and believed in during my public life has crashed into ruins.

"There is but one thing left for me and that is to devote what strength and powers I have to forwarding victory of the cause for which we have to sacrifice ourselves.

"I cannot tell what part I may be allowed to play, but I trust I may live to see the day when Hitlerism has been destroyed and a restored and liberated Europe has been re-established."

Parliamentary leaders rallied behind the Prime Minister, a solid support reflected in today's newspapers.

Labor Leader Arthur Greenwood spoke immediately after Chamberlain.

"The hated word war has been spoken by Britain in fulfillment of her pledge and her unbreakable intentions to defend the liberties of Europe," he said.

"Poland we greet as a comrade whom we shall not desert. Nazism must finally be overthrown."

Liberal Leader Sir Archibald Sinclair declared Britain's inexorable determination "to end this Nazi domination." And David Lloyd George, world war Prime Minister, who frequently has differed with Chamberlain, said of the Government: "They can do no other than they have done."

The Times of London, the only newspaper in London still clinging to the tradition of a first page devoted to advertisements, announced war had been proclaimed under a two-column headline on its main news page, page 8.

The Daily Mail, which had followed the old custom until today, broke it to make war news front page.

"Self-deluded and self-doomed, the dictator of Germany has given the British and French peoples no choice but to resist and overthrow him," said the Times.

"The alternative that Hitlerism thrusts upon them is a surrender to organized brutality and treachery which would extinguish the last lights of freedom in Europe. . . .

"This is Hitler's war. It cannot and will not be his victory.

"Every sacrifice is to be preferred and will be preferred to the least weakening in the cause upon which freedom, justice and law are staked—not for us alone but for every civilized nation in the world."

Herbert Morrison, chairman of the emergency committee, announced today that nearly 600,000 children and mothers had been safely removed from London between September 1 and last midnight.

He said that the last of the children and mothers and the blind would be out by 7 o'clock tonight.

Americans on Ship

LONDON, Sept. 5 (AP).—The British Government, spurred by the sinking early today of the liner Athenia, tonight pushed its plans to convoy all British and allied merchant ships.

The Athenia, with 311 United States citizens among her 1,347 passengers and crew, was sunk by an outside explosion 200 miles northwest of Ireland while en route from Liverpool to Montreal.

Several hundred of the survivors were on the Southern Cross, one of the largest yachts in the world, owned by Alex Wenner-Gren, Stockholm millionaire.

Lord Stanhope, Lord President of the Council, speaking in the House of Lords, said that "if it turns out that the sinking of the Athenia was done by a submarine and torpedo it means that once again Germany has broken every pledge she has made and one that was made by the present leader of the German nation under no duress and there is no possible excuse to say that he was justified in breaking it."

"In abrogating the Anglo-German naval treaty," he added, "Germany quite definitely left that part of the treaty referring to submarines untouched and did not rescind her obligations under that part of the treaty."

Embassy Issues Statement

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. (AP).—The German Embassy issued a statement today declaring that "no German naval vessel could have had anything to do with the disaster of the Athenia."

The embassy statement follows:

"With reference to the alleged torpedoing of the British liner Athenia by a German submarine, the American Chargé d'Affaires in Berlin, Mr. Kirk, has been officially informed by the German Government that no German naval vessel could have had anything to do with the disaster of the Athenia.

"It was authoritatively and definitely stated that no naval craft was operating in the waters indicated in the British message. Furthermore, all German naval forces have the strictest orders to act in accordance with the rules established by international law and in the agreements signed by Germany."

Alexander Kirk is the American chargé at Berlin.

8 Survivors Picked up

Meanwhile the Maritime Commission was notified today that eight survivors of the British ship Athenia had been picked up by the commission's cargo vessel City of Flint.

All were reported injured. Their identities were not immediately available.

The commission said this message was received from Captain J. A. Gainard, commander of the City of Flint:

"9 P. M. 3d. Turned back to pick up survivors torpedoed British steamer Athenia. At 4 P. M. 4th. Proceeding toward North American coast eight injured passengers. Two doctors aboard."

The City of Flint left Glasgow Sept. 2 bound for the United States.

Submarine Fired Twice

By The Associated Press

GREENOCK, Scotland, Sept. 5 (Tuesday)—A survivor landing from one of two Athenia rescue ships here today declared a German submarine which torpedoed the British liner Athenia fired two shells at the ship

Ministry later explained an unidentified airplane off the south coast had proved "friendly."

as passengers and crew were taking to lifeboats.

The survivor was John McEwan, of Glasgow, who also said: "it was rumored that 90 perished."

Other survivors said emphatically the Athenia was sunk by a submarine, and that the submarine fired two shells at the sinking vessel.

"We had a terrible time," said McEwan, "and we knew at once what it was.

"We all put on our lifebelts and went to our boat stations. The submarine then dived out of sight and several times during the night, when we were in the lifeboats, we heard the sub[illegible] passing below.

"The conduct of the passengers was magnificent. I don't know how many have been killed, but it is rumored that 90 perished.

"There was a great deal of smoke when the torpedo struck our vessel, but through the smoke I could see the submarine break the surface and before we knew where we were, it had opened up with its gun and fired two shots at us."

"Every lifeboat was away an hour after we were struck. The liner first of all listed and then righted herself and began to go slowly down by the head.

"We learned afterwards that a woman on whom an operation had just been performed had been left on the Athenia. One of the lifeboats went back and took her off.

"We drifted until 2:30 in the morning when a Norwegian ship picked us up.

"I saw the sub quite distinctly and I estimate that it was a quarter of a mile away."

One member of the crew, Robert Gillan of Glasgow, said he saw a twelve-year-old girl lying dead in a deckchair, her body torn by shell splinters.

Prof. Damon Boynton, of Cornell University, alighting from one of the destroyers, said:

"I was in a boat twelve hours before I was picked up. I don't want to say anything more except this—I don't like German war tactics."

Then the professor hurried away to the nearest telephone.

Both rescue ships reaching here were destroyers. Presumably some of the survivors had been transferred to the warcraft from other rescue ships.

Many of the women were without hats or shoes. Several had their arms in slings. As the destroyer edged up to the quay they sent up a wavering cheer.

Dockhands and crews of other ships in Albert Harbor cheered back lustily. The first distinguishable shouts from the decks were: "Throw us a newspaper so we can see what's happening."

A second ship followed the destroyer in and out of the fog and began discharging the injured. They were rushed to hospitals in a fleet of ambulances. The harbor was closed to the public and under heavy guard. No one was permitted near the rescue ships, which appeared to be filled mainly with women and children.

430 Survivors at Galway

By The Associated Press

GALWAY, Ireland, Sept. 5 (Tuesday).—Irish Medical Corps units and ten nurses boarded a tender today to meet the Norwegian freighter Knute Nelson, which wirelessed it was bringing 430 Athenia survivors, including ten stretcher cases, to this port.

Says 'Orders' Were Given to Obey Sea Laws

Blames 'Report' as 'Attempt to Influence U. S.' but British Cite Ship's Radio

BERLIN, Sept. 4 (AP).—The German government manifested sharp anger and concern today over British assertions that the sinking Sunday night of the British steamer Athenia was the work of a German submarine.

Alexander Kirk, United States Charge d'Affaires, was called to the Foreign Office and told by State Secretary Ernst von Weizsaecker that "German sea forces could not possibly have been responsible."

"Strict orders have been issued," Kirk was told, "for the German sea forces to hold themselves within the prize law."

Earlier, the supreme military command had made a similarly categorical denial of German responsibility.

Vigorous German Denial

LONDON, Sept. 4 (AP) (Via Radio).—A German news agency release given out here by Baron von Heisicker, of the German diplomatic staff, vigorously denied that Germany was responsible for the sinking of the liner Athenia.

The release of the German news agency included this statement:

"We can only say that in accordance with the definite instructions of Der Fuehrer, the German armed forces are doing nothing contrary to international law and treaties signed by the Reich. The way in which the report of the sinking has been circulated can only be regarded as an attempt to influence American public opinion in favor of those who want a further widening of the conflict."

It was reported the German radio had stated that reports the Athenia was torpedoed were untrue and that no "German warships" were within a radius of 200 miles from the Hebrides (off the Irish coast).

The British Admiralty said there were no British mines in that area, and emphasized that the Athenia's master stated his ship was torpedoed.

TEXT OF CHURCHILL REPORT ON ATHENIA

Assures House Convoy Plans Are Being Rushed.

LONDON, Sept. 4 (A. P.).—The text of the statement of Winston Churchill, Britain's First Lord of the Admiralty, concerning the sinking of the British steamer Athenia:

"I regret to inform the House that a signal was received by the Admiralty about 11 P. M. last night (5 P. M., Eastern standard time), giving the information that the S. S. Athenia had been torpedoed about 200 miles off northwest Ireland at 8:59 P. M. (2:59 P. M., Eastern standard time) last night.

"Orders had already been given by local authorities for destroyers to proceed to her assistance and after midnight four destroyers were proceeding at a high speed to the position and should have been near the position about 10 o'clock (4 A. M., Eastern standard time) this morning.

"A further signal was received at 1 A. M. (7 P. M., Sunday, Eastern standard time) stating that there were 1,400 on board and that the ship was sinking fast.

"The Athenia, a steamship of 15,000 tons of the Donaldson Line, had left Liverpool on Saturday evening before the declaration of war and had been ordered to steer off her normal track. She would have been steaming at about fifteen knots.

"Among the 1,400 on board were 300 citizens of the United States of America. It will be recollected that Germany agreed to abide by the terms of the London Naval Treaty in perpetuity and she was among the first powers to do so.

"These articles stated that the following points were accepted as establishing international law:

"Except in the case of persistent refusal to stop on being summoned or on active resistance to search, a warship may not sink or render incapable of navigation a merchant ship without first placing the passengers and crew in a place of safety.

"For this purpose a ship's boats are not regarded as a place of safety unless the safety of the passengers is assured by reason of weather conditions, proximity to land or the presence of another vessel.

Since August 26 all British merchant ships in the Atlantic have been diverted. Orders have been given for the institution of a convoy on one route since the war was declared.

"Of course it will take a little time to bring the general system of convoy into operation. That is being pressed to the utmost.

"A message has been received in the Admiralty this morning from the master of the Athenia stating that the passengers and crew, except those killed by the explosion, had taken to the boats and had been picked up. This fortunate aspect does not alter the fact that in no circumstances can open boats 200 miles from land be regarded as safety.

"I need scarcely say that the utmost endeavors will be used to employ all means of escort to the fullest capacity and to adopt such other methods as may be necessary for vessels which cannot be convoyed.

"We have every belief that the convoy system will be brought into complete operation at an early date."

Answering a question, Mr. Churchill went on:

"It (the Athenia) certainly was torpedoed without the slightest warning and in circumstances which the whole opinion of the world after the late war—in which Germany concurred—had stigmatized as inhumane. According to my present information the ship was in no way armed as an auxiliay cruiser."

PLACED LIMITS ON TORPEDOING

Germany Accepted Treaty Terms in 1937.

OUTLAWED RUTHLESS SINKING

London Papers Stress Number of Americans on Athenia.

LONDON, Sept. 4 (A. P.).—News of the disastrous sinking of the Athenia on the first night of the war shocked England deeply, and all but crowded off the front pages of the London newspapers the basic facts of the conflict just starting. Especially it refreshed memories of the Lusitania sinking in 1915 and the part that tragedy played in bringing the United States into the last war.

The London afternoon newspaper placards screamed the news of the total number of Americans aboard the Athenia, to the exclusion of other details.

Shortly before 1 P. M. the Ministry of Information stated that the Athenia was torpedoed without warning, adding that "such action is in direct contravention of rules regarding submarine warfare by which Germany is bound."

Germany is a party to the protocol signed by a number of Powers seeking to humanize submarine warfare. This protocol provides that the captain of an attacking submarine must put the passengers, crew and papers of a victim ship in a place of safety before any attack is made.

Under the protocol a place of safety does not mean lifeboats in an open sea unless land is close or unless rescue ships are standing by to take passengers and crew aboard.

The Ministry of Information said: "The rules lay down clearly that no merchant ship should be sunk without warning or at least until all passengers and crew were safe. . . . A ship's boats, according to the rules, were not to be considered a place of safety unless within half an hour's pulling distance from land in favorable conditions."

The submarine agreement was first signed at London on November 6, 1936, on behalf of Great Britain, the United States and France. Germany adhered to it in 1937.

The torpedoed ship was built at Glasgow in 1923 to replace another Athenia, an 8,668-ton ship which was torpedoed on August 16, 1917, in mid-Atlantic while carrying troops from Montreal to London.

Chamberlain Adds Two Ministers To Cabinet

London, Sept. 4 (AP).—Prime Minister Chamberlain tonight added two Ministers to his Cabinet. Lord MacMillan was named Minister of Information and Ronald Hibbert Cross, a whip in the Chamberlain Government, was made Minister of Economic Warfare.

Neither will sit in the nine-man War Cabinet announced yesterday, but will be members of the Cabinet proper.

Lord MacMillan had experience at the close of the World War as assistant director of intelligence in the Ministry of Information. In 1933 he served as chairman of the Canadian Commission on Banking.

Cross, merchant-banker and Conservative member of Parliament since 1938, has been parliamentary secretary to the Board of Trade since 1938.

Split Develops In Cabinet Of Union Of South Africa, However

Nepal's Offer Of 8,000 Soldiers For Service In India Accepted

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 4—Pledges of support in time of war came to the British Government tonight from various sections of the far-flung empire.

But a split developed in the Cabinet of the Union of South Africa, where many persons of Dutch descent live.

J. B. M. Hertzog, Prime Minister General, is urging that South Africa's relations with the belligerents "persist unchanged and continue as if no war was being waged."

Accepts Offer From Nepal

J. C. Smuts, Minister of Justice General, has proposed that the Union continue cooperation with the British Commonwealth and take measures for defense of its territories and interests but refrain from sending forces abroad.

On the other hand the Information Ministry in London announced the Government had accepted an offer from the Nepal Government of 8,000 soldiers for service in India during the war.

The Ministry said the internment of Germans in Tanganyika (near German East Africa) was going forward.

"There is no hint of resistance," said a Ministry statement, [illegible] none will resist. Nazi pr[illegible] the last few years has not t[illegible] on the 4,000 Germans in the [illegible]

It was also announced that four new escort vessels would be provided for the Royal Indian Navy and coast defenses at principal ports would be modernized. Approximately £1,700,000 (about $7,140,000), it was said, has been provided for reequipment of certain air-force units.

Message From Ireland

The Governor of Northern Ireland sent a message to the King pledging loyalty and devotion.

The Jewish agency for Palestine issued a statement promising "to give all assistance" to the British forces.

Messages of support and loyalty also came from Uganda and the Colony of Grenada.

Shanghai dispatches received here said scores of German-Jewish refugees were [illegible] the British and French consulates to offer their services against Germany.

The Government, a communique said, contemplates a substantial contribution to the reequipment and modernization of fighting units in India.

Egypt Breaks With Germany

Cairo, Sept. 4 (AP).—Egypt followed England's lead and severed diplomatic relations with Germany. The Egyptian Minister to Berlin was instructed to ask for his passport. (Egypt is allied by treaty with Britain.)

Ulster Soldiers Assaulted

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Lord Craigavon, speaking in the Northern Ireland House of Commons, pledged today that "there is no slackening" in the loyalty of Northern Ireland [Ulster] to Britain in war-time.

A soldier of Ulster's territorial forces, meanwhile, was shot and gravely wounded by a gang as he walked along North Queen Street. Other assaults on soldiers and attempts to strip them of their uniforms were reported.

Lord Craigavon declared that "there is no falling off in our determination to place the whole of our resources at the command of the British Government."

A group shouting "Hail Hitler" charged a group of British soldiers as a military detachment left Londonderry last night.

Posters declaring an Irish Republican Army "war" on Northern Ireland were torn down by police today in West Belfast.

BRITAIN SEIZES ALIENS

Will Watch All 'Enemy' Foreigners Over 16.

LONDON, Sept. 4 (A.P.).—Britain's new Home Secretary, Sir John Anderson, announced in the Commons today that "a number of aliens whose activities were suspicious are already under detention" in the United Kingdom.

He disclosed that an Order in Council had been promulgated requiring all "enemy aliens" over 16 years who did not intend to leave the country to report to the police. They must obtain police permits to travel, carry cameras or drive automobiles.

Legal examiners will review the status of all Germans or Austrians in the country to decide which should be interned or placed under other restrictions.

Sir John said "Citizens of former Czecho-Slovakia will not be treated as enemy aliens."

BULLETIN.

PARIS, Sept. 4 (A. P.).—A French General Staff communique announced tonight that "contact has been made on the front" with the German forces.

SEP 5-1939

The French launched an attack on land and in the air today against the German Western front in an effort to relieve the pressure on their Polish allies. Drives were reported under way in the Moselle region in the north and in the Belfort area to the south.

The German high command announced in Berlin today that the isolation of the Polish forces in the northern Corridor" had been completed. The command said that isolation of the Polish forces was effected as "a Pomeranian group with strong forces reached the Vistula (River) near Kulm."

The Danish radio at Copenhagen today reported a high-flying airplane of unidentified nationality had dropped two bombs on the Danish seaport town of Esbjerg on the west coast of Jutland killing at least two persons, one a woman. Esbjerg is a seaport from which many cattle and other shipments are made to Britain.

The British Admiralty announced tonight that naval activity was continuing on all seas, but added that "there are no major operations yet." The port of Dover was closed to commercial shipping.

PARIS, Sept. 4 (A. P.).—French land and air forces today launched co-ordinated attacks against Germany along the western front.

Seeking to relieve German pressure on Poland, France thrust her might against the frontier where the German "western wall" of fortifications faces the French Maginot line of concrete and steel.

Though reports were meager, the French apparently had started a double-flanking move designed to cut around the two ends of the German-French frontier, but a terse War Ministry communique left the impression that fighting was general all along the border.

Well-informed private informants said they believed the brunt of the French attack was felt along the Burgundy Gate where a valley forms a natural passage from France across the Rhine near the Swiss frontier.

These informants said a supplementary blow was delivered along the Moselle Valley at the northernmost extremity of the French-German border.

Reports from Luxemburg, adjoining the Moselle region, said sounds of firing started early this morning, and Belgium frontier steel plants and furnaces were shut down as a precautionary measure.

The air force was understood to be co-operating with land forces, while the fleet held battle positions in the western Mediterranean.

SEP 5-1939

Authorities started emptying Paris hospitals for military use. The first night of France's state of war with Germany had passed without word on the firing of a shot.

Heavy Bombers Fly East.

The communique came as the first indication that France's 8,000,000-man military machine had gone into action.

Shortly before 11 A. M. French heavy bombers flew low over the capital, heading eastward toward the German frontier.

Anti-aircraft batteries were said to have been thoroughly camouflaged to meet the "lightning war" on wings expected from the east of the Rhine.

Reports of the movement of troops told of French poilus halting by roadsides and breakfasting on black coffee and bread.

Reports of the torpedoing and sinking of the British liner Athenia with 1,400 passengers were certain to create a sensation in Paris. Scanty details of the attack arrived too late for publication in the Morning Press, which was given over to charging Adolf Hitler with responsibility for precipitating another European war.

France Enters War.

France's obligation to help Poland came into force technically at 5 P. M. (noon, New York time) yesterday at which previously specified time Germany had not given a "satisfactory answer" the French ultimatum that German troops be withdrawn from Poland.

Later Premier Daladier made a three-minute radio speech, characterizing the German invasion of Poland "one of the most brutal and cynical aggressions," and declaring: "The cause of France is the cause of justice."

France, he said, would triumph. M. Daladier declared that Germany had met British and French peace efforts with refusal, and that Germany "wishes the destruction of Poland in order to insure replo

The French and British ambassadors departed from Berlin, completing the breach in relations. They left French and British affairs to be handled by the United States embassy.

The rifles of the steel-helmeted guardsmen glinted in the dim lights at Les Invalides station as the German diplomatic party entrained. Paris was in darkened readiness for air raids. As the train pulled out, a German woman was seen through a coach window, her head buried in the arms of another, tears streaming down her face.

Gen. Maxime Weygand was named Near Eastern commander-in-chief of French forces. Reports from Ankara said Turkey had refused to renew her trade treaty with Germany, which expired at the end of August, and was taking national defense setps. Turkey is a member of the British-French front.

As hostilities unfold, some observers believe it will be impossible for Italy, Turkey, Rumania and, perhaps, the Balkan countries, to remain neutral.

Some military experts believe the German Siegfried line must be cracked for France to relieve Poland, and they are convinced the French can do it. Others hold to the theory a defensive war would be the best plan, but that would depend on the role Italy plays.

Fleet at Battle Stations.

Combined British and French naval forces have been at battle stations for a week. France's naval air force, expanded since Munich, is ready as an immediate weapon.

When the French war deadline passed there was little to mark the turning point in the nation's history. There were no bells or sirens, but newspapers screamed the one word, "War."

As 5 o'clock struck, Parisians along the tree-lined boulevards drank goodbye rounds with friends. An aged cafe proprietor spoke a phrase on many men's lips: "We too bad. There will be many dishes broken."

At the Arc de Triomphe, where lies France's unknown soldier of the last war, veterans of the Twenty-second and Twenty-third battalions of the Alpine Chasseurs relighted the flame which burns over the tomb. It was the usual evening ceremony. But last evening it was different. As the ceremony was finished, men and women pressed close. Many of the women dropped to their knees and prayed. Some laid homemade wreaths and bouquets on the tomb.

Halted at Frontier.

The trainload of German diplomats leaving France was halted on the Belgian frontier at 5 A. M. by French authorities to wait there until the train carrying French diplomats from Germany had reached the border. The French explained they wished to make sure there would be no complications and that the trains should cross the border on their opposite routes at exactly the same moment. The French diplomatic train left Berlin at 9 A. M.

Paris, Sept. 4 (By Telephone to New York)—France struck with her land and air forces along the Western Front today in what military observers described as a double-flanking movement to relieve pressure of the German armies on Poland.

Two official communiques issued during the day indicated the "entire force" of the French Army was making "progressive contacts" with the enemy along the Western Front.

Poles Launch Offensive

At the same time, France's ally, Poland, was reported by military circles in Paris to have launched a most vigorous offensive against Germany on the Eastern Front.

believed a supplementary attack was begun along the Moselle Valley at the northernmost end of the French-German border.

Operations Begun

"Operations have begun involving the entire land, naval and air forces," was all that the War Ministry's communique said.

Shortly before the communique was issued, eighteen and one-half hours after France's declaration of war yesterday on Germany, a fleet of French heavy bombers flew low over Paris toward the East.

HURL FULL FORCE AT FOE ON WEST WALL'S ENDS TO EASE PRESSURE ON POLES

Army Opens Double Skirting Movement, With "Burgundy Gate" As Main Objective. Navy Guards Mediterranean

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Tuesday, Sept. 5—Communication systems in New York last night received reports that a complete blackout of Paris went into effect at 9.45 P. M., indicating that an air raid was feared.

Communication was reestablished shortly after midnight today.

Planes Fail To Appear

Paris, Tuesday, Sept. 5 (AP)—Air-raid sirens sounded in Paris at 3.35 A. M. today.

At 6.10 A. M., no airplanes had appeared, but the alarm was not lifted. Most Parisians left their refuges and many gathered in the dawn-lighted streets.

[By the Associated Press]

France's military machine of 8,000,000 men was reported by military observers to be attacking from its Maginot line positions against both flanks of Germany's Siegfried line.

The air force was said by the same observers to have winged its way over Germany, scouting fortified positions and communications lines.

Navy Taking Positions

The navy was taking up positions, these experts said, in the Western Mediterranean to guard strategic lines of communication of the French Empire with North Africa, while the powerful allied British fleet moved into battle positions in the English Channel and neighboring Atlantic waters.

The reports from the West indicated the French armies had started their double-flanking movement at two extremities along the 200-mile frontier facing Germany.

A terse communique issued in midmorning by the War Ministry left the impression that fighting was general all along the Rhine frontier, where the French Maginot line faces the German Siegfried fortifications or "west wall."

"Burgundy Gate" Watched

Although the exact nature of the military operations was a general staff secret, well-informed private sources said they believed the brunt of the French attack was delivered along the "Burgundy Gate"—a passageway between the Vosges and the Alps, just north of the three-cornered junction of France, Germany and Switzerland.

At the same time a main blow was delivered at the southern end of the frontier, these sources said, and it was

Military observers said the impression was general that France was making a massed air attack against communications to the German line to halt the movement of reinforcements to the attacked sectors.

The communique was the first definite indication that France's military machine actually had gone into action against her historic foe across the Rhine.

No Word Of Firing

The first night of France's state of war with Germany—Sunday night—passed without a word on the firing of a shot.

The Burgundy Gate, historic route of ancient warfare between the Germans and the Franks, is a twenty-mile-wide valley running northeastward from France to the famous German Black Forest region.

The city of Mulhouse stands directly in the center of the valley on the German-French frontier.

Foreign military observers in Paris have long considered that if Italy remained neutral the French general staff could launch a general offensive against the German line to force Germany to divert troops from the eastern to the western front.

Aside from a naval blockade, foreign observers expressed the belief a French attack against the "west wall" was about the only method by which France would be able to fulfill her obligation and determination to aid Poland.

Some private sources said they understood the jumpoff was 5 A. M.

Long before that, during the night, British warplanes raided Germany with propaganda instead of bombs, circulars which told the average German that Britain was not making war against him, but against the Hitler Government which "cold-bloodedly" started the new war.

Behind the lines Premier Daladier, between conferences with his military and diplomatic chiefs, was reported by political sources to be considering a National Union Government, such as Britain already has set up.

Minister Resigns

Jean Zay, 35-year-old Minister of Education, has resigned and gone to the front. Paul Marchandeau, Minister of Justice and Mayor of Rheims, offered his resignation to Daladier today, saying he felt it his duty to remain with his fellow-citizens of Rheims. Louis de Chapedelaine, Minister of Merchant Marine, who has been ill for months, placed his portfolio at Daladier's disposal.

Filling of these posts will give the Premier an opportunity to bring in opposition leaders and make the Cabinet representative of what observers described as the "real national unity shown by Parliaments in last Saturday's session," when a war budget of 69,000,000,000 francs (approximately $1,656,000,000) was voted.

It was estimated that more than three-fourths of Paris' 3,000,000 population had been removed from the city, including men called to the colors in the general mobilization orders.

Hospital patients are being moved to safe places in the provinces, away from the danger of air raids. Some 3,000 sick already have been transferred in special hospital trains.

British uniforms began appearing on the streets of Paris today. Parisians turned to gape at the smartly clad officers, most of whom carried briefcases instead of rifles.

They were the advance guard staff, preparing the way for the British expeditionary force which is expected to be moving up to the front within a few days.

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Sept. 4.—A French General Staff communique announced tonight that "contact has been made on the front" with German forces. An earlier communique issued by the War Ministry said, "Operations have begun involving the entire land, naval and air forces."

The French communique announcing contact on the front added that France's naval forces "have taken up the posts assigned to them" and that "the air force has proceeded to do the necessary scouting." All French stations gave the communique as the first of their regular news broadcasts, indicating that it was the "evening communique."

The immediate object of the offensive was to relieve German pressure on France's ally, Poland, in the east.

President Albert Lebrun exchanged telegrams today with the heads of the two powers allied with France, King George VI of Britain and President Ignace Moscicki of Poland.

In his telegram to the British King, Lebrun declared:

"The ideal which animates France and Britain is confidence in the sacred justice of their cause and in the strength of their union, which makes them invincible."

Replying to a telegram of thanks from the Polish President, Lebrun said:

"Faithful to her pledged word, France has entered the fight for the right beside her glorious ally with a firm heart."

Paris Has First Air-Raid Alarm; City Thinks Artificial Fog Is Gas

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Sept. 5 (Tuesday)—French sirens sounded a shrill warning today, sending Parisians into cellars and dugouts for three hours and a half in expectation of a German air raid.

Before the alarm was lifted, people emerged into the streets, but police blew their whistles and chased them back again. The alarm was sounded at 3:35 a. m. (10:35 p. m., Monday, New York time), and lifted at 7:05 (2:05 a. m., New York time). Most people thought it was a false alarm, but the police action convinced them otherwise. The city's lights were extinguished when the alarm first sounded.

A bright moon was obscured soon by clouds. Every one thought that it was a turn in the weather, but military circles said that it was artificial fog released by the anti-aircraft defense system.

When the people first smelled the fog they cried: "It's gas!" and hastily donned masks. Only a few knew that the fog was artificial.

FOREIGN VOLUNTEERS WAIT

France Tells Them There Is No Room for Them in Army Yet

SEP 2-1939

PARIS, Sept. 4 (AP).—The French Army, busy outfitting 8,000,000 men of its own, made known today it had no room just yet for foreign volunteers.

"A number of foreigners have manifested their intention of enlisting in the ranks of the French Army for the duration of the war," an official notice said. "Since the military authority must first assure execution of military measures foreseen for the French Army, it is not possible for the moment to reply favorably to requests for enlistment made by foreigners."

For those unwilling to wait, the notice said, foreigners could file applications at recruiting stations, take physical examinations and eventually would be called for service.

(Dispatches from Paris yesterday said that a number of lists were open in the famed French Foreign Legion, however, and that thousands of foreigners had taken advantage.)

Americans With Loyalists Now Build Havre Shelters

SEP 2-1939

35 Volunteer and Begin Work on Air Raid Havens

LE HAVRE, Sept. 4 (AP).—Americans who fought for the defeated Spanish Republican army in the Spanish civil war are now building air-raid shelters for thousands of their war-stranded compatriots who are awaiting ships for home.

A group of thirty-five, including Canadians and naturalized Americans, a remnant of a volunteer corps of 3,000, was put to work on the first shelter directly in front of the American Consulate after they had offered their services to the municipal anti-air defense service.

Seven of the group recently were released from Spanish prisons. They are Robert Steck, Rock Island, Ill.; Jack Steinberg, Philadelphia; Joe Young, New York; Bernardo Alvarez, Tampa, Fla.; Morris Tobman, New York; Hy Wallach, New York, and Alvin Stevenson, Bridgeport, Conn.

Twenty-five others of the group are naturalized Americans. They have been waiting at Le Havre for six months while court actions are being pursued in the United States against a recent State Department ruling refusing them the right to return to the United States except as new immigrants under the quotas of their former countries.

Americans in France Join Ambulance Corps

SEP 2-1939

Many Volunteers Reported in Southeastern Area

FRENCH-ITALIAN FRONTIER, (via U. S. S. Trenton to Washington), Sept. 4 (AP).—Many of the Americans left in southeastern France were joining volunteer ambulance corps today, under French Army supervision.

The United States Consulate at Nice is assisting those Americans who want to leave the country, but calls on it have greatly lessened.

Among the French populace, order prevailed and the population of frontier towns like Menton appeared to be putting calm faith in the strength of the army. The Italian frontier remained open under the direction of a normal guard.

HITLER JOINS HIS TROOPS ON EASTERN FRONT

Fuehrer Taking Personal Command of Drive Against Poland.

HIS DEPARTURE IS SILENT

SEP 3-1939

Car With Its Headlights Shaded Leaves Berlin, but Few Cheers Are Heard.

BERLIN, Sept. 4 (A. P.).—Adolf Hitler, relying on the Siegfried Line in the west to defend Germany against Britain and France, joined his troops on the eastern front today to direct the drive against Poland. Declaring that "Germany will never again capitulate," the Fuehrer left behind the assurance that subjugating Poland will take "only a few weeks," if the western army holds off Poland's two allies.

Hitler left to take personal command of the forces fighting on the Polish front some twelve hours after he had rejected the ultimatum presented by the British Ambassador, Sir Neville Henderson, demanding the withdrawal of German troops from Poland.

Berlin took calmly the news of the joint declaration of war by Britain and France. Several hundred persons in front of the Chancellery heard the announcement in silence as it was carried over loudspeakers. Newspaper extras of one page each were printed and distributed free of charge.

New wartime measures were put into effect immediately. All railway connections with France were broken. Shipments routed via France no longer are acceptable.

The death sentence was decreed for espionage and insurgency, as well as for any attempt to weaken the army, the people, or to evade military service. Stern punishment for other military crimes was decreed and penalties were sharpened for desertion and unlawful absence from the country.

Army Reports Gains.

On the eve of the Commander-in-Chief's arrival, German troops were advancing in several sectors, said official communiques. The army command said that the rail center of Czestochowa, on the Warta River in Polish Silesia, had been captured, as well as the town of Berent. The German official news agency, DNB, reported that seven Polish planes and one balloon were destroyed in an air raid on Warsaw.

The army command also said that German air losses for Friday and Saturday were twenty-one planes, compared with 120 for the Poles. The communique did not list any casualties.

Other military dispatches said that the Germans had crossed the Vistula River and taken fortifications south of Nikolai, in East Prussia, while the Poles were reported to have destroyed a bridgehead at Tscew, on the upper Vistula; blasted dikes near Tscew, and bombarded Beuthen, on the Silesian frontier, and the suburb of Schomberg, a densely populated workers' town.

SEP 2-1939

Three Proclamations.

Before leaving for the eastern front just after 10 o'clock (5 P. M. Eastern daylight time) last night, Hitler made three proclamations.

1. He issued an appeal to his army in Poland accusing Britain of trying to "use all European States and peoples" to encircle Germany, and concluded with, "I myself, as an old soldier in the world war and supreme commander in chief, will join you at the front today."

2. He told his Western forces that, if they did their duty, the battle in the East would be "victoriously concluded in a few weeks and then the strength of our entire ninety millions stands behind you."

3. In an address broadcast to the people, he charged England with pursuing a "policy of world conquest" and encouraging Poland to resist the Reich; declared that "whoever sins against our unanimity and unity must expect nothing else than that he will be annihilated as an enemy of the nation," and that "if our people in such a manner fulfills its highest duty, then the Lord God, who always has given His grace to him who was determined to help himself, will also stand by us."

Hitler emphasized several times in his message that Germany is stronger than at the outbreak of the world war in 1914. He told the Western army that, in occupying the Siegfried Line, it would be guarding the border of the Reich "in a fortification which is a hundred times stronger than the never-conquered West front of the great war."

SEP 5-1939

No Bethmann-Hollweg.

"The British Government is mistaken about one thing," he told the army on the Polish front. "The Germany of 1939 is no longer the Germany of 1914, and the Chancellor of the present Reich is no longer Bethmann-Hollweg (Chancellor in 1914)."

The non-aggression pact with Russia also was emphasized. Again, in the proclamation to the army in the east, Der Fuehrer said:

"The non-aggression consultative pact with Russia united two of the greatest and strongest States in Europe in the sense of never again permitting their peoples to fight against one another."

British People Absolved.

He promised the National Socialist party "the year 1918 will never return." The eastern army "within a few week" will undo all of Britain's "encirclement work," while in the west "the greatest fortifications of all time will protect German soil," he added.

Though he said that, without British support, Poland would not have resisted a peaceful revision of her frontiers, Hitler at least partly absolved the British people of blame.

"The German peole," he said, "knows that the British people, as a whole, cannot be responsible for all this. It is that Jewish plutocratic and democratic upper crust which among all peoples of the world desires to see only obedient slaves and which hates our new Reich because it sees in it the model for social work which it fears might prove contageous also in their own country."

Ambassadors Go and Come.

His emphasis on the pact with Russia came on the same day that Alexander Schwkarzev, after less than twenty-four hours in Berlin, was accepted formally as the new Soviet ambassador. Schwkarzev arrived at the embassy in a car bearing a swastika and preceded by a brass band. A detachment of the S. S (Elite Guard), dressed in army field gray instead of the customary black, was turned out in his honor.

Earlier in the day British Ambassador Henderson and French Ambassador Robert Coulondre had taken their official leave from Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop in ceremonies distinguished chiefly by the absence of the traditional formality of returning passports. Affairs of the British and French embassies were taken over by Alexander Kirk, United States chargé d'affaires.

REICH CLAIMS 5 R.A.F. PLANES SHOT DOWN

Admits British Raid On Naval Base — Charges Atrocity On Border

Reports Air Victory Over Poles And Isolation Of Northern Corridor

SEP 5-1939

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Sept. 4—The official German radio claimed tonight that five of twelve British bombers raiding German seaports had been shot down in the vicinity of Cuxhaven, a naval base, near Hamburg.

At the same time, the official broadcaster, speaking over Station DJB, broadcast a story that German troops near the northeastern Polish-German border had discovered a German aviator "cruelly multilated."

The announcer said: "His eyes had been hacked out of their sockets; he was absolutely unarmed."

Claiming another air victory, the German news agency announced tonight that a squadron of German pursuit planes shot down four Polish bombers and two pursuit ships during an air battle this afternoon near Lodz, Polish textile center.

During the battle other Polish planes attempted to take off from their base, the agency said, but were attacked by the squadron and nine of them disabled.

The official statement put the Polish loss at fifteen planes and said no German planes were downed.

Reich Disclaims Initiative

While Polish forces in the northern Corridor were reported to have been isolated, German officials said tonight that Germany would not take the initiative against France and Great Britain.

"We shall not fire the first shots," they said, "but we shall reply if they start."

Earlier an army communique issued shortly before noon, recounting activities of the preceding twenty-four hours on the Polish front, concluded: "There was no fighting hitherto in the west."

Hitler Arrives At Front

Adolf Hitler meanwhile arrived at the German front lines on the east [illegible] by his troops [illegible] populace.

SEP 5-1939

A broadcast over the official station said:

"Official German report by high command states that shortly after the German forces had succeeded in cutting off the Polish contingent in the Corridor, Adolf Hitler personally arrived at the front lines.

Congratulates Soldiers

"For hours he drove along lines of wildly cheering front-line troops. He was present when the first German troops crossed the Vistula river at the city of Kulm. After congratulating his soldiers, he proceeded to inspect the liberated province of West Prussia. The populace went into a frenzy of joy, welcoming the Führer with unbounded enthusiasm, many having tears in their eyes."

The official communique asserted the spectacular series of successes included an advance to Wadowice, in the southwest, only twenty-two miles from Krakow, the former capital of the Polish Kingdom.

Troops Advancing

"Troops advancing from Silesia southward," said the communique, "are pushing ahead north of the high Tatra Mountains and south of the industrial region, following the retreating foe to Krakow.

"East of Pless (Pszczyna) a crossing of the Vistula river was forced. North of the industrial region our troops are following the retreating enemy along a line from Koniepol to Kamiensk and across the Warthe river northeast of Wielun.

"The troops in their swift advance stand twenty kilometers (more than twelve miles) off Sieracz.

Vistula River Reached

"A Pommeranian group (operating in the Province of Pomorze, the Corridor), with strong forces, reached the Vistula near Kulm (Chelmno). Thus isolation of the Polish forces in the Northern Corridor was completed.

"A German attack against the Graudenz fortress entered the fortification line in the northeast. A group advancing from East Prussia took Przasnysz. (Przasnysz is fifty miles north of Warsaw.)

"The Polish cavalry which attempted to invade German territory north of Treuburg was repulsed.

Air Force Bolstered

"The German air force in the course of September 3 increased raids on militarily important communications centers and large troop trains.

"Repeated operations of anti-aircraft and dive bombers considerably helped the quick success of the troops advancing from Silesia.

"Railway connections between Kitno, Warsaw, Krakow and Lemberg (Lwow); between Kielce and Warsaw, and between Thorn and Deutsch-Eylau were destroyed.

"Numerous derailments, fires and explosions of trains were observed. The station of Hohensalza was destroyed.

Polish Planes Destroyed

"The airplane works of Okecie near Warsaw were badly damaged. Polish reserve planes were destroyed. Seven Polish planes and one Polish balloon were shot down without losses to our own forces in a battle over Warsaw.

"The naval forces operated successfully yesterday. Destroyers directed effective fire on enemy ships in the naval port of Hela (Hel). A Polish submarine was sunk off Danzig Bay.

"Air raids on Gdynia and Hela were repeated, resulting in the sinking of the Polish destroyer Wicher. The minelayer Gryf was badly damaged.

"There was no fighting hitherto in the west."

It was announced officially that British planes had reached Germany last night, but that they dropped only propaganda leaflets and were driven back by German anti-aircraft units. These were the first planes reported from the west.

Early Victory Forecast

Berlin military sources predicted that Poland would be mopped up in a hurry—in a matter of weeks—and Warsaw crushed so that the full force of the war machine could be loosed on the western front.

Danzig itself, which had been out of communication for three days, was again able to telephone to Berlin reports that German troops were pushing north of Zoppot toward the vital Polish port of Gdynia.

The Reich railway system announced that the Danzig rail system had been wrested from a Polish administration. Numerous Polish rail officials were reported arrested.

Berlin, meanwhile, seemed sober, disciplined and anxious. The German population hardly knew that France had joined England in aiding Poland.

A violent press and aroused officials heatedly berated Britain, and long reports were printed of the circumstances leading up to the service and rejection of the British ultimatum that German troops be withdrawn from Poland.

The Reich turned on its propaganda full force to establish Britain as responsible for the war. London, it was asserted, had spurned Mussolini's intervention for peace, "betrayed" Europe and rushed France into war to serve British interests.

FLYER STRIKES ESBJERG, NEAR GERMAN LINE

British Or Reich Pilot May Have Mistaken Target

Other Conjecture Current Was That Craft's Mechanism Slipped

[By the Associated Press]

Copenhagen, Sept. 4—War touched Danish territory today when an unidentified airplane dropped four bombs on Esbjerg, seaport forty miles north of the German border, killing one woman and injuring twelve other persons.

The Government at once dispatched a commission to make an investigation. Foreign Minister Munch said if the nationality of the airplane was learned a determined protest would be made and indemnity demanded.

Greek Steamer Sunk

The incident topped a day in which difficulties of the neutral nations of northern Europe were emphasized by the sinking of a Greek steamer by a mine off the Swedish coast, and the sinking of Danish fishing boats which collided with nearby German mine fields.

A special effort was being made to recover a bomb that fell in the harbor at Esbjerg, but did not explode. If it could be recovered it might prove the nationality of the bombarding plane.

Ruins of the three-story apartment house flattened by the bombing also were being studied. The German Minister declared to Munch that the offending plane could not possibly have been German.

Two Conjectures Are Current

The incident was mystifying, but these two conjectures were current:

That it might have been a British plane, whose pilot mistakenly thought he already was over German territory—the border being only forty miles south of Esbjerg.

That a German pilot looking for British warships—Esbjerg being a seaport lying between the Kiel canal and Skaggerack, where such warships are reported—might have had a mishap with a bomb release mechanism.

Meanwhile, the small countries north and east of Germany clung tenaciously to their neutrality, but they held no illusions concerning the directness with which their interests were affected.

Even the man on the street could feel the nearness of the war. He could hear the radio warning the ships of his country to avoid nearby mine fields, he could see newspaper headlines telling of fishing boats imperiled by floating mines or isolated from their home ports by mine fields, and hear of the sinking of the Greek steamship Kosti near Malmo and a German communique reporting the destruction of two Polish submarines in the Baltic Sea.

Traffic With England Suspended

The announcement that all Danish sea-passenger traffic with England was suspended was a reminder of the war's grip on the neutrals, as was also the news that marine-insurance rates had been raised for the third time in three days.

The report of the sinking of the British liner Athenia made a deep impression.

News of what England and France were doing was eagerly sought, but nothing was available here late in the day except the French announcement that operations had begun by land, sea and air.

A German communique of additional progress of German troops in Poland emphasized the lack of information of wider developments in the west.

Americans Fill Hotels

Copenhagen hotels were filling with American women and children as Denmark became a refuge for the families of diplomats, newspapermen and others from the warring countries. Some obtained passage on neutral ships, while others settled down to await their turns at passages.

The S. S. Mormachawk, scheduled to sail today with a full passenger list, postponed its departure until tomorrow. The S. S. Scanyork, which was to have sailed Sunday, Thursday, will leave September 20, the same departure date which has been set for the S. S. Donald McKay, originally scheduled to sail next Saturday.

No date has been fixed for the departure of the S. S. Mormacwren, originally scheduled for Saturday.

The Norwegian S. S. Oslofjord is scheduled to sail tomorrow from Gothenburg and the S. S. Drottningholm will sail September 12.

Norwegian Ship Reported Hit

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 5 (Tuesday) (AP).—An unconfirmed report received here today said that a Norwegian freighter was torpedoed as she left the Polish port of Gdynia. The nationality of the freighter was not known here. A German torpedo boat became stranded in the narrows near Fredericia.

Danes Ban Use of Autos

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 5 (Tuesday) (AP).—All private automobiles in Denmark went out of use at midnight, with the exception of diplomatic cars and a few others with special permits. Officials said the purpose was to conserve the nation's limited supply of gasoline.

Newspaper Phone Calls To Berlin Barred

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 4 (A. P.).—Telephone communication between Berlin and Copenhagen was discontinued early today as far as it concerned transmission of press messages.

Telephone lines had not been cut, but persons placing calls for newspaper offices or foreign correspondents in Berlin were told that those numbers were not permitted to accept calls from foreign countries.

Two French Planes Land On Belgian Orders

Spotted With Searchlights, Who Land Today, Are Imprisoned

Brussels, Tuesday, Sept. 5 (AP).—Two French airplanes were ordered to land near Mons early today after they were spotted with Belgian searchlights.

The pilots, who were made prisoners, said they lost their way.

13 WARSHIPS AT GIBRALTAR

133 British And French Merchantmen Also In Harbor

Algeciras, Spain, Sept. 4 (AP).—Three French battleships, ten destroyers and 133 British and French merchantmen were concentrated today at Gibraltar.

At Vigo, thirty German merchantmen took refuge in the port.

Reich to Reissue Rentenmarks

BERLIN, Sept. 4 (AP).—The "rentenmark," paper bills of one, two and five marks, are to make their appearance again in Germany "to relieve the need for small change." The bills were created in 1923 during the inflation period following the World War. Although not redeemable in gold, they had a psychological influence in creating confidence which helped end the inflation. They are, therefore, sometimes called the "wonder mark."

Count Ciano said liners which had been held in their home ports for the last week intended to depart within two or three days.

This was considered in foreign circles a sign that Italy not only intended to stay out of hostilities but expected that France and Great Britain would continue to maintain normal relations with her in spite of her military alliance with Germany.

Ambassador Phillips saw Count Ciano for a general survey of the situation. To obtain an impression of Italy's course of action and to learn what could be done toward evacuating Americans still in Italy.

Il Duce Remains Silent.

Meanwhile Premier Mussolini kept to himself the position he has chosen with regard to the European war, and the British and French Governments, now at war with Italy's axis partner, Germany, were expected to ask within a few days for a precise statement of Italy's intentions.

Although many observers thought Italy might try to remain neutral because of what they considered the reluctance of Italians to fight for Germany, Premier Mussolini's Milan newspaper, Il Popolo D'Italia, gave little encouragement to that idea.

The newspaper declared nothing had been changed in the Italian-German friendship, which only last May 22 was marked by the signing of a military pact.

Peace Efforts Believed Hoped.

Some [illegible] said they believed Il Duce might make further efforts to arrange a settlement. But there was nothing in official circles to indicate such a likelihood.

There were those who felt that, Mussolini's proposal having failed, [illegible]h and French armies would be unable to reach Germany across her western fortification, the Siegfried Line—a view widely expressed in the Fascist press. The Germans, they said reasoned, after crushing Poland, would be able to turn and crush their British-French foes.

Yet many Italians feared they would be brought into the conflict by a request for aid from Adolf Hitler—a call which they said their Government might have to answer under the military alliance with Germany.

War's Trend May Guide Italy.

Hopes in some foreign circles that Mussolini would turn his back on Hitler and aid Britain and France were not very bright.

Concerning Mussolini's reply to any inquiry from Britain and France as to his intensions, certain diplomats suggested the Premier probably would refrain from answering until he saw how the war was going.

There was speculation as to what Britain and France might do if Italy passed war supplies to Germany through her ports under a form of benevolent neutrality.

It [illegible]ld Italy intended to maintain [illegible]al trade relations with Germany and that, while there might be a stoppage for a day or two in shipping, it would be only for an adjustment of a balance for payments through clearing houses.

British and French hopes in Rome lay mostly in a belief Mussolini was concerned deeply with the turn of the situation; that he might not want to stake the future of his regime on the outcome of the war, and that he might be willing to make a deal.

Italian Ships to Resume Trips

Nation's Continued Neutrality Seen in Orders to Liners—Mussolini Remains Silent.

ROME, Sept. 4 (A. P.).—A [illegible] indication of Italy's intention to remain neutral in the European war was provided today in the announcement that Italian passenger liners would resume their sailings in a few days. The announcement was made even as predictions were heard freely that Italy's neutrality would be short-lived.

Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano was understood to have given assurances to American Ambassador William Phillips, who called at the Foreign Ministry this morning, that Italian ships would start their schedules again.

he would be too realistic to attempt further to mediate.

Italians watched closely for the first reports of French and British military action and said Il Duce would have to make his decision for or against participation in the war in a few days.

There were many who said Brit-

Statement on Italian Peace Moves

ROME, Sept. 4 (AP).—The text of the official statement on Premier Mussolini's peace activities follows:

In the face of the worsening of the European situation on Aug. 31, Il Duce, while taking into account exceptional difficulties which made a peaceful solution extremely problematical, made last efforts to save the European peace.

To this end the English and French Governments were informed that Il Duce, upon receiving assurance of Franco-British adherence and Polish participation, assured by the action of London and Paris, would be in position to convoke an international conference on Sept. 5 with the object of revising the clauses of the Versailles Treaty which are the cause of the present disturbance of European life.

The Italian Government did not fail to emphasize the extreme urgency of a reply but the French and English were not in position to communicate this reply before the next day, that is Sept. 1. Meanwhile, during the night of Aug. 31, frontier incidents occurred which prompted the Fuehrer to begin military operations against Poland.

The replies which the Italian Government received having been favorable in principle both on the part of the French and the English and notwithstanding the fact that a military clash already had taken place between Germany and Poland there having been evidence on the part of the French particular interest in the pursuit of Il Duce's initiative, the Italian Government at 10 o'clock on the morning of Sept. 2 advised Chancellor Hitler for purposes of his information that there still was a possibility of convoking the conference, preceded by an armistice which might settle the German-Polish conflict by peaceful means.

Chancellor Hitler replied to Il Duce through our Ambassador at Berlin that he did not reject a prior possibility of a conference. He desired, however, to know first whether the note presented by the French and English to Berlin had the character of an ultimatum—in which case any negotiations would be useless—and whether he could count on having a period of twenty-four hours to consider and reach his decision.

The Italian Government, having placed itself again in contact with the governments of London and Paris, at 2 P. M. on Sept. 2, informed them of what the Fuehrer had asked. Subsequently, late at night, affirmative replies were received from London and Paris concerning the two questions raised, but it was added that in view of the new fact of occupation of Polish territory by the German armed force which had arisen between Aug. 31 and Sept. 2, France and England made evacuation of the occupied territories a fundamental condition of their participation in an international conference.

In these circumstances the Italian Government limited itself to informing the Fuehrer of this condition, adding that, barring contrary advice from the German Government, it saw no possibility of taking further action.

HUNGARY MAY YET AID POLES

Strong Bond of Sympathy Between the Two.

'RAGGED GUARDS' RECRUITING

Death Penalty Decreed by Nazis for Captured Irregulars.

BUDAPEST, Sept. 4 (A. P.).—Hungary watched Europe's new war today torn between a desire to remain neutral and a keen interest in repaying a long-standing debt to Poland.

A Nazi decree providing execution for captured "irregulars," published here by the official German agency, had not obviated the possibility that Hungary's "Ragged Guard" would yet play a role in the conflict, regardless of the official stand.

The "Ragged Guards," a band of patriots organized in 1919 as a counter-revolutionary force, already has been openly charged by Hungarian Nazis with recruiting men to help Poland. Guard veterans insist the organization is out of existence, but members recently were decorated publicly for valour by the Regent, Admiral Nicholas Horthy.

Common Frontier Helps.

Now that Poland and Hungary have a common frontier (created by the partitioning of Czecho-Slovakia) for the first time in 150 years, the secret passage of volunteers would be neither impossible nor difficult. The Hungarian-Slovak border is heavily patrolled and felled trees and wrecked bridges make mountain roads impassable, but the Hungarian-Polish border is wide open with guards on each side fraternizing freely.

Hungary has a half million German population, but the ties between this nation and Poland are strong and based on an old tradition of mutual assistance. Many feel that Hungary still owes Poland a debt for the help Polish patriots played in the 1848 fight for Hungarian independence.

Nazi Leader in Jail.

Meanwhile, with Nazi Leader Ferenc Szalasi serving a three-year penitentiary sentence and the Government threatening dissolution of the party, Hungarian Nazis were further beset with internal dissension.

The fifty Nazi members of the Lower House of Parliament were quarreling bitterly. Several Nazi deputies were planning a sympathy demonstration in front of the Polish legation. When other Hungarian Nazis attempted a similar demonstration before the German legation a week ago, police routed them with sabers.

The Government was seeking authority to curb the right of assembly and the right to organize. Sources close to the Government said the demand was aimed at the Nazis.

Balkan Nations Say They Will Remain Neutral

Yugoslavia, Rumania and Bulgaria Signify Desire for Peace Unless Attacked

BUDAPEST, Sept. 4 (AP).—Three Balkan nations—Yugoslavia, Rumania and Bulgaria—officially signified their neutrality tonight in Europe's war. While diplomats declared the ultimate fate of southeastern Europe depended upon Italy's position, the three countries announced their will to remain at peace unless directly attacked.

Yugoslavia, where the World War started in 1914, published a neutrality declaration.

Rumania, although fearful of Soviet Russia's intentions on her eastern frontier, made a similar announcement and a Bulgarian communique asked that nation to follow a policy of "peace and neutrality."

Another nation in the tinder box of the World War—Greece—has signified her desire to remain neutral. So has Hungary, although the Budapest government, a signer of the anti-Comintern pact, is moving cautiously, with Germany along her western and northern frontiers. Only Turkey is tied to France and Great Britain by mutual assistance treaties, leaning to one side in the war.

The Bulgarian government communique said:

"Bulgaria follows the events which have smeared Europe with blood without passion or hatred but with inflexible will power for a just peace and with steel-like firmness and coolness faces all events."

The communique added that all Bulgarians should group themselves in a perfect union around King Boris in the conviction that the state and the government would watch untiringly with the greatest care over the country's fate.

The Rumanian Cabinet issued a communique asserting that "Rumania still endeavors to maintain friendly relations with all her neighbors and is ready to offer them non-aggression pacts." Hungary refused such an offer recently and proposed a minority protection treaty, which Rumania likewise declined.

The Yugoslav government forbade public manifestations in favor of any belligerent power. Last night Belgrade crowds had cheered Britain and France. Shortly after the Rumanian communique, Yugoslavia published this neutrality declaration:

"Final events now occurring in the world impose on the royal Yugoslav government the duty to maintain and develop friendly relations with all its neighbors and to remain neutral in all conflicts which do not affect Yugoslavia's independence and integrity."

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala, Sept. 4 (AP).—President Jorge Ubico issued a manifesto today declaring strict neutrality in the European conflict. Foreigners were forbidden to hold political demonstrations or participate in other activities tending to disturb order.

Spain to Stay Neutral In 'Unfortunate' War

MADRID, Sept. 4 (AP).—The government officially declared Spain's neutrality in the European war tonight.

The Burgos official bulletin will publish a decree tomorrow signed by President Francisco Franco saying: "There being officially recorded a state of war unfortunately exists between England, France and Poland on one hand and Germany on the other hand, I order the present decree to all Spanish subjects to maintain the strictest neutrality in accordance with existing laws and principle of international law."

Bucharest Calls 250,000 Men

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Sept. 4 (AP).—An intimation that King Carol was fearful of Soviet Russia's intentions was made today by an authoritative source as Rumania called up 250,000 reservists to raise the army's total strength to more than 1,000,000 men. The King conferred again with the Crown Council.

Rumania mined a new railroad bridge across the Dniester River, the country's frontier with Russia.

King Haakon Proclaims Norway's Neutrality

OSLO, Sept. 4 (A. P.).—King Haakon VII proclaimed a new neutrality act last night as the people of Norway calmly heard the news of the outbreak of war.

A representative of the German Government was expected here today to tell the Norwegian Government that Germany counts on German-Norwegian commerce continuing unchanged.

Slovakia Faces Famine If War Lasts Into Winter

BRATISLAVA, Slovakia, Sept. 4.—A Slovak Government source estimated today that the food supply of this little nation can last only two months more because of the German Army's demand for provisioning.

Slovakia, under German military protection, has been made a base for one of the German drives into Poland.

It was stated that the towns face famine conditions if the war is prolonged through the Winter.

STATENDAM SAILING LATE

With 1,600 Aboard, Waits for 200 More Americans

AMSTERDAM, Tuesday, Sept. 5 (AP).—The Dutch steamship Oranje left Amsterdam for Batavia, Dutch East Indies, Monday night with a full booking of 1,100 passengers. It was not announced whether the craft would pass through the English Channel or skirt Scotland. When she reaches Portuguese waters she will decide whether to go through the Mediterranean or around Africa.

The Holland-America liner Statendam, scheduled to sail for New York at midnight with 1,600 passengers, including 1,200 Americans, delayed her departure, setting it for 10 A. M. to await arrival of 200 more Americans expected from Paris by train.

The line said it would maintain its regular schedule, if possible, despite the war, which resulted in torpedoing of the British liner Athenia late yesterday. Names of the Holland-America vessels will be painted on their sides in large letters together with the word "Holland" and the Netherlands flag.

The liner Volendam is scheduled to sail from Antwerp September 9 with 800 passengers, many of them Americans, and a Netherlands freighter sailing the same day is expected to take other Americans fleeing the European war.

Three Envoys On Way To Their Homelands

Trio Reported In Or Near The Netherlands—To Cross Border Lines Simultaneously

Amsterdam, Tuesday, Sept. 5 (AP)—German, French and English envoys, hurrying from their posts to their homelands after the outbreak of war, were reported today in or near The Netherlands, where they will cross border lines simultaneously.

Robert Coulondre, French Ambassador to Berlin, was reported arriving at The Netherlands town of Oldenzaal by train. He will await the arrival there of the German charge d'affaires in Paris. The French and German officials will exchange trains at Oldenzaal and proceed to their home countries.

The British Ambassador to Berlin, Sir Nevile Henderson, who had been expected at Oldenzaal during the night, was reported at Rheine, Germany, where he will remain until receipt of word that Dr. Theodor Kordt, German charge d'affaires at London, has reached Holland. Henderson then will enter Holland as Kordt at the same time enters the country.

HOLLAND FIRES ON AIRPLANES AFTER WARNING

Nationality Of Craft Flying Over Territory Not Announced.

SEP 5 1939

[By the Associated Press]

Amsterdam, Tuesday, Sept. 5—An official announcement said today Netherlands guns had opened fire on foreign planes which again flew over the Netherlands during the night.

The action took place in an area south of Amsterdam. Nationality of the planes was not stated and apparently could not be learned by officials.

The Netherlands, lying midway on a direct air line between Berlin and London, took steps yesterday to protect its neutrality, particularly regarding aerial warfare, after reports that both German and British planes had flown over its territory.

After a day of conflicting reports as to which planes were over the Netherlands, the following version was made public last night:

Reich Planes Sighted

Dutch Coast Guardsmen sighted a group of German warplanes off the northwest coast of the Netherlands late yesterday and launched an immediate investigation to determine whether they had penetrated Dutch territory.

"It is possible that these planes flew over Dutch territorial water," said an official statement. "Naval authorities are now making inquiries."

The planes were seen off the coast of Delfzyl, the westernmost of three small islands separated by a narrow strait from the mainland.

Netherlands envoys to Berlin and London also were instructed yesterday to inquire of the German and British governments regarding planes which were sighted over territory near the German frontier in the early morning hours.

Motorists Find Pamphlets

The planes were not identified, but the unofficial assumption was that they might have been British because pamphlets were found giving the English version of the war as a "warning to the German people."

Motorists picked up the pamphlets, which were assumed to have been dropped from the planes and to have blown over into the Netherlands from Germany.

The Netherlands Government issued a statement declaring it was "not at all surprised by the declaration of war between Britain, France and Germany. All military, economic and financial measures were fully prepared and have come into operation now."

"The mobilization of the army and navy is now completed," it was added.

SEP 5 1939

(Both Berlin and London, in official announcements, confirmed that British planes had flown over German territory to drop pamphlets.)

"Warning" From England

An English translation of the pamphlets termed them "a warning from England to the German population that war was thrust upon us by Germany."

An official announcement said the propaganda planes were too high to be identified. Paris reports said 1,000,000 tracts were dropped by British "propaganda raiders" last night.

"We knew the consequences" of war would be "much more horrible than in 1914," said the pamphlets. "In April, Hitler gave the world assurances of his friendliest intentions. However, they were as worthless as his words spoken in September last year when Hitler said Germany had no more territorial claims in Europe.

"This was absolutely unnecessary. Germany and the German Reich never had been threatened. All Germany's wishes could have been settled peacefully as long as they were justified for other people.

"President Roosevelt offered you an honorable peace.

"Instead, your government condemned you to mass murder, starvation and the hardships of war which you never can hope to win.

"Hitler has cheated you, us but you."

SEP 5-1939

The Netherlands government issued a statement, saying it was "not at all surprised by the declaration of war between Britain, France and Germany. All military, economic and financial measures were fully prepared and have come into operation now, it was said.

"The mobilization of the army and navy is now completed," the statement added.

NAZIS CAPTURE CZESTOCHOWA

Warsaw Says 1500 Have Been Killed or Wounded by Hitler's Bombing Planes.

SEP 5-1939

WARSAW, Sept. 4 (A. P.).—A communique from the Polish General Staff today announced withdrawal of Polish forces from Czestochowa, a town of 120,000 in southwest Poland, after a strong offensive by greatly superior German forces using tanks and heavy artillery.

During the struggle for the town, twenty miles from the border, there was a sharp conflict between Polish planes and a German armored unit, official reports said. The planes bombed and machine-gunned the troops, dispersing two columns and inflicting heavy casualties. The Poles admitted loss of four planes.

Warsaw, for the first time since the war's beginning, slept through the early morning without an air alarm. About breakfast time a lone German raider flew overhead, causing a few anti-aircraft gun outbursts which were reported to have brought the German down in flames.

Appeal to Czechs in Poland.

Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz issued an appeal to Czechs and Slovaks to join the legion which Gen. Lev Prchala is now organizing in Poland, declaring they had a choice between being "German slaves or throwing off the yoke." It was announced that the legion would fight as a separate unit.

New street posters announced additional mobilization. Casualties were reported in bombings near Warsaw and ambulances filled with badly wounded civilians were seen in the streets.

The chief topics of conversation on the streets are the heroism of the Polish soldiers who have been holding out since Friday at Westerplatte, the Polish Army depot in Danzig Harbor, and speculation as to when Britain and France actually would hurl their forces against Germany.

The resurgence of popular courage, inspired by the entry of Britain and France into the war as allies of Poland, was spurred anew by the claim of official sources that Polish troops had penetrated German territory for the first time.

The official reports said that fast-striking Polish cavalry on Saturday had recaptured Leszno and Rawicz, Posnania province towns occupied by Nazi forces in their initial attacks, and drove the invaders back across the border. The Polish vanguard, it was said, has advanced into German Pomerania, north of Breslau.

Report Underscored.

The official news agency said that late reports showed at least 1,500 persons were killed and wounded by air raids in the last two days. It was stated 25 unfortified cities and towns were bombed today.

News of the war declarations in Paris and London was greeted by spontaneous celebrations throughout Poland. In Warsaw, singing and cheering throngs trooped through the streets, kissing each other in jubilation, giving ovations and tossing flowers to French, British and neutral ambassadors, and defying air raid dangers. Despite repeated radio warnings, the streets were jammed for hours.

On the battle fronts, the staff communique said that the German onslaught was especially strong in Silesia and the Tatra Mountains, north of the Slovak frontier.

In Pomorze (Polish Corridor), severe fighting was reported around Grudziadz and elsewhere near the east Prussian frontier, with Polish defense lines reported holding intact.

The communique said the Poles had recaptured Orlowo and Kack, suburbs of the port city of Gdynia, and the Polish garrison of the Westerplatte, ammunition dump in Danzig harbor, still was holding out.

[A dispatch from Danzig, first received since the former Free City was annexed by the Reich Friday, said the Westerplatte garrison was fighting back with machine gun fire against airplane and artillery bombardments.]

Summarizing the war aloft, the communique listed twenty-seven German planes shot down Saturday, bringing the total loss of the invaders to sixty-four in two days of fighting. The Polish loss was placed at eleven in the last twenty-four hours.

The communique reported air raids over a large portion of Poland and again said that the Germans showed no regard for military objectives.

Heavy, but unestimated, civilian casualties were listed from yesterday's raids. The communique said that peasants working in open fields were machine-gunned in a number of places, and that bullets from the air pelted physicians' cars bearing Red Cross emblems forty miles west of Warsaw. Official sources said civilians evacuating Pomorze areas had been bombed and machine-gunned.

Report Convent Bombed.

Bombing of a Catholic school convent at Szymanow, short distance from Warsaw, was reported.

The communique said that these towns had been bombed: Krakow, Bydgoszcz (bombed by twenty-seven planes with heavy civilian loss), Lublin (forty-three dead, twenty-five severely injured); Lodz (thirty-one killed, seventy-five wounded in two days' bombing); Piotrkow (Town Hall and Bank of Poland destroyed), Radom, Torun, Rzeszow, Poznan, Brest-Litovsk, Kalisz and Tluszcz.

In Warsaw, the Polish Parliament adjourned its emergency session, leaving the Government in hands of President Ignace Moscicki and his Cabinet. The executive created a new Cabinet portfolio, naming Waclawa Kostek-Biernacki minister in charge of the civilian population's interests.

During the celebration accompanying the news of war declarations by Britain and France, the French Ambassador made a wreath from the scores of bouquets presented to him and laid it on the tomb of Poland's unknown soldier.

British Envoy Speaks.

"We will fight side by side against aggression and injustice," Sir Howard Kennard, British Ambassador, told a cheering, flower-throwing throng from the balcony of the British embassy yesterday.

Beside him, Foreign Minister Joseph Beck proclaimed that "Britain and Poland have locked hands in a fight for freedom and justice" and promised that neither ally would be disappointed in the other.

Actually, hundreds of miles of land—much of it fortified German territory—and long stretches of sea separated Poland and her allies. Nor was the method of aid that could span those distances determined, but the war declarations from London and Paris brought spontaneous celebrations throughout Poland.

In Warsaw a British military attaché's automobile was deluged with flowers. Crowds besieged even the neutral embassies and disregarded air raid dangers in their jubilation.

At the United States Embassy Ambassador Anthony Joseph Drexel Biddle Jr. was called to a window to acknowledge the chant "Long live the United States."

In new war measures President Moscicki decreed the establishment of a war budget providing tax increases and suspending bank transfers for a week. He also ordered military tribunals established. The Warsaw official journal published a decree granting amnesty for all crimes committed before August 31, provided the offenders still were in Poland and mobilized.

Reports Balloon Destroyed.

BERLIN, Sept. 4 (A. P.).—The German official news agency DNB reported today that seven Polish planes and one balloon had been destroyed in an air raid on Warsaw. It was reported there were no German losses on this expedition.

The army command announced the German troops in Poland were progressing inland and had captured Czestochowa, rail center on the Warta River in Silesia. This town also is an important religious town, possessing the Black Madonna, visited annually by 200,000 pilgrims. German authorities denied the Madonna was damaged by bombs.

BIDDLE BELIEVES RAID DELIBERATE

U. S. Envoy Says Bombing Was From Close Range.

SEP 5 1939

WARSAW, Sept. 4 (A. P.).—The United States Ambassador to Poland reported to the State Department in Washington today he believed the bombing of his villa in a Warsaw suburb yesterday was deliberate.

The Ambassador, Anthony Joseph Drexel Biddle Jr., said that the German plane which dumped six bombs on his and adjoining villas, dosed its cargo at a low altitude, ast before it came out of a power ive.

One of the bombs wrecked a earby villa. Windows in the Bidle house were shattered, but mem-ers of the household escaped un-urt. Mr. Biddle said that in-endiary bombs fell on the villa rounds, but failed to explode.

The Ambassador had leased the illa, at Konstancin, ten miles west f Warsaw, when war appeared im-inent, to enable his family and taff to rest, and so work could ontinue when Warsaw proper was ombed. He picked a spot he con-dered safe from air raids because f the quiet countryside.

"It was simply terrifying," Mrs. iddle said, "and happened so uickly it is difficult to retain a ear impression. I remember hear-g the terrific sound of explosions, reaking glass and the house shak-g. The Ambassador rushed in, nd we all started for the cellar, ut decided against it and came ack upstairs."

The Biddle household included iss Peggy Schultz, Miss Mary illis McKenzie, Hopkinsville, y., Mrs. Biddle's secretary. Five her members of the embassy aff occupied a nearby villa—isses Isabel Pinard of San Diego, ugania McQuarters of Los An-les, Iris Saunders of Portland, re., and Chief Clerk C. C. Pender-n and his wife.

Americans Reach Warsaw From Kiev, Russia.

SEP 5 1939

WARSAW, Sept. 4 (A. P.).—Four Americans reached Warsaw today after a hazardous trip by rail from Kiev, Soviet Russia. They were foodless for two days and, in Lublin, their train was delayed several hours until tracks blasted by a German air raid could be repaired.

The four, Mary Strezwfsky of Toms River, N. J.; Sonia Lieberman, Brooklyn, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Panek, Joliet, Ill., are en route to Riga, where they expect to sail for America.

Danzig Cleared for Action

Populace Sent Away From Westerplatte to Pave Way for Smothering Attack.

DANZIG, Sept. 4 (A. P.).—The Danzig populace was cleared out of all territory adjoining the Westerplatte ammunition dump today, apparently in preparation for a smothering bombardment of the little Polish garrison that has held out through three days of attack.

No one knew how many soldiers were sheltered in the red-walled property on a thumb of land jutting into Danzig harbor. But chattering machine-guns in reply to every offensive gesture told that some of them were still alive and fighting.

Bombs Drop in Fort.

Swooping planes plumped between fifty and sixty bombs into the fort yesterday, while cannon kept up the bombardment that has been aimed at the Westerplatte since shortly after the union of the former Free City with the German Reich was proclaimed on Friday morning.

It was not known whether the evacuation of civilians presaged an infantry attack—the one method of onslaught not yet employed.

Another battle, centered around the Polish post office in the heart of old Danzig, cost approximately twenty lives before seventy Polish defenders were killed or made prisoner.

The Poles fought off with machine-gun fire all efforts of Danzig police to storm the red-stone building until light artillery blasted open the front of the structure.

Routed With Fire.

Then, on Saturday, gasoline was poured into the building and set afire. The flames broke the resistance.

Those Poles who were not killed were taken prisoner,

There were rumors, not immediately confirmable, that Marian Chodacki, the Polish High Commissioner to Danzig, still was in the city.

The British and French consuls departed, leaving United States Consul C. Porter Kuykendall to handle their interests.

German Army Takes 2 Cities In the Corridor

Foe in North Believed Cut Off; Czestochowa, Holy City, Held by Poles

WARSAW, Sept. 4 (AP).—German forces in a combined land and air attack have captured the Polish Corridor (Pomorze) cities of Bydgoszcz (Bromberg) and Grudziadz (Graudenz) in long and intensive fighting, a Polish general staff communique stated tonight.

(These two cities are strategically located in the south of the Corridor. Grudziadz is on the Vistula River, sixty miles south of Danzig and just below the East Prussia border. Bydgoszcz is approximately forty miles southwest of Grudziadz, near the Vistula. Capture of the two points seemed to fit an official German announcement that Polish forces in the northern Corridor had been "isolated.")

Bydgoszcz and Grudziadz were given up by Polish forces, communique No. 4 stated tonight, "because of heavily superior enemy strength." The communique stated that in intensive fighting throughout the nights of Sept. 3 and 4 Polish air units carried out successful attacks on German armored troops, causing heavy losses.

Tonight's communique said that south of the border of East Prussia fighting continued on a line between Przasnysz and Ciec Wanow, north of Warsaw.

Warsaw Area Bombed

Intensive German aircraft activity continued, it was stated, with enemy planes bombing a number of summer residences around Warsaw with heavy civilian losses. In the bombing of Warsaw this afternoon four apartment houses and one streetcar barn were destroyed. A Polish factory also was reported damaged.

The Polish cavalry, pride of Poland's army, was reported victorious in a slashing attack across the western border into Germany proper. (German officials in Berlin denied this report.)

The small Polish garrison in the Westerplatte, ammunition depot in Danzig Harbor, was still holding out against a combined sea and air attack which the Germans have been waging since dawn Friday.

A communique said that Polish forces had withdrawn from the defense of the large southwestern city of Czestochowa (Tschenstochau), known as Poland's "Holy City," in the face of an overwhelming enemy assault, but that the orderly retreat had been well protected by Polish air planes which disrupted two German columns in the course of the withdrawal.

The report of the Polish cavalry success, 130 miles northwest of Czestochowa, indicated that the Polish lancers might be attempting to outflank the mechanized German columns which are reported having difficulties with the muddy, rough terrain.

The lancers and their supporting infantry were stated officially to have recaptured Leszno and Rawicz, Poznan (Posen) Province county seats lost in the original German drive, then to have penetrated the German border, advancing into German Pomerania.

The police are actively rounding up Germans and persons of questionable status who were born in Pomorze but lack Polish citizenship papers. Presumably, they are being interned in concentration camps.

The Polish Telegraphic Agency reported the police had discovered subversive agents trying to shake civilian morale by sending telegrams to parents saying their sons had been killed in the front-line fighting.

A communique said German planes were making farms and villages in the vicinity of Warsaw targets for repeated attacks by bombs and machine guns. The communique added there had been "numerous casualties" among the peasants working in the fields and women and children herding their geese and cows.

It asserted a German plane had dropped two dud bombs into the village of Bawino while most of the inhabitants were gathered in the cemetery burying the victims of a previous bombing.

Japan Will Stay Out and Attend To Its Own War

Gen. Abe Announces Policy of Isolation, but People Devour News of Conflict

TOKIO, Sept. 4 (AP).—The Japanese government asserted bluntly today that it intended to keep out of the European war, and would continue to devote its attention to the war in China.

At the conclusion of a day-long Cabinet session, Premier Gen. Nobuyuki Abe announced: "In the face of the European war which has just broken out, Japan intends not to be involved therein; she will concentrate her efforts on the settlement of the China affair."

Authoritative sources expressed the belief that Japan's identification with the Berlin-Rome anti-Comintern axis was automatically ended when Germany and Soviet Russia signed their non-aggression treaty.

Despite this flat statement of neutrality, the public showed intense interest in the European situation. Newspapers sold out extra editions as fast as they appeared. In financial quarters it was freely predicted that Japan's export trade would boom as a result of the conflict which would occupy the attention of the industrial nations on the other side of the world.

Meanwhile, the press advised complete isolation. There was relief in many quarters that Japan seemed freed of European commitments since the signing of the German-Soviet non-aggression pact.

BRITISH ORDER SHIPS TO FAR EAST PORTS

Vessels to Remain in Harbors Pending New Instructions

SHANGHAI, Sept. 4 (AP).—Britain ordered all merchant ships in the Far East to remain in port today pending further instructions from the Admiralty.

In some quarters it was believed this action was taken to permit a check of unconfirmed reports that several German vessels had "disappeared" from their Oriental routes and had mounted guns to act as raiders.

A Japanese press dispatch from Amoy said it was reported there that the 3,472-ton British steamer Anking had been torpedoed between Manila and Hong Kong.

[In Manila agents of Butterfield & Swire, which operate the Anking, discounted the report and declared the vessel was immediately north of Manila Bay, close to the United States Olongapo naval base.]

The Canadian liners Empress of Japan, which was scheduled to sail this morning for Vancouver, and Empress of Asia, which arrived this afternoon, were among the vessels held in port.

The United States cruiser Marblehead is due in Shanghai Wednesday with a company of United States marines removed from Chinwangtao.

The European war was brought to Shanghai by scattered clashes between British and German citizens.

It was reported the German colony in Tientsin was preparing to return to Germany by way of the Trans-Siberian Railway.

BRUSSELS, Sept. 4 (A. P.).—Heavy gunfire from the direction of the German border, reminiscent of 1914, was heard today in Luxemburg.

British Planes Drop Leaflets.

PARIS, Sept. 4 (A. P.).—The British air force started "propaganda raids" on Germany last night, it was revealed here today. French reports here were that British planes, during the night, dropped "one million tracts" printed in German, declaring that the German Government "deliberately and coldbloodedly" started the war.

The tracts stated that the German Government refused "peace with honor as well as the material well-being which President Roosevelt offered you." They concluded that Great Britain "hopes for peace and is ready to conclude it with any sincerely peaceful German Government."

CANADA PLANS ITS DEFENSE FROM BOMBERS

Air-Raid Precautions Committees Join Their Forces

Recruiting Offices Besieged As Dominion Prepares For War

[By the Canadian Press]

Ottawa, Sept. 4—Federal and provincial air-raid precautions committees joined forces tonight against possible enemy attempts upon Canada, as the Dominion rushed war preparations and crowds of young men besieged recruiting offices.

A Government spokesman disclosed cooperation of provinces most likely to be affected by an enemy attack from the air had been obtained and provincial committees now were in operation. The statement said the Federal committee has been functioning for some months.

Cabinet subcommittees charged with various preparedness activities and the defense department worked silently, but swiftly, to complete a dominion-wide economic and military setup.

There was no indication that enlistment would be opened for an overseas force or that the Government would recommend such action when Parliament meets Thursday.

Recruiting Under Way

However, recruiting was under way for the Canadian Active Service Force, and the sounding of bugles, the throngs of young men, and the increasing number of khaki-clad soldiers in the streets gave Canada's capital city a warlike appearance.

Some units began recruiting yesterday; more followed suit today, and others swing into line tomorrow. Officials estimate about 100,000 men are needed to bring the C. A. S. F. to full strength.

The announcement of air-raid precautions brought the only additional light on Canadian preparations since the Government announced yesterday that "defense of Canada regulations" are in operation, establishing war-time prices and trade-control board and a censorship committee.

Parliament To Decide

The Government's declared policy is that the question of peace or war can be decided only by Parliament. While the Government has announced its policy is to give the most effective cooperation to Great Britain at this time, it will seek authority to do so when Parliament meets. Whether this recommendation will include a formal declaration of war against Germany has not been disclosed.

Observers here believed if Canada took any aggressive action, such as capturing or attacking a German vessel on the high seas, it would be only after formal declaration of war, when Canada's only effort would defend herself.

Trotsky Says Nazi Pact Is 'Treason' by Stalin

Breaks Silence to Call Comintern a 'Cadaver'

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 4 (AP).—Breaking a long silence, Leon Trotsky, exiled Soviet Russian leader, issued a formal statement tonight criticizing the German-Soviet nonaggression pact signed Aug. 24.

"The German-Soviet pact is a capitulation of Stalin before Fascist imperialism with the end of preserving the Soviet oligarchy," said Trotsky. "The only 'merit' of the German-Soviet pact is that in unveiling the truth it broke the backbone of the Comintern."

He ended his statement with: "The world proletariat will step over the treason of the Kremlin and also the cadaver of the Comintern (the Third, or Communist, International)."

Trotsky explained he had not expressed an opinion earlier because of illness.

SYDNEY TRIES "BLACKOUT"

Five-Minute Practice Period Declared Success By Police

3024-3019

ST. JOHNS N. F. Sept. 4 (Canadian Press).—The Government announced today that the German freighter Christophe V. Doornum had been seized at Botwood, and that her officers and crew were being brought to St. Johns for internment.

The ship, loading concentrates at Botwood, was held up under a civil action to satisfy a mortgage and therefore was unable to sail before war was declared.

Canada Seizes Many Germans

Police Strike Swiftly at Nazi Groups—Preparedness Reaches War-time Pitch.

OTTAWA, Sept. 4 (Canadian Press).—Scores of German citizens were arrested today under the enemy alien act as Canadian preparedness reached a war-time pitch.

Striking swiftly, Royal Canadian Mounted Police constables entered numerous households throughout Canada, detaining "at least" sixty persons and seizing a short-wave wireless set.

"Defense of Canada" regulations in effect empowered the Government to detain enemy shipping and enemy nationals, control wireless stations, censor wireless and cable messages and examine outward bound shipping to prevent the exportation of war contraband.

Persons arrested during the night were booked at secret service headquarters, fingerprinted and then transferred to provincial police headquarters for questioning and detention, pending permanent arrangements.

Special targets of the raids were said to be members of the NSDAP, understood to be the Berlin directed nucleus for a Nazi movement in Canada. Headquarters of the Deutsche Bund and other German organizations were raided. Those detained ranged in age from 18 to 68. Their names were not disclosed.

Co-operating Voluntarily.

The new emergency measures were taken after a Cabinet meeting yesterday and after Canadians had been impressed first by their King and then by their Prime Minister with the seriousness of the international situation.

King George VI, speaking from London in an appeal for British Empire unity, addressed "My people at home and my peoples across the seas who will make our cause their own."

Prime Minister Mackenzie King, in a nationwide broadcast several hours later, reaffirmed the Canadian Government's policy as one of "effective co-operation at the side of Great Britain." The extent of that co-operation, he added, will be determined when Parliament opens its emergency session on Thursday.

The Prime Minister declared that Canada, "as a free nation, is bringing her co-operation voluntarily" and then concluded his speech by saying:

"There is no home in Canada, no family, no individual whose fortunes and freedom are not bound up in the present struggle. I appeal to my fellow Canadians to unite in a national effort to save from destruction all that makes life itself worth living and to preserve for further generations those liberties and institutions which others have bequeathed us."

Rush to Enlist Reported.

A censorship co-ordination committee, with Walter S. Thompson of Montreal as chief censor, was ordered established to "take any steps which may be found necessary in the public interest to regulate the dissemination of information through the press, radio, motion pictures, mail, telegraph, telephone or other avenues."

While military authorities reported a "wonderful" rush to enlist and the Red Cross and the Canadian Corps Association hastened organization plans for war-time activities, the Government took the following further steps:

Labor Minister Rogers announced the establishment of a three-man board to prevent profiteering in foods, fuels and other necessaries of life, with a committee of citizens acting in an advisory capacity.

The Cabinet was divided into a number of sub-committees, with the Prime Minister as chairman of the emergency council.

Minister of Immigration Crerar announced that tourists in Canada would not need passports, and that United States citizens, British subjects and citizens of friendly Powers could come and go as they did in peace time.

"A visa of itself," the embassy added, "is no guaranty of permission to enter British territory."

Neutrality Law Is About to Get First Real Test

Administration Movement for War Embargo Repeal Coincides With Trial

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP).—The neutrality act, born of hope that some way could be devised to prevent the United States being drawn into foreign wars, will now be given its first real test.

Ironically, the moment of trial for the four-year-old statute coincides with a determined move on the part of the Administration to change the act. Some officials would like to see its outright repeal.

Three wars have occurred since the neutrality legislation went on the statute books in 1935 (the present act dates from May 1, 1937), and not one of them has given it a real try-out.

In the case of the Italo-Ethiopian War, an embargo was imposed on the shipment of war materials to the belligerents. In the Spanish civil war the same embargo was imposed. The neutrality law has not been involved in the Chinese-Japanese War still in course.

The Italo-Ethiopian and Spanish Wars, however, were largely localized, and, therefore, did not put a major strain on the neutrality act.

Present War Is New Factor

The present European conflict is an altogether different matter, and one which undoubtedly will try the statute to the utmost.

When the present act was debated in Congressional committees some persons testified there was no possible legislation that would guarantee the United States immunity from being drawn into war. They argued that the very restrictions imposed by the neutrality act, rather than keeping the country out of war, might drive it into it.

Some others argued that it was violations of the spirit of neutrality, such as permitting Americans to travel on belligerent ships and then making diplomatic protests or severing diplomatic relations if the ships were sunk, and also permitting huge loans to belligerents, that drove the United States into the World War. They asserted that if the Administration could present these occurrences from happening again the United States could maintain its neutrality.

Two schools of thought developed: one believed that the main purpose of the act was to keep the United States neutral and prevent the country from aiding one side or the other. The second believed that the main purpose was to keep the United States out of war, whether or not the actions taken aided one side and hurt the other. They admitted, for instance, that the embargo on arms might help Germany and hinder Britain in a war between the two. But they said that was only secondary to the principal consideration—keeping the United States out of the conflict.

The apostles of these divergent views probably will find some justification in the incidents likely to develop as the European war progresses.

"Cash and Carry" Is Out

The war which now comes finds the United States without one of the principal features of the neutrality act as it was passed in 1937. The "cash and carry" provision, which admittedly was an experiment, will not be given its test because Congress failed to renew it when it expired on May 1 this year. American ships can carry any commodities, except arms, to fighting nations, and title to the goods does not have to pass into foreign hands before they leave the United States. The "cash and carry" provision was the only clause in the act to which a time limit—two years—was fixed, because members of Congress were uncertain how it would work out.

The act, as it now stands, provides for an embargo on sales of arms to the belligerentns, forbids Americans to travel on belligerent ships, to furnish supplies to belligerent warships or to grant loans to belligerents. The Administration is willing to continue in effect all the provisions of the act with the exception of the arms embargo. It would add to the act a prohibition against American ships entering danger zones and a clause requiring belligerents to take title to any goods bought here, before the goods leave the country.

'Nation's Breadbasket' Ample as Prices Soar

Chicago Reported Ready for Shock of War Buying.

CHICAGO, Sept. 4 (AP).—The "nation's breadbasket," which again may be the breadbasket of the world," is stocked with an ample supply of all commodities and can stand the shock of unexpected military buying without fear of depletion, observers said today.

Meat supplies are abundant and cheap. Despite recent sharp advances in prices, attributed somewhat to foreign developments, meat prices now are at levels lower than any prevailing since 1934. Livestock supplies are plentiful.

Livestock has been in demand with prices stronger since Friday, when hostilities between Germany and Poland broke out. The price advance in the last week was the sharpest in fifteen months.

Grain stocks are heavy, both new crop and carry-over. Grains also have been in demand since Friday, with prices leaping upward the full extent of daily trading limits on the grain exchanges.

The advances reminded grain traders and farmers of the hectic days of 1914-'19, when prices soared from levels comparable to those prevailing now to heights where $3.50 was paid for a bushel of cash wheat. Yesterday a bushel of No. 2 hard wheat was worth 78¾ cents.

Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Agraculture, put a damper, however, on the first surges of enthusiasm by advising farmers to proceed with crop plans as though there were no European outbreak.

His message was relayed by Reuben Brigham, acting director of extension work in the department. Mr. Brigham said Mr. Wallace felt there was little likelihood that any substantial increase in the production of major crops was desirable and certainly not in the immediate future.

Lard, a major commodity in the manufacture of armaments, has been in greater demand, with 25 per cent of the available supply recently going into export channels, compared with approximately 14 per cent a year ago. Lard prices also have risen the limit each day lately.

Prices of other commodities such as dairy and poultry products, have not been affected. Most of them will have to await the strength of foreign demand.

MEN AND MUD GUARD POLAND

Canals and Rivers Also Aid as Natural Obstacles.

EVERY POLE IS SOLDIER

Regulars Are Backbone of Army Totaling Six Million

By Associated Press.

Men, mud and mountains are Poland's own hopes to stem the German tide.

The Polish south has the Carpathian peaks rearing 7,500 feet into the sky to block a flanking invasion via Hungary. Almost as high, the Tatras shunt Germany's Slovak approach to a narrow northern portion of the Slovak-Polish border.

The Germans found but a single railroad and a single highway there. Poland had five rail lines and numerous roads to service her comparative frontier. Central Poland offers an invader prairie mud, to which is geared perfectly the Polish reliance on infantry and horsed cavalry as the backbone of the regular army of 500,000 in all arms.

Every Pole is an army man continuously from twenty-one to fifty, on call during all of twenty-nine years' compulsory service in some form of regular full-time or reserve unit. This system of universal conscription in peace gives the Poles, despite their limited population, an estimated reservoir of 4,500,000 trained reserves and a total manpower of 6,000,000.

The Polish network of highways and railroads converging upon its industrial heart are a great stategic aid to defense and the wide rivers and numerous waterways—including many canals, can be shifted, in many instances, from defensive aids to obstacles in the face of an invader as he advances.

The central site of Warsaw, on the other hand, makes the Polish capital especially vulnerable to short flights of planes with heavy bomb loads.

Opposite the pincer position of East Prussia and Germany against the Corridor, Poland had the confidence that remote Prussia would be difficult to service with supplies and men from the Reich, once sea transport became hazardous. As an ace in the hole, the Poles hoped to interpose against any successful East Prussian advance the 3,000 feet of the Vistula River, which flows through Warsaw and has no bridges for forty-five miles between Tozew and Grudziadz.

Major Powers All Strong in Sinews of War

Germany Has Huge Stores of Materials; Large Gold Reserves Bolster Allies

The war finds all the major powers well supplied with food, iron, oil and the other materials of modern conflict, which most of them began to store up long ago in preparation for just such a need. Economic controls were applied as troops were summoned.

Following is a summary of conditions in various countries, compiled by The Associated Press:

GREAT BRITAIN

Besides directing that each family store one week's emergency supply of food, the government put in warehouses and bomb-proofed cellars enough food, petroleum and other essentials for the nation's needs for three months. Within that time, the belief is, any blockade could be broken to bring in additional supplies.

Heavy orders for wheat and raw materials were placed in other countries for war-time delivery.

England's crops were good, but 60 per cent of her food must come from outside the island.

Britain considers her financial standing good, with gold reserves of more than $1,000,000,000 and heavy taxes applied to offset war-perparedness expense.

GERMANY

All the economic wealth of the former Austria and Czecho-Slovakia has been integrated into the Reich's war-supplies machine, while she worked feverishly to build trade connections with the small countries to the southeast. Germany has piled up huge stores of the materials and has exercised her inventive genius to produce synthetics of those most difficult to obtain, such as gasoline.

That she is making for her tanks and planes from coal produced under decrees prohibiting her miners from leaving their work. Crops were satisfactory though harvested with difficulty under a man-power shortage.

Strict exchange control and barter have kept Germany's finances operating with a minimum of gold, now at about $29,000,000.

FRANCE

The war finds France counting on the British Navy to keep the seas clear for colonial shipments to augment the country's comparatively small store of food and raw materials. The French wheat harvest was normal and enough for the country for a year. The grains of Belgium and Holland are available, as well as those from colonies.

Labor has been buckled into war-time harness after decreed suspension of the concessions won by the Popular Front. France can process all war materials, but might face a labor shortage in a long conflict.

Compared with other European nations, the French have a huge gold hoard—gold stocks amounting to $2,500,000,000.

POLAND

Poland added 30 per cent to her steel production and 9 per cent to her already abundant coal fields when she seized the Teschen area of the former Czecho-Slovakia, but this frontier section was one of the first prizes of the German invasion.

The country's food larder had about normal crops to handle after a $200,000,000 campaign to intensify agriculture. Industrial activity has been growing, but chiefly through armament orders. The gold holdings are about $80,000,000.

ITALY

The Axis partner has patterned her economy like Germany's. She is rich in foodstuffs like fruits and vegetables, but must look abroad for coal and metals, oil and grain. Her wheat worries are indicated by an order that bread be made from a rough flour containing wheat kernels.

Italy has stored quantities of food and raw materials and has endeavored to expand her work in chemicals and heavy industries. She has a gold supply of $193,600,000.

RUSSIA

Soviet Russia's great sprawling economic empire has everything but rubber. Fresh finds of coal and iron run far behind the pace of exploitation. Enough cotton and sugar are produced for domestic needs, with mechanization of farms increasing this ratio year by year. She has set aside percentages of recent grain yields for the prospect of war. The country has striven in recent years to accelerate her industrial capacity. Her gold supply is unreported and her debt almost all internal.

Flying Time and Miles To Bomb War Capitals

France to Berlin Is 2 Hours; Germany to London, 1:23

By The Associated Press

Here are the minutes and miles that separate Europe's capitals from raids by bombing planes, assuming an average speed of 200 miles an hour:

France to Berlin, two hours, 400 miles.

Germany to London, 1:23; 275 miles.

Germany to Paris, 1:06; 220 miles.

England to Berlin, 2:45; 550 miles.

Poland to Berlin, 27 minutes; 90 miles.

Germany to Warsaw, 53 minutes; 175 miles.

Germany's axis partner, Italy, is 340 miles and 1 hour 42 minutes from Paris. A French base in Corsica would be but 54 minutes and 180 miles from Rome, if it could be maintained in war time.

What the Leaders Had to Say

By Associated Press.

Words from the leaders of nations as Britain and France lined up with Poland yesterday in the war against Germany:

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, in an address to the American people: "It seems to me clear . . . that the influence of America should be consistent in seeking for humanity a final peace which will eliminate, as far as it is possible to do so, the continued use of force between nations. . . . The overwhelming masses of our people seek peace . . . peace at home, and the kind of peace in other lands which will not jeopardize peace at home. . . . This nation will remain a neutral nation. As long as it remains within my power to prevent, there will be no blackout of peace in the United States."

KING GEORGE VI of England, speaking to the Empire: "For the second time in the lives of most of us we are at war. . . . We have been forced into a conflict . . . to meet the challenge of a principle which, if it were to prevail, would be fatal to any civilized order in the world. . . . With God's help we shall prevail."

PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN of Great Britain, in a radio proclamation of war with Germany: "His (Hitler's) action shows convincingly that there is no chance of expecting that this man will ever give up his intention of using force to gain his will. And he can only be stopped by force. . . . We have a clear conscience. We have done all that any country could do to establish peace. . . . It is evil things that we shall be fighting, against brute force, bad faith, injustice opposition and persecution. And against them I am certain that right will prevail."

ADOLF HITLER, Fuehrer of Germany, in his appeal to the German people: "Innumerable times I have offered England and the English people agreement and the friendship of the German people. . . . I was constantly repulsed by hypocritical declarations. . . . The German people know that the British people as a whole cannot be made responsible for all this. It is that Jewish plutocratic and democratic upper crust which in all peoples of the world desires to see only obedient slaves. . . . Germany will never again capitulate. . . . The Lord God, Who always has given His grace to him who was determined to help himself, will also stand by us."

HITLER, in his proclamation to the western army: "Although Germany has no demands to make on any state west of the Reich, although Germany demands no territorial revision in this territory, although Germany often made offers to both England and France for a cordial understanding, even more, friendship, the British Government . . . has decided to let the mask fall and proclaim a state of war under a threadbare pretext. . . . I have decided to burst open the ring laid around Germany!"

PREMIER DALADIER of France, in his radio speech to the French people: "Responsibility for bloodshed rests entirely on the Hitler Government. Future peace was in Hitler's hands; he chose war. . . . In aligning ourselves against the most despicable of tyrannies, in honoring our word, we are fighting to defend our land, our homes, our liberty. . . . The cause of France is the cause of justice. It is the cause of all peaceful and free nations."

COL. JOSEPH BECK, Foreign Minister of Poland: "Britain and Poland have locked hands in a fight for freedom and justice. Britain will not be disappointed in Poland, and Poland will not be disappointed in Britain."

GENERALISSIMO FRANCISCO FRANCO of Spain, appealing for localization of the conflict: "I appeal so that they (the nations of the world) will avoid the suffering and tragedy which we Spaniards suffered. The more there is fighting now, the more we sow germs of future wars."

W. L. MACKENZIE KING, Prime Minister of Canada: "We must save from destruction all that makes life worth living and preserve for future generations all that has been bequeathed to us."

VLADIMIR S. HURBAN, Czecho-Slovak Minister to the United States: "The people of Czecho-Slovakia, now under temporary domination of barbarian Nazi forces, are entirely on the side of the Allies, who back up the German challenge to civilization in the whole world."

And, in Paris, a secretary of the German embassy: "Ah, this war. It is stupid, tragic."

Text of Hull's Travel Restriction Order

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Following is the text of Secretary of State Cordell Hull's departmental order, issued tonight, restricting the travel of Americans to and from Europe:

30-24-3021

In view of the exigencies of the present situation in Europe, particularly the danger of travel to and from Europe, the hazards which may be encountered in residing in belligerent countries and the shortage of steamship facilities to transport the many thousands of American citizens now in Europe who have been urged to return to the United States, the Secretary of State has deemed it advisable to prescribe regulations under which no passport which has heretofore been issued shall be valid for use in traveling from the United States to any country in Europe unless it is submitted to the Department for validation for such use.

Under the new regulations, before the Department of State will validate any passport heretofore issued or issue any new passports for use in Europe, it will be required that documentary evidence be submitted to it showing the imperative necessity for traveling to Europe. It is contemplated by the new regulations to restrict the use of passports only to those who can show an imperative necessity for traveling in Europe and at the same time to take every possible precaution to assure the importance of American passports as definitely identifying and establishing the citizenship of the person to whom they are issued.

Three Weeks' Notice Asked

Extraordinary care will thus be taken in this regard and consequently persons desiring to have passports already issued to them validated for future use in Europe and persons desiring to obtain new passports for use therein are urged to submit their applications at least three weeks in advance of their expected sailing.

In order to assure strict compliance with the new regulations, passports of American citizens intending to depart for Europe will be carefully examined to see that they have been validated for use in Europe. Upon the return of American citizens their passports will be taken up and returned to the Department of State for safekeeping and to assure that they will not again be used except in accordance with the new regulations.

The Passport Agencies in New York, Boston, Chicago and San Francisco are being advised of the new regulations and for the convenience of the officers in the various foreign consulates situated in the cities mentioned they are being instructed to furnish each such officer with a copy of the new regulations requiring the validation by the department of passports heretofore issued in order that they may hereafter be used in traveling to Europe.

Wording of Regulations

The new regulations are as follows:

"By virtue of and pursuant to the authority vested in me by Section I of the Act of July 3, 1926, 44 Stat. 887 (U. S. C., Title 22, Section 211A), and by Executive Order No. 7856 of March 31, 1938, prescribing rules governing the granting and issuing of passports in the United States, I, the undersigned, Secretary of State of the United States, hereby prescribe the following regulations:

"No passport heretofore issued sall be valid for use in traveling from the United States to any country in Europe unless it is submitted to the Department of State for validation.

"Before the Department of State will validate any passport heretofore issued for use in any country in Europe, it will be necessary for the person to whom the passport was issued to submit documentary evidence concerning the imperativeness of his proposed travel.

"A person who desires travel in Europe for commercial purposes must support his application for the validation of his passport or for the issue of a passport with a letter from the head of the firm in the interests of which he intends to go to Europe. Such letter must state not only the names of the European countries which the applicant expects to visit and the objects of his visits thereto, but in addition, whether or not the applicant is a salaried employe of the firm concerned; and if so, how long he has been known to the firm and for what period of time he has been in its employ.

Supporting Evidence Needed

"If the applicant is going to Europe on a commission and not a salary basis, that fact also should be specifically stated. If the applicant for a passport is himself the head of the concern for which he is going to Europe, he must submit a letter from another officer of the concern or a letter from the head of some other reputable concern who has had business transactions with the applicant and has knowledge of the business in which the applicant is engaged and the object and necessity of his proposed trip to Europe.

"An applicant who is going to Europe for any purpose other than commercial business must satisfy the Department of State that it is imperative that he go, and he must submit satisfactory documentary evidence substantiating his statement concerning the imperativeness of his proposed trip."

In view of the exigencies of the present situation and the consequent necessity of exercising the greatest care in the validation of passports or the issue of new passports, the Department of State will be obliged to hold applicants and firms responsible for any false or misleading statements made by them in connection with applications for passports, and any such false or misleading statements would be in violation of Section 220 of Title 22 of the United States Code, which reads as follows:

"Whoever shall willfully and knowingly make any false statement in an application for passport with intent to induce or secure the issuance of a passport under the authority of the United States, either for his own use or the use of another, contrary to the laws regulating the issuance of passports or the rules prescribed pursuant to such laws, or whoever shall willfully and knowingly use or attempt to use or furnish to another for use any passport, the issue of which was secured in any way by reason of any false statement, shall be fined not more than $2,000 or imprisoned not more than five years or both."

Women and children will not be included in passports issued to their husbands or fathers unless the urgent and imperative necessity of accompanying them is conclusively established.

Passports will not, as a rule, be validated or issued for travel in opposing belligerent countries.

Should a person now having a valid passport proceed to any European country without first having submitted his passport to the Department of State for validation, the protection of the United States may be withheld from him while he is abroad.

Should a person to whom a passport has been issued use it in violation of the conditions or restrictions contained therein the protection of the United States may likewise be withheld from him while he is abroad and he will be liable for prosecution under the provisions of Section 2221 of Title 22 of the U. S. Code, which reads in part as follows:

"* * * whoever shall willfully and knowingly use or attempt to use any passport in violation of the conditions or restrictions therein contained, or of the rules prescribed pursuant to the laws regulating the issuance of passports, which said rules shall be printed on the passport * * * fined not more than $2,000 or imprisoned not more than five years, or both."

Hereafter when a passport is validated for or issued for use in Europe its validity shall be restricted to the period necessary to accomplish the purpose of the intended visit to Europe, but in no case beyond a period of six months.

Passports in possession of persons now residing abroad shall in due course be submitted to American consular officers for appropriate endorsement under special instructions to be sent to such officers at a later date.

LONDON, SEPT. 4-(AP)-THIS IS LONDON AT WAR.

THE EAST SIDE: PEOPLE ARE POOR HERE. WOMEN STAND IN FRONT OF DINGY LITTLE HOMES LOOKING AT THE MORNING SKY. ONE IN TEN HAS A NEWSPAPER. THE REST GATHER ROUND TO HEAR THE NEWS.

". . . THAT 'ITLER, NO ONE SEEMS TO 'AVE A GOOD WORD FOR 'IM. . ."

IT'S STRANGE NOT TO SEE ANY CHILDREN; USUALLY THE DISTRICT DOWN BY THE DOCKS IS SWARMING WITH THEM. THEY ARE GONE NOW, REMOVED TO THE COUNTRY.

ON THE STREETS TODAY ARE GRIMMER FIGURES. AS THE TAXI ROLLS ALONG YOU BEGIN TO SEE SOLDIERS. NOT MANY; MAYBE TWO OR THREE TO A BLOCK, MARCHING TO DEPOTS AND CONCENTRATION POINTS FOR THE TERRITORIALS.

SEP 5-1939

THEY WEAR THE ACTIVE SERVICE KIT, A RIFLE OVER THE RIGHT SHOULDER, A TIN HAT BUMPING ON THE BACK. THEY DON'T LOOK HAPPY OR SAD. THEY JUST MARCH ALONG THE WAY ENGLISHMEN MARCHED OUT TO STOP THE ARMADA AND BONAPARTE.

THEIR WOMEN DON'T GO WITH THEM. THEY WAVE AS LONG AS THE FIGURE IN KHAKI IS IN SIGHT. THEN THEY GO INSIDE AND THE STREET IS LEFT TO THE CHATTERING GROUPS WITH NEWSPAPERS.

WEST SIDE: HERE PEOPLE ARE RICHER, HOUSES MORE IMPOSING, STREETS WIDER AND CLEANER. BUT THERE'S THE SAME LACK OF CHILDREN; THE SAME MEN IN UNIFORM, ONLY THIS TIME THE UNIFORMS ARE THOSE OF LIEUTENANTS, CAPTAINS, MAJORS,--AND THE WIVES ARE DRESSED BY MOLYNEUX.

THEY'RE GAYER HERE. THE WOMEN CRY "CHEERIO, DARLING," AND "SEE YOU IN PARIS," AS THOUGH IT WERE A PICNIC. THEN THEY WALK OFF TO BRIDGE OR TEA.

SEP 5-1939

ALL AROUND THE TOWN: AT THE AMERICAN EMBASSY THE MARBLE HALLS ARE FILLED WITH AMERICANS. MOST OF THEM AREN'T WORRYING AS MUCH ABOUT THEIR OWN PASSAGE HOME AS ABOUT THE PASSENGERS WHO WERE ON THE ATHENIA

A WOMAN WALKS OUT CRYING AS YOU COME IN. A SAD-EYED MAN STANDS STARING VACANTLY OUT AT GROSVENOR SQUARE. THE EMBASSY STAFF, WHICH HAS BEEN WORKING 24 HOURS STRAIGHT; STUMBLES AS THOUGH WALKING IN SLEEP.

WARSAW, SEPT 4-(AP)-POLAND BUCKLED INTO HER WAR WITH NEW DETERMINATION TODAY, INSPIRED BY THE ENTRANCE OF GREAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE INTO THE CONFLICT IN FULFILLMENT OF THEIR MUTUAL ASSISTANCE PLEDGES.

BESIDE HIM, FOREIGN MINISTER JOZEF BECK PROCLAIMED THAT "BRITAIN AND POLAND HAVE LOCKED HANDS IN A FIGHT FOR FREEDOM AND JUSTICE" AND PROMISED THAT NEITHER ALLY WOULD BE DISAPPOINTED IN THE OTHER.

ACTUALLY, HUNDREDS OF MILES OF LAND - MUCH OF IT FORTIFIED GERMAN TERRITORY - AND LONG STRETCHES OF SEA SEPARATED POLAND AND HER ALLIES. NOR WAS THE METHOD OF AID THAT COULD SPAN THOSE DISTANCES DETERMINED, BUT THE WAR DECLARATIONS FROM LONDON AND PARIS BROUGHT SPONTANEOUS CELEBRATIONS THROUGHOUT POLAND.

SEP 5-1939

IN WARSAW, A BRITISH MILITARY ATTACHE'S AUTOMOBILE WAS DELUGED WITH FLOWERS. CROWDS BESIEGED EVEN THE NEUTRAL EMBASSIES AND DISREGARDED AIR RAID DANGERS IN THEIR JUBILATION.

OFFICIALS REPORTED THREE KILLED AND TEN INJURED IN THE RAID. THEY SAID INCENDIARY BOMBS WERE DROPPED NEAR AN AIRFIELD ON THE OUTSKIRTS OF THE CITY.

OTHER BOMBINGS WERE REPORTED IN AN OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE WHICH LISTED ATTACKS ON KRAKOW, BYDGOSZCZ, RADOM, TORUN, RZESZOW, POZNAN, BRESTLITOVSK, PIOTRKOW (WHERE THE TOWN HALL AND BANK OF POLAND BUILDINGS WERE DESTROYED), KALISZ AND LUBLIN.

Tanker Lands Crew

MONTEVIDEO, Sept. 4 (AP).—Capture of the wheat-laden German freighter Olinda by the British cruiser Ajax yesterday was disclosed today when a tanker landed forty-two members of the Olinda's crew at Montevideo.

The German crew members were detained by Uruguayan authorities. It was learned that the Ajax seized the Olinda at 11 a. m. Sunday, six miles off Cape Polonio, fifty miles north of here. The seizure was said to have met resistance.

The Olinda left Buenos Aires on Aug. 28 and Montevideo on Aug. 29, bound for Germany.

Montevideo shipping circles reported the Olinda was off Rio Grande, Brazil, last night, headed north, midway between Montevideo and Santos, Brazil.

Doubt British Ship Was Sunk

MANILA, P. I., Sept. 5 (Tuesday) (AP).—Reports in the Chinese Community here that the British steamship Anking had been torpedoed between Manila and Shanghai were discounted early today by agents of the line, who said the ship was immediately north of Manila Bay, close to the United States Olongapo naval base.

They said the Anking sailed at 1 P. M. Monday and could not have reached the area where she was reported to have been torpedoed. The ship is carrying more than 300 passengers.

United States Navy authorities said they had no information indicating the Anking had met disaster.

Passengers arriving here from Hongkong on the Philippine clipper reported sighting a burning ship at sea about fifty miles off the British Crown Colony. Capt. W. J. Barrow of the clipper said he was flying so high he was unable to say whether the burning vessel was a Chinese junk or a steamer.

No German Bases There

There are no German naval bases in the Far East, where all German possessions were lost in the World War. Up to 1914 Germany held a leasehold on the coast of China's Shantung Province, containing the Port of Tsingtao, and several island chains in the equatorial Pacific.

MONTEVIDEO - SEPT 4

THE GERMAN SHIP GENERAL ARTIGAS, WITHOUT PASSENGERS BUT HEAVILY LADEN WITH CARGO FOR GERMANY, WAS LAST REPORTED OFF THE BRAZILIAN COAST MIDWAY BETWEEN MONTEVIDEO AND SANTOS, BRAZIL, HEADED NORTH.

A SHIPPING CHART COMPILED SEPT 4 BY THE MERCHANT SHIPPING PLACED TWO OTHER GERMAN SHIPS--THE SCHWABEN AND AFRIKA, NORTH OF THE OLINDA'S LAST POSITION, APPARENTLY TRYING TO REACH THE SHELTER OF SANTOS.

THE GERMAN SOUTH ATLANTIC LINER CAP NORTE AND OTHER GERMAN VESSELS, INCLUDING THE ANTONIO DELFI NO AND MADRID WERE BELIEVED TO BE OFF PERNAMBUCO, BRAZIL, AND IN DANGER OF INTERCEPTION BY BRITISH PATROL BOATS.

URUGUAYAN AND ARGENTINE NAVAL OFFICIALS SAID THEY WERE UNINFORMED ABOUT NAVAL MOVEMENTS IN THIS AREA, BUT HAD LEARNED THAT BRITISH CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS HAVE BEEN DEPLOYED IN ATLANTIC SHIPPING LANES SEVERAL DAYS, AWAITING YESTERDAY'S EXPECTED DECLARATION OF WAR.

EFFORTS TO LEARN ANY DETAILS OF BRITISH NAVAL ACTIVITIES AGAINST GERMAN SHIPPING WAS HAMPERED BY BRAZILIAN CENSORSHIP. INFORMATION WAS WITHHELD ABOUT THE LONG-EXPOSED COASTLINE ALONG WHICH MORE THAN A SCORE OF BRITISH, FRENCH AND GERMAN MERCHANT SHIPS ARE NOW TRAVELING.

(THE FRENCH STEAMER SAINT DOMINGUE ENGAGED IN INTERCOLONIAL SERVICE REMAINED AT CIUDAD TRUJILLO, DOMINICAN REPUBLIC, AWAITING INSTRUCTIONS BEFORE CONTINUING HER VOYAGE TO MARTINIQUE, OWING TO THE REPORTED PRESENCE OF GERMAN SUBMARINES IN THE CARIBBEAN.)

BUENOS AIRES, SEPT. 4-(AP)-AS WIDESPREAD NAVAL OPERATIONS BROUGHT EUROPE'S WAR WITHIN SIGHT OF SOUTH AMERICAN SHORES, THE CONTINENT'S ATLANTIC REPUBLICS OF URUGUAY, BRAZIL AND ARGENTINA FORMALLY ANNOUNCED THEIR NEUTRALITY TODAY BY REPEATING DECREES SIMILAR TO THOSE ALL THREE ADOPTED 25 YEARS AGO.

CHILE, ON THE PACIFIC COAST, ALSO DECIDED ON NEUTRALITY TODAY.

BEFORE ANY OF THESE NATIONS ANNOUNCED THEIR NEUTRALITY THE BRITISH CRUISER AJAX STRUCK THE FIRST BLOW OF THE WAR IN SOUTH AMERICAN WATERS BY SEIZING THE GERMAN CARGO BOAT OLINDA 50 MILES NORTH OF MONTEVIDEO AND WITHIN SIGHT OF THE URUGUAYAN COASTLINE.

THE GERMAN CREW OF THE OLINDA, WHO WERE TAKEN TO MONTEVIDEO, SAID THE SHIP WAS SUNK BY THE AJAX AT 6 P.M. YESTERDAY, SEVEN HOURS AFTER HER CAPTURE, SEVEN MILES OFF CAPE POLONIO.

THE FATE OF THE OLINDA WAS DEBATED TONIGHT, WITH GERMAN SOURCES INSISTING SHE WAS SUNK BY THE AJAX, BY TORPEDO OR GUNFIRE, WHILE BRITISH OFFICIALS SAID THE SHIP, WITH A VALUABLE CARGO OF GRAIN AND HIDES, WAS A PRIZE NOW OF THE BRITISH NAVY.

SEP 5-1939

GERMAN SHIPPING GENERALLY WAS PARALYZED IN SOUTHERN WATERS,

ALTHOUGH NEARLY A DOZEN NAZI CRAFT, HEADED BY THE VALUABLE ATLANTIC LINER CAP NORTE, WERE RACING FOR THE SHELTER OF NEUTRAL BRAZILIAN, URUGUAYAN AND ARGENTINE PORTS, SEEKING TO EVADE THE AJAX AND HER SISTER SHIP EXETER, WHICH EXTENDED THE BRITISH BLOCKADE TO THE NEW WORLD.

THE CAPTAIN OF THE OLINDA AND 41 CREWMEN WERE TRANSFERRED AFTER THE CAPTURE AT 11 A.M. SUNDAY WITHOUT RESISTANCE TO THE BRITISH TANKER SAN GERARDO, WHICH DISEMBARKED THE PRISONERS AT MONTEVIDEO TODAY.

FIRST DETAINED BY URUGUAYAN AUTHORITIES, THEY LATER WERE RELEASED IN THE CUSTODY OF THE GERMAN CONSUL.

THE AJAX AFTER STOPPING THE OLINDA CONTINUED TO CHASE OTHER GERMAN VESSELS, INCLUDING THE LINER GENERAL ARTIGAS, WHICH WAS IN THE SAME VICINITY AS THE OLINDA, AND THE SCHAWADENM AFRIKA, CAP NORTE, ANTONIO DELFINO, AND THE MADRID, WHICH WERE LAST REPORTED ALONG THE COASTLINE BETWEEN MONTEVIDEO AND PERNAMBUCO, BRAZIL.

THE GERMAN MERCHANT SHIP POSEIDON TOOK REFUGE IN THE ARGENTINE PORT OF MAR DE PLATA BECAUSE, ACCORDING TO THE MASTER, "SEVERAL WARSHIPS, APPARENTLY BRITISH," TRIED TO CAPTURE HER.

ON THE PACIFIC COAST THE GERMAN STEAMER LEIPZIG ARRIVED AT GUAYAQUIL, ECUADOR, TO REMAIN INDEFINITELY, JOINING THE GERMAN SHIPS CERIGO QUITO AND BOGOTA.

SEP 5-1939

MOVEMENTS OF BRITISH VESSELS, INCLUDING THE EASTERN PRINCE, EXPECTED AT MONTEVIDEO TONIGHT FROM NEW YORK, AND THE ALUCIA STAR, OVERDUE AT RIO DE JANEIRO FROM ENGLAND, WERE CAREFULLY GUARDED SECRETS OF THE BRITISH ADMIRALTY BECAUSE OF VARIOUS REPORTS THAT NAZI SUBMARINES ARE OPERATING IN LATIN AMERICAN WATERS.

SHIPPING COMPANIES SAID THEY WERE UNABLE TO GIVE POSITIONS OF ANY OF THE BRITISH VESSELS.

BRAZILIAN OFFICIALS FOR A TIME REFLECTED THEIR ANXIETY OVER THE SITUATION BY A PARTIAL CENSORSHIP OF INFORMATION REGARDING MARITIME ACTIVITY ALONG THE BRAZILIAN COAST.

INFORMED QUARTERS SAID THAT BRAZIL AND URUGUAY WERE LIKELY TO FOLLOW WHATEVER EXAMPLE THE UNITED STATES PROVIDES, AS THEY DID IN 1914.

UNDATED POLISH HISTORY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BORN OF STRUGGLE AND EXISTING ONLY BY STRENGTH, POLAND IS USED TO FIGHTING WITH HER BACK TO THE WALL--OFTEN THERE HAS BEEN NO WALL. AS MUCH AS A THOUSAND YEARS AGO SHE FOUGHT PRUSSIANS AND TEUTONS FOR SOME OF THE SAME SOIL THAT IS BLOODSTAINED AGAIN TODAY.

USUALLY SHE HAS FOUGHT ALONE.

SEP 5-1939

THE COUNTRY HAS BEEN THREE TIMES DIVIDED AS SPOILS BY STRONGER NEIGHBORS SINCE PRINCE ZIEMOVIT WRESTED IT AS A TERRITORIAL CHUNK OF THE CRUMBLING MORAVIAN EMPIRE IN THE 10TH CENTURY. TODAY IT SEEMED THE POLISH FOUGHT AGAIN TO PREVENT A FOURTH SUCH PLUNDERING.

EACH TIME AS HER CAPTORS WEAKENED, THE POLISH STATE HAS SPRUNG ANEW TO ASSUME SOME OF HER SEPARATE CHARACTER; AT LAST IN THE WORLD WAR DENOUEMENT SHE ACHIEVED GENERALLY RECOGNIZED STATUS AS A REPUBLIC.

OFTEN POLAND'S TROUBLES HAVE BEEN BORN IN PART OF HER INTERNAL STRIFE THAT CREATED A NATIONAL WEAKNESS INVITING DOMINATION FROM BEYOND HER BORDERS.

AT THE OUTSET OF THE WORLD WAR THE POLES WERE SPLIT AMONG THEMSELVES IN THEIR SYMPATHIES. IN 1915 THE GERMAN FORCES HELD THE COUNTRY AND THE SETBACKS THEY WERE SUFFERING IN 1918 LED THE GERMAN COMMAND TO HOLD OUT A PROSPECT OF AUTONOMY TO THE POLISH AS A BID FOR POLISH SOLDIERS. SOON THE RUSSIAN REVOLUTION, WITH A CONSEQUENT RECOGNITION OF POLISH LIBERTY, CHANGED THE PICTURE SO THAT THE ALLIES WERE ALIGNED FOR A FREE POLAND.

THIS TREND SURVIVED INTO THE TERMS OF THE VERSAILLES TREATY WHEN THAT DOCUMENT SET THE STAGE FOR THE WAR OF TODAY OVER DANZIG AND THE CORRIDOR. THE VERSAILLES BOUNDARIES LAID DOWN LINES THROUGH A HUNDRED POLISH PROBLEMS OF CENTURIES OF SHOVING AND HAULING OF MINORITIES AND NATIONS.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AFTER, AND THEY'RE DOING IT ALL OVER AGAIN. THE STARTING LINE-UPS ARE PRETTY MUCH THE SAME.

THE RUINS THEY LEFT IN 1918, AFTER FOUR YEARS OF FIGHTING, NURTURED THE SEEDS OF TODAY'S WAR. THEY WERE SEEDS

OF RACIAL PRIDE, OF RACIAL HATREDS, OF POLITICAL BOUNDARIES OVERLAPPING ETHNOLOGICAL BOUNDARIES.

IN 1914 THERE WAS GERMANY WITH A POPULATION OF LIVING 64,925,000 IN 208,780 SQUARE MILES, AUSTRIA-HUNGARY WITH MORE THAN 50,000,000 INHABITANTS WITHIN AN AREA OF 261,000 SQUARE MILES, AND RUSSIA WITH 1,867,700 SQUARE MILES IN EUROPE HAVING A POPULATION OF 150,000,000

THE WORLD WAR SMASHED THE GERMAN AND AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN EMPIRES, ~~CHISELLED SMALL STATES OFF OF THE RUSSIAN~~ ABOUT A MILLION SQUARE MILES OF COLONIES WERE TAKEN FROM GERMANY. THE VERSAILLES TREATY AND COMPLEMENTARY PACTS SUCH AS THOSE OF LOCARNO AND TRIANON SEALED THE REALIGNMENT.

IT STILL WOULD BE POSSIBLE TO CENTRALIZE EUROPE'S NEWS IN LONDON FOR COORDINATION BUT SINCE DISPATCHES WOULD PASS THROUGH BRITISH CENSORSHIP AND ALSO SUFFER DELAY, ALL ASSOCIATED PRESS BUREAUS SEND THEIR NEWS DIRECTLY TO NEW YORK. SOMETIMES NEWS GOES BY ROUND-ABOUT WAYS TO GET TO THE UNITED STATES. WARSAW OCCASIONALLY HAS TELEPHONED NEWS TO BUDAPEST, WHENCE IT WAS TELEPHONED TO AMSTERDAM, THEN CABLED TO NEW YORK. OCCASIONALLY COPENHAGEN HAS BEEN A RELAY POINT. AT THE SAME TIME THE SAME DISPATCHES WERE CABLED OR WIRELESSED BY A DIRECT ROUTE IN THE HOPE ONE AT LEAST WOULD MAKE SPEED.

WHEN WAR BECAME A POSSIBILITY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS HAD ONLY TO MOVE A FEW MEN MAINLY TO REINFORCE TWO NEUTRAL CENTERS, AMSTERDAM AND COPENHAGEN, WHERE TRAFFIC RELAY OFFICES WERE ESTABLISHED TO FORWARD NEWS FROM BUREAUS ON ALTERNATIVE CABLE OR WIRELESS LINES AND TO TELL BETTER THE STORY OF HOW THE LITTLE NATIONS WERE TRYING TO STAY OUT OF WAR.

LONDON, BERLIN, ROME, PARIS, MOSCOW, BUDAPEST, MADRID, LISBON AND WARSAW WERE IN A SMOOTH MACHINE OF COMMUNICATIONS THURSDAY UNTIL EVENING. WHEN BRITISH CENSORS TOOK POSSESSION OF CABLE, TELEPHONE, TELEGRAPH AND WIRELESS OFFICES, EACH OF THOSE BUREAUS HAD TO FUNCTION MUCH AS A SEPARATE UNIT, SENDING THEIR DISPATCHES BY DIFFERENT LINES.

ONE HARDSHIP WAS THE LACK OF COMMUNICATION AMONG BUREAUS BECAUSE EUROPEAN HEADQUARTERS IN LONDON COULD NOT TALK WITH THEM. MESSAGES BETWEEN NEARBY PARIS AND LONDON OR LONDON AND BERLIN WERE EXCHANGED THROUGH NEW YORK. TWO BUREAUS OFTEN SENT EXACTLY THE SAME NEWS AND OCCASIONALLY EACH DUPLICATED BY DIFFERENT CABLES SO THAT FOUR STORIES ARRIVED IN NEW YORK INSTEAD OF THE ONE THAT WOULD HAVE SUFFICED. SUCH WASTE WAS NECESSARY AT TIMES ALTHOUGH INTENDED TO CLOG THE EUROPEAN WIRES AND THE ATLANTIC CABLES.

QUICKLY IT WAS SEEN THAT ONE ROUTE WAS FASTER THAN ANOTHER AND SOON THE HUMAN NEWS MACHINE BEGAN WORKING AT TOP SPEED. HOURS OF DELAY WERE CUT TO MINUTES AND SUNDAY A NEWS STORY OF THE BRITISH DECLARATION OF WAR WAS WRITTEN, PASSED THROUGH THE BRITISH CENSORSHIP, TRANSMITTED ON A CABLE AND DISTRIBUTED ON THE ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASED WIRE SYSTEM WITHIN FOUR MINUTES. ASSOCIATED PRESS FOREIGN AFFAIRS WRITER

NEW YORK, SEPT. 4--THE CUTTING OF THE DYKES OF PEACE IN EUROPE REPRESENTS ONE OF THOSE RARE HISTORICAL PHENOMENA WHICH OCCUR ONLY ONCE IN MANY GENERATIONS--THE COMBINING OF NATIONS TO MAKE WAR ON AN INDIVIDUAL.

FOR THE BRITISH-FRENCH-POLISH ALLIES HAVE MADE IT CLEAR AS THEY TAKE THE FIELD OF BATTLE THAT THEY ARE OUT TO SMASH ONE MAN--ADOLF HITLER.

THEY ARE AFTER HITLER AND THE POLITICAL HOUSE THAT THE NAZI CHIEFTAIN BUILT, WHICH ARE ONE AND THE SAME THING, SINCE THE MAN AND HIS IDEAS ARE INSEPARABLE.

BRITISH PREMIER CHAMBERLAIN LEFT NO DOUBT OF THE ALLIED AIMS IN ANNOUNCING THE DECLARATION OF WAR TO HIS HOUSE OF COMMONS--A DECLARATION WHICH WAS A FUNERAL ORATION OVER HIS POLICY OF APPEASEMENT.

"I TRUST," HE SAID, "I MAY SEE THE DAY WHEN HITLERISM HAS BEEN DESTROYED."

1939

THE LAST TIME THE MANY COMBINED AGAINST THE ONE WAS JUST OVER A CENTURY AGO WHEN EUROPE GANGED UP ON NAPOLEON. UNDER THE LEADERSHIP OF BRITAIN'S DUKE OF WELLINGTON THEY CRUSHED ONCE AND FOR ALL THE LITTLE CORPORAL.

NOW HERR HITLER HAS BECOME THE LONE WARRIOR OF EUROPE--LONE IN THE SENSE THAT HE IS THE SOLE ARBITER OF WHAT GERMANY SHALL AND SHALL NOT DO.

INCREDIBLE THOUGH IT MAY SEEM TO THE UNINITIATED, THERE IS NO GOVERNMENT IN GERMANY EXCEPTING HITLER. HIS WORD IS THE LAW.

IN HIS FLAMING SPEECH TO THE REICHSTAG AS GERMANY INVADED POLAND, THE FUEHRER NAMED HIS SUCCESSOR, "SHOULD SOMETHING HAPPEN TO ME DURING BATTLE." HE SAID FIELD MARSHAL HERMANN GOERING WOULD COME FIRST, AND AFTER HIM WOULD BE RUDOLPH HESS, CHIEF OF THE NAZI PARTY. AND THEN HITLER PRONOUNCED THE WORD WHICH IS THE ESSENCE OF NAZIISM:

SEP 5-1939

"YOU THEN WOULD BE PLEDGED TO THIS FUEHRER IN THE SAME BLIND LOYALTY AND OBEDIENCE AS TO ME."

THE LAST FEW DAYS BEFORE WAR BROKE PROVIDED A CLEAR DEMONSTRATION OF HOW THIS ONE-MAN GOVERNMENT WORKS. HERR HITLER ALONE MADE THOSE DECISIONS UPON WHICH HUNG WAR OR PEACE.

DISPATCHES FROM BERLIN RELATED HOW, WHEN ANY VITAL POINT AROSE, THE GERMAN LEADER LOCKED HIMSELF AWAY FROM ALL HIS COLLEAGUES, EVEN SUCH CLOSE ASSOCIATES AS FIELD MARSHAL GOERING, WHO IS NAMED AS HIS IMMEDIATE SUCCESSOR.

THERE IN SOLITUDE HITLER MADE UP HIS MIND, AND GAVE HIS ORDERS TO HIS LIEUTENANTS FOR EXECUTION WITH "BLIND OBEDIENCE."

HITLER NOW HAS GONE TO THE GERMAN-POLISH FRONT TO TAKE THE WHEEL OF WAR-MACHINE WHICH HE HIMSELF CONSTRUCTED AND WHICH HE REGARDS AS INVINCIBLE.

HE IS UNDERTAKING THE FEAT NOT ONLY OF CONTROLLING A VAST ARMY, WHICH COMPRISES SOME OF THE GREATEST MILITARY BRAINS IN THE WORLD, BUT AT THE SAME TIME OF MAKING EIGHTY MILLIONS OF HIS PEOPLE THINK AS HE THINKS, OR AT LEAST RENDER HIM "BLIND OBEDIENCE."

THE PATH WHICH HE HAS DIRECTED THEM TO TAKE IS A THORNY ONE, FOR IN ADDITION TO ALL NORMAL HARDSHIPS OF WAR HE ALREADY HAS IMPOSED A SEVERE RATIONING SYSTEM FOR FOOD AND OTHER NECESSITIES. THAT WILL BE A TEST OF HIS HOLD ON THE PUBLIC, FOR HE HAS ONLY TO GO BACK TO THE WORLD WAR FOR A REMINDER THAT THE GERMAN REVOLUTION CAME WHEN PEOPLE GOT HUNGRY.

STILL, THE OBEDIENCE WHICH THE GERMAN PEOPLE RENDER THEIR FUEHRER IS GREAT. OBSERVERS BELIEVE THAT AT THE OUTSET OF THE WAR HE HAS THEM WITH HIM AS A WHOLE.

SEP 5-1939

HITLER HAS A DOUBLE HOLD ON MANY OF HIS FOLK, IN THAT THEY REGARD HIM NOT ONLY AS THEIR POLITICAL LEADER BUT AS THEIR SPIRITUAL GUIDE. HIS TASK WILL BE TO MAINTAIN HIS LEADERSHIP THROUGH THE HARDSHIPS OF WAR.

SINCE ALL POLICIES FOR THE CONDUCT OF GOVERNMENT OR MILITARY OPERATIONS MUST EMINATE FROM HITLER, THE OUTSIDE WORLD IS WAITING ANXIOUSLY TO HEAR WHAT HE HAS TO SAY ABOUT THE REPORTED TORPEDOING OF THE BRITISH LINER ATHENIA WITH 1,400 CIVILIANS ABOARD.

ONLY YESTERDAY HERR HITLER AGREED TO JOIN THE OTHER POWERS IN "HUMANIZING" WAR. THUS FAR THERE HAS BEEN NO EXPLANATION OF WHY THE ATHENIA WAS SUNK OR OF THE CIRCUMSTANCES SURROUNDING THE DISASTER.

WASHINGTON-FIRST ADD NIGHT LEAD EUROPEAN X X X SEA ALSO.

THE CONVOY QUESTION WAS THE SUBJECT OF A DISCUSSION BETWEEN PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND HIGH OFFICERS OF THE NAVY DEPARTMENT, SHORTLY BEFORE A SPECIAL SESSION OF THE CABINET CALLED TO DEAL WITH THE WAR EMERGENCY.

THROUGH HIS PRESS SECRETARY, STEPHEN T.EARLY, MR.ROOSEVELT DESCRIBED THE CABINET MEETING AS A LONG DISCUSSION OF THE IFS, ANDS AND BUTS OF THE PRESENT SITUATION. AT THE SAME TIME, EARLY ANNOUNCED THAT THE TWO EXPECTED NEUTRALITY PROCLAMATIONS WOULD BE ISSUED TOMORROW.

SEP 5-1939

THE FIRST, HE SAID, WOULD BE A PROCLAMATION IN CONFORMITY WITH INTERNATIONAL LAW, LETTING THE WARRING NATIONS KNOW THAT THE UNITED STATES WOULD KEEP OUT OF THE EUROPEAN CONFLICT. THE SECOND, HE ADDED, WOULD GIVE EFFECT TO WHAT HE TERMED THE "SO-CALLED NEUTRALITY ACT," BARRING THE SHIPMENT OF A PRESCRIBED LIST OF WAR MATERIALS TO THE BELLIGERENTS.

ALSO AFTER THE CABINET MEETING, ATTORNEY GENERAL MURPHY DISCLOSED THAT OFFICIAL ATTENTION HAD BEEN GIVEN TO THE QUESTION OF PREVENTING WAR PROFITEERING, IN LINE WITH THE PRESIDENT'S SPEECH OF LAST NIGHT. HE SAID IT HAD BEEN DETERMINED THAT PRESENT LAWS WERE INADEQUATE TO DEAL WITH THE SITUATION AND THAT THE PRESIDENT HAD INSTRUCTED THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE TO STUDY THE QUESTION FURTHER.

CHARLES EDISON, ACTING SECRETARY OF THE NAVY, DISCLOSED THE FACT THAT THE QUESTION OF NAVAL CONVOYS FOR AMERICAN VESSELS WAS UNDER CONSIDERATION. HE AND ADMIRAL HAROLD R.STARK, THE CHIEF OF NAVAL OPERATIONS, DISCUSSED THE PROPOSAL WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT EARLIER IN THE DAY.

EDISON TOLD REPORTERS IT WAS A "VERY COMPLICATED" PROBLEM, INVOLVING THE QUESTION WHETHER NAVAL SHIPS WERE AVAILABLE FOR SUCH DUTY AND WHETHER SLOWING FAST MERCHANT VESSELS DOWN SO THAT THE CONVOYS COULD KEEP PACE WITH THEM WOULD NOT MAKE THE SHIPS MORE VULNERABLE TO ATTACK THAN A FAST UNGUARDED VOYAGE.

WHEN A REPORTER INQUIRED WHETHER DESTROYERS FROM THE ATLANTIC SQUADRON WERE NOT AVAILABLE FOR SUCH DUTY, EDISON STRONGLY INDICATED IT WAS CONSIDERED BEST THAT THE SQUADRON BE HELD INTACT AND CLOSE TO AMERICAN SHORES. ASKED WHY, HE REPLIED:

"WELL, YOU HAVE SEEN REPORTS OF SUBMARINES IN THE CARIBBEAN, HAVEN'T YOU?"

SEP 5-1939

THE DEPARTMENT, HE CONTINUED, HAS NO OFFICIAL INFORMATION OF THE PRESENCE OF SUCH CRAFT IN WATERS CONSIDERED SO VITAL TO THE SAFETY OF THE NATION, BUT HE OBVIOUSLY WAS INCLINED TO TAKE NO [illegible]ANCES ON SUCH AN EVENTUALITY FINDING THE ATLANTIC SQUADRON IMPAIRED [illegible]ABSENCE OF DESTROYERS AWAY ON CONVOY DUTY.

EDISON ALSO HELD OUT THE POSSIBILITY THAT AMERICAN VESSELS MIGHT BE DEPLOYED BETWEEN THE LIMITS OF WHAT BECOMES THE SUBMARINE DANGER ZONE AND THE UNITED STATES, TO MAKE THEM AVAILABLE FOR RESCUE DUTY, PARTICULARLY WHEN BRITISH AND OTHER SHIPS ARE KNOWN TO BE CARRYING AMERICAN PASSENGERS.

THE SINKING OF THE ATHENIA WAS BUT ONE INCIDENT OF THE STILL HARDLY-BEGUN EUROPEAN WAR TO WORRY AND CONCERN AMERICAN OFFICIALS WITH IT THEY GROUPED TODAY AN ATTACK BY GERMAN BOMBERS UPON THE HOME OF ANTHONY J.DREXEL BIDDLE, THE AMERICAN AMBASSADOR TO POLAND. BOTH INCIDENTS HELD POSSIBILITIES OF DIPLOMATIC EXCHANGES WITH THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT.

EDWARD J.NOBLE, ACTING SECRETARY OF THE COMMERCE DEPARTMENT, STAYED AFTER THE CABINET MEETING TO DISCUSS WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT THE POSSIBILITIES OF INCREASING AMERICAN EXPORTS TO SOUTH AMERICA AS THE RESULT OF GERMANY'S BEING TIED UP IN WAR. THE UNITED STATES, HE SAID, HAS BEEN THE BIGGEST EXPORTER TO SOUTH AMERICA, WITH GERMANY SECOND.

HE TOLD REPORTERS HIS DEPARTMENT WAS COOPERATING WITH THE STATE DEPARTMENT AND THE WAR RESOURCES BOARD IN GATHERING INFORMATION ON THE SUBJECT AND IN PARTICULAR IT WAS PLANNED THAT AN INVENTORY OF AVAILABLE SUPPLIES WOULD BE TAKEN.

RECALLING THAT DURING THE LAST WAR THERE WERE COMPLAINTS THAT AMERICA HAD "JUMPED" PRICES AND SOLD INFERIOR GOODS TO LATIN AMERICA, HE SAID IT WAS IMPORTANT THAT THERE BE NO UNDUE ADVANCE IN PRICES. HE HOPED THIS MIGHT BE ACCOMPLISHED THROUGH COOPERATION AMONG BUSINESSMEN, SAYING IT WAS THE "SENSIBLE" WAY TO PROCEED.

ASKED ABOUT PROFITEERING HERE, £3 '-8$ 85 2-' - 1943&9,3 :9,:)7-SION THAT THAT WOULD BE "STIFLED" AS MUCH AS POSSIBLE.

ASKED ABOUT PROFITEERING HERE, HE SAID IT WAS A FOREGONE CONCLUSION THAT THAT WOULD BE "STIFLED" AS MUCH AS POSSIBLE.

WASHINGTON 1ST ADD N L EUROPEAN XXX MUCH AS POSSIBLE.

AS FOR THE ATHENIA, GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS WERE RELIEVED AND GRATIFIED THAT MOST OF HER 1,400 PASSENGERS AND CREW HAD ESCAPED DEATH. BUT THEY WERE DISTURBED TOO THAT EVEN IN ITS EARLIEST DAYS THE EUROPEAN CONFLICT HAD PRODUCED AN INCIDENT OF THIS KIND.

WITH GREAT BRITAIN CHARGING AND GERMANY DENYING THAT THE LINER WAS TORPEDOED BY A NAZI SUBMARINE, IT WAS ANNOUNCED THAT THE TESTIMONY OF PERSONS WHO WERE ABOARD THE SHIP WOULD BE SOUGHT IN AN EFFORT TO FIX RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE LINER'S PLUNGE INTO THE NORTH ATLANTIC.

FROM THE GERMAN EMBASSY HERE CAME A FORMAL STATEMENT THAT NO GERMAN NAVAL CRAFT WAS OPERATING IN THE WATERS WHERE THE VESSEL WENT DOWN AND THAT, FURTHERMORE, "ALL GERMAN NAVAL VESSELS HAVE THE STRICTEST ORDERS TO ACT IN ACCORDANCE WITH THE RULES ESTABLISHED BY INTERNATIONAL LAW AND IN THE AGREEMENTS SIGNED BY GERMANY."

NOTING, TOO, THE CLAIM OF WINSTON CHURCHILL, FIRST LORD OF THE BRITISH ADMIRALTY THAT A GERMAN SUBMARINE WAS GUILTY, OFFICIALS HERE WERE ANXIOUS FOR MORE INFORMATION.

Warsaw Reported Partly Destroyed By German Gunfire

SEP 7 1939

[By the Associated Press]

Budapest, Wednesday, Sept. 6—Diplomatic dispatches from Warsaw early today said the German army after a lightning advance from the north was shelling the city.

The Polish capital, already evacuated by the Polish Government and foreign embassies and legations, was described as partly destroyed under the heavy bombardment.

While the German forces were reported to be shelling the city heavily, airplanes conducted continual raids.

The Government was said to have fled to Lublin, ninety miles southeast of Warsaw.

Unconfirmed reports received here early this morning said Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, head of the Polish army, had offered his resignation to President Ignace Moscicki.

Diplomatic dispatches said that all Americans already had left Warsaw by the time of the attack except an official of the American Embassy left behind to protect property of the American Government.

German Advance Rapid

The diplomatic reports said the Germans early today were less than fifty miles from the capital and moving rapidly through a broken Polish front.

The dispatches suggested that the Poles, if unable to stem the advance of the Nazi troops, would take up positions on the east bank of the Vistula river, which runs through Warsaw.

All legations anu embassies were said to have followed the Polish Government to Lublin. Earlier dispatches indicated the American Embassy, headed by Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., had moved to Luck, twenty miles south of Warsaw.

Battle For Warsaw Rages 35 Miles To Northwest

Warsaw, Wednesday, Sept. 6 (AP)—Fighting on the Eastern front was reported today to be increasing in intensity as thousands of dismayed residents fled from the city. Battles also raged west and south of Warsaw.

[Editor's Note—No mention was made in this dispatch of shelling of Warsaw, reported in Budapest, but the Budapest dispatch was filed more than an hour later than this one.]

The Warsaw radio shortly before midnight told of the fighting and said it would decide the fate of Warsaw.

Polish troops were concentrated on a twenty-mile line from Ciechanow to Plonsk, thirty-five miles northwest of Warsaw. The radio said they were holding fast.

SEP 6-1939

[Associated Press Editor's Note:—A Berlin communique reported a German column fifty miles north of Warsaw and told of large gains in other sections.]

Hawklike German planes swooped low and chattering machine guns sounded in the city as an American Embassy caravan set out for a temporary embassy site. With Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, Jr., his family and most of his staff were several news correspondents and a number of Americans of Polish descent. Their destination was not announced.

Other Diplomats Flee

All other embassy and legation staffs left, too.

Polish officials and their families began evacuation of the capital hastily tonight, leaving only skeletonized staffs. Offices were to be set up in some southeastern city. Most foreign legations had moved out by midafternoon, leaving only consular staffs functioning.

SEP 6 1939

Tonight the few remaining Americans and other foreigners were completely without accurate information as to what was happening in the war zones, since the War Office left no one behind authorized to give out information.

1,418 passengers and crew were picked up Sunday night in the Ocean wastes west of Scotland. There were 311 Americans on the Athenia.

221 Aboard City Of Flint

The Maritime Commission said the American steamship City of Flint had radioed the names of 109 American and 112 alien survivors. She is expected to land the survivors at Halifax, N. S., Saturday.

Previously, the Donaldson Line, owners of the Athenia, had listed 506 survivors landed at Galway, Ireland; 497 at Greenock, Scotland, and 150 on the Swedish yacht Southern Cross.

The Donaldson Line had reported last night that the City of Flint picked up only eight persons.

Cunarder Sunk By Submarine

SEP 6 1939

Another incident of submarine warfare (in the waters where Germany has declared she has no submarines) was disclosed today when the Cunard Line announced that its 2,407-ton steamer Bosnia had been sunk by an undersea craft about one hundred miles off the Scottish coast. One of the crew, a fireman, was reported killed and twenty-three other members were rescued by a Norwegian tanker. The tanker was reported proceeding to Lisbon with the rescued.

The Bosnia was set ablaze by gunfire, according to the company's announcement, and then torpedoed.

Norwegian tanker.

One death was reported, that of a fireman named Woods.

The Bosnia was set ablaze by gunfire and then torpedoed, the company announced.

A message from the Bosnia, interrupted before completion, gave her position as about 100 miles off the Scottish coast. The tanker was reported to be proceeding to Lisbon with the rescued men.

[The Bosnia is described by Lloyd's Register as a steamer of 2,407 tons operated by the Cunard Line and built in 1928 at Sunderland by J. L. Thompson & Sons, Ltd. Her home port is Liverpool. She is 292 feet in length, forty-five feet in beam and has a twenty-foot draft.]

GALWAY, Ireland, Sept. 5 (A. P.).—The master of the stricken British liner Athenia, sunk on Sunday, said on his arrival here today that his ship "was hit by a torpedo which went through the galley and into the engine room, causing heavy loss of life."

The captain, James Cook, was brought here by the Norwegian steamship Knut Nelson with 430 other survivors of the first submarine disaster of the European war. The survivors here included about 250 Americans.

Among these was Dr. John Kirk of Boston, Mass., who said: "My wife was killed in the explosion, and all I want to know now is whether my two children, who were traveling with us, are safe."

Ruth E. Strauss of New York said: "I saw a flash on the port side of the Athenia about 800 to 1,000 yards away. The torpedo struck in a few seconds and was followed by a shell. The ship was still afloat when we left the scene five hours later."

John Cudahy, the United States Minister to Ireland, was on hand and watched the landing of the rescued passengers.

Capt. Cook said that immediately after the torpedo was fired, the submarine rose to the surface and shelled the Athenia.

"One shell carried away the main mast," he related. "It was evidently aimed at the wireless room, but missed its mark."

He called witnesses to tell newspaper men that the torpedo was fired at a range of from 800 to 1,000 yards on the port side of the vessel.

[In Berlin last night, State Secretary Ernst von Weizsaecker called Alexander Kirk, the American Charge d'Affaires, to the Foreign Office and flatly denied that a German submarine had sunk the Athenia. "The German sea forces," he said, "could not possibly have been responsible. Strict orders have been issued for the German sea forces to hold themselves within the prize law." Other German officials charged that a propaganda campaign, similar to that of the world war, was "already under way" against Germany.

[At London Earl Stanhope, Lord President of the Council, told the House of Lords today, in discussing the Athenia disaster, that according to a reliable witness a submarine fired a torpedo without warning, then "broke surface so that there was no question whatever as to what was the cause of the sinking."

["The mere suggestion," he added, "that a mine had been laid by this country is obviously ridiculous and absurd. That part of the sea is too deep for the laying of a moored mine, and it would be an absurd place to put mines, because Great Britain is anxious to keep her trade going in and out without interference from mines.

[At Greenock, Scotland, on the other hand, an American survivor of the Athenia, Prof. Damon Boynton of Cornell University, said on being landed there: "I don't like German war tactics."]

One officer of the Athenia said he saw the periscope of the submarine just before the torpedo struck.

Other officers and members of the crew said they saw a line of smoke rising from the water off the port side just before the disaster. The smoke described a complete circle over the surface of the water.

Gordon Hanson, a member of the art department of the Boston Herald, bewailed the loss of pictures he had painted during a vacation in Norway.

"The Germans say it was sunk by a mine, do they?" he asked. "They're crazy. We saw smoke in the distance after the first torpedo was fired. Then the submarine fired a shell at the wireless rig but it fell short. After the torpedo hit the ship, the third class dining salon was flooded almost immediately."

College Girl's Story.

Maxine Robinson, 16 years old, of Austin, Texas, member of a party of sixteen college girls who had been on vacation in Europe, said that all her party was saved.

"We were just finishing dinner," she said, "when we felt a jolt, and the ship was plunged into darkness. All of us jumped up on the tables. Then we went up on deck and slid down the ropes to the lifeboats.

"We were in the lifeboat only a few minutes when there was a flash and we felt something whiz past us going in the direction of the liner. We were four hours in the lifeboat before help arrived. My hands are all blistered from rowing."

Capt. Cook said he did not know how many were dead and injured.

He added: "There was no panic whatever on board the ship. The passengers faced danger bravely."

The survivors meanwhile crowded about the few available telephones, anxious to inform their friends of their safe arrival in Ireland.

Coming thankfully ashore in this picturesque, rockbound port, ten of those seriously injured were taken to the Galway Hospital.

The injured were attended by Irish Army doctors and staff nurses. After them came the rest, women and children wearing rough work clothes—lent them by sailors aboard the Knut Nelson—over the scanty garb in which they escaped the stricken ship.

Worn by exposure and weak from lack of sleep and irregular diet, the first survivors all told the same story.

They were asleep when awakened by a terrific explosion which shook the ship and sent children in their berths sprawling onto cabin floors. They were ordered to abandon ship and take to the lifeboats, a movement which was carried out in "perfect order."

Boiler Explosion.

Many of the survivors wore night clothes and blankets—thirty-six hours after the disaster. The Knut Nelson carried no regular physician; so two doctors went out last night from Galway to meet the ship outside the Aran Islands.

An improvised hot food depot at the dock was operated by an emergency committee at the direction of the Bishop of Galway. A preparatory college building was used as a receiving station where clothing was provided.

Members of the Knut Nelson's crew said that many of the Athenia's passengers were killed when the ship's boiler exploded after the torpedo had struck.

The injured here were being cared for at Galway Central Hospital. Convents, schools and hotels were thrown open to the other survivors.

A woman's committee under direction of the Lady Mayoress of Galway helped care for the injured.

Because there were only twenty berths on the Knut Nelson some of the injured had to lie on improvised beds on deck.

Jersey Woman's Statement.

GREENOCK, Scotland, Sept. 5 (A. P.).—Victims of the war's first great sea tragedy, 600 shaken and weeping survivors of the Athenia arrived here on rescue ships today with tales of horror.

Two hundred of those arriving here were injured, an undetermined number of Americans and Canadians.

One survivor, John McEwan of Glasgow, said that a submarine torpedoed the Athenia and then twice shelled the vessel as her lifeboats were being lowered.

A Mrs. MacFadzean of Belleville, N. J., said: "As my lifeboat moved away from the Athenia I saw something sticking up in the water. I am convinced it was the submarine's periscope. The lifeboat was almost swamped by the wash."

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Cox of Neepawa, Manitoba, said they just had got into a lifeboat when the rope broke, throwing them into the water. Mrs. Cox added: "We were soon taken back into the boat, but we had to bail it out with our shoes. While we rowed during the night, we were almost submerged by the swell from the submarine as it passed under us."

A Mrs. Brown from New Orleans and her eleven-months-old baby were rescued. She said that the torpedo struck close to her cabin, carrying away the companionway to the deck above.

"I handed the baby to some one on the deck above me and scrambled up myself later. When I found the baby in the same lifeboat with me I was crazy with joy."

Pathetic Scenes.

Pathetic scenes were enacted as the first of the rescued arrived at Glasgow's Adelphia Hotel. Women and children stumped weakly from motor buses wearing navy boiler suits and pajamas, some with curtains around their heads and most of them without shoes. Almost all of them were bandaged.

Children who had lost their parents were carried weeping into the hotel. Some had lost their voices. There were wives without husbands, husbands without wives. All were desperate for news of survivors from other rescue areas.

Glasgow mobilized hospitals and nursing homes to accommodate the injured, while other agencies planned to care for other refugees, many of them thinly clad and weak from exposure to the winds of the North Atlantic.

Perhaps the saddest sight of all was nine-year-old Roy Barrington of Toronto. His mother went down with the Athenia.

Fifteen-year-old Brenda Chapman, and her brother, Thomas, 13, of 3584 Beaconsfield avenue, Detroit, told of being awakened when the tropedo struck. Brenda said: "I didn't try to change my pajamas, but helped Tommy up to the deck. Then I helped row the boat."

Other passengers were loud in praise of the children.

As the rescue work went on no one could say definitely how many had been killed or drowned in the disaster. One rumor said that ninety had died. Some persons said that the figure was far greater and pointed out that a score or more must have drowned when the propeller of the Norwegian rescue ship Knut Nelson shattered a lifeboat full of women.

One survivor said that as the lifeboats loaded with survivors rowed away from the stricken ship the submarine came to the surface and shelled the refugees twice.

Other survivors said emphatically that the Athenia was sunk by a submarine, and that the submarine fired two shells at the sinking vessel.

Two destroyers brought about 500 survivors to Greenock. Several died on the rescue ships and were buried at sea.

Prof. Damon Boynton of Cornell University, alighting from one of the destroyers, said:

"I was in a boat twelve hours before I was picked up. I don't want to say anything more except this—I don't like German war tactics."

"We had a terrible time," said McEwan, "and we knew at once what it was. We all put on our lifebelts and went to our boat stations. The submarine then dived out of sight.

"There was a great deal of smoke when the torpedo struck our vessel. But through the smoke I could see the submarine break surface, and before we knew where we were, it had opened up with its gun and fired two shots at us.

"Every lifeboat was away an hour after we were struck. The liner first of all listed and then righted herself and began to go slowly down by the head.

"We learned afterward that a woman on whom an operation had just been performed had been left on the Athenia. One of the lifeboats went back and took her off.

"We drifted until 2:30 o'clock in the morning, when a Norwegian ship picked us up.

"I saw the sub quite distinctly and I estimate that it was a quarter of a mile away."

One member of the crew, Robert Gillan of Glasgow, said he saw a twelve-year-old girl lying dead in a deck chair, her body torn by shell splinters.

Fleet of Ambulances.

As the first destroyer came in today, her decks were crowded with women survivors, many of whom were without hats or shoes. Several had their arms in slings. As the destroyer edged up to the quay they sent up a wavering cheer.

Dock hands and crews of other ships in Albert Harbor cheered back lustily. The first distinguishable shouts from [illegible] were: "Throw us a [illegible] can see what's happened."

The second [illegible] in through a fog [illegible] charging her injured [illegible] rushed to hospitals in [illegible] of ambulances. The harbor was closed to the public and under heavy guard.

The seamen on the destroyers gave up their own rations for the children survivors and improvised a laundry to wash the clothes of mothers and children.

Most of the passengers were at dinner, the first class ones in evening dress, when the ship was attacked.

Killed by Rescue Ship.

A smashing blow from the propeller of a Norwegian rescue ship shattered one of the Athenia's life boats and cost the lives of several dozen women in the boat, a seaman of the Athenia said.

"After the first explosion, the submarine came to the surface about a hundred yards off," he declared. "All the Athenia's lifeboats were launched within an hour, and three other members of the crew and myself had charge of one boat containing fifty-two women.

"When the Norwegian boat came to our rescue, we drew alongside and made fast, but our boat got under her stern and was struck by the propeller which knocked the bottom out of our boat.

"Several of our people were killed. I drifted about in the water for three hours in my lifebelt before I was picked up by the yacht Southern Cross.

A Mrs. Turner of Toronto, a world war widow, said: "I am the luckiest woman on earth. I was looking over the rail when the torpedo smashed us. The ship lurched violently and I was thrown to the deck. When I came to I saw several people lying dead on the deck and then I heard the two shells. Later I found myself in a lifeboat—the water up to my waist."

A third class steward on the Athenia said: "I took the ten people at my table to boat stations, and we all managed to get into a lifeboat. I saw one boat with seventy passengers in it fall from the davits into the water. Most of the occupants were women and children, and the majority of them were injured."

U. S. Envoy at Galway

LONDON, Wednesday, Sept. 6 (AP).—More than 1,400 survivors of the sunken British liner Athenia—first victim of sea disaster of the new European war—were brought ashore by rescue boats yesterday, many asserting the ship was sent to the bottom by a submarine.

Two British destroyers landed about 600 survivors at Greenock, Scotland, about 200 of them injured and many suffering from exposure. The Norwegian ship Knut Nelson took 430 refugees to Galway, Ireland, where United States Minister John Cudahy watched them brought ashore.

The Knute Nelson's crew said many of the passengers were killed when the ship's boiler exploded after the torpedo found its mark.

Most of the passengers were at dinner. The lifeboats were launched within an hour and a quarter, survivors related. Several dozen of the casualties occurred when the propeller of the Norwegian ship struck a lifeboat containing fifty-two women.

Shaken and weeping, the survivors landed at Greenock were taken to hospitals and nursing homes in Glasgow for treatment.

Pathetic scenes occurred as survivors were landed at Galway and Greenock, uniting families who had been separated as they crowded into lifeboats. Children who had lost their parents were carried weeping from the rescue ships to hotels or hospitals.

GERMAN SUBS ATTACKED IN VARIOUS PLACES

Raid On Nazi Fleet Called "More Successful Than First Reported"

Planes Make Uncontested Propaganda Flight Over Ruhr Region

[By the Associated Press]

London, Wednesday, Sept. 6—The British Ministry of Information said early today that three German ships "which might have been converted into armed raiders" had been destroyed by British forces in the Atlantic.

The communique also asserted "there is reason to believe that the attacks by the Royal Air Force on naval units in German waters were even more successful than was originally reported."

A previous communique issued yesterday said Royal Air Force units had heavily damaged two German battleships near the Kiel Canal, which links the Baltic with the North Sea. The British reported some casualties in the bombing raid.

Submarines Attacked

The Ministry of Information communique today said British warships had attacked German submarines "in several localities." It added that "several" British merchant ships had been "attacked or sunk" by German submarines.

British warplanes last night flew another barrage of propaganda leaflets over Germany today, and the British fleet sent another German freighter to the bottom.

The Ministry of Information disclosed tonight that a second flight of British planes was made over German territory to tell the German people that the war is not against them but against their Nazi leadership. Not a single German plane tried to interfere, the British said.

The planes flew last night over the Ruhr district, known for its coal and iron mines and heavy industries.

It was stated here that the German ship Carl Fritzen had been sunk and its crew safe. Previously the sinking Sunday of the German ship Olinda off the coast of Uruguay was reported, both vessels going down under the guns of British cruisers.

The Government imposed a series of further wartime restrictions today. They included:

Control of employment by the Government.

Requisitioning of stocks of imported canned meats under food defense plans.

Limiting to £25 (about $100) the amount of foreign exchange a traveler may take out of the country.

Fixing of prices for the sale of all categories of fat cattle, sheep and pigs for slaughter.

Prescription of wholesale and retail prices of sugar, and fixing by the Board of Trade.

Registration Bill Passed

The House of Commons passed on third reading a "national registration bill" under which a register will be compiled of up-to-date man-power statistics to assist in the national service recruitment.

Control of employment was introduced to prevent a shortage of labor in essential industries, prohibiting workers from taking up new employment without consent of the Labor Ministry and by other plans of control.

The temper of the dominions was strikingly shown in South Africa when the South African Assembly tabled a neutrality motion by Gen. J. B. M. Hertzog, Prime Minister, forcing his resignation.

Smuts Forms Government

Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, of World War fame, Minister of Justice and Deputy Prime Minister, began formation of a new government which it was reported would declare martial law tomorrow.

Hertzog's motion was defeated, 80 to 57, and Smuts' substitute motion calling for severance of relations with Germany and continued cooperation with Britain was approved by the same division. Parliament will be prorogued tomorrow.

The Ministry of Information tonight issued a statement of appreciation of what dominion support means to Britain. Reviewing preparedness of the dominions, the statement said: "Vast strides have been made in production of warlike stores of all kinds and dominion forces are today almost as well equipped as our own."

Control Measures In Canada

At the same time adoption by Canada of control measures similar to those already in effect in Britain were announced tonight. A prices and trade board has been empowered to check any attempts at profiteering in food, fuel and other necessities.

Three cheers for the King sounded in the New Zealand House of Representatives after Parliament had passed unanimously a resolution approving New Zealand's declaration of war against Germany.

Anthony Eden, new Secretary for Dominions, sent a message of greeting and cooperation to the Governments of Australia, Canada, New Zealand, South Africa and Ireland today and Malcolm MacDonald, Secretary of State for the Colonies, messaged them saying:

"Unhappily the work of the peacemakers has been finally thwarted. Our knowledge of the feelings of 60,000,000 of our fellow citizens in colonial territory has united us in Great Britain in our hatred for peace and steeled us in our determination for war."

BRITISH CALL RAID ON NAZI FLEET SUCCESS

Claim Direct Hits Severely Damaged Two German Battleships.

ADMIT LOSS OF FIVE PLANES

Germans Flatly Deny Any Injury —London Papers Contrast Fight With Attack on Athenia.

LONDON, Sept. 5 (A. P.).—Great Britain's first blow at Germany—a spectacular bombing raid against the German fleet—was declared officially today to have been struck successfully.

The Royal Air Force, a communique issued by the Ministry of Information said, scored direct hits with heavy bombs and damaged two German battleships severely. The German Navy has only five.

Royal Air Force bombers carried out the daring daylight raid yesterday afternoon against the German fleet at the entrance of the strategic Kiel Canal linking the North Sea with the Baltic. The attack followed a night mass flight of British aircraft showering northern and western Germany with 6,000,000 copies of a message to the German people, attributing the war to German leadership and declaring that the British people want to live in peace with the German people.

That British planes were able to carry out this big scale flight over German territory and return to their bases without casualties was hailed here as highly significant in view of frequent Nazi boasts of the impregnability of their aerial defenses.

British Casualties

The communique admitted "some casualties" in the attack on the battleships. British newspapers published a German News Agency report that five British bombers which had participated in the raid were brought down by the anti-aircraft batteries.

[At Berlin the German authorities declared that ten British bombers were shot down yesterday when they raided the German fleet at Wilhelmshaven and Cuxhaven. Revising their previous statement that five of twelve British raiders were destroyed, German officials said that more than half were downed, and declared that no damage was done to the Nazi warships, despite British statements to the contrary.]

In the Face of Fire.

"Several direct hits with heavy bombs were registered on a German battleship in Schilling Roads off Wilhelmshafen, which resulted in severe damage," said the communique of the London Information Ministry.

"At Bunsbuttel, an attack was carried out on a battleship lying alongside the Mole, causing heavy damage. During the operation, which was carried out in very unfavorable weather conditions, our aircraft encountered an air attack and anti-aircraft fire, resulting in some casualties."

To have scored direct hits on the battleships, the British planes, it was believed here, must have plunged in power drives to a low altitude against enemy fire before dropping their heavy bombs.

The German Navy's battleships are the 26,000-ton Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, completed last year, and the 10,000-ton "pocket" battleships Deutschland, Admiral Scheer and Admiral Graf Spee, completed between 1933 and 1936.

Intense preparations were continued by the British Government.

Several aliens have been rounded up, Sir John Anderson, the new Home Secretary disclosed.

The fleet, army and air force received message from King George in which the sovereign pointed out their grave responsibilities.

The British press pointedly contrasted Great Britain's first war action—the bombardment of the German war vessels—with the sinking of the British passenger liner Athenia on Sunday night.

Display German News.

Describing the daredevil attack of the British bombers on the German fleet, the Daily Mail said: "This raid on a purely naval objective was a gallant exploit, true to the best British traditions. . . . The sinking of the Athenia shows that Hitler has at once abandoned all pretense of keeping to the last vestiges of humanity and decency which may be observed in war."

The News Chronicle commented: "As far as Britain is concerned, this war has opened in the right way. Last night the R. A. F. directed their attention to a strictly legitimate objective and bombed the German fleet. . . ."

The London Press, reduced to twelve pages to conserve newsprint, published as usual and generally gave objective treatment to the war news. German communiques were displayed prominently.

The British Government intensified efforts to reach the German people over the heads of the Nazi Government by broadcasting at intervals in German a message from Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, who declared, "We are not fighting against you, the German people, for whom we have no bitter feeling; but against a tyrannous regime which has betrayed not only its own people, but the whole of western civilization and all that we hold dear."

New Cabinet Appointments.

Meanwhile the reshuffle of the British Cabinet to increase the efficiency of Great Britain's war efforts was completed with announcement of the appointment of three Ministers:

W. S. Morrison, Minister of Food; Ronald Hibbert Cross, Minister of Economic Welfare; and Lord MacMillan, Minister of Information.

Lord MacMillan was Assistant Director of Intelligence in the Ministry of Information at the close of the last world war. Mr. Cross is a well-known merchant banker. Mr. Morrison, whose Ministry of Economic Welfare is an entirely new post, was formerly Minister of Agriculture.

Ernest Brown was reappointed Minister of Labor and National Service.

Heavy Artillery Attack Is Directed Against German West Wall—French Hear Polish Planes Raided Berlin.

BULLETIN.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 5 (A. P.).—Berlin was bombed tonight by thirty Polish planes, the Polish radio declared.

SEP 6 1939

PARIS, Sept. 5 (A. P.).

Havas (French) news agency credited the Polish Telegraphic Agency in Warsaw tonight with a report that thirty Polish planes had raided Berlin and returned to their bases.

PARIS, Sept. 5 (A. P. via Radio).—The French Government today announced that French forces had made contact with the German troops on the Western front and had penetrated into German territory.

A later official announcement said that contact with the Germans was general along the entire northern sector of the frontier. Army Communique No. 4 stated:

"Our troops are in contact everywhere along the frontier between the Rhine and Moselle. It is recalled that on the Rhine permanent fortifications border the river here and there."

Heavy French artillery fire today was directed against Germany's southern flank of the western wall fortifications while apparently more direct French operations were proceeding against the northern end of the front.

Semi-official sources said that the southern artillery fire was designed to soften the fortified German line.

There were indications that operations in the north near Luxemburg had resulted in more direct contact with the Germans than in the south.

A semi-official Paris radio reported trouble in Germany, and said there had been disorders in Cologne, Dusseldorf and Essen, as well as the areas of all Czecho-Slovakia.

Dispatches from Copenhagen report naval fighting off the coast of Denmark.

BERLIN, Sept. 5 (A. P.).—Germany today announced the capture of two rich Polish industrial cities, Katowice and Chorzow, near the Polish-German frontier in Silesia.

SEP 6 1939

Both towns, on the direct route to Krakow, Poland's ancient capital, virtually had been surrounded by previous attacks where the German border bulges into southwestern Poland, but the final thrust against them had been delayed.

Capture of the two towns would give Germany control of the highly important upper Silesian industrial region.

A United States concern, the American Silesian Company, owns the so-called Harriman-Giesch zinc mines at Katowice.

Germany reported the capture of the two Silesian cities as Adolf Hitler, the Reich's "first soldier," followed his troops across the Polish Corridor and the German news agency announced triumphantly that East Prussia had been reunited with Germany proper

In addition to capturing Katowice and Chorzow, Germany officially reported the destruction of eleven Polish planes in an air battle today between Lodz and Warsaw. Lodz is midway between the German frontier and the Polish capital.

Germany laid claim to having crushed the entire Seventh Polish Army Division southeast of Czestochowa, which was captured two days ago on the Silesian front. The division staff officers were said to have been taken prisoners. (A division usually is 10,000 to 15,000 men.)

The German news agency announced, too, that a third Polish submarine had been sunk by the German Navy in Danzig harbor and that an English bomber had been shot down by a German seaplane over the Dogger Bank in the North Sea. The agency asserted that the pilot of the German plane then rescued the English pilot from his sinking machine.

Besides Poles now isolated between German lines and the Baltic in the northern part of the corridor as a result of the German sweep to the Vistula River, 15,000 Polish prisoners were reported officially rounded up this far in southwestern Poland.

The agency said that Der Fuehrer joined his Army of the East at Kulm (Chelmno), on the Vistula River near the border of East Prussia, while steps were taken in Berlin to strengthen the nation for war, now in both the east and west.

The Supreme Army Command announced that, contrary to foreign reports, "not a single shot had been fired on the western front up to September 5, 9 A. M. (4 A. M., New York time). Likewise there have been no air attacks except the reported English raids at Wilhelmshaven and Cuxhaven."

The latest report on the western front, facing France, timed 3 P. M. (10 A. M., New York time) yesterday, said all was quiet. Officials added at that time neither the Reich's air force nor navy had made a move except on the eastern front.

Field Marshal Hermann Goering, as Air Minister, answered the British air attack by appealing to civil air defense forces to be on the alert. He said anti-aircraft batteries had brought down enemy planes from one-mile altitude and warned the population to be careful of falling shell fragments.

The Cabinet Defense Council, under chairmanship of Field Marshal Goering, issued a decree introducing war taxes and regulating business practices.

Heavy Taxes Decreed.

The decree provided for:

1. A tax as high as 50 per cent on incomes of than 2,500 marks (about $1,000).
2. A 20 per cent tax on beer and tobacco.
3. Penalties for destroying or withholding necessary commodities and for war profiteering.
4. Reduction of "disproportionately" high salaries.

The Supreme War Command reported war volunteers — youths under military age (18 years) and reservists whose classes have not yet been called to the colors—were reporting for service in such numbers that their offers had to be declined momentarily.

Short advance notices to towns along the route of Der Fuehrer's journey through the Corridor yesterday were said to have enabled the German population of that territory to display swastika flags and arrange joyous receptions.

Calls Welcome Tumultuous.

"The populace went into a frenzy of joy," said an official broadcast, "welcoming Der Fuehrer with unbounded enthusiasm."

The official news agency said that Herr Hitler heard "first hand reports of Polish terror" which the army smashed, and that the army was inspired greatly by the presence of "Germany's first soldier."

Cutting across the Corridor between Germany proper and East Prussia, the Pommeranian force which preceded Herr Hitler was said to have completed isolation of Poles in the northern part of the Corridor. The number of Polish troops there was not estimated.

Widespread destruction of military objectives in air raids was reported, along with the land advances in all sectors of the Polish front.

Fifty Miles From Warsaw.

Among the German communique reports are the following:

Troops from East Prussia have pushed to Przasynsz, fifty miles north of Warsaw.

Troops in the south, between the high Tatra Mountains and the industrial region, have forged forward to within twenty-two miles of Krakow, former Polish capital, Poles retreating in disorder ahead of motorized German units.

Polish cavalry which attempted to invade German territory north of Treuburg was repulsed.

(Warsaw reports said Polish lancers had cut through the German frontier north of Breslau after recapturing Leszno and Rawicz.)

Report Polish Submarine Sunk.

Neuenburg, near Grudziadz and the East Prussia border, was captured, but Grudziadz, where a Polish cavalry school was located and which has old fortifications, still held out against the Germans.

A Polish submarine and a destroyer were sunk in naval and aerial operations in the Baltic off Danzig and Gdynia, and a minelayer was damaged.

A new sector was opened in the direction of Kaliz from lower Silesia, the first thrust in the direction of Poznan province, a thumb of Poland extending into Germany.

German officials said that Herr Hitler had ordered specifically that the neutrality of small States and the international conventions with regard to naval warfare be observed.

The Netherlands' Minister called at the Foreign Office yesterday, reported foreign planes had flown over his country Sunday night and asked that Germany investigate to see if the planes were hers.

Officials replied Germany was not guilty of the trespass, and the official news agency declared the craft in question were British en route to drop propaganda leaflets on German cities.

British planes violated the Netherlands' neutrality to bring over propaganda, which was scattered in the Rhine country, the press said.

Thousands Flee Warsaw.

WARSAW, Sept. 5 (A. P.).—Thousands of Poles and several hundred foreigners, including most of the Americans remaining here, left this Polish capital city today, fleeing into the interior beyond the reach of German armies and German planes.

There were reports that officials of the Government itself might leave within a few hours.

Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr., the United States Ambassador, his family and most of his staff left during the day in a motor caravan flying American flags. They headed for an undisclosed spot, where Mr. Biddle proposed to continue functioning as normally as possible.

Other Americans, including a number of Polish descent, occupied the extra seats in the Biddle caravan. As it was getting under way, bomb explosions and the roar of the "Archies"—anti-aircraft guns—were heard in the distance.

German planes made two raids on the capital city today. The sky was clear and the September sunshine was brilliant. Despite the dangers the populace was calm.

Most of the staffs of the American, British and other embassies arranged to leave the city. In the meantime John K. Davis, United States Consul-General, and his staff assisted Americans in leaving.

The first raid of the day came while reports were being received indicating that Polish defense lines had been shortened to stiffen positions now held.

Several times during the morning attack the German airmen flew directly over the heart of the capital without dropping bombs. They confined their activities to the suburbs and military objectives.

The alarm sounded at 8:30 A. M. (3.30 A. M., New York time) and thirty-five minutes later the "all clear" signal was given.

The courses traveled by attacking planes caused observers to conclude they were shuttling back and forth between Austrian, Slovak and other German areas in daily trips, reloading at each stop and dropping bombs en route.

Increasing numbers of Warsaw inhabitants are leaving for the country. They pack their belongings into any sort of conveyance available. The largest numbers were traveling eastward and southeastward.

The Polish press reported a Polish cavalry force had penetrated the German East Prussia border and occupied two villages. This was similar to an earlier report that Polish mounted troops had broken through Germany's Silesian frontier north of Breslau.

The United States Ambassador, Ambassador Drexel Biddle, whose villa outside Warsaw was bombed Sunday, left the embassy in charge of Landreth M. Harrison, second secretary, and Major William H. Colbern, military attache.

Several fires were visible today on the outskirts of the capital as the result of air bombs which fell just after 11 A. M. (6 A. M., New York time).

Dull rumbles, apparently originating several miles away, were heard in the city.

Throughout the morning the firing of anti-aircraft pieces was heard every few minutes, but there was no official information on their action and it was impossible to ascertain the exact situation.

There was no panic among the people, but great anxiety was felt throughout the city.

In two strategic moves, deemed necessary to strengthen the defense organization, the Polish general staff withdrew its troops from the Corridor cities of Grudziadz, sixty miles south of Danzig, and Bydgoscz, approximately forty miles southwest of Grudziadz.

It is reported the German offensive, at no point, has penetrated the Polish defenses, although the German forces are pushing hard. But Germany continues to back her advance with a severe aerial bom bardment which already has taken a heavy toll of civilian lives, including ten persons killed when a bomb hit a Girl Scout canteen in a forty-five-minute raid on Warsaw yesterday.

Trying Pincer Move.

It is apparent the Germans are trying a pincer movement to join Germany and East Prussia in a military sense, while seeking to isolate Gdynia and thus cut off Poland from her only access to the Baltic Sea.

It is understood Germany is using mechanized units extensively.

The most "isolated" of all Polish troops were reported still holding out against vastly superior opposition. This was the garrison at Westerplatte, the munitions dump on a small peninsula jutting into Danzig harbor. It has been subjected to German sea and air attacks since dawn last Friday.

In addition to withdrawing from Grudziadz and Bydgoscz, Polish troops earlier had begun straightening the front by what was described as an orderly retreat from Czestochowa, an important city in the southwestern industrial section. A communique told the retreat, in the face of an overwhelming enemy assault, was covered by Polish airplanes which broke up two columns of German troops.

Bombers Wreck Canteen.

A Polish aerial squadron was reported to have inflicted heavy losses on enemy armored troops the nights of September 3 and 4.

The wrecking of the Girl Scout canteen at the East Warsaw railway station produced the heaviest casualties in yesterday's long air raid, carried out by sixteen German planes. The Poles claimed to have shot down three. The bombing also produced heavy losses in Warsaw's residential outskirts. Four apartment houses and a street car barn in the city proper were destroyed.

A train of Red Cross cars, with wounded from the battlefields, was struck by splinters from the bomb that exploded in the canteen, but without further injury to those on the train.

German planes, it was claimed in a communique, were staging repeated bomb and machine-gun attacks on farms and villages in the vicinity of Warsaw, with "numerous casualties" among peasants, women and children at work in fields and farmyards.

Meanwhile, Germans and persons of questionable status who were born in Pomorze (Polish Corridor) but do not possess definite Polish citizenship papers are being taken into custody by police, presumably to be interned.

Reports Seizure by British.

HAMBURG, Sept. 5 (A. P., via Radio).—The official German radio reported today that a Dutch freighter, carrying ore "which was possibly destined for Germany," was stopped by a British warship and escorted into Ramsgate Harbor, England. The station ascribed its report to the Dutch newspaper Allgemeen Handelsblad.

French Troops In Attack Along 100-Mile Front

'In Contact' From Rhine to Moselle While Guns Pound at German Forts in South

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Sept. 5.—The left wing of the French army increased the pressure tonight on the northern flank of the German forces along a 100-mile front.

Army communique No. 4, issued tonight, said simply:

"Our troops are in contact everywhere along the frontier between the Rhine and the Moselle. It is recalled that on the Rhine permanent fortifications border the river here and there."

This 100-mile frontier, where the French Maginot Line faces the Nazi Limes Line at some places a little more than at stone's throw distant, forms the northern flank of the German line.

The German line makes a sharp bend in the vicinity of Karlsruhe, Germany, where the French frontier juts out into a point forming the northeastern "corner" of France. The line thence follows the Rhine south to Switzerland.

The main French attack was to the southward, where the Burgundy gate passage between Vosges and the Alps leads to the German Black Forest. Here apparently was concentrated an artillery barrage.

The last line of the general staff communique was a reminder to the French, who are becoming impatient for news of an offensive on a grand scale, of the fortifications guarding the line of the Rhine.

A War Ministry communique announced: "Movements are developing normally for the entire land, sea and air forces."

[The War Ministry at Berlin, The United Press reported, issued a communique which said that, until 9 a. m. Tuesday, "not a single shot was fired on the western front." It said that no air attacks had occurred except the previously reported British raid on Wilhelmshaven and Cuxhaven.]

Semi-official sources said the French were trying to soften the southern German lines while their northern forces were clearing hills and valleys near Luxemburg before starting any major offensive. Advance pillboxes and machine-gun nests dot the territory between the two fortification systems.

Northern operations were believed to have brought the French and German forces in more direct contact than in the south.

It was stated, however, that the activities had not advanced far enough to merit more than the official announcement that operations were "developing normally."

The French action was co-ordinated with Poland's efforts against Germany.

At the same time aerial warfare, the unknown factor of major importance in Europe's new war, was started. French planes were scouting the Limes Line and spotting German communications.

Nazi Flyers Scout France

The German air fleet answered with an early morning reconnaissance flight over the north and east of France which lasted three and a half hours. Air raid warnings sounded in Paris and northern French cities, sending citizens to special shelters, but the planes did not drop any bombs.

There was less information concerning French military operations than Polish, and officials frankly explained they had taken every precaution to veil their activities until preliminary contacts with the enemy should assume a definite turn.

Reports circulating in Paris of a great battle already developing were met with a semi-official explanation that it was necessary to feel out the enemy first.

The normal development of contacts mentioned in communiques was understood in military circles to mean that two main feelers were being put out, one at each flank of Germany's West Wall, by the French Maginot Line forces.

Seeks to Draw Germans West

The problem which confronts Maurice Gamelin's general staff is in its broadest terms, no secret. It is one of delivering a sufficiently hard blow against Germany in the west to aid Poland effectively by forcing the Nazis to withdraw a substantial portion of their forces from the eastern front.

Fuehrer Adolf Hitler himself has announced the German army's intention of cleaning up Poland quickly while holding off France and Great Britain behind the Limes Line with a minimum of effectives, so that almost the full German force could be used in the East.

Since Hitler has chosen to remain on the defensive in the west, France is left to take the initial offensive. Gamelin is the first French commander since Napoleon to be faced with such a problem.

This apparently means elimination of the salient created by the frontier where it swings into Germany just north of Strasbourg. Should the main attack be delivered in the center of the line, study of the map shows that two wings of the German army might close in with a pincer movement, endangering French success.

On the other hand, there are specific advantages in attacking either or both flanks without the danger of a frontal attack. If such an operation should be successful it would mean the German flank would have to swwing back on Karlsruhe as a pivot, straightening out the line so that the French would be in a position to deliver a frontal attack.

One Flank Protected

The Burgundy Gate route, between the Vosges range and the Alps, just north of the Swiss frontier, would give the French flank protection from neutral Switzerland.

Such an attack not only might develop such strength as to force Germany to pull division after division from her Eastern Front, but also would follow the easiest and most advantageous route to Poland herself.

This route lies through southern Germany along the borders of former Austria, which is much less attached to the Nazi regime than is northern Germany. If it neared Poland and French communication lines stretched out, the route would have the further advantage of moving through the friendly territory of former Czecho-Slovakia, where French armies could expect to be welcomed as liberators.

Such a sweeping operation, it must be understood, would be far more than a matter of days—it would take months or even years and would be beset by many pitfalls.

Maurice Duval wrote today in the conservative "Journal des Debats": "No one can have any idea of a short war. Let us accept the fact of a long war; it is inevitable."

"There can be no question for the moment of a great offensive," wrote Charles Morice in "Le Petit Parisien," "But only of necessary preliminary operations. Our troops have received a baptism of fire. From one end of the line to the other they have shown perfect calm and fine valor."

Planes Over Paris Are Fired On By French Anti-Aircraft Guns

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Sept. 6 (Wednesday).—Several airplanes, presumably German, flew over Paris today at 3:14 a. m. (10:14 p. m. Tuesday, New York time) and were fired on by French anti-aircraft batteries.

The air-raid siren sounded at 1:41 a. m., sending people into their cellars for the second successive night. The alarm was lifted at 4:13 a. m.

Many persons had emerged from their refuges when they heard the hum of the planes and the popping of the French guns. The sky was pierced by flares sent aloft.

No explosions were heard in the center of the city. It was not learned immediately whether any bombs had been dropped in the suburbs.

Searchlights ringing Paris stabbed the skies. Persons watching for the planes said they were unable to see them because of their high altitude, but they thought they heard them plainly.

The planes approached swiftly from the east, and the sound of their motors as they left faded toward the west. French guns sent red flares streaking over the city, fired a few shells and then became silent. Many persons who had fled to refuges heard neither the guns nor the planes.

This second consecutive night alarm caused most of the populace to leave their beds and spend the night in refuges. Women carrying babies made makeshift cribs in stone-vaulted dungeons beneath old parts of the city. Their husbands carried bottles of beer and wine.

300 Americans Offering War Service to France

Legion Reports American Section Is Organized

PARIS, Sept. 5 (A. P.).—Officials of the Department of France of the American Legion announced tonight that since Sept. 1 more than 300 Americans had offered their services to France in her war wtih Germany.

After a meeting of the department's executive council, officials said an ambulance section, comprising nineeen cars donated by United States citizens and manned by American volunteers, would report soon to the French Army. The ambulance unit is headed by Dr. James V. Sparks, a dentist, formerly of Indianapolis.

It was reported that more than 90 per cent of the Americans volunteering for service were World War veterans. The group also includes many women who are organizing under the leadership of Mrs. H. Sanuaseymore, a former resident of New Rochelle, N. Y.

Legionnaires at the council meeting included George Aubrey, department commander, formerly of Fitchburg, Mass.; Julius Snowhill, Paris post commander, formerly of Quincy, Ill.; James L. McCann, national executive committeeman for France and native of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Henry Dunning, director of "F. I. D. A. C." and once a resident of Little Rock, Ark.

Earlier Col. Charles Sweeny, who is organizing an American brigade to aid the French, said registrations of Americans wishing to serve had reached approximately 2,000.

Col. Sweeny said he had received a telegram today from a "prominent American Congressman" offering to "furnish you 1,000 American volunteers and a company of 250 men from Texas."

He declared no men over the age of forty were being accepted.

The organization had not ben named formally, but Col. Sweeny said it would be officially listed as a unit of the French Foreign Legion.

German-Polish eastern front.

France's operations were understood to be testing Germany's fortifications to seek the weak point of the Siegfried line and divert German forces from Poland.

"There could be no question for the moment of a great offensive," wrote Charles Morice in Le Petit Parisien, "but of necessary preliminary operations. Our troops have received a baptism of fire. From one end of the line to the other they have shown perfect calm and fine valor."

Warnings Sound in Paris.

Sirens wailed on top of Paris buildings at 3:35 this morning (10:35 o'clock last night New York time). Parisians fully expected a bombing expedition, now that the French Army and artillery have opened fire in the east. But the planes did not appear over the city.

Flying high, they were understood to have passed over Charleville, in the Ardennes department of northern France, near the Belgian border.

Long War to Paris.

The war came home to the million or so people still in Paris when air raid sirens routed them out of beds and sent them scurrying into cellars. For the half hour's time it

PARIS, Sept. 5 (A. P.).—France pursued her secon... day of military operations against Germany today with... the official announcement that "movements develop no... mally for the entire land, sea and air forces."

This was announced in the War Ministry's communiqu... No. 3.

Germany replied with an aerial invasion which brought an early morning air raid alarm to Paris.

Later an official military ... said the planes had come on a scouting trip" without dropping bombs.

The three issued War Ministry communiques have failed to shed any light on France's operations beyond the fact she has gone to the Rhineland frontier in force.

Official advices reported "stubborn fighting," however, on the military aid of her ally, Poland.

Paris Has an Air Raid Scare

Sirens Sound as Nazi Planes Do Some Scouting, but No Bombs Fall.

30.24—3055

has been figured it would take German planes to travel from the French frontier to the capital, the life of the city went underground and the metropolis lay empty in bright moonlight.

Soon clouds of artifical fog drifted across the face of the moon, turning fair weather into foul and obscuring the city from any aerial raiders.

When dawn broke over the chimney pots of Paris two hours after the alarm sounded, the populace started emerging from refuges like rabbits coming out of holes. But the passive defense wardens and police whistled them back to cover.

After three and a half hours, a new siren call ended the alert at 7:05 A. M. (2:05 A. M. New York time) and traffic, electricity, water and gas sprang to life again.

The state of siege which the Government proclaimed Friday, when Germany invaded Poland, and the state of war which began Sunday finally had become a reality to those who, until now, only had read of the war's developments in wonderment.

Thousands Go Under Ground.

When the sirens first started moaning and then raised their wails into shrieks for a full ten minutes, thousands of persons stumbled down stairs and under ground.

In a narrow stone vault beneath the Ile de la Cite, an aged man and woman in bathrobes, with their gas masks on awry, groped their way into a corner and sat clinging to one another.

"A young man in pajamas, without a mask, dashed back and forth filling buckets of water and soaking towels to use instead.

A Negro maid, with a flickering candle showing the contrast between her white nightgown and her impassive black face, stood silently by the wall.

Under the Hotel Continental on the right bank of the Seine, where 200 guests and censors were gathered, a blonde girl calmly combed her hair and made up her face.

In the cellar of the Associated Press office, just off the Place de la Bourse, two spaniels hustled downstairs by the janitor whimpered in the gloom, but the dogs gradually grew quiet and reassured as other occupants of the building entered the bare room.

Take Refuge in Subway.

Subway stations were favorite points of refuge, with calm but anxious crowds massing at entrances and on underground platforms.

The first to sally forth saw strange clouds racing across the sky and detected a vague odor of lime.

One woman who had removed her mask and walked onto the Pont Neuf cried "Gas," hastily donned her mask again and ran for shelter. Others thought it was just a natural turn in the weather.

Actually the anti-aircraft defense batteries around the capital had released artificial fog at a height of about 400 feet. It covered the upper part of the Eiffel Tower and cut off the view of the observation balloon from crews manning the ground wires.

Emotions ran from fear to confidence in the time the alarm lasted.

"I wonder if they're coming?" said one warden anxiously as the alarm started.

"I'm not worried," he insisted as the sirens stopped without a sign of any planes.

"They couldn't get through," he declared belligerently as the second siren ended the alert. "For every plane they send up we send up ten."

Authorities suggested the German planes might have been en route to scout the disposition of French and British forces along the English Channel.

The French air force already has been active scouting the German Siegfried Line for weaknesses and observation secrets that were closed to it until late Sunday, when the war legally began.

Get Baptism of Fire.

A terse French General Staff communique last night stated "Contact has been made on the front" with the Germans. French sources said this indicated the French troops had taken a few advance positions, probably under a preliminary artillery barrage, but along the hundreds of miles separating France and Germany fighting was reported at a minimum.

Operations at some points also are for the purpose of giving French troops their baptism of fire.

Informed private sources said they believed key points in the French attack were the Burgundy Gate, between the Vosges Mountains and the Alps just north of the three-cornered junction of France, Germany and Switzerland, and along the Moselle Valley at the northernmost end of the French-German frontier.

Double Flanking Attack.

Thus far, French and British military activity has followed the most obvious lines: The British sea blockade and attacks against Germany's North Sea ports, and France's advance, with its land force of up to 8,000,000 men, to the eastern front and its own fortifications, the 250-mile Maginot Line.

Military observers described the movement of the French Army as an attempt at a double flanking attack on German positions along the Rhine, intended to lighten the pressure of Germany's attack on Poland. They said, too, the navy was moving into position in the western Mediterranean to protect essential lines of communication with North Africa.

Many experts recognize the Maginot Line, originally designed to defend France, as a "perfect base" from which France can take the offensive. The 250-mile chain of cement and steel fortifications, an area in which plowed fields or waving grain conceal one of the greatest defense systems the world ever has known, was built by military experts with all possibilities in mind.

Two Hours From Berlin.

By air, France's crack bombers and fighting planes can leave their underground airports behind the Maginot Line and fly to the great German industrial centers of Essen and Dusseldorf within less than an hour; to Berlin in less than two hours.

Part of the Maginot Line force is a super-army of approximately 100,000 trained veterans, ready to move into action at any point with equipment to carry on as an attacking unit. The underground garages of the Maginot zone, a zone which extends from the Belgian frontier to a point beyond the Swiss border, are filled with fast motorized equipment—trucks, armored cars, tanks of all descriptions and motorcycles.

Rumania, the first to issue a formal neutrality declaration, has massed the greatest military machine in southeastern Europe. Starting on August 1 with 350,000 men under arms, she has subsequently called up another 750,000 and has 700,000 more in reserve.

The Rumanian Navy has been put into fighting shape. Fortifications along the frontier with Russia are being strengthened. Bridges over the Dniester River, which forms the border between the two countries, are being mined.

Smeared With Blood.

Most of the Rumanian military strength was massed along the Soviet frontier, but 100,000 soldiers were within striking distance of the Hungarian border.

Yugoslavia, where the spark that kindled the last world conflict was struck, based her neutrality stand on a "duty to maintain and develop friendly relations with all neighbors." She has 500,000 men ready to throw into any conflict and 1,300,000 trained reserves.

Little Bulgaria, in her proclamation, talked of Europe "smeared with blood" and made it clear that she wished to remain free of hostilities. Her military establishment is one of the greatest in Europe in comparison with her population. With a normal standing army of only 50,000, she now has 200,000 men "on call" and 450,000 more reserves.

Hungary Eager for Peace.

Hungary, signer of the anti-Comintern pact with Germany, Italy and Japan, has showed her eagerness for neutrality, in spite of an occasionally expressed desire for the return of territory lost after the last war. Her forces have been brought to a war standing of 300,000 men, with 400,000 more trained soldiers in reserve.

Greece, likewise eager to keep out of war, has called 260,000 of her 581,000 trained men to the colors. Most of the little nations also issued government orders clamping down, controlling the press, establishing censorships, checking a rise in commodity prices, dealing with refugees and providing air raid and other defense precautions.

Balkan Powers Prepared

Five Little Nations Have 2,400,000 Men Already Under Arms.

BUDAPEST, Sept. 5 (A. P.).—Southeastern Europe, zealous to keep war from spreading to this corner of the continent, has proclaimed its neutrality to the world, but still it is taking no chances. The five little nations are ready with 2,400,000 men mobilized for action and 3,000,000 more in reserve.

Even while proclamations of strict neutrality were being drawn up, preparations for any hostilities were being pushed on a large scale. Yugoslavia, Rumania and Bulgaria officially signified their neutrality last night. Greece and Hungary likewise have expressed an intention to remain neutral.

party, has been [illegible] with the Gestapo, German [illegible] police, which is directing a drive against pro-Polish espionage. An undisclosed number of Slovaks have been arrested.

With general mobilization ordered for all but certain civil servants in Bratislava, food buying has been sharply curtailed. Pork, veal, bacon, canned goods, dried fruit, chocolate, cocoa and jam are among the edibles not available. Butter and sugar are rationed. There has been a general breakdown of imports.

Describes Raid on Danish Port

Eyewitness Tells of Bombing in Which Two Neutrals Were Killed.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 5 (A. P.).—An eyewitness told the Associated Press today that the unidentified plane which flew over the Danish seaport town of Esbjerg yesterday "disappeared to the southwest" after dropping four bombs, one of which struck an apartment house, killing two persons.

Esbjerg, on the west coast of Jutland, is forty miles north of the German border and 140 miles west of Copenhagen.

"I was sitting at home eating supper when a strong explosion some distance away shook the house," the witness said. "I ran out on the balcony in time to see a grayish, apparently two-motored plane disappearing to the southwest. Ambulances were hurrying by in the street.

"I went in the direction of the explosion and saw a demolished apartment house. I could hear children shrieking and saw people hiding their faces in their hands.

"A few minutes later two bodies were carried from the ruins."

The witness added that the first bomb fell in the harbor, raising a column of water; the second near a factory, tearing a hole in the ground; the third hit the apartment house, and the fourth fell in the courtyard of another building, where no one was hurt.

The Danish Government sent a commission to investigate the bombing, and Foreign Minister Peter Munch said that he would make a protest and demand indemnity if the nationality of the plane could be discovered. It was hoped that it would be possible to find the bomb that fell in the harbor as a clue to the plane's nationality.

Two theories were offered: That the plane's pilot was British, and thought he was already over German territory; or that he was a German scouting the British fleet and had released the bombs through some accident.

Germans Put Them Between Front and Rear Troops; Hard Fighting at Border

BRATISLAVA, Slovakia, Sept. 5 (AP).—Wounded Slovak soldiers returning from the Polish frontier today said Slovaks were mixed with Germans as a second fighting line. Unofficial but well informed circles here expressed belief that Slovaks were placed between the Germans first and third lines to prevent desertions.

Javornia, a small area taken from Slovakia last fall, was given up by Poles without firing a shot, they said, but they admitted the Poles contested fiercely Slovak-German advances elsewhere along the mountainous border.

The Slovak Minister to Poland, Dr. Ladislav Szatmary, broadcast this appeal over the radio from Kattowitz (Katowice), Poland: "Slovaks, do not fight your brethren in Poland. Revolt against the German yoke. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose."

It was confirmed here that Szatmary has placed the Slovak Legation in Warsaw at the service of Poland. (The minister apparently has been acting independently of his own government, which is under German control, Slovakia being a German military protectorate.)

No wounded German soldiers have been brought here, so far as could be learned, but it was pointed out that German base hospitals were established in northern Slovakia two weeks ago.

Nazi Control Of Slovakia Laid To Fear Of Secret Police

Troops Said To Be Placed Between German Lines To Prevent Desertions

(By the Associated Press)

Bratislavia, Slovakia, Sept. 5—Observers asserted tonight that Slovak resentment against German military rule was being stifled only by fear of the Gestapo, Nazi secret police.

The Hlinka Guard, semi-military arm of the single Slovak party, has been merged with the Gestapo and an undisclosed number of Slovaks have been arrested.

There was no cheering as Slovaks solemnly boarded troop trains for the front. Unofficial but well informed sources expressed belief that the Slovaks were being placed between German first and third lines to prevent desertions.

The most ardent supporters of the Slovakia Separatist movement in the days of the Czechoslovak republic appear dismayed by present conditions in view of Adolf Hitler's guarantee of independence.

The only untoward incident reported was the smashing of windows in the summer home of Premier Josef Tiso, at Topolcany. Tiso has cooperated with the German Government. The home once belonged to Thomas Masaryk, co-founder of Czechoslovakia.

Under the general mobilization orders, food sales have been curtailed. Pork, veal, canned goods, dried fruit, chocolate and cocoa are unavailable, and butter and sugar have been rationed.

Berlin Reports Katowice and Chorzow Taken

Silesian Factory Centers Fall in Drive on Cracow; British Air Loss Claimed

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Sept. 5.—The German high command announced today the capture of the rich Polish industrial cities of Kattowitz (Katowice) and Koenigshuette (Chorzow) in a drive toward Poland's historic ancient capital of Cracow, and declared "the foe, partly retreating in disorder, was badly shattered."

Capture and retention of the two cities would give Germany control of the highly important industrial region of Upper Silesia. The Poles, taken by surprise, it was stated, gave up the cities without exploding the mines placed under their great industrial plants, leaving the greater part of the industrial equipment intact. A United States concern, the American Silesian Company, owns the so-called Harriman-Giesche zinc mines at Kattowitz.

The German forces also reported they had crushed the entire 7th Polish Army Division southeast of Tschenstochau (Czestochowa), which was captured two days ago. (A division usually is between 10,000 and 15,000 men.) Eleven Polish planes were reported shot down today between Warsaw and Lodz, making a total of forty-two reported destroyed in the last twenty-four hours, and sixty-five in the last forty-eight hours.

On the western front, officials said at 6 p. m. (1 p. m. New York time), not a single shot had been fired by either France or Germany.

Germany's air force was jubilant over its asserted mastery of Poland's air and over the sound thrashing it reported administered to the British Royal Air Force in their first engagement yesterday. The air attack occurred last night at Wilhelmshaven and Cuxhaven and was met, according to official German announcement, "with perfect co-ordination of German fighters and anti-aircraft guns."

Two more British planes, of reconnaissance type, were reported shot down over Hamburg this afternoon. German confidence that the Reich would be master of its own air, as it claims mastery over Polish air, increased with an official announcement that the British lost twelve out of twenty planes which flew over northwestern Germany just before dusk last night (including the Wilhelmshaven and Cuxhaven raiders).

The announcement said: "No damage whatsoever was inflicted by the British." (Britain announced that two of Germany's five battleships were heavily damaged, and admitted the raiders suffered "some casualties.")

Seven planes were said to have been shot down between the Netherlands border and Wilhelmshaven and five more over Wilhelmshaven harbor. All the British bombs fell in the water, it was stated.

Another British bomber was reported shot down by a German seaplane over Daggerbank, but it was possible this report concerned one of the participants in last night's battle. The German news agency said that the German seaplane pilot, after shooting down the British ship, rescued the pilot from the craft before it sank in the water.

Anti-Aircraft Crews Ready

Describing the British air raid on the naval bases, an official report said that the first warning of the approach of the flight—said to have been made up of two-engined Vickers bombers—was given by the coastal commands at Ostfriesland and Nordfriesland. This enabled anti-aircraft batteries to be ready for immediate action.

At 5:50 p. m., said the report, the planes appeared over the mouths of the Weser and Elbe Rivers and German pursuit planes, which already had gained altitude, attacked the British and drove them down into anti-aircraft fire.

The report asserted that only one British bomber reached its goal, but was hit at once by a shell and crashed into Wilhelmshaven harbor, while the crew of another bomber was captured after its pilot was killed in the air.

Officials said Germany "expects the Netherlands as well as other neutral countries to open fire" when foreign military planes fly over their territory. It has been charged here repeatedly that Great Britain broke the Netherlands' neutrality by sending bombers over that nation to Germany.

Some of the leaflets dropped in western Germany Sunday night by British planes (London reported 6,000,000 such tracts were dropped and 3,000,000 more Monday night) were brought to Berlin tonight. They were small handbills with printing on either side and said Germany had forced Great Britain into a useless war. They referred also to President Roosevelt's peace proposals.

The Latest Communique

The text of today's communique issued by the supreme army command follows:

"The German eastern army on Sept. 4 broke the enemy's resistance on all fronts and pushed ahead irresistibly. The opponent, partly retreating in disorder, was badly shattered. The number of prisoners and captured war materials is not yet determined. The 7th Polish division staff was captured.

"The pursuit upon Cracow continued in a steady advance in the south. The Skawa sector near Wadowice was traversed. Farther north, Jaworzno was taken. The enemy was precipitately evacuating the Upper Silesian industrial region. A Warthe (Warta) River crossing was forced near Sieradz. Since yesterday indications point to a growing recognition of the encircled Polish Corridor army of their hopeless situation as they are trying desperate individual operations to force open the iron ring.

"The Graudenz (Grudziadz) fortifications were taken. Troops which are near the south of Kulm (Chelmno) crossed the Weichsel (Vistula) River in the presence of the Fuehrer, supreme commander, and are advancing rapidly from the eastern bank. Prussian troops in hard man to man fighting near Mlawa took the town and fortifications. The defeated enemy is retreating southward.

"The navy executed protection measures along the German coast on schedule.

"The air force is ruling the air. Forty Polish planes were destroyed, fifteen thereof in an air battle. A planned retreat of the enemy was increasingly frustrated through air raids on the enemy's marching columns and troop trains.

"On the North Sea coast, about 6 p. m. (Sept. 4), English fighting planes of the most modern construction attacked Wilhelmshaven and Cuxhaven as well as naval forces lying in the estuaries.

"Anti-aircraft defense of the navy began [illegible] and effectively so that the raid on Cuxhaven was frustrated completely, while bombs on Wilhelmshaven caused no damage. It was learned more than one-half of the attacking planes were shot down."

Germans Blame War on Britain In 'White Book'

Story of Polish Dispute Charges London Blocked All Compromise Efforts

BERLIN, Sept. 5 (AP).—The German government issued tonight a White Book describing recent phases of Polish-German relations and concluding that Great Britain was "responsible for the war."

It charged that England "sabotaged Premier Benito Mussolini's efforts to preserve peace." Documents were quoted to establish a German contention that neither Poland nor England were in a mood for compromises during the last critical moments.

The White Book argument was divided into twelve divisions on a chronological basis.

1. Beginning in August the Reich took note of an exchange of communications between the Free City of Danzig and Poland which culminated in the Polish ultimatum concerning the rights of customs inspectors.

Germany warned Poland that any more ultimatums to Danzig would strain relations between Germany and Poland. Poland allegedly replied that any German interference in events at Danzig would be regarded as an aggression against Poland.

2. On Aug. 22 Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain "under the influence of reports of the impending conclusion of the non-aggression pact between Germany and Russia," in a personal letter to Hitler, said England was prepared to fulfill her obligations toward Poland but pleaded for an atmosphere in which Polish-German relations might be settled by discussion.

The next day Hitler answered, calling attention "to the Polish terror over German nationals." Hitler recalled his offer of settlement last March, to which he said England responded with false reports of German mobilization against Poland.

3. Although Chamberlain's letter and subsequent utterances by British statesmen indicated that England had no sympathy for the German point of view, Hitler on Aug. 25 called the British Ambassador to make a new effort to come to an understanding with England. He proposed a far-reaching agreement with England after settlement of the Corridor and Danzig problems.

4. While Britain studied Hitler's proposals, the Fuehrer exchanged letters with Premier Edouard Daladier of France setting forth the German demands on Poland (Danzig and the Corridor). He also renewed assurances to France that Germany's west boundaries are accepted by Germany as final.

5. On the night of Aug. 28 Britain expressed readiness to talk about the reorganization of German-English relations. Britain added it was assured by Poland that the Polish government was ready to conduct direct negotiations with Germany.

Despite the conduct of Poland, Hitler on Aug. 29 declared Germany's readiness to receive a Polish negotiator and said Germany expected to receive an authorized negotiator Aug. 30. He said that meanwhile the Reich would work out a solution acceptable to Germany.

6. No Polish negotiator arrived Aug. 30 and no communication was received from the British. Instead, Germany received reports of Polish mobilization. Not until midnight of that day did the British Ambassador hand in a new memorandum containing no constructive suggestions and saying merely that Hitler's suggestions had been given Poland and that England believed Poland should not have been expected to reply by Aug. 30.

7. Although no Polish negotiator arrived in Berlin, the British government was given an outline of German suggestions for a settlement which the Reich had worked out meanwhile. The Reich asked again that Poland name a negotiator. On Aug. 31 the Polish Ambassador told the Reich's Foreign Minister that Poland had received from Britain the night before a report of the possibility of direct negotiation. But the Polish Ambassador was unauthorized to undertake any conversations.

8. After waiting vainly for two days for a Polish negotiator, the Reich on the night of Aug. 31 made public its proposals. The Warsaw radio pronounced them unacceptable.

9. After being forced to the conclusion that efforts to negotiate with Poland were futile, Hitler announced that in view of numerous violations it would be necessary to "use force."

10. On the night of Sept. 1 the British and French Ambassadors presented similarly phrased memorandums in which it was demanded that Germany withdraw her troops from Polish territory and that in the event this was not done these states would fulfill their treaty obligations toward Poland. The Reich's Foreign Minister said that Germany must refuse the implications of the memorandums that Germany was aggressive toward Poland.

11. Inasmuch as these notes raised the danger of war, Mussolini made the proposal of an armistice and international conference. The proposal was answered by Germany and France in a positive manner but England rejected it. So the Duce's efforts were frustrated by England.

12. At 9 a. m. Sept. 3 the British Ambassador appeared at the Foreign Office and handed the office a note wherein England demanded withdrawal of German troops within a two-hour time limit. In London the British Secretary of Foreign Affairs handed the German charge d'affaires a note that a state of war existed between the countries from 11 a. m.

On the same day, at 11:30 a. m., the Reich's Foreign Minister handed the British Ambassador a note rejecting the ultimatum but pointing out that the responsibility for war must rest on Britain. The French Ambassador handed in a similar ultimatum and, after being informed verbally of the answer given to Britain, said it was his "unpleasant duty" to say a state of war existed after 5 p. m., whereupon the Reich's Foreign Minister replied that France must assume the responsibility if France attacked Germany.

been shot during the previous night as he worked at his desk close to a window.

I came here, the first and only correspondent at present permitted at the front, by selection of three American news organizations in Berlin, who acted on the invitation of German authorities to permit a neutral American newspaper man to see what was going on. I flew in a military plane to Oppeln, and thence traveled under military escort across the Polish border to Czestochowa.

I saw the famous Black Madonna in Jasnagora Monastery in Czestochowa. The monastery and cathedral have not been harmed. In an interview Father Norbert Motylewski said:

"The miracle-working image of the Czestochowa virgin on the Jasnagora (light colored mountain) was not damaged in any way nor has Jasnagora suffered in any way."

As we entered the chapel we saw a huge crowd of Polish worshipers attending mass. Some—both men and women—lay prostrate, kissing the marble floor, their hands extended. Among them were many sobbing women.

My military escort and I had harly left the chapel when the grim realty of war broke upon us. We heard intermittent shots. On the boulevard below, German anti-aircraft guns were set up in formidable numbers.

At a corner lay two dead horses, which nobody had had time to remove. To the left a whole row of buildings showed broken windows and bullet-riddled facades. Proceeding down the right side of the boulevard were about thirty Polish civilians closely guarded by steel-helmeted German soldiers, their rifles cocked. [illegible] Poles marched with their hands up. These were the thirty arrested as sniping suspects.

Fitted With Gas Masks First

Given the order came yesterday afternoon that a plane was waiting for me at Tempelhof Airdrome I was first taken to the War Office to have my gas mask fitted and also to receive a first-aid kit.

At Tempelhof (Berlin's principal airport) what a change since I last visited it! Once as busy as any railway station, with commercial planes starting and arriving, east, west, north and south, it now is a military airdrome with planes painted a forbidding greenish black. The open-air restaurant, where hundreds of Berliners used to sit of a summer day, listening to music, is empty now.

I had been told that one of Germany's most popular and biggest types of planes would be at my disposal. I approached it with visions of comfortable, upholstered seats. Instead, I found machine guns protruding from the fuselage. Steel helmets, parachutes, first-aid kits and gas masks extended a cheering welcome as we climbed aboard.

Flying from Berlin via Breslau to Oppeln, in Silesia, I was struck with the stoppage of traffic on the big Hitler super-highways—except for army transports of all sorts. Germany is rationing her gasoline from the very start and nobody has the right to drive a private car unless he can show mighty good cause.

No Passenger Trains Running

The railway tracks, too, seemed empty. For miles and miles I saw no passenger trains along this normally busy route; only occasional freight trains.

We passed some twenty military airports en route, and everywhere bombers, pursuit planes, power divers encircled by batteries of anti-aircraft guns were ready at any moment to take the air. It appeared that the Poles, if they attempted to fly from Upper Silesia to raid Berlin, would have to jump at least twenty hurdles.

We had hardly passed over Oppeln when war seemed exceedingly close, for we landed on an improvised airport at Stunebdorf where only a few minutes previously eighty-seven bombers had returned from a raid. At this and two other improvised airports near by, my companion officer said, there were some 1,100 military planes of every description. The airport was fringed with camouflaged tents for officers and men. Some distance off were larger barracks.

A licutenant colonel awaited us with a car as we landed.

"No use going to Czestochowa today," he said. "We have reports that the civil population is sniping. I cannot take responsibility for the life of a neutral. So I will take you to Oppeln. By tomorrow (this was yesterday) Czestochowa will have been cleaned up."

Every Bridge Guarded

All along the thirteen-mile route to Oppeln soldiers guarded every bridge and traffic police were in military garb. The army had drawn on trained police from all over the country to regulate traffic in the military areas. Our lieutenant colonel's office was a converted school with cots in some rooms for officers, with a field telephone hastily installed and with military maps sprawling over the floor and desk.

Two of his subordinate officers entered just as he was telephoning Berlin of my safe arrival.

"We have tried to go to Czestochowa to take pictures of the Madonna," they reported, "but we had to turn around because farmers began to shoot at us from the fields as we hurried along the road."

Over in a corner there lay a few trophies. Sanitary kits taken from prisoners of war seemed very primitive and some of the rifles looked long outdated. [illegible] cartridges were corroded.

At this lieutenant colonel's headquarters I was forcibly impressed with the fact that war today is made with the most modern means of information. Attached to each army group are staff photographers, cameramen and newsmen, because the war correspondents of the individual newspapers are not permitted.

In camp barracks and even at the front news is regularly broadcast to the soldiers, out along the first lines a loudspeaker on wheels brings the latest news broadcasts.

In addition, the various army groups—at least this is true in Silesia—publish a daily four-page newspaper in editions of 25,000. The soldiers are said to pay each other half a loaf of bread or three cigarettes for a copy. The paper is distributed along a fifty-mile front after rolling off the presses at 2 a. m. Talkies on wheels also get as close to the front as possible, to entertain the men.

The city of Oppeln seemed uncanny in complete darkness. Close as it is to the border, the blackout naturally is as complete as human ingenuity can make it.

This morning at [illegible] we started for the Polish border. I had a first experience of what preparation for war means. The whole road to Czestochowa, fifty-five miles away, was one long procession of army trucks, officers' cars, horse-drawn provision wagons, marching labor camp lads, army engineers, anti-aircraft sharpshooters.

The army of the East itself evidently had gone to the front days before my arrival. Every bridge from the German frontier to Czestochowa had been destroyed by the retreating Poles. So army engineers, assisted by labor camp boys, hastily built emergency bridges over which our car went with such bumps that we wondered how the axles stood it.

The railway tracks, too, had been torn up and army engineers were at work repairing them. In some cases ready-made bridges carried along on army trucks were laid down; in others steel mattresses were laid out on the roads to help us over the worst bumps. Telephone gangs were everywhere stringing wires.

We saw big holes in the ground showing where artillery fire had struck.

While the army was thus ceaselessly pushing on—even horses were being transported to the front on motor lorries—we saw a curious contrast; Polish civilians flooding back from the East and proceeding westward again to their homes, now that fighting had ceased and their land was in German hands.

Barefooted women with babies tied on their backs and one cow walking behind, old men carrying heavy burdens wrapped in bedspreads, boys and girls pushing their bicycles, on which they had fastened their scant belongings, push carts bulging with paltry knicknacks, whole families huddled together on horse-drawn vehicles—such was the procession of miserable humanity coming toward us.

Shortly before reaching the border we saw a stockade-like affair at Guuentag with barbed wire around it and a big barn at one end. Some 1,100 Poles, it developed, had been assembled here the night before from various parts of the fighting area, and during our stay were marched off in groups of about 200 to near-by railway stations, from which they will be transported to internment camps.

For the most part they were exceedingly badly clad. One group of fifty suddenly burst into song and when an interpreter asked who they were, they were said to have replied that they were Ukrainians and happy to be captured. There was a sprinkling of men in civilian clothes, five women and about a dozen boys in their teens among the prisoners. All these civilians were arrested on the charge of sniping.

"Polish women," an officer said, "fight like tigers."

Before arriving at our destination we reached a desolate town, evidently with brick factories as a chief industry. Buildings along the main road were a shambles and the kilns were shot to pieces.

The German officer attached to me explained that two days previously, after the main part of the German army already had marched beyond Czestochowa and while the rear guard was being brought up, civilians of this town of Graszyn suddenly opened fire from their homes, killing some officers and men. A regular skirmish ensued, he said, in the course of which the houses and factories were demolished.

HENDERSON HELD AT GERMAN BORDER

Envoy to Be Exchanged for Dr. Kordt and Staff.

LONDON, Sept. 5 (A. P.).—The Ministry of Information announced today that the German Government had refused to permit the recalled British Ambassador, Sir Nevile Henderson, to cross the German frontier into the Netherlands until the staff of the German embassy in London had left England.

The Ministry added that the exchange was expected to be effected during the day with the Netherlands Government acting as go-between.

Dr. Theodore Kordt, German Charge d'Affaires, and the embassy staff sailed last night from Gravesend for Rotterdam.

The Ministry said that Dr. Kordt and his staff embarked last night at Gravesend on the Dutch steamship Batavia IV.

Before she sailed, however, word was received from the Hague that Sir Nevile and his staff had been refused permission to cross the German frontier until the Germany embassy staff was released from England.

The Ministry said the Netherlands Government then offered to act as a go-between and that Britain agreed to allow the Batavia IV to sail for Rotterdam on condition that if the British embassy staff were not allowed to cross into Holland the German embassy staff would be sent back to England.

The Batavia IV finally was permitted to sail after an agreement had been reached on procedure.

Nazi Embassy Group Also Arrives There From London.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 5 (A. P.).—The staffs of the German embassy to Paris and the French embassy to Berlin entered their respective homelands early today after exchanging trains in the tiny Dutch frontier station of Oldenzaal.

About 120 members of the German embassy, including women and children, were aboard the train from Paris arriving at 5:15 A. M. The train left the French capital Sunday night, but was delayed on what normally is a seven-hour trip to maintain its proportionate distance from Oldenzaal with the German train.

Ambassador Colondre of France and his party of thirty reached Oldenzaal from Berlin Monday night. The members of the two embassies greeted each other cordially in the station, which was under the guard of Dutch soldiers. The homeward-bound trains departed at 7 A. M.

The train bearing Sir Nevile Henderson, British Ambassador to Berlin, crossed into the Netherlands en route to Rotterdam, while the Dutch steamship Batavia IV brought the German London embassy staff into Dutch territorial waters. From Rotterdam the Germans will go by train to Berlin.

The liner Statendam sailed for New York from Rotterdam with more than 1,600 passengers and without some members of the "extra crew" who had demanded extra pay because of the possible risk. The Holland America line announced, nevertheless, that the ship was adequately manned and planned to follow her regular course.

Sir Nevile Henderson, British Ambassador to Berlin, arrived at Rotterdam from Germany tonight and with his party proceeded to the Hague. When the British party left the station by auto, Dr. Kordt, the German chargé d'affaires in London, landed from the steamer Batavia IV from England and entered a train that will return him to Germany.

Coulondre Arrives in Paris

PARIS, Sept. 5 (A. P.).—The man who delivered France's declaration of war on Germany, Ambassador Robert Coulondre, returned to Paris today and passed almost unnoticed among the crowds of refugees at the North station.

The sad-faced ambassador and his staff arrived on a special train. He went immediately to the foreign office to report to Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet.

Henderson Awaited in London

LONDON, Sept. 5 (A. P.).—The British Ministry of Information said today Sir Nevile Henderson and his entire embassy staff had arrived at Rotterdam from Oldenzaal, on the German-Netherlands frontier, and were expected to leave "shortly" for England.

DUCE POPULAR IN PEACE ROLE

Hold on Italian People Has Never Been So Strong.

NATION NEVER LIKED THE AXIS

End of Military Pact With Nazis Is Believed in Sight.

ROME, Sept. 5 (A. P.).—Premier Mussolini has Europe guessing as to which way Italy will turn, now that war has come with Italy still on the side lines.

The man who for years told Italians they were a warrior people and insisted war is "a natural event in the life of a people," is for the moment Europe's chief apostle of peace.

Italian newspapers have stressed Il Duce's efforts to save the peace at the last minute, and have published documents to reveal his efforts.

The Premier indicates plainly he has no plan for involving Italy in war right now, for he has approved the sailing of Italy's two finest merchant vessels, the Rex and the Conte di Savoia, for the United States to carry hundreds of Americans home. The Rex will leave Naples Saturday and the Conte di Savoia September 13.

Virginio Gayda, the highly authoritative commentator, wrote in Il Giornale D'Italia that it must not be supposed Italy intends to be relegated to the background.

Believe Axis Is Finished.

"She will remain present and watching over the protection of all Italian interests and to make sure that the course of events takes that direction capable of giving and hurrying up, true peace with justice for Europe."

As Germany opened hostilities on Poland last Friday, Adolf Hitler said Germany needed no help. Germany [illegible] Italy have a military alliance.

Some observers believe the Rome-Berlin axis is finished. Others believe Mussolini is negotiating with Britain and France to see what Italy might gain by neutrality, or taking their side.

Others believe Mussolini is remaining neutral for the present so he can get supplies through Germany, then, when the time comes, he will step in on Hitler's side.

Only a few months ago Il Duce said if war came Italy's side was chosen—with Germany.

"We will march with Germany in the indivisible communion of two States and two peoples."

Mussolini at Popularity Peak.

Italians generally are delighted with the way things are going for Italy. Mussolini, at this moment, probably has more genuine admiration, devotion and affection from his people than in his whole long career.

Life is almost normal in Italy. The strain of a few days ago, when the people feared they were being plunged into a conflict, has diminished notably. The cities now are lighted at night. There is a shortage of coffee and sugar, but otherwise food is plentiful.

The Rome-Berlin axis never has been popular among all the people.

After months of propaganda about alleged injustices by France toward Italy, many Italians were resigned to fighting on Germany's side as a practical means of advancing Italian interests. Now that the propaganda has stopped and the people have expressed relief at not having to go to war at once, more remarks against the Germans are heard.

Official Statement Issued.

An official statement has been issued on Premier Mussolini's peace activities, saying that on August 31 Il Duce informed the English and French governments that upon receiving assurance of their adherence and Polish participation he would be in a position "to convoke an international conference on September 5 with the object of revising the clauses of the Versailles Treaty which are the cause of the present disturbance."

The statement adds that the French and English were not in position to reply before the next day, September 1, and, meanwhile, "frontier incidents occurred which prompted the Fuehrer to begin military operations."

Notwithstanding the military clash,' the French-English replies being favorable, the Italian Government "at 10 A. M., September 2, advised Chancellor Hitler there still was a possibility of convoking the conference" to settle the conflict by peaceful means. The statement continues:

"Chancellor Hitler replied that he desired to know first whether the note presented by the French and English to Berlin had the character of an ultimatum—in which case any negotiations would be useless—and whether he could count on having a period of twenty-four hours to reach his decision."

The reply from France and England was that evacuation of the occupied territory was a fundamental condition of their participation in any conference.

The Italian Government informed the Fuehrer of this condition, adding that "barring contrary advice from the German Government it saw no possibility of taking further action."

Italy, Counting On Peace, Razes Bomb Shelters

But Still Seizes Trucks; Press Expects Poland to Succumb in Few Weeks

ROME, Sept. 5 (AP).—Premier Benito Mussolini gae a new indication that he was not thinking of going to war at present as workmen began taking down air-raid shelters which had been erected hastily a week ago. The shelters consisted of planks laid against walls throughout the city. They were to hae been covered with sand bangs.

Illustrative of the confidence that Italy would maintain neutrality, restrictions were relaxed permitting public gatherings until midnight, an hour later than formerly. The government continued, however, to requisition trucks for taking supplies to the 1,700,000 men under arms.

Italians failed today to see how the British and French fleets could strike Germany hard enough to save Poland. Reports of the German Army's advances toward its eastern objectives were received with manifestations of pleasure as indicating that Fuehrer Adolf Hitler still could dispense with Italian aid.

Commentators said Hitler was carrying out his "solemn promise" to win the war with Poland in a few weeks. Much was made in the Fascist press of a situation in which, the newspapers said, the French had not yet fired a rifle shot. Headlines reporting "nothing new on the western front" were prominently displayed.

Gdynia, Warsaw and Cracow were reported in the press to be the three German objectives whose occupation could give ultimate victory.

In an article in "Forte Armate," an outstanding Italian military paper, Lieut. Col. Amedeo Tosti declared Poland's situation was desperate. He said it was virtually impossible for Poland to get supplies, asserted the superiority of Germany's 200 divisions over Poland's fifty divisions, spoke of the scarcity and weakness of Polish arms, and finally of the vulnerability of Polish territory to the German air force.

Polish forces in the corridor, represented in the Italian press as shut up on three sides and blockaded at sea, were reported as resisting along a strip of coast where operations already under way "will lead to a rapid attack on Gdynia."

"It does not seem risky," "La Tribuna" said, "to predict Polish troops will make every effort to prevent the Germans from reaching the coast, thus staking the outcome of the war on a single card—Warsaw."

JAPAN DECIDES TO MAINTAIN NEUTRAL STAND

Says She'll Keep Occupied Areas Out Of Conflict

Wants Elimination Of "Untoward Incidents" In China

Moscow, Sept. 5 (AP)—An important military conference of Soviet army and naval leaders was understood to have taken place.

No official announcement of the meeting was made.

[By the Associated Press]

Tokyo, Sept. 5—Japan announced her decision today to remain neutral in the European War and reiterated her responsibility for maintaining neutrality in the occupied areas of China.

TOKIO, Sept. 5 (A. P.).—Renzo Sawada, Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs, notified the British, American, Italian, French, German and Polish diplomatic representatives today of Japan's decision to remain neutral in the European war.

At the same time a Foreign Office statement drew "serious attention of the belligerent Powers to the desirability of elimination of all causes for untoward incidents between the (European) belligerent Powers in China."

This meant that Japan reiterated her responsibility for maintaining neutrality in the occupied areas of China.

Significantly the Soviet diplomatic representative was not invited. Some observers believe that Russian assistance to China in her war against Japan will be increased.

British Surrender Chinese.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 5 (A. P.).—Admiral Thomas C. Hart, Commander-in-Chief of the United States Asiatic Fleet, arrived here today from Tsingtao aboard the naval yacht Isabel to inspect the local situation.

In Tientsin the British handed over to a Japanese-dominated court of the North China Reformed Government four Chinese charged with killing a Chinese official of the Reformed Government. Great Britain's earlier refusal to hand them over led to the Japanese blockade of the British and French concessions in Tientsin which began earlier in June.

Renzo Sawada, vice-minister of foreign affairs, notified the British, American, Italian, French, German and Polish diplomatic representatives of her stand while the foreign office issued a statement drawing "serious attention . . . to the desirability of elimination of all causes for untoward incidents between the (European) belligerent powers in China."

In the absence of an invitation to the Soviet diplomatic representative to attend the meeting of the envoys, some observers saw a hint that Russian assistance to China in her war against Japan was expected to be increased.

TROTSKY ATTACKS SOVIET-NAZI PACT

Exiled Red Says Russia Takes Japan's Place.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 5 (A. P.).—Leon Trotsky, exiled former Soviet Russian war minister, today said Russia "in reality" took the place of Japan in the Facist axis by signing a nonaggression pact with Germany.

Denouncing the pact as a "capitulation of Stalin before Fascist imperialism with the end of preserving the Soviet oligarchy," Trotsky said:

"The help of the distant Mikado to the military operations of Hitler in Europe would have an almost illusory character. On the contrary, the help of Stalin has a deep, real value."

Trotsky, whose statement published today revealed he had been ill but gave no details, said Stalin, who exiled him a decade ago, "is afraid of war. His policy of capitulation toward Japan in recent years testifies to this."

Stating that the Supreme Soviet ratified the pact with Germany "at the same moment when German troops crossed the Polish border," he added that Germany wanted the pact "because Hitler needed the friendly 'neutrality' of the U. S. S. R., plus Soviet raw materials."

"In this grave moment, Mexico reaffirms its juridical conviction as to the peaceful settlement of international conflicts and, faithful to the spirit of continental solidarity, Mexico offers to answer all calls and to take part in all efforts toward the re-establishment of peace, the limitation of the scope of hostilities, or, at least, toward minimizing the ravages of destruction and death."

"And whereas it is the duty of a neutral government not to permit or suffer the making of its territory or territorial waters subservient to the purposes of war;

Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, in order to preserve the neutrality of the United States and of its citizens and of persons within its territory and jurisdiction, and to enforce its laws and treaties, and in order that all persons, being warned of the general tenor of the laws and treaties of the United States in this behalf, and of the law of nations, may thus be prevented from any violation of the same, do hereby declare and proclaim that by certain provisions of the act approved on the fourth day of March, A. D. 1917, the following acts are forbidden to be done, under severe penalties, within the territory and jurisdiction of the United States."

Mr. Roosevelt further proclaimed that for belligerent vessels to use American waters to prepare for hostile operations or as observation posts "must be regarded as unfriendly and offensive, and in violation of that neutrality which it is the determination of this Government to observe."

He issued an executive order giving specific instructions to the various Government departments to carry out the various provisions.

Mr. Roosevelt said that from today on during the life of this proclamation no warship of a belligerent should be permitted to use an American port for any warlike purpose or to obtain warlike equipment; no privateer of a belligerent should be permitted to depart from any American port; no warship should be permitted to leave an American port until after the expiration of at least twenty-four hours after the departure of an opposing warship.

Stay Must Be Brief.

The President proclaimed that no warship should be permitted to remain in an American port or waters more than twenty-four hours except in case of bad weather or for delay in receiving supplies or repairs, or when detained by the United States.

He fixed the maximum number of ships of war belonging to a belligerent and its allies which might be in a United States port simultaneously at three.

The President said that all the provisions of the proclamation shall also apply to the Canal Zone except in so far as they may be modified by a special Canal Zone proclamation.

"I do hereby give notice," the President proclaimed, "that all nationals of the United States and others who may claim the protection of this Government, who may misconduct themselves in the premises, will do so at their peril, and that they can in no way obtain any protection from this Government or the United States against the consequences of their misconduct."

Mr. Roosevelt, specifically mentioning the countries at war, omitted Canada and British South Africa, because they had not yet formally declared war.

PANAMA ISSUES BIDS TO PARLEY

Calls Conference Of American Republics To Discuss Peace In Hemisphere

Delegates Not Expected To Consider Military and Naval Matters

(By the Associated Press)

Washington, Sept. 5—With the blessing of the United States Government, the republic of Panama issued invitations tonight to all the American republics to attend a conference designed to preserve peace in the Western Hemisphere, maintain normal trade and prevent financial disturbances on this continent as a result of Europe's war.

It was learned at the State Department that the Panamanian Government was sending out the invitations in the name of itself, the United States, Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru, Colombia, Cuba and Mexico.

Suggest Conference

The State Department disclosed that a number of South American governments had suggested that there should be some consultation in line with the declaration of Pan-American solidarity which was approved by the international conference at Lima, Peru, last year.

It was decided, however, to wait until an actual declaration of war before arranging such a consultation.

Several of the American republics decided to ask Panama to send out the invitations.

Emphasis was placed in well-informed circles here upon the fact that the conference was not likely to consider military and naval matters.

To Exchange Views

Instead, it was suggested, views would be exchanged as to the best means of preserving peace on this continent, the steps which different governments may be planning to take in an effort to preserve neutrality, and what measures could be taken to preserve normal trade.

Steps to see that other interests are not prejudiced also would be considered, it was said, and ways would be sought of preventing economic and financial disturbances detrimental to inter-American relations.

Date Not Disclosed

The date for the conference was not disclosed, but it was reported that some countries had suggested late this month.

In the declaration of Pan-American solidarity, which was adopted at the Lima conference, the American republics affirmed their intention to collaborate in maintaining Pan-American principles. They also agreed to defend those principles against all foreign intervention or activity that might threaten them.

Neutrality Act: How It Works

New York, Sept. 5 (AP)— President Roosevelt's invocation of the Neutrality Act cancels deliveries on about 600 American-made warplanes of high performance to France, England and Australia.

Orders which have been in the process of being filled are about fifty per cent. completed.

Total foreign orders yet unfilled by American aircraft and engine manufacturers, with delivery dates up to April, 1940, aggregate between $45,000,000 and $50,000,000.

Of that, about eighty per cent. represents military planes and engines which had been destined for England, France, Australia and Canada. Those for Canada can still be delivered under the act unless the dominion decides to join Australia, New Zealand and Great Britain in making war on Germany.

In the first seven months of this year, total foreign shipments, military and non-military, have been valued at $58,000,000.

Of the combatant nations, Germany and Poland have not ordered military aircraft from this country.

Orders only half completed include:
200 Curtiss pursuits, with an option for 300 more, to France.
250 Lockheed bombers to England and 50 to Australia.
100 Douglas bombers to France.
215 Martin bombers to France.
400 North American basic combat planes to England and 15 to Canada.
40 Vought fighters to France.

Section 12 of the said joint resolution provides as follows: "In every case of the violation of any of the provisions of this act or of any rule or regulation issued pursuant thereto where a specific penalty is not herein provided, such violator or violators, upon conviction, shall be fined not more than $10,000, or imprisoned not more than five years, or both."

Section 11 of the said joint resolution provides as follows:

"The President may, from time to time, promulgate such rules and regulations, not consistent with law, as may be necessary and proper to carry out any of the provisions of this act; and he may exercise any power or authority conferred on him by this act through such officer or officers, or agency or agencies, as he shall direct."

The President's proclamation of Sept. 5, 1939, issued pursuant to the provisions of Section 1 of the abovementioned joint resolution, provides in part as follows:

"And I do hereby delegate to the Secretary of State the power to exercise any power or authority conferred on me by the said joint resolution, as made effective by the proclamation issued thereunder, and the power to promulgate such rules and regulations not inconsistent with law as may be necessary and proper to carry out any of its provisions"

In pursuance of those provisions of the law and of the President's proclamation of Sept. 5, 1939, which are quoted above, the Secretary of State announces the following regulations:

WAR BOARD SETS UP SENTINELS ON PRICES

Asks Data to Bar 'Abnormal' Increases on Commodities

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (AP).—The War Resources Board, it was learned today, has put administration economists to work watching commodity price trends under war conditions as a precautionary step against abnormal price increases.

The board was reported to have enlisted the services of the Labor and Agriculture Departments and the Federal Reserve oBard in this work.

The Labor Department's weekly survey of wholesale commodity price changes is expected to be one of the chief yardsticks for keeping check on price trends and the movement of important commodities on the markets.

For the week ending Aug. 26, when European diplomats carried on negotiations to head off a war, the department's wholesale price index showed an advance in prices for livestock, grains and other food materials. In other key commodities little change in price was evident.

As a pattern for its current studies of price trends, the board will have the department's earlier indexes showing a marked increase in commodity prices from December, 1914, to June, 1920.

During this war period the index to the cost of goods purchased by wage-earners rose from 58.9 per cent in December, 1914, to 121.2 per cent in June, 1920. The index is keyed to the price averages of the 1923-25 period.

or pursuits therein; and whereas there are nationals of each of the said belligerents residing within the territory of jurisdiction of the United States, and carrying on commerce, trade, or other business or pursuits therein; and whereas the laws and treaties of the United States, without interfering with the free expression of opinion or sympathy, nevertheless impose upon all persons who may be within their territory and jurisdiction the duty of an impartial neutrality during the existence of this contest;

And whereas it is the duty of a neutral government not to permit or suffer the making of its territory or territorial waters subservient to the purposes of war;

Forbidden Acts

Now, therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, in order to preserve the neutrality of the United States and of its citizens and of persons within its territory and jurisdiction, and to enforce its laws and treaties, and in order that all persons, being warned of the general tenor of the laws and treaties of the United States in this behalf, and of the laws of nations, may thus be prevented from any violation of the same, do hereby declare and proclaim that by certain provisions of the act approved on the 4th day of March, A. D. 1909, commonly known as the "Penal Code of the United States" and of the act approved on the 15th day of June, A. D. 1909, as amended by the act of the 15th day of June, A. D. 1917, is not to be construed to extend to a citizen or subject of a belligerent, who, being transiently within the jurisdiction of the United States, shall, on board of any ship of war, which, at the time of its arrival within the jurisdiction of the United States, was fitted and equipped as such ship of war, enlist or enter himself or hire or retain another subject or citizen of the same belligerent, who is transiently within the jurisdiction of the United States, to enlist or enter himself, to serve such belligerent on board such ship of war, if the United States shall then be at peace with such belligerent.)

Arming of Ships

8. Fitting out and arming, or attempting to fit out and arm, or procuring to be fitted out and armed, or knowingly being concerned in the furnishing, fitting out or arming of any ship or vessel with intent that such ship or vessel shall be employed in the service of one of the said belligerents to cruise, or commit hostilities against the subjects, citizens, or property of an opposing belligerent.

Dispatching of Vessels

Dispatching from the United States, or any place subject to the jurisdiction thereof, any armed vessel owned wholly or in part by American citizens, or any vessel, domestic or foreign (other than one which has entered the jurisdiction of the United States as a public vessel), which is manifestly built for warlike purposes or has been converted or adapted from a private vessel to one suitable for warlike use, and which is to be employed to cruise against or commit or attempt to commit hostilities upon the subjects, citizens, or property of a belligerent nation, or which will be sold or delivered to a belligerant nation, or to an agent, officer or citizen thereof, within the jurisdiction of the United States, or, having left that jurisdiction, upon the high seas.

14. Dispatching from the United States, or any place subject to the jurisdiction thereof, any vessel built, armed, or equipped as a ship of war, or converted from a private vessel into a ship of war (other than one which has entered the jurisdiction of the United States as a public vessel), with any intent or under any agreement or contract, written or oral, that such vessel shall be delivered to a belligerent nation, or to any agent, officer, or citizen of such nation, or where there is reasonable cause to believe that the said vessel shall or will be employed in the service of such belligerent nation after its departure from the jurisdiction of the United States.

15. Taking, or attempting or conspiring to take, or authorizing the taking of any vessel out of port or from the jurisdiction of the United States in violation of the said act of the 15th day of June, A. D. 1917, as set forth in the preceding paragraphs numbered 11 to 14 inclusive.

16. Leaving or attempting to leave the jurisdiction of the United States by a person belonging to the armed land or naval forces of a belligerent who shall have been interned within the jurisdiction of the United States in accordance with the law of nations, or leaving or attempting to leave the limits of internment in which freedom of movement has been allowed, without permission from the proper official of the United States in charge, or willfully overstays a leave of absence granted by such official.

Text of Roosevelt's Proclamation of United States Neutrality

SEP 5 1939

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5 (AP).—Following is the text of the neutrality proclamation issued today by President Roosevelt:

PROCLAIMING THE NEUTRALITY OF THE UNITED STATES IN THE WAR BETWEEN GERMANY AND FRANCE; POLAND; AND THE UNITED KINGDOM, INDIA, AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

A PROCLAMATION:

Whereas a state of war unhappily exists between Germany and France; Poland; and the United Kingdom, India, Australia and New Zealand.

And whereas the United States is on terms of friendship and amity with the contending powers, and with the persons inhabiting their several dominions; and whereas there are nationals of the United States residing within the territories or dominions of each of the said belligerents, and carrying on commerce, trade, or other business

30 24 — 3063

17. Aiding or enticing any interned person to escape or attempt to escape from the jurisdiction of the United States, or from the limits of internment prescribed.

Use of U. S. Waters

And I do hereby further declare and proclaim that any frequenting and use of the waters within the territorial jurisdiction of the United States by the vessels of a belligerent, whether public ships or privateers for the purpose of preparing for hostile operations, or as posts of observation upon the ships of war or privateers or merchant vessels of an opposing belligerent must be regarded as unfriendly and offensive, and in violation of that neutrality which it is the determination of this government to observe; and to the end that the hazard and inconvenience of such apprehended practices may be avoided;

I further proclaim and declare that from and after the fifth day of September instant, and so long as this proclamation shall be in effect, no ship of war or privateer of any belligerent shall be permitted to make use of any port, harbor, roadstead, or waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States as a station or place of resort for any warlike purpose or for the purpose of obtaining warlike equipment; no privateer of a belligerent shall be permitted to depart from any port, harbor, roadstead, or waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States; and no ship of war of a belligerent shall be permitted to sail out or leave any port, harbor, roadstead, or waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States from which a vessel of an opposing belligerent (whether the same shall be a ship of war or a merchant ship) shall have previously departed, until after the expiration of at least twenty-four hours from the departure of such last mentioned vessel beyond the jurisdiction of the United States.

If any ship of war of a belligerent shall, after the time this notification takes effect, be found in, or shall enter any port, harbor, roadstead or waters subject to the jurisidiction of the United States, such vessel shall not be permitted to remain in such port, harbor, roadstead, or waters more than twenty-four hours, except in case of stress of weather, or for delay in receiving supplies or repairs, or when detained by the United States; in any of which cases the authorities of the port, or of the nearest port (as the case may be), shall require her to put to sea as soon as the cause of the delay is at an end, unless within the preceding twenty-four hours a vessel, whether ship of war or merchant ship of an opposing belligerent, shall have departed therefrom, in which case the time limited for the departure of such ship of war shall be extended so far as may be necessary to secure an interval of not less than twenty-four hours between such departure and that of any ship of war or merchant ship of an opposing belligerent which may have previously quit the same port, harbor, roadstead, or waters

Vessels used exclusively for scientific, religious or philanthropic purposes are exempted from the foregoing provisions as to the length of time ships of war may remain in the ports, harbors, roadsteads, or waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States.

The maximum number of ships of war belonging to a belligerent and its allies which may be in one of the ports, harbors or roadsteads subject to the jurisdiction of the United States simultaneously shall be three.

When ships of war of opposing belligerents are present simultaneously in the same port, harbor, roadstead or waters, subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, the one entering first shall depart first, unless she is in condition as to warrant extending her stay. In any case the ship which arrived later has the right to notify the other through the competent local authority that within twenty-four hours she will leave such port, harbor, roadstead or waters, the one first entering, however, having the right to depart within that time. If the one first entering leaves, the notifying ship must observe the prescribed interval of twenty-four hours. If a delay beyond twenty-four hours from the time of arrival is granted, the termination of the cause of delay will be considered the time of arrival in deciding the right of priority in departing.

Vessels of a belligerent shall not be permitted to depart successively from any port, harbor, roadstead or waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States at such intervals as will delay the departure of a ship of war of an opposing belligerent from such ports, harbors, roadsteads or waters for more than twenty-four hours beyond her desired time of sailing. If, however, the departure of several ships of war and merchant ships of opposing belligerents from the same port, harbor, roadstead or waters is involved, the order of their departure therefrom shall be so arranged as to afford the opportunity of leaving alternately to the vessels of the opposing belligerents, and to cause the least detention consistent with the objects of this proclamation.

Radio Limitations

All belligerent vessels shall refrain from use of their radio and signal apparatus while in the harbors, ports, roadsteads or waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, except for calls of distress and communications connected with safe navigation or arrangements for the arrival of the vessel within, or departure from, such harbors, ports, roadsteads or waters, or passage through such waters; provided that such communications will not be of direct material aid to the belligerent in the conduct of military operations against an opposing belligerent. The radio of belligerent merchant vessels may be sealed by the authorities of the United States, and such seals shall not be broken within the jurisdiction of the United States except by proper authority of the United States.

No ship of war of a belligerent shall be permitted, while in any port, roadstead or waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, to take in any supplies except provisions and such other things as may be requisite for the subsistence of her crew in amounts necessary to bring such supplies to her peace standard, and except such fuel, lubricants and feed water only as may be sufficient, with that already on board, to carry such vessel, if without any sail power, to the nearest port of her own country; or in case a vessel is rigged to go under sail, and may also be propelled by machinery, then half the quantity of fuel, lubricants and feed water which she would be entitled to have on board, if dependent upon propelling machinery alone, and no fuel, lubricants or feed water shall be again supplied to any such ship of war in the same or any other part, harbor, roadstead or waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States until after the expiration of three months from the time when such fuel, lubricants and feed water may have been last supplied to her within waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States. The amounts of fuel, lubricants and feed water allowable under the above provisions shall be based on the economical speed of the vessel, plus an allowance of 50 per centum for eventualities.

No ship of war of a belligerent shall be permitted, while in any port, harbor, roadstead or waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States, to make repairs beyond those that are essential to render the vessel seaworthy and which in no degree constitute an increase in her military strength. Repairs shall be made without delay. Damages which are found to have been produced by the enemy's fire shall in no case be repaired.

Authority for Repairs

No ship of war of a belligerent shall effect repairs or receive fuel, lubricants, feed water or provisions within the jurisdiction of the United States without written authorization of the proper authorities of the United States. Before such authorization will be issued, the commander of the vessel shall furnish to such authorities a written declaration, duly signed by such commander, stating the date, port and amounts of supplies last received in the jurisdiction of the United States, the amounts of fuel, lubricants, feed water and provisions on board, the port to which the vessel is proceeding, the economical speed of the vessel, the rate of consumption of fuel, lubricants and feed water at such speed, and the amount of each class of supplies desired. If repairs are desired, a similar declaration shall be furnished stating the cause of the damage and the nature of the repairs. In either case, a certificate shall be included to the effect that the desired services are in accord with the rules of the United States in that behalf.

No agency of the United States government shall, directly or indirectly, provide supplies or effect repairs to a belligerent ship of war.

No vessel of a belligerent shall exercise the right of search within the waters under the jurisdiction of the United States, nor shall prizes be taken by belligerent vessels within such waters. Subject to any applicable treaty provisions in force, prizes captured by belligerent vessels shall not enter any port, harbor, roadstead or waters under the jurisdiction of the United States except in case of unseaworthiness, stress of weather or want of fuel or provisions; when the cause has disappeared, the prize must leave immediately, and if a prize captured by a belligerent vessel enters any port, harbor, roadstead or waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States for any other reason than on account of unseaworthiness, stress of weather or want of fuel or provisions, or fails to leave as soon as the circumstances which justified its entrance are at an end, the prize with its officers and crew will be released and the prize crew will be interned. A belligerent prize court cannot be set up on territory subject to the jurisdiction of the United States or on a vessel in the ports, harbors, roadsteads or waters subject to the jurisdiction of the United States.

The provisions of this proclamation pertaining to ships of war shall apply equally to any vessel operating under public control for hostile or military purposes.

Neutrality of Residents

And I do further declare and proclaim that the statutes and the treaties of the United States and the law of nations alike require that no person, within the territory and jurisdiction of the United States, shall take part, directly or indirectly, in the said war, but shall remain at peace with all of the said belligerents, and shall maintain a strict and impartial neutrality.

And I do further declare and proclaim that the provisions of this proclamation shall apply to the Canal Zone except in so far as such provisions may be specifically modified by a proclamation or proclamations issued for the Canal Zone.

And I do hereby enjoin all nations of the United States, and all persons residing or being within the territory or jurisdiction of the United States, to observe the laws thereof, and to commit no act contrary to the provisions of the said statutes or treaties or in violation of the law of nations in that behalf.

And I hereby give notice that all nationals of the United States and others who may claim the protection of this government, who may misconduct themselves in the premises, will do so at their peril, and that they can in no wise obtain any protection from the government of the United States against the consequences of their misconduct.

This proclamation shall continue in full force and effect unless and until modified, revoked or otherwise terminated, pursuant to law.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington this fifth day of September in the year of Our Lord Nineteen hundred and thirty-nine, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and sixty-fourth.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

It's 'Westwall' to German Officials

(Special to The News)

Washington, D. C., Sept. 5.—Germany's fortifications facing the French frontier are known to German newspapers and officials as the "Westwall," the Nazi Embassy announced tonight. The name "Limes Line" is also, but less frequently, used.

The latter name, the officials explained, is derived from the Latin word "limes" — meaning "line"—and was used to designate the frontier during wars between the Teuton tribes and Julius Caesar in 58 B. C.

The more poetic name, "Siegfried Line," which takes the name of the Teutonic hero of the Niebelungen legends, was conferred unofficially when the fortifications were begun. Siegfried personifies the Nazi conception of the typical German—honest, brave and ready to sacrifice his life for the Fatherland.

BREMEN STILL UNREPORTED AFTER 6 DAYS

Biggest Merchant Marine On High Seas Believed Headed For Mexico

1939

Schedules For Shipping Slowed Down Further In Fear Of Attacks

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 5—The $20,000,000 German liner Bremen, biggest merchant marine prize now on the high seas, was still unreported tonight—a fugitive prowling furtively toward a safe harbor six days after leaving New York without passengers.

Under normal conditions the Bremen should have reached Bremerhaven yesterday, but since she sailed her wireless has been silent lest she betray her whereabouts.

Might Head For Mexico

Because it is regarded as unlikely now that she would try to run the British naval blockade, shipping men here believe the 51,656-ton ship might be heading for a country likely to remain neutral.

Like another North German Lloyd liner, the Columbus, it was thought the Bremen might head for Vera Cruz, Mexico. In any case it was held probable that the Bremen with her 900 officers and crew would be safe from sinking because of the value of the ship. Then again, it was possible she might already be in the hands of enemy naval craft.

While word of the Bremen was awaited, shipping schedules were slowed down further by the fear of submarine attacks or capture at sea.

Escorted Through Channel

The Gdynia America (Polish) liner Batory arrived from Gdynia, Poland and Copenhagen via Halifax, with 642 passengers and docked indefinitely at Hoboken, N. J., across the river from where the French liner Normandie and the Cunard White Star (British) liner Queen Mary are docked, with no immediate prospect of sailing back to Europe.

The Batory's captain disclosed the ship had been escorted through the English Channel by two British destroyers and also down the coast from Halifax.

The United States liner President Roosevelt, carrying 539 passengers, 125 above normal capacity, arrived today from Cobh, Ireland. She carried $21,000,000 in gold.

Cots lined corridors, public rooms and foyers. Most passengers were Americans and happy to be back.

The Cunard White Star liner Samaria, a day late, came up the bay behind the President Roosevelt with 693 passengers, 245 of them Americans. She carried between $12,000,000 and $15,000,000 in gold.

Took Zigzagged Course

Passengers said the Samaria observed blackouts at sea and zigzagged in accordance with wartime precautions.

The sailing of the President Roosevelt was advanced to tomorrow to speed back to Europe for more American refugees. Fifty men were assigned to paint giant American flags on each side of the ship fore and aft and to paint big flags on tarpaulins covering forward and after hatches. The name of the ship was also painted in big letters on the sides.

The Champlain, of the French Line, arrived with 1,178 passengers, 784 of them Americans. About sixty slept in cots set up in the gymnasium and lounges.

Blackouts were in effect during the crossing; wooden covers and black paper covered portholes and upper-deck windows.

Passengers Praise Liner

Passengers said the British and French statements of war were announced en route, but none reported seeing naval craft at any time.

Six hundred signed a petition praising the liner for "the perfect discipline, incessant care and unfailing courtesy" and expressing "our firm faith" that the "defense of democracy in France, England and elsewhere will be sans peur et sans reproche." (Without fear and without reproach).

Among the signers were actresses Helen Hayes, Madeleine Carroll and Ruth Draper; Dr. George Hamilton and Dr. Alfred Feuillerat, of Yale, and Dean Paul Ship Andrews, of Syracuse University.

Miss Carroll said she had turned over her 300-year-old chateau, situated twenty-six miles southwest of Paris, to the Sisters of the Poor for housing 200 orphans taken there when Paris was evacuated.

Ile De France Due Today

Two other French liners were en route. The De Grasse is due tomorrow and the Ile de France, which left Havre Saturday wtih more than 1,000 passengers, is somewhere at sea.

The Holland America liner Nieuw Amsterdam sailed from New York this afternoon with orders to omit regular stops at Plymouth, England, and Boulogne-Sur-Mer, France. Her departure was delayed two hours while workmen painted Dutch flags on her sides. She carried 295 passengers, including Prince Felix of Luxembourg and his son, Prince Jean.

SECOND NIGHT LEAD ATHENIA

LONDON, SEPT. 5-(AP)-BETWEEN 50 AND 60 PERSONS WERE BELIEVED TODAY TO HAVE LOST THEIR LIVES IN THE SINKING OF THE LINER ATHENIA BY WHAT THE SURVIVORS DECLARED WAS A SUBMARINE WHICH SHELLED THE STRICKEN VESSEL.

REPORTS FROM RESCUE VESSELS RECEIVED HERE AND AT THE STATE DEPARTMENT IN WASHINGTON INDICATED ABOUT 1,360 OF THE LINERS 1,418 PASSENGERS AND CREW HAD BEEN PICKED UP SUNDAY NIGHT IN THE OCEAN WASTES WEST OF SCOTLAND. THERE WERE 311 AMERICANS ON THE ATHENIA.

UNITED STATES OFFICIALS ANNOUNCED THE AMERICAN STEAMSHIP CITY OF FLINT HAD ABOARD 110 AMERICANS AND ABOUT 100 ALIEN SURVIVORS. PREVIOUSLY, THE DONALDSON LINE, OWNERS OF THE ATHENIA, HAD LISTED 506 SURVIVORS LANDED AT GALWAY, IRELAND; 497 AT GREENOCK, SCOTLAND; AND 150 ON THE YACHT SOUTHERN CROSS.

THE DONALDSON LINE HAD REPORTED LAST NIGHT THAT THE CITY OF FLINT PICKED UP ONLY EIGHT PERSONS.

1939

ABOUT 200 WERE SAID TO BE INJURED AND MANY SUFFERED FROM EXPOSURE.

THE SURVIVORS RIDICULED THE GERMAN ASSERTION THAT NO GERMAN SUBMARINE HAD TORPEDOED THE ATHENIA AND THAT THE LINER MUST HAVE STRUCK A MINE.

(OFFICIAL QUARTERS IN BERLIN ADVANCED THE MINE THEORY YESTERDAY).

CAPTAIN JAMES COOK, MASTER OF THE STRICKEN VESSEL, SAID THAT IMMEDIATELY AFTER THE TORPEDO WAS FIRED THE SUBMARINE ROSE TO THE SURFACE AND SHELLED THE ATHENIA.

HE SAID THERE WAS A "HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE."

"ONE SHELL CARRIED AWAY THE MAIN MAST," HE SAID.

"IT WAS EVIDENTLY AIMED AT THE WIRELESS ROOM BUT MISSED ITS MARK."

SEP 6 1939

OTHER OFFICERS AND PASSENGERS CORROBORATED HIS STATEMENT.

EARL STANHOPE, LORD PRESIDENT OF THE COUNCIL, TOLD THE HOUSE OF LORDS THERE WAS "NO QUESTION WHATEVER AS TO WHAT WAS THE CAUSE OF THE SINKING.

"THE MERE SUGGESTION THAT A MINE HAD BEEN LAID BY THIS COUNTRY IS OBVIOUSLY RIDICULOUS AND ABSURD.

"THAT PART OF THE SEA IS TOO DEEP FOR THE LAYING OF A MOORED MINE AND IT WOULD BE AN ABSURD PLACE TO PUT MINES BECAUSE GREAT BRITAIN IS ANXIOUS TO KEEP HER TRADE GOING IN AND OUT IN THE ORDINARY COURSE OF EVENTS WITHOUT INTERFERENCE FROM MINES."

HE SAID THERE WAS A RUMOR THAT "A SHOT WAS FIRED BUT THERE IS NO OFFICIAL CONFIRMATION OF IT YET."

THE ATHENIA WHICH WAS BOUND FOR CANADA, WAS SUNK SUNDAY NIGHT ABOUT 200 MILES WEST OF IRELAND.

CAPTAIN COOK WAS AMONG 430 SURVIVORS WHO WERE LANDED AT GALWAY BY THE NORWEGIAN STEAMER KNUT NELSON. TWO BRITISH DESTROYERS LANDED 600 OTHERS, INCLUDING 200 INJURED, AT GREENOCK.

ONE SURVIVOR, JOHN MCEWAN OF GLASGOW, SAID IT WAS "RUMORED THAT 90 PERISHED." OTHERS SAID THE FIGURE WAS FAR GREATER AND POINTED OUT THAT A SCORE OR MORE MUST HAVE BEEN DROWNED WHEN A LIFEBOAT FULL OF WOMEN WAS SHATTERED BY THE PROPELLER OF THE KNUT NELSON DURING RESCUE EFFORTS.

PATHETIC SCENES OCCURRED AS SURVIVORS WERE LANDED AT GALWAY AND GREENOCK UNITING FAMILIES WHO HAD BEEN SEPARATED AS THEY CROWDED INTO LIFEBOATS.

PATHETIC SCENES OCCURRED AS SURVIVORS WERE LANDED AT GALWAY AND GREENOCK UNITING FAMILIES WHO HAD BEEN SEPARATED AS THEY CROWDED INTO LIFEBOATS.

SEP 6 1939

CHILDREN WHO HAD LOST THEIR PARENTS WERE CARRIED WEEPING FROM THE RESCUE SHIPS TO HOTELS OR HOSPITALS.

MOST OF THE RESCUED WERE SCANTILY CLAD IN PAJAMAS OR OTHER LIGHT CLOTHING AND MANY OF THEM WERE WITHOUT SHOES. THEY HAD SPENT HOURS IN OPEN BOATS-- SOME AS LONG AS TWELVE HOURS.

30.24-3067

3024—3067

MCEWAN, DESCRIBING THE ORDEAL, SAID:

"WE HAD A TERRIBLE TIME, AND WE KNEW AT ONCE WHAT IT WAS. WE ALL PUT ON OUR LIFEBELTS AND WENT TO OUR STATIONS. THE SUBMARINE THEN DIVED OUT OF SIGHT AND SEVERAL TIMES DURING THE NIGHT WHEN WE WERE IN THE LIFEBOATS WE HEARD THE SUBMARINE PASSING BELOW US.

A3

ONE MEMBER OF THE RESCUE CREWS RELATED:

"I SAW A GROUP OF FIVE BOATS AND IN THE WATER A NUMBER OF YOUNG CHILDREN WHO HAD BEEN DROWNED. THE BOATS WERE FULL, SOME OF THEM BADLY FLOODED, AND SOME HAD PEOPLE CLINGING TO THEIR SIDES."

AT GALWAY MAXINE ROBINSON, 16, OF AUSTIN, TEX., ONE OF 16 COLLEGE GIRLS FINISHING A VACATION IN EUROPE, SAID, "WE WERE IN THE LIFEBOAT ONLY A FEW MINUTES WHEN THERE WAS A FLASH AND WE FELT SOMETHING WHIZ PAST US GOING IN THE DIRECTION OF THE LINER."

ALL OF HER PARTY WERE SAVED.

ROBERT GILLAN OF GLASGOW, A MEMBER OF THE ATHENIA'S CREW, SAID HE SAW A 12-YEAR-OLD GIRL LYING DEAD IN A DECK CHAIR, HER BODY TORN BY SHELL SPLINTERS.

A BLOW FROM THE PROPELLER OF THE NORWEGIAN SHIP MAY HAVE COST THE LIVES OF MORE THAN A SCORE OF WOMEN WHEN THEIR LIFEBOAT FOUNDERED UNDER THE IMPACT.

SEP 6 1939

ONE OF MOST PATHETIC SURVIVORS WAS FRAU HUBSCHER, A GERMAN WOMAN ABLE TO SPEAK ONLY A FEW WORDS OF ENGLISH, WHO WAS TAKING HER 15-YEAR-OLD SON AND NINE-YEAR-OLD DAUGHTER TO THE UNITED STATES TO JOIN HER HUSBAND, A NATURALIZED AMERICAN. THE TWO CHILDREN WERE TAKEN INTO A LIFEBOAT AND FRAU HUBSCHER WAS BEING LOWERED WHEN THE ROPE SNAPPED. SHE WAS TAKEN IN ANOTHER BOAT AND HAD NOT SEEN THE CHILDREN SINCE.

A MRS.FISHER OF NEW YORK, TOO DISTRAUGHT TO TAKE ANY FOOD, SAT IN A HOTEL AT GLASGOW ASKING FOR NEWS OF HER SIX-YEAR-OLD SON.

SEP 6 1939

"WHEN THE ATHENIA WAS STRUCK," SHE SAID, "I RUSHED OUT OF MY CABIN CALLING FOR MY SON. I SAW HIM AT ONE OF THE COMPANIONWAYS BUT BEFORE I GOT TO HIM EVERYTHING WAS PLUNGED IN DARKNESS.

"I NEVER SAW MY BOY AGAIN. I DISTINCTLY SAW THE GERMAN SUBMARINE COME TO THE SURFACE AFTER IT HAD TORPEDOED US."

MRS.FISHER WAS WEARING A THIN COTTON DRESS. SHE HAD NO SHOES, FOR LIKE MANY OTHER PASSENGERS SHE HAD GIVEN THEM TO BE USED TO BAIL THE LIFEBOAT. HER ARMS AND LEGS WERE BADLY BRUISED.

A4

ONE GROUP IN GLASGOW WAS TOM CONNOLLY OF NEW YORK, HIS WIFE AND THREE YOUNG BOYS. MRS.CONNOLLY HAD A DEEP GASH ACROSS HER FOREHEAD.

SEP 6 1939

A MRS.SUTHERLAND, 60-YEAR-OLD OHIO WOMAN, SICK IN BED WHEN THE ATHENIA WAS TORPEDOED, WAS HOISTED BY ROPES TO A LIFEBOAT. "I RECEIVED INJURIES ALL OVER MY BODY," SHE SAID, "AND I WAS IN THE SMALL BOAT FOR TEN HOURS BEFORE BEING PICKED UP."

MRS.KATHLEEN SOMMERVILLE OF TORONTO SAID, "I WAS WITH MY SON DAVID IN A CABIN WHEN SUDDENLY I HEARD A TREMENDOUS EXPLOSION.

"MY FIRST THOUGHT WAS FOR MY CHILD. I HANDED HIM INTO A LIFEBOAT. I GOT INTO ANOTHER LIFEBOAT. TWELVE HOURS LATER I WAS PICKED UP BY A WARSHIP.

"YOU CAN IMAGINE HOW DELIGHTED I WAS WHEN I FOUND THAT DAVID WAS SAFE UPON MY ARRIVAL AT GREENOCK."

THOMAS MCCUBBIN OF MONTCLAIR, N.J., TOLD A STORY OF A MOTHER'S EFFORT TO SAVE HER BABY.

"I WAS STANDING ON A LADDER HELPING WOMEN AND CHILDREN INTO LIFEBOATS," SHE SAID, "WHEN A WOMAN THREW HER INFANT INTO MY ARMS LIKE A SACK OF POTATOES CRYING, "FOR GODS SAKE SAVE MY CHILD. I SAW MOTHER AND CHILD REUNITED AT GREENOCK TODAY.

"I CAN TELL YOU THAT THE GERMAN SUBMARINE GAVE US ABSOLUTELY NO WARNING BEFORE SHE TORPEDOED US."

A 17-YEAR-OLD BOY, HARRY BRIDGE, AND HIS MOTHER OF (640 MERCHANT STREET) ABILENE, TEX., WERE ALSO AMONG THE SURVIVORS.

"I HAD GONE UP TO THE DECK WHERE WE SAT DOWN NEAR THE STERN. SUDDENLY THERE WAS A TERRIFIC EXPLOSION. CLOUDS OF SMOKE AROSE FROM THE SIDES OF THE SHIP AND A HUGE SPOUT OF WATER JUMPED ABOUT 70 FEET ABOVE THE BOAT AND CAME DOWN INTO THE LIFEBOATS, HALF FILLING THEM.

"MY FRIEND SHELDON GUNN WAS GOING TO JOIN HIS AIRFORCE UNIT IN CANADA. HE WAS THROWN DOWN THE HATCH. I NEVER SAW HIM AGAIN.

"I MADE MY WAY ALONG THE COMPANIONWAY TO GET MY LIFEBELT FROM MY CABIN. ON THE WAY I MET MY 19-YEAR-OLD SISTER CONSTANCE AND SHE GAVE ME INSTRUCTIONS WHERE TO MEET HER.

"WHEN I REACHED MY BOAT STATION I COULD NOT SEE HER. MOTHER AND I GOT INTO A BOAT AND JUST AS IT WAS PULLING OFF I SAW CONSTANCE IN ANOTHER BOAT. NEITHER OF US NOW KNOWS WHERE SHE IS."

WASHINGTON,SEPT. 5-(AP)-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT SAID AT HIS PRESS CONFERENCE TODAY THAT AMERICANS HAD A RIGHT UNDER INTERNATIONAL LAW TO RETURN TO THE UNITED STATES ON THE LINER ATHENIA, WHICH WAS SUNK OFF THE BRITISH COAST SUNDAY NIGHT.

HE SAID IT HAD BEEN DECIDED THAT AMERICAN VESSELS BRINGING HOME AMERICAN CITIZENS FROM EUROPE WOULD NOT BE PROVIDED WITH CONVOYS OF NAVAL VESSELS.

SEP 6 1939

THE PRESIDENT SAID THE CONSENSUS BOTH OF OFFICIALS IN THIS COUNTRY AND IN THE EMBASSIES IN LONDON AND PARIS, WAS THAT IT PROBABLY WAS SAFER FOR AMERICANS TO TRAVEL ON SHIPS OF THEIR OWN NATION, WITH FLAGS PAINTED ALL OVER THE VESSELS, THE LIGHTS ON, AND RUNNING ON USUAL ROUTES WITHOUT ZIGZAGING.

THE PRESIDENT ADDED THAT THERE WERE CERTAIN IMMEDIATE PROBLEMS OF PATROLLING OUR OWN WATERS AND THAT ACCORDINGLY IT SEEMED DESIRABLE TO PUT INTO COMMISSION SOME OF THE OLD WORLD WAR TYPE OF DESTROYERS. CREWS WILL BE NEEDED FOR THEM.

PEOPLE CARRYING PACKAGES AND BUNDLES BEGAN MOVING TOWARD THE SUBURBS.

CAUSING MUCH WONDER WAS THE FACT THAT POLISH PURSUIT PLANES DID NOT RISE TO MEET GERMAN BOMBERS AS THEY FLEW OVER THE CITY.

THE MASS MOVEMENT OUT OF WARSAW BECAME HEAVIER TOWARD EVENING WITH ALL AVAILABLE CARS, HORSES AND BICYCLES UTILIZED TO CARRY MEN, WOMEN, CHILDREN, HOUSEHOLD GOODS AND LUGGAGE OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS.

DESPITE THE EGRESS, HOWEVER, SEVERAL HUNDRED THOUSAND PERSONS WERE STILL IN WARSAW.

DURING THE DAY AUTOMOBILES, AND EVEN HORSES, COULD BE HIRED ONLY AT A HIGH PREMIUM. GASOLINE WAS ALMOST UNOBTAINABLE, THE GOVERNMENT HAVING REQUISITIONED NEARLY ALL SUPPLIES FOR PURPOSES OF WAR.

Buenos Aires, Sept. 5—(AP)—German shipmasters played a frantic game of hide and seek with British men of war today along the South American coastline as the second Nazi freighter, the 6,500 (correct) ton Carl Fritzen, was sunk by heavy guns of British [redacted].

SEP 6 1939

A brief communique issued by the British Admiralty announced the Carl Fritzen was destroyed but her crew of 50 was saved.

Shipping circles said the ship, which was due here next Thursday to load a big wheat cargo for Germany, probably was a victim of the cruiser Ajax, which last Sunday sank the German ship Olinda and sent her crew to Montevideo aboard a British tanker.

Agents of the Carl Fritzen said they were without information of the whereabouts of her crew [redacted] and instructed German interests to watch the coastal cities of Brazil, Uruguay and Argentine for notice of their arrival.

MANILA,P.I.,SEPT.5-(AP)-PRESIDENT MANUEL QUEZON ASKED THE PHILIPPINE ASSEMBLY TODAY "TO EMPOWER THE GOVERNMENT TO MEET ANY EMERGENCY THAT MAY ARISE" AS A RESULT OF THE EUROPEAN WAR.

FORTUNATELY, HE SAID, THE UNITED STATES WAS AT PEACE WITH THE WORLD AND THE PHILIPPINES CONSEQUENTLY REMAINED NEUTRAL.

"AS A NEUTRAL POWER, HOWEVER, AMERICA HAS CERTAIN OBLIGATIONS TO PERFORM NOT ONLY IN THE CONTINENTAL UNITED STATES BUT IN THE PHILIPPINES AS WELL," QUEZON ADDED. "IT BEHOOVES US THEREFORE TO ASSURE THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF OUR LOYALTY AND DEVOTION."

WASHINGTON,SEPT. 5-(AP)-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT PROCLAIMED NEUTRALITY IN THE PANAMA CANAL ZONE TODAY AND ALSO ISSUED AN EXECUTIVE ORDER DESIGNED TO "PREVENT DAMAGE OR INJURY TO THE CANAL."

IN A SPECIAL PROCLAMATION CONCERNING NEUTRALITY IN THE CANAL ZONE, THE PRESIDENT PRESCRIBED THAT:

BELLIGERENT WARSHIPS CANNOT REMAIN IN THE CANAL ZONE MORE THAN 24 HOURS; THE MAXIMUM NUMBER OF WARSHIPS OF A BELLIGERENT AND ITS ALLIES IN THE CANAL AT ONE TIME SHALL BE SIX; A BELLIGERENT WARSHIP MUST NOT LEAVE PORT WITHIN 24 HOURS AFTER THE DEPARTURE OF AN OPPOSING SHIP; IT SHALL NOT EMBARK OR DISEMBARK TROOPS OR WAR EQUIPMENT.

SEP 6 1939

A BELLIGERENT WARSHIP MAY RECEIVE REPAIRS AND SUPPLIES ONLY IN SUCH AMOUNTS AS WILL ENABLE IT TO PROCEED TO THE NEAREST ACCESSIBLE PORT.

BELLIGERENT AIRCRAFT MAY NOT FLY OVER THE CANAL ZONE.

THE EXECUTIVE ORDER, DESIGNED TO PROTECT THE CANAL, GIVES THE

CANAL AUTHORITIES THE RIGHT TO "INSPECT ANY VESSEL, BELLIGERENT AND NEUTRAL, OTHER THAN A PUBLIC VESSEL, INCLUDING ITS CREW AND CARGO, AND FOR AND DURING THE PASSAGE THROUGH THE CANAL, PLACE ARMED GUARDS THEREON, AND TAKE FULL POSSESSION AND CONTROL OF SUCH VESSEL AND REMOVE THEREFROM THE OFFICERS AND CREW THEREOF AND ALL OTHER PERSONS NOT SPECIALLY AUTHORIZED BY THE CANAL AUTHORITIES TO GO OR REMAIN ON BOARD THEREOF DURING SUCH PASSAGE."

THE ORDER ALSO PROVIDES THAT A PUBLIC VESSEL OF A BELLIGERENT OR NEUTRAL NATION SHALL BE PERMITTED TO PASS THROUGH THE CANAL "ONLY AFTER HER COMMANDING OFFICER HAS GIVEN WRITTEN ASSURANCE TO THE AUTHORITIES OF THE PANAMA CANAL THAT THE RULES, REGULATIONS, AND TRA-TIES OF THE UNITED STATES WILL BE FAITHFULLY OBSERVED."

NEUTRALITY

WASHINGTON, SEPT 5-(AP)-BECAUSE CANADA IS STILL TECHNICALLY A NEUTRAL NATION, THE NEUTRALITY ACT PROCLAIMED TONIGHT DOES NOT CUT OFF THE SHIPMENT OF AMERICAN ARMS AND MUNITIONS TO HER FOR HER OWN USE.

HOWEVER, AN OFFICIAL SAID, IT DOES PROHIBIT THE SHIPMENT OF SUCH ARMS TO CANADA IF THEY ARE TO BE RE-SHIPPED FROM THERE TO BELLIGERENT NATIONS.

SEP 6 1939

ON THIS POINT THE OFFICIAL SAID THE NEUTRALITY ACT OF MAY 1, 1937, WHICH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT PROCLAIMED TONIGHT, IS CLEAR. IT SAYS THAT "WHENEVER THE PRESIDENT SHALL FIND THAT THERE EXISTS A STATE OF WAR. . . IT SHALL THEREAFTER BE UNLAWFUL. . . TO EXPORT. . . ARMS, AMMUNITION, OR IMPLEMENTS OF WAR. . . TO ANY BELLIGERENT STATE. . . OR TO ANY NEUTRAL STATE FOR TRANSSHIPMENT TO, OR FOR THE USE OF, ANY SUCH BELLIGERENT STATE."

CONSEQUENTLY AMERICAN EXPORTERS CAN NOT SEND WAR MATERIALS INTO CANADA WHICH WILL BE USED IN ANY WAY BY GREAT BRITAIN.

IT IS EXPECTED HERE THAT CANADA SOON WILL FOLLOW THE EXAMPLE OF AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND AND DECLARE WAR AGAINST GERMANY, IN WHICH CASE WAR MATERIALS CANNOT BE SENT TO CANADA IN ANY CASE.

IT WILL BE POSSIBLE FOR AMERICAN CAPITAL, DESPITE THE NEUTRALITY ACT, TO ESTABLISH FACTORIES IN CANADA OR TO AMPLIFY AMERICAN-OWNED FACTORIES ALREADY EXISTING THERE, WHICH MIGHT ENGAGE IN MANUFACTURING WAR EQUIPMENT FOR GREAT BRITAIN, AN INFORMED OFFICIAL SAID. AMERICANS ALREADY HAVE LARGER INVESTMENTS IN CANADA THAN IN ANY OTHER COUNTRY--AN AMOUNT ESTIMATED AT MORE THAN $3,000,000,000.

THERE IS NO PROHIBITION IN THE NEUTRALITY ACT AGAINST SENDING CANADA ALL THE RAW MATERIALS AMERICANS CAN SELL HER. THESE MIGHT BE CONVERTED INTO WAR EQUIPMENT AND SENT TO ENGLAND WITHOUT ANY VIOLATION OF THE ACT.

OFFICIALS WERE UNCERTAIN WHETHER LOANS COULD BE FLOATED HERE TO FINANCE THESE PURCHASES. NORMAL CREDIT ARRANGEMENTS COULD BE CONTINUED WITH CANADA, HOWEVER, EVEN IF SHE BECAME A BELLIGERENT.

PROPAGANDA

WASHINGTON,SEPT 5-(AP)-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT MADE KNOWN TODAY THAT PRECAUTIONS WOULD BE TAKEN TO COMBAT PROPAGANDA AIMED AT SUBSTITUTING COMMUNISM OR DICTATORSHIP FOR THE AMERICAN FORM OF GOVERNMENT.

THERE ALSO SHOULD BE PRECAUTIONS, HE ADDED AT HIS PRESS CONFERENCE, AGAINST THE USE OF THIS COUNTRY AS A CENTER FOR THE GATHERING OF INFORMATION THAT MIGHT BE ESPECIALLY USEFUL TO NATIONS AT WAR.

ALTHOUGH MR.ROOSEVELT DID NOT DISCLOSE WHAT STEPS HE HAD IN MIND, IT WAS LEARNED THAT THE FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION WAS INQUIRING INTO ACTIVITIES OF FOREIGN PROPAGANDISTS IN CONNECTION WITH ITS CURRENT INVESTIGATION OF ESPIONAGE.

FOREIGN PROPAGANDA WAS THE SUBJECT OF A RECENT SPECIAL REPORT BY THE HOUSE COMMITTEE ON UNAMERICAN ACTIVITIES. THE COMMITTEE SAID THAT HUNDREDS OF AGENTS FOR FOREIGN GOVERNMENTS WERE FLOODING THE UNITED STATES WITH PROPAGANDA "THROUGH EVERY MEDIUM OF COMMUNICATION OF IDEAS" IN AN EFFORT TO SHAPE AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY.

AFTER ASSERTING THAT AMERICAN RESOURCES "MAY WELL BECOME THE DECISIVE FACTOR IN ANY WAR WAGED IN THE WORLD TODAY," THE REPORT SAID THERE APPEARED TO BE TWO MAJOR GROUPING OF NATIONS ATTEMPTING TO WIN THIS COUNTRY TO THEIR SIDES.

"THE FIRST OF THESE IS THE LONDON-PARIS ENTENTE; THE SECOND THE BERLIN-ROME AXIS, AND, IN ADDITION TO THESE, RUSSIA IS IN A SPECIAL CATEGORY," THE COMMITTEE DECLARED.

(ADVANCE FOR PMS OF TODAY, TUESDAY, SEPT. 5)

(ADVANCE)--WASHINGTON,SEPT. 5-(AP)-SECRETARY WALLACE SAID TODAY THE EUROPEAN WAR MADE THE PROBLEM OF DISPOSING OF AMERICA'S COTTON SURPLUS MORE DIFFICULT.

IN AN ADDRESS PREPARED FOR THE OPENING OF AN INTERNATIONAL COTTON CONFERENCE, HE DECLARED:

1939

"IT SEEMS LIKELY THAT ANY INCREASED USE OF COTTON FOR MILITARY PURPOSES IN THE COMBATANT COUNTRIES WILL BE MUCH MORE THAN OFFSET BY DECREASED USE FOR ORDINARY PURPOSES.

"ALSO, THE PROBLEM OF TRANSPORTATION FROM EXPORTING TO IMPORTING COUNTRIES HAS BECOME ACUTE."

TEN NATIONS WERE LISTED AS PARTICIPANTS IN THE COTTON CONFERENCE. BESIDES THE UNITED STATES, THEY ARE INDIA, EGYPT, BRAZIL, THE UNITED KINGDOM (ON BEHALF OF THE BRITISH COTTON EXPORTING COLONIES), FRANCE (ON BEHALF OF ITS COTTON COLONIES), SOVIET RUSSIA, THE SUDAN, PERU AND MEXICO.

OFFICIALS INDICATED THE UNITED STATES WOULD SEEK SUPPORT FOR AN INTERNATIONAL COTTON-MARKETING AGREEMENT.

THEY SAID SUCH AN AGREEMENT WOULD CALL FOR RESTRICTIONS ON PRODUCTION IN OTHER COUNTRIES SOMEWHAT SIMILAR TO THOSE INVOKED IN THE UNITED STATES UNDER THE AAA CROP CONTROL LAW.

THE CONFERENCE IS WITHOUT AUTHORITY TO DRAFT AN AGREEMENT. IT WAS CALLED TO DETERMINE WHETHER THE MAJOR COTTON PRODUCING NATIONS WOULD FAVOR THE SUMMONING OF A FORMAL CONFERENCE WITH POWER TO ACT.

THE MEETING WAS TAKING PLACE UNDER CLOUDED CIRCUMSTANCES. SOME DELEGATES WERE REPORTED READY TO ASK THAT THE CONFERENCE ADJOURN AND MEET LATER WHEN THE TENSION IN EUROPE SUBSIDES. OTHERS WERE SAID TO BE SOMEWHAT IRKED AT THE UNITED STATES BECAUSE OF AN EXPORT SUBSIDY PROGRAM INAUGURATED A MONTH AGO IN AN ATTEMPT TO ENLARGE FOREIGN MARKETS.

THE SUBSIDY PROGRAM WAS STARTED AFTER AMERICAN COTTON EXPORTS SLUMPED TO THE LOWEST LEVEL SINCE 1881. THE PRINCIPAL CAUSE FOR THE SLUMP, AMERICAN OFFICIALS HAVE EXPLAINED, WAS THE FACT COTTON IN THIS COUNTRY WAS PEGGED ABOVE WORLD PRICE LEVELS BY THIS COUNTRY'S LOAN PROGRAM.

SECRETARY WALLACE HAS SAID THAT IF AN AGREEMENT IS PUT INTO OPERATION, EXPORT SUBSIDIES WOULD BE ABANDONED.

WASHINGTON, SEPT. 5-(AP)-THE NEUTRALITY PROCLAMATION ISSUED AT WASHINGTON TODAY GAVE A NAME TO THE WAR IN EUROPE.

IT WAS DESCRIBED AS "THE WAR BETWEEN GERMANY AND FRANCE; POLAND; AND THE UNITED KINGDOM, INDIA, AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND."

G318PED

BY ANDRUE BERDING

WASHINGTON, SEPT. 5-(AP)-DEVELOPMENT OF THE AIRPLANE AS A MAJOR INSTRUMENT OF WARFARE HAS PRESENTED THE UNITED STATES WITH A NEUTRALITY PROBLEM THAT DID NOT EXIST DURING THE WORLD WAR. IT MAY RESULT IN THE ADOPTION OF NEW RULES OF NEUTRALITY AS THE PRESENT EUROPEAN CONFLICT PROGRESSES.

SEP 6 1939

OFFICIALS CONSIDERED IT SIGNIFICANT THAT THE FIRST WARNING ADDRESSED TO NEUTRALS SINCE THE PRESENT WAR BEGAN RELATED TO AIRCRAFT. GERMANY WARNED THE UNITED STATES AND OTHER NEUTRALS NOT TO FLY AIRPLANES OVER DANZIG AND POLAND.

SUBMARINES CAUSED THE MAJOR NEUTRALITY CRISES IN THE LAST WAR AND WERE AN IMPORTANT FACTOR BEHIND THE ENTRANCE OF THE UNITED STATES INTO THE CONFLICT. MANY MILITARY EXPERTS BELIEVE AIRPLANES WILL TAKE THE PLACE OF SUBMARINES IN THE NEW WAR AS THE PRINCIPAL RAIDER ON ENEMY COMMERCE. BUT THE RULES APPLIED TO SUBMARINES MAY NOT APPLY TO AIRPLANES.

30.24—3083

30.24—3083

A SUBMARINE CONVENTION NEGOTIATED IN 1936 REQUIRED THE UNDER-WATER CRAFT TO GIVE WARNING TO ENEMY MERCHANTMEN TO STOP AND DISCHARGE THEIR CREWS AND PASSENGERS BEFORE OPENING FIRE UPON THEM. THIS MAY BE POSSIBLE FOR SUBMARINES, BUT IS IT POSSIBLE FOR AIR-PLANES, EVEN THOUGH NEUTRALITY RULES REQUIRE THEM, TO GIVE WARNING ALSO?

A BOMBING PLANE EQUIPPED WITH ENOUGH BOMBS TO SINK A SHIP MIGHT FIND IT DIFFICULT TO DESCEND LOW ENOUGH TO PERMIT IT TO SIGNAL A SHIP TO STOP. IF THE MERCHANT SHIP CARRIED AN ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUN, THIS WOULD SERVE TO KEEP THE AIRPLANE AT SUCH A HEIGHT THAT A SYSTEM OF WARNING AND DISEMBARKATION OF PASSENGERS COULD NOT BE CARRIED OUT.

MOREOVER, FROM THAT HEIGHT IDENTIFICATION OF A SHIP MIGHT BE DIFFICULT. IDENTIFICATION OF THE PLANE WOULD BE EQUALLY HARD AND A SHIP MADE THE VICTIM OF AN ATTACK MIGHT HAVE DIFFICULTY DE-FINING THE NATIONALITY OF ITS ASSAILANT.

WX

THERE IS ALSO THE QUESTION OF THE TRANS-ATLANTIC AIR SERVICES INAUGURATED THIS SUMMER TO BRITAIN AND FRANCE, ONE VIA CANADA, THE OTHER VIA THE AZORES AND PORTUGAL. IT IS LEARNED ON GOOD AUTHORITY THAT THE ADMINISTRATION DOES NOT CONSIDER THAT THESE PLANE SERVICES WOULD BE VIOLATING THE NEUTRALITY ACT. IT WILL ARGUE THAT TREATIES HAVE BEEN SIGNED WITH BRITAIN AND FRANCE WHICH WILL HAVE TO BE CARRIED OUT.

THE TREATIES, HOWEVER, INVOLVE RECIPROCITY. IF AMERICAN TRANS-ATLANTIC PLANE SERVICES CONTINUE, WE MUST PERMIT BRITISH AND FRENCH TRANS-ATLANTIC SERVICES TO OPERATE FROM THOSE COUN-TRIES TO THIS COUNTRY. HERE IS THE RUB. AIRPLANES ARE ENUMER-ATED IN THE NEUTRALITY ACT AS IMPLEMENTS OF WAR, WHETHER THEY ARE WARPLANES OR COMMERCIAL PLANES. IT IS CONSIDERED THAT A COMMER-CIAL PLANE COULD EASILY BE CONVERTED INTO A WARPLANE.

THE NEUTRALITY ACT FORBIDS AMERICANS TO TRAVEL ON THE AIR-CRAFT OF BELLIGERENTS. CONSEQUENTLY THE DOWNING OF SUCH PLANES WITH AMERICANS ABOARD WOULD NOT BE LIKELY TO LEAD US INTO WAR AS THE SINKING OF BELLIGERENT SHIPS WITH AMERICANS ABOARD DID IN 1917.

THERE IS NOTHING IN THE NEUTRALITY ACT TO PREVENT AMERICAN AIR-PLANES FROM CARRYING GOODS (OTHER THAN ARMS, AMMUNITION AND IMPLEMENTS OF WAR) TO BELLIGERENTS. IF A SHIP HAULS CONTRA-BAND TO A BELLIGERENT IT MAY BE STOPPED BY AN ENEMY WARSHIP AND THE CONTRABAND TAKEN OFF. BUT HOW IS AN AIRPLANE FLYING THE AT-LANTIC GOING TO BE STOPPED AND RELIEVED OF ITS CONTRABAND WITHOUT BRINGING IT DOWN WITH PERHAPS FATAL RESULTS?

By Charles E. Honce

NEW YORK, Sept. 5 - (AP)- This is a strange war--almost an incredible war, viewed from old-time standards.

SEP 6 1939

It has a dreamlike, fabulous quality.

By Charles E. Honce - N.Y., Sept. 5 - This is an almost incredible war, viewed from old-time standards. It has a dreamlike, fabulous quality.

You have the feeling that you might wake in the morning and find that it doesn't exist, that it never had happened.

It has been going on for five days now and hardly any of the expected things have happened--at least that we now know of, and if the censor is not to blame.

There have been no mass bombings of great cities; there have been no gas attacks against which millions of Europeans have been furnished with protection; there have been no major assaults of grand armies at a time when millions of soldiers are in uniform.

And strangest of all in a Europe armed to the teeth is the fact that the biggest news so far has been the sinking of a passenger liner.

That war in 1914 was different.

SEP 6 1939

When it got under way you had the feeling of inevitableness, of immediate fateful happenings, of a deadly, crushing, all enveloping horror bound to spread and spread until the entire world was engulfed.

There were tremendous battles almost at once. A huge Russian army invaded East Prussia; a great French force swept into Lorraine; the German rock crusher started its swift assault through Belgium aimed at Paris, and almost got there.

From the start there was an hour by hour account of great engagements of the old fashioned kind that shocked and startled.

This new war, at least to many observers, just doesn't invoke the same sort of feeling. After five days there still is no conclusion of inevitableness, of urgency, of fate beckoning to the entire world.

There is fighting in Poland, to be sure, severe in many places, and some air raids, but there still persists an air almost of unreality about the whole thing.

Last Friday Germany marched into Poland. But the day communiques from the short were comparatively mild. So were those from the Polish side.

Even today Germany has said "All we want is what we have won," and indicated that it has no further quarrel with France and Britain.

On Sunday, Britain and France entered the war.

Newspapermen and newspapers, with extraordinary preparations made to report and distribute news of the new "World War" were all set for battles, air raids, high explosive assaults.

But nothing of that kind happened. For almost a solid day much of the space which had been reserved for action had to be filled of necessity with "situation" matter, and with many, many statements.

The actual communiques on the war itself could have been written on a half page of copy, although the appeals and announcements and from heads of state covered pages.

SEP 6 1939

Britain's first invasion of Germany was by air, but no bombs were dropped, simply six million pamphlets, which said in effect that England had no quarrel with the German people. Only considerably later was there a real act of war, the bombing of the German fleet at the entrance of the Kiel canal.

30.24-3085

After a day almost of official silence there came carefully guarded word from France that "operations have begun involving the entire land, naval and air forces" and later that "contact had been made on the front". On Tuesday a further guarded statement was made: "Movements develop normally for the entire land, sea and air forces.", followed by an equally unemotional declaration of contact with German troops.

These announcements could mean anything or nothing.

Against them is a German statement that "not a single shot had been fired on the Western Front up to September 5, 9 AM" (3 AM EST), and that there had been no air attacks except by Britain on the German fleet.

One gets a picture, and it may be erroneous (taken an illustration from the prize ring), not of two deadly antagonists locked in mortal combat, but, for the time being at least, of two light and agile boxers feinting, but withholding sledge hammer blows.

SEP 6 1939

Strange, also, in the light of predictions and official statements, is the picture of all of the countries on the war's edges and beyond shying strictly away, claiming or implying their neutrality, and of saying, in effect, this is not in our yard.

Italy stands aside; Russia plainly amazed at the English and French war declaration, assumes a spectator attitude; Spain, just out of three years of war wants no more of it; the Balkans talk of a neutrality block; even Japan turns aside.

Thus there is no feeling yet of world war—the kind that swept nation after nation into arms in 1914.

So we find England, France, Germany and Poland engaged in a new and strange kind of conflict, virtually isolated, and with nine days now slipping by with no decisive development.

In the meantime many Americans are puzzled, and it's a safe bet that "military experts", thumbing the [illegible] wars of old, are bewildered.

Poles Check Nazis in Battle 30 Miles From Warsaw

SWIFT NAZI DRIVE MENACES WARSAW

Bitter Battle for Polish Capital Believed Near—Kielce's Capture Claimed by Germans in Rapid Advance.

SEP 7 1939

WARSAW, Sept. 6. (8:30 A. M., 3:30 New York time.) (A. P.).—The situation in Warsaw steadily grew more ominous today with the expectation in some quarters that German troops pressing down from the north would arrive before nightfall.

Poles, proud of their capital and hoping to save it from extensive damage from artillery fire, plan to defend it beyond the city limits to the best of their ability, but it was generally expected there would be a bitter battle.

SEP 1939

While Nazi troops were approaching ever closer they apparently had not yet reached the Bug River, twenty-five miles north of here. This was indicated by the absence of explosions such as would mark the blowing up of bridges by the retreating Poles.

No retreating Polish soldiers have yet been seen in Warsaw.

Invading German armies unleashed a powerful drive in an effort to take the Polish capital today while a city deserted by official life and by the majority of its citizens waited tensely for the battle that would decide its fate.

Fighting raged to the north and west. The Nazi infantry was preceded in its push by planes that yesterday roared over Warsaw in repeated attacks which no Polish planes rose to meet.

[Diplomatic dispatches to Budapest said the capital was being shelled by German artillery early today after a swift thrust from the north, and that the city had been partially destroyed.]

SEP 7 1939

Several hundred thousand residents remained of the normal 1,300,000 population—many of them because of lack of money with which to leave, others because they had turned back in despair from highways choked with horses, autos, carts, bicycles and plodding, bundle-laden pedestrians.

The Government secretly left the city last night, leaving only skeleton staffs.

United States Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr., whose home was bombed Sunday, left with his family and staff as did all other embassy and legation staffs.

Diplomatic sources said the Government was setting up headquarters at Lublin, ninety miles southeast of Warsaw, and that the United States embassy staff had gone to [illegible] 200 miles southeast of the capital.

SEP 1 1939

Report Bombing of Berlin

A general staff communique asserted thirty Polish planes had bombed Berlin and returned safely to their bases, but no report was made of any damage inflicted.

[Official Berlin quarters emphatically denied the German capital had been raided, saying it was impossible that even high-flying scouting planes could have made exploratory flights without detection. Neutral observers said there had been no air alarms in Berlin.]

The Polish communique said that "enemy aviators yesterday continued their aerial brutality in bombarding towns, railway stations and columns of fleeing refugees on highways."

"Polish planes effectively bombed German tank columns near Chiechanow and near Radomska," the communique added.

The main Polish defense line was said to be pivoted on Ciechanow, forty-five miles north of Warsaw, bending from there to Plonsk, thirty-five miles northwest of the capital.

The jubilation with which Warsaw greeted the entry of Great Britain and France into the war as Polish allies vanished yesterday under the rain of Nazi bombs. There remained a stubborn determination to hang on, but all exhilration of spirit had disappeared with the certainty that the German advance was stabbing nearer and nearer.

All efforts toward normal conduct of affairs was dropped yesterday. Taxis disappeared from the streets and other cars became scarce. Street car service was curtailed.

People carrying bundles began moving toward the suburbs, the straggling vanguard of a dismayed citizenry that clogged all roads south and east before nightfall.

Automobiles and even horses could be obtained only a premium. Gasoline was almost unobtainable.

A Polish communique today said: "Polish forces continue to hold Gdynia and have captured a German anti-tank gun."

An air defense staff communique said:

"Seventy enemy bombers yesterday raided Warsaw, dropping explosive and incendiary bombs chiefly on the suburbs, causing some casualties. Anti-aircraft fire brought down eight enemy planes."

SEP 1 1939

Germans Capture Kielce,

BERLIN, Sept. [illegible] (A. P.).—With official reports of all quiet on the Western front the third day of the French-German state of war, the supreme army command announced today sweeping victories against Poland on the eastern front.

These were announced as new German strokes against Poland:

1. Capture of Kielce, about 100 miles south of Warsaw, and within fifty miles of Sandomierz, seat of the Polish arms industry.

2. Capture of tens of thousands of prisoners in the Corridor (Pomorze) and elsewhere in northern Poland.

3. Capture of sixty field guns.

4. Capture of Bydgoszcz (Bromberg), 140 miles northwest of Warsaw, while German troops crossed the Netze River to the south of Bydgoszcz.

Other German forces increased their threats to Warsaw and Krakow, modern and ancient capitals of Poland. "On to Warsaw!" and "On to Krakow!" were German battle cries in widely separated parts of Poland.

Reports Western Front Quiet.

Meanwhile the German command as late as 10 A. M. (5 A. M. New York time) insisted there had been no action on the Western front facing France.

[A French communique, however, said French forces effected "some local advances" overnight in their pressure on Germany's Siegfried Line.]

The German command declared that Polish defenses were crumbling, with Germany's "lightning war" in the East only five days old. Military leaders emphasized the need of speed in the Polish campaign in order to release the Eastern army for defense of the Western frontier.

The air force, proud in its claims of mastery in the Polish skies, was increasingly confident of defensive supremacy over British and French planes.

The Eastern army reported its Polish foe was "partly retreating in disorder, badly shattered."

Claim Crushing of Division.

The Germans said they had crushed the entire Seventh Polish Army division southeast of Czestochoma, captured two days ago. (A Polish division usually numbers 10,000 to 15,000 men.)

Eleven Polish planes were said to have been shot down yesterday between Warsaw and Loz, bringing to sixty-five the total thus destroyed Monday and yesterday.

Berlin was blacked out completely last night, but up to 11:40 P. M. (6:40 P. M., New York time) had not been visited by hostile planes. Anti-aircraft forces were kept on the alert through the night.

(A Polish radio report more than an hour before had said that thirty Polish planes attacked the German capital.)

Germans, who have charged British planes with trespassing over The Netherlands in carrying propaganda leaflets to be dumped over Germany, said they expected "The Netherlands as well as other neutral countries to open fire" when foreign military planes fly over their territory. Some of the British leaflets (London reported 9,000,000 had been dropped) were brought to Berlin. They accused Germany of forcing Britain into a "useless" war.

Blow to Polish Industry.

Occupation of the Silesian mining district around Katowice was counted a severe blow to Polish industry. It was seen as virtually forcing a shutdown of iron and steel works in other parts of Poland.

Troops driving south from East Prussia were said (somewhat in contradiction of Warsaw advices) to have been slowed up by swamps in the vicinity of Mlawa and valorous Polish resistance.

At home, Germany prepared for a long and difficult war. Berlin's bus service was curtailed sharply. Food stores were ordered to stay open longer to permit overtime workers to shop. Some universities and technical schools were closed, but students unfit for military service were ordered to continue their studies in others.

Text of Communique.

The text of today's communique follows:

"Army operations in Poland on September 5 progressed on schedule. Mountain and motorized troops in a broad front forced the northern exits of the Beskiden Mountains and are in swift attack on Novy Sacz. Forces pushing from the south and west toward Krakow drove the enemy back into that town. The eastern Upper Silesia industrial region is in German hands.

"Further north, Czestochowa, Lupussno and Pietrkow have been taken. Both sides of the Siedracz strong bunker line were broken through and the attack on the eastern embankment of the Warta River in the direction of Lodz continued.

"Forces which crossed to the eastern embankment of the Vistula near Kulm and Grudziadz continued in pursuit of the defeated enemy.

"Troops from East Prussia, advancing via Mlawa, took Cichanow. There the hard-pressed opponent is retreating southward. Speed troops reached the Narew River near Rozan.

Railway Stations Burning.

"Tens of thousands of prisoners and sixty guns hitherto have been taken by the German troops fighting in the north. Raids of the German air force yesterday again caused a strong disturbance of the enemy's traffic lines and hinterland connections.

"The stations Zdunska-Wola, Skarzysko, Tarnow and Wreschen are burning. Many rail lines have been interrupted. The Polish air force, with the exception of individual pursuit planes, failed altogether to appear near Lodz.

"On September 5 there were no air raids anywhere on German territory. German naval forces in the Baltic destroyed a third Polish submarine."

At the same time the supreme high command announced that German casualties in the east for the first three days of September averaged four dead and twenty-five wounded for each 10,000 combatants. The total number of soldiers involved was not disclosed.

REPEATED NAZI ATTACKS CHECKED 30 MILES NORTH OF CITY, POLES ANNOUNCE

Defenders Report Losing And Retaking Pultusk; Capital Prepares For Desperate Stand; German Planes Make Raids

By LLOYD LEHRBAS
Associated Press Correspondent

Warsaw, Sept. 6—A battle for Warsaw raged thirty miles north of here today, couriers reported, with the "Poles fighting like lions" and holding back the invaders despite repeated tank-led thrusts.

The Poles were described as holding the invaders on a line between Pultusk, thirty miles directly north of Warsaw, and Plonsk, thirty-five miles northwest of this city.

City Reported Retaken

It was announced that the Poles had lost Pultusk once in the battle and then retaken it. Pultusk is about twenty-five miles southeast of Ciechanow, where the right wing of the last-ditch defenders formerly was pivoted.

German planes raided the north section of Warsaw just before noon, and an official radio announcement said six planes were shot down.

More than a dozen extremely strong explosions were heard from the direction of the railway bridge across the Vistula and the East station which was bombed two days ago.

One train waiting to carry refugees toward Wilno, in northeast Poland, and Riga, Latvia, was last reported at the station.

Wounded Officer Reports

A ranking staff officer, slightly wounded, who returned briefly from the scene of battle, [illegible] the Polish forces were defending themselves stoutly holding their lines and doggedly beating off German thrust after German thrust.

With heavy tanks as a vanguard, the officer said, the Germans succeeded in piercing the Polish line in several places, but the Poles successfully outflanked the penetrating columns and captured and destroyed many of the tanks.

The officer assured members of his family here that the situation was favorable for the time being.

Defenders of the city were preparing for a desperate defense at the very gates of the city if the battle at Pultusk eventually would go against them.

Bitter Fight Expected

Resistance lines were being drawn outside the city's limits and the Poles were expected to put up their bitterest fight for their capital.

The civilian government had gone. Gone also were the foreign embassies and legations and scores of thousands of civilians, including nearly all foreigners.

[Editor's Note—Diplomatic reports to Budapest and Stockholm said the Polish Government had been removed to Lublin, seventy miles to the southeast.]

Bug River Not Quite Crossed

The most immediately menacing of all Germany's invading columns was the one moving down from the northwest.

An early Polish communique said:

"The enemy now has reached a line between Chiechanow and Plonsk, about thirty-five miles from Warsaw.

"There is no change on the East Prussian front.

"On the southwest front our army is holding back overwhelming numbers of the enemy.

"On the Warta-Szeczercow-Kamiensk line sharp fighting is in progress with strong enemy divisions. Kamiensk is less than one hundred miles away.

"On the north front motorized units of the enemy reached a point near Plonsk."

[Editor's Note—The Polish communique made no mention of the status of Krakow, sometimes called "Poland's heart" by the Poles, or of Kielce, an important city about 115 miles to the south of Warsaw. The capture of both these cities was claimed by the Germans.]

Warsaw Airport Bombed

Warsaw's outskirts shook again during the morning under the exploding bombs of German planes. The attack was concentrated on the vicinity of the airport. Considerable damage and some casualties were reported.

Immediately, the Poles began barricading the streets in that vicinity.

One bomb aimed at the railway station struck the administration building, which normally houses some 2,000 employes. But they were not inside at the time.

British and French citizens went in droves to the American Embassy, which has taken over British and French interests here. Scores appealed for gasoline, still hopeful of being able to leave tonight.

Trams Carry Fugitives Away

One train headed for Brzesc this afternoon, and another was scheduled to leave for Lublin tonight, packed with fugitives. It appeared questionable, however, that they could get through to their destinations.

A Frenchman arriving from Kielce said he supposed the Germans had reached there, since they were near by when he left.

Polish planes were reported to have been active, a general staff communique stating that thirty of them had bombed Berlin and returned safely to base. Nothing was said of any damage inflicted.

[Editor's Note—Berlin denied that such a raid had been made.]

The communique accused German aviators of "aerial brutality in bombarding towns, railway stations and columns of fleeing refugees on the highways," and asserted, too, that Polish planes had "bombarded German tank columns" at two points.

Heavy Artillery Brought Up

The Germans were attempting to bring heavier artillery into play on these Poles, against whom the first shots of the war were fired by the cruiser Schleswig Holstein on September 1, at 4.48 A. M.

It was believed by Germans in Danzig that not more than a hundred men were on the little peninsula at the entrance to the harbor, with only machine guns and small arms, whereas the cruiser poured shells from 18 and 28 centimeter guns upon them at the moment of Danzig's return to the Reich and sent landing parties to storm the garrison.

These met no resistance until they were near by—and then they met a two-hour cross fire of machine guns, the survivors retreating.

Then came twenty German bombers, but after hours of bombing Saturday machine-gun-tattoo showed garrison still held. There was more bombing and the Poles sent up taunting red rockets.

ANCIENT POLISH CITY FALLS TO NAZI ARMY

Hitler War Machine Closing In on Warsaw —Poles Summon All Citizens to Dig Trenches Around Capital.

By Associated Press.

New momentum was gained today by France on the western front and Germany on the eastern.

French forces were reported to have penetrated German territory in the rich Saarland.

Germany announced the capture of Krakow and an advance eighteen miles beyond that ancient capital of Poland.

The German trans-Atlantic liner Bremen, previously unreported since she left New York last Wednesday, was reported by Berlin to have reached a neutral port safe from British warships.

Successful air raids on German supply centers west of Cologne were reported by Paris.

Britain repulsed enemy raiders on her east coast.

BERLIN, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—The capture by the German Army of Krakow, a city often spoken of by the Poles as "Poland's heart," was officially announced here today.

Late today the German troops were reported still advancing through the ancient city and eighteen miles beyond to the east. It was stated that they were meeting with no difficulties.

The supreme high command said that Krakow fell without resistance at noon. The bridges across the Vistula, it was added, had not been destroyed, although the Poles usually dynamite such approaches as they retreat.

The German commanding generals, the announcement said, went immediately to Wawel Castle Cathedral to render homage to the late Marshal Pilsudski, Poland's strong man, whom the Germans have claimed as their friend. Wawel contains the tombs of some of Poland's historic personages.

Krakow is 140 miles southwest of Warsaw and about sixty miles east of the German-Polish border, across which the Nazi troops swept early last Friday. Poland's ancient capital, Krakow, is now her fifth largest city, with a population of 242,000.

[A dispatch from Budapest this afternoon said the Polish radio interrupted a concert program to appeal to all citizens to report to the nearest police station with spades to dig trenches around Warsaw. The broadcast said that all man power was needed.]

City of Kielce Captured

With the announced capture of Kielce earlier in the day, the German armies had reached another coveted strategic goal.

Only a short distance away is Sandomierz, where the Poles have been centering their new munitions and arms industry. Sandomierz was intended to be what Krupps at Essen or Skoda at Pilsen were to the German and Czech nations.

There were expressions of confidence in official German circles that Sandomierz would also soon capitulate before the German steam roller.

As Polish Silesia and its valuable industries are in German hands, and as Krakow is now reported fallen, the official German belief is that effective Polish resistance is near an end.

GERMANS DRIVE ON

Tell of Seizing Cracow Without a Battle and Pushing On 30 Miles

LUBLIN IS NEW GOAL

Warsaw Calls Citizens to Help Build Trenches—City Bombed Again

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 6.—Germany's motorized troops rolled forward over Polish roads tonight at such speed that German observers said Lublin, present seat of the Polish Government, might be under German artillery fire tomorrow.

Experts said the advance, which today sped through the ancient city of Cracow without resistance, was ahead of the previously prepared schedule. [The Germans announced last night that their forces were already thirty miles east of Cracow, The United Press reported.]

The German soldiers, moving through Southwest Poland toward the east and north, were said to be astonished that Poland's army was not putting up a stronger fight.

Cracow, the "heart of Poland," with 242,000 population, perhaps the most beautiful city in the country and the fifth largest, fell without a fight at noon to troops coming from the southwest between the Tatra Mountains and the Silesian industrial region.

The columns, reported advancing without difficulty, are now believed headed toward Lublin, 140 miles in an airline northeast of Cracow. The Polish Government moved to Lublin yesterday from Warsaw.

Expected Some Resistance

The Germans said they had not expected the Poles to make a serious effort to defend Cracow, capital of the PoPlish Kings, because of its poor strategic position, but they had believed they would encounter a garrison strong enough to force the oncoming army to besiege it.

Since Cracow's Wawel Castle Cathedral is the burial place of the Kings and of the late Marshal Josef Pilsudski, the sentimental value of the city to the Poles is immense.

Cracow is 160 miles southwest of Warsaw and about seventy miles east of the German-Polish border, across which the German troops swept early last Friday. To the north of Cracow and closer to Warsaw, another German army pressed forward within a few miles of Lodz, while some progress was reported by the troops moving southward from East Prussia toward Warsaw.

Divisions Encircled

Large parts of the Polish Army in Poznan Province, the westernmost portion of Poland, were reported being encircled by the German drives. Such a movement would render them useless for the defense of Warsaw.

Behind the lines, life was not yet on a war basis but was being rapidly changed to meet a long struggle if necessary. It was announced as certain that there would be a normal exchange of goods with the Scandinavian countries, Germany delivering such products as coal which the British no longer are selling. Ulrich von Hassel, former Ambassador to Rome, is touring the Scandinavian countries on a special mission to arrange for a steady flow of elementary products.

Grocery stores began today closing between 12:30 p. m. and 3:30 p. m. and keeping open until [illegible] p. m. The order was issued to [illegible] wives drafted for [illegible] their buying after [illegible].

Army Order Cites Hitler

Col. Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, Commander-in-Chief of the German Army, in his order of the day to the forces in Poland, held Chancellor Hitler up as a soldier's "model of personal courage and stout determination."

"Cracow, Bydgoszcz, Grudziadz are in our hands," the message read. "The Corridor no longer separates East Prussia and Danzig from the German motherland. The enemy is thrown back along the entire front and in retreat. Old tested front fighters of the World War as well as young soldiers share in the successes won in a short time.

"Our brave air force determinedly and prominently supported your battle. I thank [illegible] you for your achievements, which are worthy to be arranged beside the great deeds of the armies of German history.

"Soldiers, days of great accomplishments lie behind you! Now the task is to keep after the enemy, apply all your strength until the final decision. Trustingly, confidently all Germany stands behind yuo. Before us stands as a model of personal courage and stout determination our Fuehrer, supreme Commander in Chief.

French Claim Minor Gains On Saar Front

Basel Says Nazi Outposts Have Been Driven Back With Little Resistance

Raids on Rhineland Industry Reported

British Join in Bombing Near Aix; French Hear Big Push May Be Near

By The Associated Press

BASEL, Switzerland, Sept. 6.—First-line pillboxes of Germany's formidable Limes Line were seized tonight by veteran troops from the French Maginot Line.

One of the first German advance posts which fell, it was reported in Basel, was a lone fort opposite Sarreguemines, a French town opposite the Saar region. It was said the fort was taken after very little fighting when French troops occupied the wooded hills on both sides of the frontier road.

The Germans were said to have retired with little resistance to the main Limes Line forts, five and ten kilometers behind the border. (A kilometer is about five-eighths of a mile.)

[Berlin dispatches said last night that Berlin official circles still asserted no shots had been fired on the French frontier, and added that many Germans believed France had refused to send her infantry against Germany.]

Although planes of both sides made frequent flights watching troop movements, there was little fighting in the air.

Reports reaching Basel indicated that the deepest French advance was limited to a few kilometers along the eastern part of the Saar basin, where the main forts of the Limes Line elbow back along the old Saar frontiers.

Foreign military observers, watching the action from Switzerland, viewed it as a mere narrowing of the wide no-man's land left between the Maginot and Limes Lines during peace time.

Little Fighting In Air

Although planes of both sides made frequent flights watching troop movements, there was little fighting in the air.

Reports reaching Basel concerning the entire French maneuver indicated that their deepest advance was limited to a few kilometers along the eastern part of the Saar basin, where the main forts of the Siegfried line elbow back along the old Saar frontiers.

Foreign military observers, watching the action from Switzerland, viewed the action as a mere constriction of the wide no-man's land left between the Maginot and Siegfried lines during peacetime.

It was noted that the only French troops employed were the veteran khaki-clad fortress troops and a few conscripts and mobilized units.

Drive Believed Week Off

The observers believed it would be a week at least before the French would complete their first careful advance through the pillbox outposts and launch a drive against the Siegfried Line's main forts.

German dispatches indicated that the Nazi land forces have been instructed to fight a purely defensive war for the present—keeping off of French territory—in the hope that French strength will be spent against the Siegfried Line while the German drive against Warsaw speeds on.

German aviators along the western front were reported to have received orders to concentrate on blocking British planes distributing propaganda pamphlets.

Few Clashes In Air

French planes kept clear of German territory today save when accompanying troop movements as an air cover for them. They seldom met German fighters.

Dispatches from Germany indicated that Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, commander in chief of the Nazi air force, was withholding his strength for use on French concentration centers and communication lines when [illegible] launches a drive against the Siegfried main line.

The French move into German territory was considered a tremendous stimulus to the already high French morale.

Many French poilus along the Rhine commented, "It is excellent that for once in French history the fighting is on German soil."

British Troops in France

PARIS, Sept. 7 (Thursday) (AP).—British troops have landed in France to aid the French Army which is now on German soil fighting to crack the German Limes Line.

Details of the landings were not disclosed nor were the numbers, but government sources said the British Army would be able to give "infinitely stronger" support to French land forces than it did in 1914.

A terse French communique last night asserted the huge French military machine was swinging its northern wing deeper into Germar territory in the face of growing resistance.

The War Ministry issued Communique No. 6, saying:

"Our first elements progressing beyond the frontier, with the advance variable according to different parts of the front, are meeting everywhere automatic arms and field organizations. The activity of our aviation is in liaison with land actions.

"The movements foreseen for the mobilization, transport and installation of all units continue normally.

"For the various formations, officers, conforming to our traditions, look out as much as possible for the necessities of life for the troops, whose morale is excellent.

"The provisioning of the armies is functioning in the correct manner."

Communique No. 5, issued earlier in the day, announced:

"Some local advances were effected last evening and during the night."

SEP 7 1939

Zeppelin Plant Reported Afire

PARIS, Sept. 6 (AP).—Unamplified reports today from Basel, Switzerland, said flames were visible from what Swiss observers believed was an explosion in the great Zeppelin factory at Friedrichshafen. The factory is on Lake Constance, on the frontier between Switzerland and Germany, ninety miles from the French border. The advices received here gave no indication as to the reason for the explosion.

France learned officially today of the application of the United States neutrality law and the embargo on war shipments to belligerents. United States Ambassador Bullitt went to the Foreign Ministry and delivered copies of the documents issued by President Roosevelt.

At the same time, the Foreign Ministry received reports from European countries which they considered cheerful. Italy was indicated to be maintaining a correct neutral attitude. Spain told France she was unqualifiedly neutral. Soviet Russia and Hungary were apparently keeping clear of the conflict.

Dispatches from Rumania said the French and British were cheered by audiences at motion picture theaters.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—A German radio report said today that the German mining cities of Eschweiler and Itolberg, near Aachen (Aix-La-Chapelle) had been bombed from the air. (The Aachen district adjoins on France and is defended by the Siegfried Line.)

SEP 7 1939

PARIS, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—The General Staff announced today that local advances had been made by the French armies pressing against Germany's Siegfried Line. Communique No. 5 said: "Some local advances were effected last evening and during the night."

The attacks were reported to be concentrated on the northeast frontier, where the German Saar Basin lies between the Rhine and Moselle rivers. That 100-mile front is the most accessible to the French forces, with no river barrier in the no-man's-land between France's Maginot Line and Germany's Siegfried Line.

Cautious communiques said earlier that a campaign had begun and was proceeding normally and that contact had been made with the German forces in the area between the Rhine and the Moselle.

The French public had already been warned by last night's communique that "permanent fortifications" line the front, lest hopes be raised too high by the reported local advances.

The local gains were interpreted by military observers to mean that French infantrymen under cover of artillery fire had seucceeded in crossing the frontier at several points, taking outlying concrete blockhouses.

There was no indication yet of important gains or a general offensive, but the French pressure was apparently increasing in the campaign to force Germany to TO DRAW HER STRENGTH AWAY POLAND

Air Raid Alarms.

Just as Communique No. 5 was being read, at 10:48 A. M., sirens shrieked an air raid alarm in Paris. It was the city's first daylight alarm since the war started on Sunday. It followed one early in the morning, in which the firing of anti-aircraft guns was heard from the outskirts of the capital.

At the second alarm planes roared off to meet the invaders.

The second alarm ended at 11:20 A. M. (6:20 A. M. New York time) with the capital apparently still untouched by enemy bombs.

Newspaper men at the War Ministry getting the morning's communique when the second alarm sounded, took refuge with officers in underground shelters. At the Chamber of Deputies, ushers and legislators alike gathered in the cellar.

The half-hour alarm was the shortest thus far, and the city resumed its activities with a rush as soon as sirens sounded the "all clear."

Outside of Paris an air raid alarm was sounded at Bourges at 2:30 A. M. today (9:30 P. M., Tuesday) and lifted two hours later. Bourges is the air center, directly south of the capital.

Le Havre, the northwest port of France, had two alarms today from 8:30 A. M. (3:30 A. M.) to 8:40, and from 8:50 to 9:30 A. M. This point was the farthest west in France to far reached by German bombing flights.

SEP 7 1939

At the first alarm in Paris the anti-aircraft batteries apparently scared off several German planes by firing a few rounds.

The planes believed to have been on a reconnoitering expedition did not return, and no bombing operations were reported in the capital or elsewhere.

Parisians, quickly accustoming themselves to the night time alarms, took blankets and pillows along with their gas masks into the bomb-proof refuges. Some carried bottles of wine and beer to while away the time in wakefulness. Still others refused to budge from their beds.

The second Paris alarm was semi-officially declared to have been caused by the approach of German scouting planes which were turned back by anti-aircraft guns. Firing was heard to the southeast of the capital.

Testing Operations.

Meanwhile, in the testing operations preliminary to any major battle, the left wing of the French Army of 8,000,000 men increased pressure last night on the northern German flank.

"Our troops are in contact everywhere along the frontier between the Rhine and the Moselle," said Communique No. 4. "It is recalled that the Rhine permanent fortifications border the [illegible] here and there."

SEP 7 1939

The French Maginot Line and the German Siegfried Line parallel each other along this 100-mile stretch so close that at some places the outposts are little more than a stone's throw apart. To the south, the Rhine flows between the two lines.

Military observers said that there were advanced machine-gun posts and pillboxes which had to be silenced by picked squads in order to permit of large operations without the great losses which an assault would otherwise entail.

On the other hand, artillery fire was apparently concentrated on the southern flank, where the Burgundy Gate between the Vosges Mountains and the Alps leads to the German Black Forest. Semi-official sources said that the French were trying to soften the southern flank while their northern forces cleared out the advance German posts on hills and in valleys near Luxemburg.

"The movements foreseen for the mobilization, transport and installation of all units continue normally.

"For various formations officers, conforming to our traditions, look out as much as possible for the necessities of life for the troops whose morale is excellent.

"The provisioning of the armies is functioning in the correct manner."

Previous military advices indicated that the French were concentrating their western front operations on Germany's northern flank, which protects the coal and iron producing Saar basin, barely behind the German frontier.

SEP 7 1939

It also was reported in Paris that successful air raids had been carried out on Eschweiler and Stolberg, war supply centers in the Aachen district of Germany near the Belgian border.

Reports reaching Paris today from Basel, Switzerland, said flames could be seen which Swiss observers believed came from an explosion at the great German Zeppelin factory at Friedrichshafen. The factory is on Lake Constance on the frontier between Switzerland and Germany, ninety miles from the French border.

Civilians Evacuate Strasbourg.

Strasbourg, capital of Alsace which France won from Germany in the world war, was reported tonight to have been emptied completely of civilians before an artillery duel started between German and French guns across the Rhine.

The city is at the most advanced French point between the southern and northern flanks of their western front forces. The 175,000 inhabitants, living virtually within machine-gun range of the German lines, were reported to have moved into the interior seeking safety.

Erstein, a city of 6,000 south of Strasbourg, also was emptied to give the military a free hand.

Swiss Borders Closed

BASLE, Switzerland (AP).—Residenetes of this city, transformed into an armed fortress by mobilization of the Swiss Army, today watched the French in the Magirot Line and the Germans in the Westwall fortifications prepare to give and take offensives.

Basle's frontiers with France and Germany were closed to all but Swiss refugees; all roads and passes were guarded by thousands of green-clad Swiss soldiers.

North of Basle where German and French soldiers were heard to shout insults at each other across the Rhine River, there were frantic preparations of war—but not a gun was fired.

Planes kept to their respective sides of the river, while German and French alike concentrated on the removal of civilian populations and placed troops in the hastily deserted homes and offices of towns near the stream.

French Drop Leaflets

Huningue, a French town just up the river from Basle, with a population of more than 20,000, was deserted except for the military. Farmer-residents of the rich land in the Maginot zone between Basle and Strasbourg, ordered out at once, left behind their livestock, which the army paid for with treasury bonds.

Army trucks rushed the refugees—most of them carrying only bundles—to Mulhouse, whence they took trains to the interior.

On the German side similar removals took place. Whole villages packed up what could be moved and left for the Black Forest as the army entered.

Pontoons of all bridges between Basle and Strasbourg were cut as the normally busy river—now virtually trafficless—became a "No-Man's-Land."

German farmers of Baden reported French planes had dropped propaganda leaflets in the valley last night.

Most residents of Baden appeared convinced the French would not attempt to cross the Rhine and face the withering fire from the Siegfried Line. They believe any French drive will be to the north.

French Pushing Into Germany

Drive Against Siegfried Line in Saar Area—Bomb 2 Supply Centers From Air.

PARIS, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—The French General Staff announced today that its armies were progressing beyond the frontier into Germany.

SEP 7 1939

The nightly communique reported French troops were meeting German resistance but were still advancing.

The air force co-operated with the land forces in an action directed against the Germans' Siegfried Line in the rich industrial Saar basin.

Newly mobilized troops meanwhile continued to move up, the communique said, under the French general mobilization order issued Saturday.

Danzig Cut Off From Reich By Nazi Army And Gestapo

Free City Endures All Perils Of War With Business Halted And Food Scarce

By HANS HENNEBERLING
(Associated Press Copyright)

SEP 7 1939

Danzig, Latvia, Sept. 6—Danzig, Europe's exploded powder barrel now war-bound in the hands of the German army, today finds herself in deeper isolation from Germany than before Hitler annexed her last Friday.

Artillery fire echoes through the city, troops roll through on lorries, and Danzigers are sealed up completely by the German army and Gestapo (secret police).

Free travel to and from the former Free City is prohibited by the army and civil authorities.

The enthusiasm which greeted the announcement of Danzig's return to Germany has been tempered by the determined fight of a small band of Poles holding out in Westerplatte, Polish munitions depot in Danzig harbor.

The Polish garrison still held its own when I left Danzig yesterday despite days of shelling by the German navy and warplanes.

There was a twelve-hour pitched battle in Danzig streets Friday for the Polish postoffice before the attacking forces finally set fire to the building.

Some twenty Poles were reported burned to death and forty captured.

30.24-3091

30.24—3091

Many Danzigers also lost their lives during the bitter hours following announcement of their reunion with Germany. Many were wounded.

Marian Chodacki, Polish commissioner to Danzig, was reported still in the city under protective arrest.

Foreigners must obtain permission of the Gestapo to leave the city. Getting funds to do so is a virtual impossibility since banks have ceased handling foreign exchange almost altogether.

Export and import business has come to a halt.

Nazi soldiers are in possession of all Polish business houses and banks. Polish mail boxes were torn down an hour after the start of fighting in Danzig.

Numerous Polish prisoners have been marched through the streets of the Baltic port.

Strict rationing of all necessities is being enforced.

Danzig was not bombarded but the nearby resort of Zopport was. Germans reported a few lives lost there.

Censorship was complete.

There was no sign of surrender by the Westerplatte defenders when I left.

There was no sign of surrender when this correspondent left Danzig yesterday. Censorship was complete. The Germans were attempting to bring heavier artillery into play on these Poles, against whom the first shots of the war were fired by the cruiser Schleswig-Holstein on Sept. 1 at 4:48 a. m.

It was believed by Germans in Danzig that not more than a hundred men were on the little peninsula at the entrance to the harbor, with only machine guns and small arms, whereas the cruiser poured shells from 18 and 28 centimeter guns on them at the moment of Danzig's return to the Reich and sent landing parties to storm the garrison.

These met no resistance until they were near by—and then they met a two-hour crossfire of machine guns, the survivors retreating.

Then came twenty-four German bombers, but after hours of bombing Saturday a machine-gun tattoo showed that the garrison still held. There was more bombing and the Poles sent up taunting red rockets.

Expect Fortress to Be Blown Up

RIGA, Latvia, Sept. 6 (AP).—Germans in Danzig, fearing that the Westerplatte munitions depot eventually would be blown up by its defenders, have cleared the harbor area, rehousing thousands. They were unable to locate the Poles amid the wreckage, scarred stumps of the depot.

Meanwhile, Germans yesterday were displaying vexation at the slowness of their efforts to take the nearby Polish port of Gdynia. They were being held several kilometers distant from the city.

The Danzigers appeared none too happy after the enthusiasm shown first upon their return to the Reich. Many lives have been lost. Banks and the export and import business were not functioning, while regulations were stringent.

Shortly after the alarm terrific anti-aircraft firing started along the east coast and it was presumed that an enemy raid was being made.

Squadrons of British fighters passed over the towns, and the sound of machine-gun fire could be plainly heard. No raiding planes could be seen here, but the sky was filled with smoke from bursting shells.

The alarm was the third in London since war was declared. When the sirens shrieked a warning all buses and surface cars stopped, but underground and other trains continued.

There was no sign of panic as passengers, with gas masks slung over their shoulders, left the buses and cars in orderly fashion and went to places of safety. Inside the raid shelters the crowd chatted cheerfully and discussed the war news of the day.

Several flights of planes were seen making for London but their identity—whether attackers or defenders—was not determined.

The crowds who had calmly gone to shelters gazed at the clear sky while anti-aircraft batteries were heard distinctly.

Many Londoners seemed more interested in watching the shells burst than in seeking safety. Air wardens in many places reported they had some difficulty in persuading the people to hunt shelter.

Saw Plane Disabled.

William Ferry, watching from his garden shelter, said he saw about a dozen shell bursts around a plane and added that a neighbor "told me that he saw the tail part of a plane fall away."

"We saw a plane circling around," another witness said, "then there was gunfire and a shell seemed to burst near the tail of the machine. I can't say whether it was brought down but it dived straight toward the ground."

The Ministry of Information announced:

"We are officially informed that enemy aircraft were reported near the east coast of England this morning."

The Ministry added: "So far as is known, they did not penetrate our defenses at any point and no damage has been reported."

The Ministry of Information announced that further reconnaissance was carried out by aircraft of the Royal Air Force over Germany on the night of September 5-6. The planes, in their third flight over Germany, dropped "A Note to the German People." In two previous mass flights British planes showered Germany with millions of copies of messages to the German people.

"Our aircraft was not engaged by enemy fighters and, as on two previous occasions, they all returned safely," the Ministry said. "Copies of a note to the German people were again distributed over a wide area."

Butler Reports to Commons.

R. A. Butler, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, said in the House of Commons that German bombings in Poland "have been generally directed against objectives serving some military purpose and not indiscriminately against the civil population." He said there had been many civilian casualties, nevertheless.

Mr. Butler also said [illegible]ment had no official [illegible]that the Germans were using [illegible] but we have read in the pre[illegible]t gas bombs have been used."

Mr. Butler told questioners that no official declarations of neutrality had been received from Soviet Russia, Italy, Spain or Japan, "but Italy, Spain and Japan have issued notifications to this effect."

As Seen From London

LONDON, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—The strategy of the allied Powers, as developed during the first few days of the war, is seen by observers here as a four-fold drive on Germany.

1. On the eastern front, the Poles have used cavalry and special forces in quick offensive thrusts in some sectors, while they have fallen back to stronger defensive positions in others.

2. The French have engaged the Germans on the western front with artillery.

3. The British established a naval blockade to shut off Germany's western ocean supply lines, attacking the German Navy and merchant marine with air and sea forces.

4. The British Air Force has reconnoitered over Germany, dropping propaganda leaflets intended to weaken Germany's internal structure.

The psychological aspect of the war cannot be overlooked. It is reflected in the sharp verbal exchanges over war guilt to build up sympathy among other nations and the morale of the fighting forces.

FIRST AERIAL BATTLE WAGED OVER ENGLAND

German Bombers Driven Away Before They Can Drop Explosives—Din of Ground and Sky Batteries Is Terrific.

LONDON, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—The first enemy air force to invade England since the war started was fought off today by British anti-aircraft guns and defending planes in an early morning combat which halted normal activity in the world's largest city for two and a half hours.

No bombs were dropped and the Ministry of Information said the invaders apparently did not "penetrate our defenses at any point." They were attempting to raid the east coast, but anti-aircraft batteries stationed there opened up with a terrific din. Puffs of smoke filled the sky.

The first air raid attempt on Britain came at about 6:40 A. M. (1:40 A. M. New York time). The "all clear" signal was sounded at 9:05 A. M. London time. Apparently no raiders came on the Essex side of the Thames River. Gunfire was heard in the distance up to 8:10 A. M.

CHURCHILL SAYS 125 ARE MISSING FROM ATHENIA

Some May Be on Yacht, Admiralty Lord Tells the Commons.

PERHAPS ONLY 49 ARE LOST

Briton Asserts That Vessel Was Unarmed and on Peaceful Errand.

LONDON, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, told the House of Commons today that 125 passengers and members of the crew of the British liner Athenia, which was sunk on Sunday night, are still unaccounted for.

Mr. Churchill added, however, that it is still possible that a number of the missing might be aboard a Swedish yacht, the Southern Cross.

He asserted that a submarine torpedoed the liner and that it afterward came to the surface and fired a shell which exploded on the middle deck.

"I regret to inform the House," he said, "that the disaster may prove to be of greater magnitude than was indicated by earlier reports."

Mr. Churchill said that there were 1,418 persons aboard the liner when she sailed—315 in the crew and 1,103 passengers including approximately 300 Americans.

"It now is clearly established," said the Admiralty head, "that the disaster was due to an attack without warning by a submarine at 7:45 P. M. local time on the night of September 3."

Says She Wasn't Armed.

He said the torpedo struck the ship near the engine room on the port side when she was 250 miles northwest of Ireland.

Mr. Churchill asserted that the Athenia was not armed for defense and carried no guns.

He told the House that there could not be two more opposite cases than the sinking of the Athenia and the sinking of two German vessels, the Olinda and the Carl Fritzen, by the British Navy. The German ships, he said, were dealt with in accordance with the accepted principles of international law and that every provision was made for the safe removal of the crews.

"Every effort is being made by wireless and otherwise to ascertain the names of the survivors," said Mr. Churchill.

He said that he wished to convey the profound sympathy of the House to those bereaved by the disaster.

Sir Archibald Southby asked that ships in the future should not carry more passengers than they could accommodate in an emergency. Mr. Churchill replied that this would be borne in mind.

49 Had Been the[illegible]

Before Mr. Churchill's statement was made a compilation of reports from [illegible]al sources had made it appear that the death total would be only forty-nine.

This total was arrived at when the master of the American freighter City of Flint reported to the Maritime Commission office in New York that he had 216 survivors of the Athenia aboard his ship, of whom 106 were Americans.

The Donaldson Line, which owned the Athenia, reported 506 survivors landed at Galway, Ireland, and 497 at Greenock, Scotland, and 159 aboard the yacht Southern Cross.

Mr. Churchill told the House: "No estimate can be made as to how many were killed at the first explosion nor as to the numbers drowned in the reported capsizing of several boats after the passengers had taken to them.

"Survivors have been picked [illegible] by two British destroyers, by [illegible]

Knut Nelson and the City of Flint and, it is hoped, by a Swedish yacht. At present, some 125 passengers and crew are unaccounted for. It is still possible that a number of these may be aboard the Swedish yacht.

'On a Peaceful Mission.'

Mr. Churchill added that he thought that there was not the slightest doutb that the Athenia left before the declaration of war on a peaceful mission, wholly unarmed and taking passengers including returning Americans across the Atlantic.

It was clear, he went on, that the submarine must have been in position, waiting for prey.

Asked whether the submarine left Germany after the declaration of war or was waiting in anticipation of war, he replied:

"I am afraid I cannot answer that at the moment."

Survivors of the European war's first major maritime disaster asserted the submarine which fired the torpedo into the Athenia came later to the surface and shelled the sinking vessel. Capt. James Cook, the Athenia's master, declared "one shell carried away the main mast."

The survivors insisted they saw the submarine after the torpedo hit the Athenia—and one stated that a group in a lifeboat could hear it passing under the water as they awaited rescue. They declared the ship did not strike a mine.

A theory that the Athenia ran into a British mine had been advanced in Berlin by a German spokesman after British officials charged a German submarine torpedoed the Athenia.

The City of Flint picked up 109 American and 112 other victims of what the survivors charged was a torpedo fired without warning from a submarine. Earlier yesterday the Donaldson Line, which owned the Athenia, reported that 506 survivors landed at Galway, Ireland; 497 at Greenock, Scotland ,and 150 on the yacht Southern Cross.

Thus, 1,374 of the Athenia's 1,418 passengers and crew were accounted for, with scant hope remaining that the forty-four missing persons could have escaped the blast which ripped open the Athenia's hull and sent her to the bottom Sunday night 200 miles west of Scotland. Approximately 200 were injured, and many of them were taken to hospitals immediately upon reaching shore.

The City of Flint reported she would sail directly to Halifax, Nova Scotia, arriving there Saturday. The Athenia was bound for Canada.

Say Ship Was Shelled.

Survivors of the European war's first major maritime disaster asserted the submarine which fired the torpedo into the Athenia came later to the surface and shelled the sinking vessel. Capt. James Cook, the Athenia's master, declared "one shell carried away the main mast."

The survivors insisted they saw the submarine after the torpedo hit the Athenia—and one stated that a group in a lifeboat could hear it passing under the water as they awaited rescue. They declared the ship did not strike a mine.

A theory that the Athenia ran into a British mine had been advanced in Berlin by a German spokesman after British officials charged a German submarine torpedoed the Athenia.

Cutters to Meet Ship.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—The Coast Guard said today the cutters Bibb and Campbell had been ordered to meet the City of Flint, and give aid to the Athenia victims aboard.

A spokesman said some of them might be a little bit ill and that the cutters would carry public health doctors as well as food, clothing and blankets to supplement supplies of the rescue vessel.

The City of Flint, a cargo vessel of the Maritime Commission, expected at Halifax Saturday, has 109 American and 112 other Athenia survivors aboard.

The cutters yesterday were ordered on patrol duty at undisclosed stations in the Atlantic. The Bibb was sent from Norfolk and the Campbell from New York.

Where contact will be made cannot be determined yet, the Coast Guard said, but the cutters will move under forced draft.

Shouts of joy went up in lobbies of hotels as survivors got telegrams from relatives saying they were safe.

One Faints

One woman, hearing that a relative was safe, fainted and was put in care of a nurse.

Arthur Robert Ramsay, director of Glasgow's public assistance, was in charge of a staff issuing clothing and other supplies to refugees.

The refugee fund opened last night by the Lord Provost mounted to $10,000 early this morning. The Donalson line, owners of the Athenia, headed the subscription list with a $5,000 check.

Rounding Up Americans

The United States Consulate said arrangements were being made to get the American survivors together as rapidly as possible for their early return to the United States.

The reguees praised Glasgow's hospitality.

A consulate official said that besides the assistance given by the municipality, many Glasgow citizens called the consulate and individually offered to help.

"The American people will not readily forget this generosity," he remarked. "We cannot adequately express our gratitude."

The survivors were happier today after a night's rest and Scottish meals.

Clothes Distributed

The lobby of one hotel was like a department store. For the selection of refugees there was a full range of clothing, suits for little boys, attractive print dresses for girls; coats, hats, cloths and tooth brushes.

One American woman trying on a hat exclaimed: "I couldn't get a better style in Piccadilly."

Director Ramsay said many Americans and Canadians had to be persuaded to accept the articles, which were given free.

Only twenty-one survivors remained today in the city hospital.

London, Sept. 6—Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, today told the House of Commons that 125 passengers of the Athenia, sunk off Scotland Sunday night, were unaccounted for.

He added that "it is possible a number" of the missing might be aboard a Swedish yacht, the Southern Cross, which assisted in the rescue.

Reports from unofficial sources previously had made it appear that the death total would be only forty-nine persons. This total was arrived at when the master of the American freighter City of Flint reported to the United States Maritime Commission that he had 216 survivors of the Athenia, including 106 Americans.

Line Lists Number Landed

The Donaldson Line, owners of the liner, reported 506 survivors landed at Galway, Ireland, and 497 at Greenock, Scotland, and that 150 were aboard the Southern Cross.

"I regret to inform the House that the disaster may prove to be of greater magnitude than was indicated by earlier reports," Churchill said.

He said a submarine torpedoed the liner and that it afterward "came to the surface and fired a shell which exploded on the middle of the deck."

Attack Without Warning

There were 1,418 persons aboard, he added, including 315 crewmen and 1,103 passengers, of whom approximately 300 were Americans.

"It is now clearly established," the Admiralty head declared, "that the disaster was due to an attack without warning by a submarine at 7.45 P. M. on the night of September 3."

Churchill asserted the torpedo struck the ship near the engine room on the port side when she was 250 miles northwest of Ireland, and added that she was not armed for defense and carried no guns.

Says There Is No Parallel

Churchill told the House there was no parallel between the sinking of the Athenia and the German vessels Olinda and Carl Fritzen by the British navy.

The latter, he said, were dealt with in accordance with international law; that every provision was made for the safe removal of the German crews from their ships and their lives saved.

Replying to a suggestion by Sir Archibald Southby, Conservative member of Parliament, Churchill said the Admiralty would be [illegible] and having ships in the future refrain from carrying [illegible] passengers than they could accom[illegible]te in an emergency.

London Admits That Some of Its Merchant Vessels Have Been Sunk or Attacked

LONDON, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—Great Britain reported a series of quick successes today in a sharp offensive against German war and merchant vessels.

An early morning communique from the Ministry of Information said that British forces in the Atlantic had destroyed three German ships which might have been converted into armed raiders.

At the same time, it was announced that Monday's bombing raids by the Royal Air Force on two German battleships at the entrance to the Kiel Canal, linking the North Sea with the Baltic, had turned out to be even more successful than was originally reported.

Attacks by British warships on German submarines "in several localities" were announced in the communique which said also that several British merchant vessels had been attacked or sunk by German submarines. The Cunard Line yesterday disclosed its steamship Bosnia had been sunk.

Names of Ships Not Available.

A brief communique issued by the Admiralty announced the crew of fifty of the Carl Fritzen, one of the German ships to go down, was saved. Names of the other ships were not available immediately.

The Carl Fritzen, due in Buenos Aires next Thursday to load a cargo for Germany, was believed a victim of the cruiser Ajax, also credited with sinking the freighter Olinda Sunday and sending her crew to Montevideo aboard a British tanker.

At least two German vessels were prepared for an attempt to dodge British vessels off Buenos Aires in an effort to reach Germany.

The freighter Gonzenheim swung into the Rio Plata River and headed toward the ocean. The freighter Anatolia sailed from Rosario toward Hamburg with a cargo of cereals.

Two Liners Convoyed.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—Two big British trans-Pacific liners, the Empress of Japan and the Empress of Asia, slipped down the Whangpoo River today headed for Hongkong.

They were said to have been convoyed by English warships.

Passengers aboard the Empress of Japan who had booked passage for Japanese ports disembarked prior to the sailing, while those going to Honolulu and Vancouver remained aboard, indicating the liner might head directly for Honolulu from Hongkong.

It was possible several Germans said to be on the ships would be interned at Hongkong. Steamship officials were unable to say when the Empress of Japan would leave Hongkong, saying she was under Admiralty orders.

BELEM, Brazil, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—The North German-Lloyd liner Inn, which sailed from here for Hamburg on August 25, was announced today to have been sunk in mid-Atlantic.

Attaches of the North German Lloyd offices said that the Inn carried a crew of thirty men.

She was built with accommodations for passengers, but the officials said that they did not believe that any were aboard.

The Inn is registered as a motorship, powered with Diesel engines, of 2,867 gross tons and 295 feet long. She was built in 1929 and her home port was Bremen.

Won't Be Interned.

TRONDHEIM, Norway, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—The German steamship Freiberg, which arrived yesterday [illegible]ruised as a Soviet vessel, will not be interned because she had no guns.

The ship, with Soviet funnel markings, flew the Danish flag as she entered the port, but hoisted the Nazi swastika thereafter. Carrying sixty passengers, including women and children, mostly Netherlanders, the Freiburg sailed from Hamburg for Java via the Mediterranean.

Imminence of war was learned by the ship's officers while off Gibraltar and the vessel put into a Spanish port and changed markings. Then she proceeded north past the British Isles into the Arctic Ocean and then down the Norwegian coast.

Bosnia Survivors Land.

LISBON, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—The Norwegian ship Eindander arrived here today with thirty-three survivors from the Cunard steamer Bosnia which was sunk on the high seas.

The Cunard Line said that the Bosnia was torpedoed by a submarine yesterday and set afire by guns before she sank. One member of the crew was reported killed.

North German - Lloyd Cargo Vessel Inn Sent Down In Atlantic

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 6—Another German merchantman was added today to the list of victims of Britain's warfare at sea as 125 passengers of the British liner Athenia still were officially unaccounted for.

The North German-Lloyd liner motor ship Inn, which sailed from Belem, Brazil, for Hamburg, August 26, was reported sunk in mid-Atlantic. Details were lacking.

The British Admiralty previously announced the sinking of three German merchant ships, but named only the Olinda and the Carl Fritzen, both sunk off the east coast of South America.

The Inn, of 2,867 gross tons and 295 feet long, carried a crew of thirty and her home port was listed as Bremen. She had accommodations for passengers but North German-Lloyd officials in Belem said they believed none were aboard.

The Norwegian ship Eindanger arrived at Lisbon, Portugal, with thirty-three survivors of the Cunard steamer Bosnia, which the Cunard Line said was torpedoed by a submarine yesterday and set ablaze by gunfire before she sank. One crew member was killed.

Baltic Shipping Paralyzed

Neutral shipping virtually was paralyzed in the Baltic because of war conditions.

Eastbound neutral ships sought haven in safe waters along the Norwegian, Swedish and Danish coasts after receipt of information that Germany had removed a key lightship which had been a great aid to trans-Baltic shipping.

The ships were hugging the coast lines after the sinking of several vessels which struck mines.

The British navy, apparently satisfied that China waters were free of German raiders, lifted a three-day-old ban on ship movements along the Chinese coast.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 6 (AP)—Mystery tonight surrounds the whereabouts of William Mallery, 9, son of Mayor Addison Mallery of Saratoga Springs and a passenger on the British liner Athenia when it sank off Scotland.

Mrs. Effie Mallery, mother of the boy, said today in Galway, Ireland, she hadn't seen her son and did not know where he was. Mrs. Mallery and her mother, Mrs. W. B. Scott, were taken to Galway after being rescued at sea.

[By the Associated Press]

London, Thursday, Sept. 7—The British Ministry of Information announced early today the Union of South Africa had declared war against Germany and that arrangements were being made to withdraw diplomatic representatives immediately.

From Fiji to Jaffa British outposts fell into line with the empire's war upon Germany.

Arabs of Jaffa—Promise of cooperation.

Chief Rabbis of Palestine—Agreement to support empire.

Northern Ireland—Promise to throw its entire resources into the conflict.

Australia—Full support for the Government.

In Eire it was emphasized by officials that the Free State would maintain a policy of strictest neutrality, extending no aid to Britain beyond ordinary trading activities. The Department of Industry and Commerce forbade Irish ships of more than one hundred tons to leave port without licenses.

General Smuts Forms South African Cabinet

Cape Town, Sept. 6 (AP)—Gen. Jan Christian Smuts, the Union of South Africa's World War leader, became Prime Minister today and formed a new cabinet pledged to cooperate with Britain and sever diplomatic relations with Germany.

Smuts retained the portfolios of External Affairs and National Defense.

The previous Prime Minister, Gen. J. B. M. Hertzog, resigned after Parliament yesterday rejected his motion to continue relations with Germany.

Washington, Sept. 6 (AP)—The Union of South Africa is at war with Germany, Minister Ralph William Close advised Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, this afternoon.

The Minister called upon the Secretary at the State Department to deliver this message.

ARMY ABSORBS MILITIA UNITS

Gold Fund Set Up to Strengthen England's Credit Abroad.

LONDON, Sept. 7 (A. P.).—The co-ordination of the British armed forces into a single unified army was announced today by the Ministry of Information, which also declared that the new Ministry of Economic Warfare "will correspond broadly to the Ministry of Blockade created during the last war."

In the House of Commons meanwhile Sir John Simon, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, said that powers had been taken to put all private holdings of gold, foreign exchange and foreign securities at the disposal of the Government. He announced that the Treasury and the Bank of England had transferred $280,000,000 sterling in gold to a wartime exchange account.

Concerning the armed forces the Ministry of Information said that all units of the regular army, territorial army, militia and other auxiliary forces were merged through important changes in administration.

Duke of Gloucester.

Lieut.-Gen. Sir Douglas Brownrigg, hitherto Director-General of the Territorial Army, was appointed Adjutant of the British Field Forces. The Deputy Director-General, Major-Gen. Sir John Brown, was named Deputy Adjutant General at the War Office.

The Duke of Gloucester, the King's brother, was appointed to serve as Chief Liaison Officer to the British Field Force.

The communique, regarding economic warfare, said that the aim of the new Ministry, headed by R. H. Cross, would be to disorganize the enemy's economy and "prevent him from effectively carrying on the war."

Its activities will be of the "widest possible scope," the statement added, but "every effort will be made to take account of the legitimate trading needs of neutral countries."

The Ministry has been in process of organization for two years, the communique said. It will work closely with the French authorities, and in this connection it was announced that a French delegation headed by Paul Morand, already has arrived in London for this purpose.

To Strengthen Credit.

In the House Sir John said that the first measure — to put private gold at the disposal of the Government — was taken "in order to strengthen our financial resources abroad."

The gold transfer involved practically all the gold in the issue department, he said, and would entail an increase in the fiduciary note issue of the Bank of England of £580,000,000 (about $2,320,000,000).

This, he asserted, was done to "concentrate all the Government's foreign resources in one reserve."

Meanwhile the Ministry of Supply has ordered contractors and others to give priority to "certain work" in their factories, but said that priority orders would not at present cover the whole field of industry."

Paris Is Notified

PARIS, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—The United States officially informed France today that she is remaining neutral in the European war.

Ambassador William C. Bullitt visited the Foreign Ministry this morning and gave Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet a copy of President Roosevelt's proclamation invoking the arms embargo against belligerents in the war—France, Great Britain, Poland and Germany.

The American President's invocation of the neutrality act came as no surprise to the French, who anticipated the action.

The sinking of the Athenia, however, which has been compared widely here to the loss of the Lusitania in 1915, aroused hopes in some French quarters that the United States eventually would modify its stand, at least to sell arms and munitions to France.

The Ambassador's action consisted simply of handing over to the Foreign Minister a copy of the neutrality proclamation. It was not accompanied by a covering note.

Economy Units To See That Civilians Are Provided With Foods And Necessities

Berlin, Sept. 6 (AP)—District economy offices were established throughout Germany today in order to build a unified administration for application of wartime measures such as rationing lists.

The tasks of these offices principally will be to see that the population is provided vital commodities, such as coal, fuel, heating, oil, rubber tires, textiles, shoes, soap and similar manufactured products.

Public food bureaus also were established in provincial districts.

King Pays Tribute To Chamberlain's Work

LONDON, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—King George sent a message to Prime Minister Chamberlain today, saying:

In this great crisis of our country's fortunes, I wish to recognize the unremitting efforts of members of my civil service at home and overseas through the troubled years behind us, both in promoting the cause of peace and in preparing the country for the emergency that now confronts us.

"Your work, which has earned the gratitude of your fellow citizens, will, I know, be carried on in the same spirit until peace has been restored."

Mr. Chamberlain replied with thanks and assurances of continued loyalty, devotion and determination "in the struggle for the defense of justice and liberty and the foundations of civilization."

Norwegian Ship Arrives With Crew of Bosnia

LISBON, Sept. 6 (AP).—Thirty-two crew members and one passenger from the Cunard steamer Bosnia, who were landed here tonight, said the vessel was torpedoed and sunk by a submarine. One man, a fireman, was killed.

Capt. Walter H. Poole, his crew, and passenger Samuel Norman Anglin, of Gibraltar, declined to say when or where the boat went down. They were rescued by the Norwegian freighter Eidenger a short time after the Bosnia sunk.

The crew, cheerful, although some were without coats and barefooted, described the submarine commander as "a white man" who gave them a chance to take to lifeboats on the condition that they take nothing with them. After calling at the British Consulate, the crew and passenger received clothing and some cash, and then embarked on the liner Highland Brigade for an English port.

Rules On Contraband Threaten Dane Exports

Copenhagen Hopes To Negotiate Exemptions By Both Germany And England

Copenhagen, Sept. 6 (AP)—Britain's new war contraband regulations threatened tonight to ruin Denmark's export business unless some agreement could be reached with the British and Germans.

Since foodstuffs are included in the British contraband list, Denmark will be unable to ship pork, live stock, butter and eggs to Germany except by inadequate overland routes.

Germany is expected to reciprocate the British action and forbid the export of the same products to Britain. Danes hoped they might negotiate a settlement with the two warring powers for the exemption of certain quotas from the contraband list.

London Tells Copenhagen That Planes Attacking Kiel Canal Could Have Been Responsible

Copenhagen, Sept. 6 (AP)—The Danish Government announced today that the British Minister had reported the bombing of Esbjerg, a Danish seaport, Monday night might have been the unintentional act of a British plane in connection with an air raid on the Kiel Canal. He expressed the regrets of the British Government.

The Danish communique said in part: "After a full investigation by the British government it is stated that airplanes which returned from the raid could not have been responsible. But some planes failed to return. The raid was under bad weather conditions and most of the time under an overclouded sky. One of the various planes therefore could have lost its bearings and by mistake dropped bombs, thinking it was over the open sea."

At least two persons, one a woman, were killed in Esbjerg.

BRITAIN REGRETS DANISH BOMBING

Esbjerg Believed Hit on Kiel Canal Raid.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—The Danish Government announced today that the British Minister had reported that the bombing of Esbjerg, a Danish seaport on Monday night might have been the unintentional act of a British plane in connection with an air raid on the Kiel Canal. He expressed the regrets of the British Government.

The Danish communique said, in part:

"After a full investigation by the British Government it is stated that airplanes which returned from the raid could not have been responsible. But some planes failed to return. The raid was under bad weather conditions and most of the time under an overclouded sky.

"One of the various planes therefore could have lost its bearings and by mistake dropped bombs thinking it was over the open sea."

LONDON, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—The British Government apologized today to the Danish Government for damage caused by a bomb or bombs which may have been dropped by British aircraft on the town of Esbjerg and promised an investigation.

Bombs fell in Esbjerg on Monday, killing at least two persons, one a woman.

Neutral Ships Race to Haven Off Scandinavia

Germany Reported to Have Removed Danger to Ship Used Navigation in Baltic

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 6 (AP).—Eastbound neutral ships sought haven in safe waters along the Norwegian, Swedish and Danish coasts today after receipt of information that Germany had removed a key lightship, indispensable to trans-Baltic navigation. This followed the sinking of several vessels after they had struck mines.

That there were plenty of wide spaces in the North Sea and the entrances into the Baltic in which no naval action was discernable was determined at first hand after a hectic crossing from England to Copenhagen in a Finnish boat.

The boat, carrying a newspaper correspondent, stole deep into the North Sea Saturday night in complete darkness, portholes covered and lights out, but quickly scuttled back to the haven of English terri-

...ormal waters. There it lay offshore all day Sunday. Many neutral ships lay near.

Despite a British rule that no radios were to be used, those of many vessels caught under war conditions were used constantly—but usually fruitlessly. The interference was intense.

When [illegible] the Finnish boat stole seaward again late Sunday it headed northward along the coast, then struck eastward in the direction of the Norwegian Coast. A watch was kept at the prow to spot any evidences of mines. A searchlight kept playing on a huge flag to identify the ship's nationality. The entrance into Copenhagen was made under guidance of a pilot.

The ship will remain here indefinitely because of conditions in the Baltic. All other neutral shipping is similarly paralyzed.

The Germans accepted the suggestion, although members of the team said they saw nothing objectionable about playing against the French or Poles.

One source said it was understood that the Mexican government had approximately $6,000,000 in credits tied up in Germany.

ATTACK ON GDYNIA SEEN DEVELOPING

Dispatch To Italian Newspaper Says "Important" Offensive Is Expected Soon

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Sept. 6—A dispatch to the newspaper Il Messaggero reported today an important attack against Gdynia was developing. No further details were given.

The dispatch said Adolf Hitler, who crossed the Vistula river yesterday on an afternoon trip from Prust, halted at the station to review wounded troops brought by train from the front.

The Führer passed down the line, greeting the men individually, and was greeted in return with "Heils" and Nazi salutes.

Tells Of Prisoners

The correspondent also described "long columns of sad, demoralized" Polish prisoners along the Vistula.

He reported the men said they had not eaten for three days and begged a bit of bread and hot coffee. No estimate of the number of Poles captured was obtained.

Il Messaggero's dispatch said the Germans threw back all the "desperate" Polish night attacks, endeavoring to break the German ring by closing in from the south to rejoin the main body of the Polish Army.

The entire northern part of the Corridor, with the exception of Hela Peninsula and Gdynia, have been cleared virtually of Polish troops, the dispatch said. The peninsula and Gdynia are cut off completely.

Expect a Peace Move

ROME, Sept. 6 (AP).—Private Italian sources said tonight Premier Mussolini was about to renew his proposal for a conference of powers, with a suggestion for an armistice in the German-Polish-British-French war until a conference could take place.

Official confirmation of this report was lacking, but one high-placed Fascist said he thought it "most logical" and that Italy's neutrality was meant to leave Signor Mussolini free to act as mediator if possible.

Private sources made known their belief after Sir Percy Loraine, British Ambassador to Rome, had held a conference with Foreign Minister Count Ciano.

Informed sources believed Sir Percy sought some indication of Italy's attitude toward the European war. But what Count Ciano told Sir Percy regarding the possibility of Italy's entry into the struggle or her continued neutrality was not disclosed.

In foreign circles, however, any new conference plan put forth by Premier Mussolini was expected to run into the British-French objections that wrecked his proposals on the eve of hostilities. These objections were that Germany must withdraw her armies from Polish soil and break off hostile activities.

SEP 6 1939

ROME, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—Italy pursued her neutral course in Europe's conflict today with new indications that she does not expect to enter the war in the near future—but she kept her war machine ready.

While workmen took down temporary air raid shelters in Rome, additional equipment was requisitioned to facilitate military movements and the sending of supplies to the 1,800,000 men under arms.

Such preparations extended to Albania, Libya and Ethiopia, where most of the quasi-wartime measures in effect in Italy have been instituted also.

Plans for wartime precautions discussed in Tirana, Albania, by Lieut.-Gen. Francesco Jacomoni, head of Italian authority in the country, and the prefects of the ten Albanian districts.

The Fascist press continued to publish official communiques from both sides, and exhibited increasing enthusiasm over the German advance into Poland. Dispatches from correspondents were supplemented with numerous photographs of Hitler's army on the march.

Much was made of the situation on the Western front, where, the newspapers said, the French had not yet fired a rifle shot. In the Eastern theater, Lieut.-Col. Amedeo Tosti described Poland's situation as desperate. Writing in Forze Armate, an outstanding Italian military organ, he said it was virtually impossible for Poland to get supplies, claimed great superiority for the German Army in men and equipment and spoke of the vulnerability of Polish territory to air raids.

Americans seeking to return home have booked to capacity the liner Rex, sailing Saturday from Naples. Rates are higher than normally, with $400 the minimum for first-class passage to New York and $250 for tourist accommodations. The increase was believed due to higher insurance rates and the probability that only a few passengers would be carried on the return trip.

Only dollars were being accepted in payment. The sailing will give Italy more than $500,000 [illegible] foreign currency.

TIRANA, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Gen. Francesco Jacomoni, head of Italian Authority in Albania, disclosed plans for air raid protection and other war-time precautions, today with the prefects of the district into which Albania is divided.

Many precautions similar to those in Italy have already been instituted. The ports of Durazzo and Valona have been closed to all ships lacking special permission of Italian military authorities.

the night before while working at a desk near a window.

The thirty sniper suspects marched into the hall with their hands raised, escorted by soldiers carrying cocked rifles.

On my way to Czestochowa by plane and automobile from Berlin, just before we crossed the border into Poland, we paused at a stockade where some 1,100 captured Poles had been sent from various parts of the fighting area.

During the stop there, the prisoners were marched off in groups of about 200 each to be transported by rail to regular internment camps.

Among the badly clad soldiers there was a sprinkling of men in civilian attire, five women and about a dozen boys in their teens. The civilians had been arrested on sniping charges.

Shortly before arriving at our destination, we passed through a desolate town, Graszyn, where buildings along the main road were wrecked. The officer assigned to me explained that two days previously, after the main German force had marched beyond Czestochowa and while the rearguard was being brought up, civilians in the town opened fire from their homes.

Several officers and men were killed, and a regular skirmish ensued in the course of which houses and brick kilns representing the town's principal industry were destroyed.

Traffic Is Lacking.

On the way east, I was struck by the lack of civilian traffic on the German super-highways. The railway also seemed empty of passenger trains.

We flew past some twenty military airports, and at each of them were bombers, pursuit planes and other fighting craft, encircled protectively by anti-aircraft batteries. It appeared that the Poles, if they attempted to raid Berlin from Upper Silesia, would have to jump at least twenty dangerous hurdles.

We landed at Stunebdorf only a few minutes after eighty-seven bombers returned from a raid. At this and two other improvised airports, my officer companion said, there were some 1,100 military planes of every description. The Stunebdorf field was fringed with camouflaged tents for officers and men. Some distance off were larger barracks.

Yesterday morning, after a stop at Oppeln, we started for the Polish border. The road to Czestochowa was one long procession of army trucks, officers' cars, horse-drawn provision wagons, marching labor battalions, army engineers and anti-aircraft sharpshooters.

Every bridge from the border to Czestochowa had been destroyed by the Poles in their retreat. Our car bumped over emergency bridges.

While the German Army poured eastward, Polish civilians were flooding back to the west, finding their homes again now that fighting had stopped and the land was in German hands.

Barefoot women had babies tied to their backs. Old men carried heavy burdens wrapped in bedspreads. Boys and girls pushed loaded bicycles. Pushcarts bulged with household odds and ends. Whole families huddled together on horse-drawn vehicles.

BALKAN TRADE SCOOP IN OFFING

Italy May Seize Markets She Lost to Reich.

GERMANY'S HOLD LOOSENING

Unusable Nazi Barter Credits Give Clew to Situation.

BUDAPEST, Sept. [illegible] (A. P.).—The European [illegible] threatens to loosen Germany's economic stranglehold on southeastern Europe, trade experts said today, and may give Italy a chance to turn the tables on her axis partner in their old battle for markets.

Although bound by political and military ties, Italy and Germany have fought like Tigers for a $500,000,000 import business in this section of the Continent. But it was a fight in which victory—about 50 per cent of that trade—went to Berlin.

Premier Mussolini's Ethiopian campaign and the resulting economic sanctions taken against him by other Powers gave Hitler's traveling salesmen the oportunity to get the lion's share of the rich business of Hungary, Yugoslavia, Greece, Rumania, Bulgaria and Turkey four years ago.

The present war, by putting a stop to exports from Germany to this section, gives Mussolini's drummers virtually a clear field.

German Credits Not Wanted.

Although Germany has bought more than she has sold down here, her trade policy has been one of barter—trading armaments and machinery for oil, tobacco and agricultural products. But now Germany can no longer help rearm southeastern Europe and she also needs all her own steel and machinery. She naturally wants, more than ever, the products of this section as war supplies. But the only way she can pay is in credits and they are not wanted here.

Meanwhile, Italy, as long as she remains neutral, is in a perfect position to scoop up this trade. She has need of most of the goods Germany has been buying from the little nations and can pay in the goods which those nations have been getting from Germany.

An Open Invitation.

Evidence of the reaction of southern Europe to this new situation is seen daily in all six countries. For example, Turkey just announced she would not renew her trade agreement with Germany, which expired on August 31. Nearly all the small nations have announced a neutrality stand, but added that they are ready to ship to all old customers capable of carrying on trade relations.

Economic observers see in these announcements an open bid to neutral Italy to send salesmen and buyers and make trade agreements.

While concerned with the loss of German business, the economists of the little nations express relief that German domination of southeastern Europe thus may be ended. Politicians have repeatedly pointed out the danger of economic ties binding these small nations to Germany, which, through them, was getting control of a whole corner of Europe.

Frequently complaints have also come that Germany was charging more than the world price for goods bartered; that out-of-date armaments and machinery were sold here, and that Germany discouraged attempts of the smaller nations to develop industries which would compete with similar German concerns.

Won't Increase Unusable Credits.

In Hungary, where the Government has taken strong methods to check Nazi parties, 48 per cent of all imports come from Germany and 50 per cent of exports go there. In Rumania, which has fought what some of her statesmen call "too close commercial ties with Germany," 48 per cent of imports are German and 35 per cent of exports go there. The figures for Yugoslavia are, imports, 59 per cent; exports, 49 per cent.

In Bulgaria, which sells most of her main crop, tobacco, to Germany, 57 of imports are German goods and 49 per cent of exports go to the Reich. Figures for Greece are, German imports, 31 per cent; exports to Germany, 43 per cent; Turkey, imports 51 per cent, exports, 47 per cent.

As a result of the great spurt in trade with Germany in recent years, the small nations now find that with Germany at war and unable to ship them goods, they have millions of dollars of unusable German credit and say they are unwilling to increase this credit by shipping more to Germany.

If Italy remains neutral and takes the place of Germany in the economic picture, the change may have a profound effect on the political and military attitude of the southeastern European nations. The only fear in diplomatic circles was that Germany's need for southeastern Europe's wheat, oil and other products would be so great that she might be tempted to forceful steps to get them.

KENNEDY IS 51; WORKS RIGHT ON

Ambassador May Not Even Cut Birthday Cake.

PARTY PLANNED FOR TONIGHT

No Arrangement Made Yet for Sending Family Home.

LONDON, Sept. [illegible] (A. P.).—The American Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy observed his fifty-first birthday today at work in his office with coat off and shirt sleeves rolled up, trying to get Americans out of Great Britain.

A birthday party was planned for him by Mrs. Kennedy tonight, but the Ambassador was not certain that he would be there to cut the cake. All the members of the Kennedy family were in London and were to be at the dinner except Joseph Jr. or Jack, one or the other of whom was going to Glasgow during the day to canvass the situation regarding the Athenia survivors there.

Plans for Mrs. Kennedy and some of the children to go home were indefinite pending future information on when ship accommodations would be available.

Mr. Kennedy was said to be using the Government authorities at Washington to start American boats for England immediately, but lacked assurance it would be done. All regular American and neutral boats were said to be booked fully until mid-October. British ships also had full bookings but many reservations were being canceled as a result of the Athenia disaster. For the same reason British boats were being avoided by Americans.

An overworked staff at the embassy was seeking accommodations on every American tramp or any other kind of ship. Arrangements were made to get twenty-seven Americans on the American cargo boat Eglantine after her crew had voted to give up their own berths.

At the embassy a staff was kept on twenty-four-hour duty seeking accommodations and handling the crowds of Americans besieging the building.

Pop Up Everywhere.

"They seem to be coming up out of the ground," one embassy official said, explaining that the numbers were far exceeding those believed to be resident in or touring the country.

At the end of its resources temporarily for getting them home, the embassy was advising Americans to go to less dangerous places in the country to await more ships.

This imposed additional work on the embassy staff in keeping up with their whereabouts. Most of them were being sent to places near ports where they would be accessible to the boats.

The Athenia disaster further complicated the problem, and efforts were being made to get these survivors home as quickly as possible because of the strain they had undergone and the general anxiety of their relatives at home.

Thanks Glasgow People.

Soon as they were brought to safety and recovered from their experiences, the Athenia survivors began pressing the American consulates for passage. Many of them were without funds and like all other Americans they faced a waiting period.

"There's nothing afloat, either American or neutral, that's left now," an Embassy official said.

The problem was considered urgent at the Embassy not only because of the danger existing for those remaining, but also because of the possible effect on American opinion if American casualties should occur.

Mr. Kennedy telephoned the Lord Provost to thank the Glasgow citizens for their kindness to the American refugees. The Ambassador told the Lord Provost that President Roosevelt and the United States Government were grateful for all that had been done and that he was sending a special representative, probably one of his sons, to Glasgow tonight to interview the American survivors.

It was understood that an effort would be made to charter a special steamship to repatriate the refugees.

AMERICANS OFFER SERVICES IN PARIS

Former New Rochelle Woman Heads Ambulance Unit.

PARIS, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—The French Department of the American Legion announced today that since September 3 more than 300 Americans have offered their services to France in her war with Germany. They said that a nineteen-car ambulance section, donated by American citizens and manned by American volunteers, would soon report to the French army.

The group includes women organizing under the leadership of Mrs. H. Sanua-Seymore, a former resident of New Rochelle, N. Y. More than 90 per cent of the male volunteers are said to be world war veterans.

Col. Charles Sweeny said that about 2,000 other men had already registered with him for possible service and that he had received a telegram from a "prominent American Congressman" offering to "furnish you 1,000 American volunteers and a company of 250 men from Texas." Col. Sweeny explained that his group would be listed officially as a unit of the French Foreign Legion.

A French thrust through the Burgundy Gate might cause the Germans to straighten their front, swinging on Karlsruhe as the pivot, for it is there that the French line dog-leg dents the German front.

Such a thrust not only might develop such strength as to force Germany to pull division after division from her eastern front, but also would be a start on the shortest and most advantageous overland route to Poland itself.

Route Takes in Austria

The route would be through southern Germany, along the border of Austria, which is much less attached to the Nazi regime than northern Germany; and if the line could be stretched farther the French would have the advantage of moving through former Czecho-Slovakia, where they might be welcomed as liberators.

That sort of campaign would take months, or even years, and would be beset by many pitfalls. But, as Maurice Duval writes in the Journal des Debats, "No one can have any idea of a short war. Let us accept the fact of a long war; it is inevitable."

With French operations apparently confined to artillery fire and the work of the "suicide squads" between the lines, French sources emphasized no major moves had been attempted.

Weak Spot in Line

Official sources admitted that most of the activity was confined to the area where the French believe the Siegfried Line is weaker than the Maginot — between the Rhine and the Moselle.

The Maginot fortifications take an almost right-angle turn from the north near Strasbourg and run northwestward toward Thionville and to a point near the junction of the French, German and Luxembourg borders.

The French always have contended the German line in this section was built on less favorable ground than the Maginot, which zig-zags underground, the product of costly construction since the World War.

However, the Siegfried line, even if less favored than the Maginot, is still a formidable military factor. If the French leave their underground fastnesses to cross interlying territory studded with machine-gun emplacements staggered in some places to a depth of thirty miles into Germany.

HITLER 'REPORTED' AS MENTALLY ILL

Professor H. C. Steinmetz Says This Statement Was Made by a 'Leading Physician'

By The Associated Press.

PALO ALTO, Calif., Sept. 6.—Before a group of social psychologists, Professor Harry C. Steinmetz of San Diego State College repeated today what he termed "a report or calumny" that Adolf Hitler was suffering from severe mental disorder and was under the almost constant care of an alienist.

Professor Steinmetz said that the statement was made to him by "a leading American research physician, recently returned from Germany." He did not name the physician.

The report "or calumny" said that Hitler's affliction was paranoid manic depression. It is a supposedly incurable mental disease which causes its victims to have alternate fits of depression and elation, complicated by delusions that they are being persecuted.

Professor Steinmetz, addressing a division of the American Psychological Association, made the remark in a technical discussion of what he termed increasing paranoid conditions.

He asserted that whole peoples or groups were being subjected to a sort of national paranoid infection—that is, in their collective thinking and acting, particularly under prolonged, unusual stress.

Erroneous beliefs, he said, became a center of paranoid infection, especially under social disorganization and tension. Such stresses, he added, might cause people to take refuge in delusions, in "rationalizations" or excuse making, or in "defense mechanisms," described as mental tendencies designed to thwart expected trouble.

Such centers of infection, he added, could facilitate the spread of paranoid conditions among individuals, making their social organization progressively more dependent upon the very persons affected.

Features of paranoid conditions which he named included delusions of grandeur as well as of persecution; "retrospective falsification," a chronic course through suspicion, retreat and defense to delusion, illusion and outbreak.

Discussing recent potential modifications of the definition of "paranoia," Professor Steinmetz referred to the Oxford Group and "the bourgeois moral rearmament craze" as being "within the hypothetical classification of euphoric paranoidal delusion."

Stirring Of Reich Revolt Seen As Major Ally Aim

Plans To Agitate Germans Against Hitler Laid Months Ago, Mackenzie Says—Munitions Area Likely To Be First Affected

By DeWitt Mackenzie
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer

New York, Sept. 6—The Anglo-French allies are using every artifice they know to try to precipitate a revolt of the German people against Hitler.

England and France hope thus to achieve by propaganda what otherwise they will have to do with guns on bloody fields of battle.

Planned For Months

This represented a carefully considered effort by the allies and one which they regard as of the highest importance.

Because of this it is decidedly worth watching. Win or lose, it is a historic experiment.

Actually the Anglo-French brotherhood has been working on this plan quietly for some months. As long ago as last December I was authoritatively informed while abroad that it was being inaugurated. But with the declaration of war it has come out into the open.

Almost the initial act of "hostility" by Britain was the dramatic dropping of six million propaganda pamphlets on German territory by airplanes, which might have used bombs instead. These papers gave the Allied version of the rights and wrongs of the situation.

Radio Bombardment

Since then the allied radios have been bombarding Germany with appeals to the German people. It has been like shooting into the dark, for nobody has known how many folk were listening. Nazidom has imposed severe penalties for anyone even listening to foreign propaganda and death in some cases for repeating it.

Still out of the dark have begun to come what purport to be answers from some Germans.

Yesterday the independent Labor party of Britain gave out a message which was said to have been sent by the independent Socialists of Germany. It read in part:

"The German workers and peasants do not want war and have nothing in common with the Nazi regime. Hitler begins the war with Poland against the will of large masses of the population."

Trouble Reported

On top of that the semi-official Paris radio reported trouble in Germany and said there had been disorders in Cologne, Dusseldorf and Essen.

I haven't seen any confirmation of that report. But I do know very well what might cause trouble—if there is any—and certainly every wishful allied thinking would envisage disorders in that area.

The three cities mentioned lie in the heart of the great Rhenish industrial area, among other things one of the world's greatest armaments centers.

At Essen are the vast Krupp steel and munitions works.

Now it happens that this Rhenish district has drawn to itself many of the so-called extremists among Germany's industrial workers. I visited that zone at the time of the Munich crisis and was informed by wholly reliable sources that there was much discontent among the laborers there. They were reported dissatisfied with their low wages, and angry because Nazidom had smashed their trade organizations.

Major Disaster Possible

It was said then that if trouble came in Germany, this manufacturing section would be among the first to show it.

It long has been said, furthermore, that Herr Hitler's gravest danger lay in any economic crisis which would pinch his people too hard.

The German breadwinner, even as you and I, thinks a fair amount with his tummy. If he and his family are well fed, it goes far toward making for contentment. But let his wife and children encounter hunger, or even severe privation, and he may revolt.

Hunger and the pinched faces of little children, had much to do with causing the German revolution at the end of the World War.

The Anglo-French allies have been hoping for an economic collapse which would upset the Nazi regime.

ish State and for its part stands prepared to use all of its influence in the future as it has in the past for the restoration and the maintenance of peace between nations."

STATE DEPARTMENT HELPS TOURISTS

9300 Arrived in U.S. From Europe Last Week.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—The State Department, hard at work in helping Americans get out of Europe, said today approximately 9,300 passengers arrived from Europe the week ended September 1.

Most of these were Americans and, it was added, a large percentage of the 1,200 who landed the same week in Canada also were Americans.

From September 1 to October 4, scheduled west bound sailings of American vessels and ships under prospective neutral flags have accommodations for some 17,000.

How many Americans are still in Europe is indefinite. As of January 1, 85,000 Americans were considered residents of Europe but the department said it did not know how many had returned. Nor could it say how many tourists went to Europe this summer.

The department has been advised that many transient Americans are still in Holland but that 201 of these already have passage for future sailings.

George A. Gordon, American minister to the Netherlands, reported that with the sailing of the Statendam yesterday morning some 276 Americans had left Holland by the six Holland America liners which sailed within the last ten days.

U. S. Favors Localizing War

Hull Declares Acceptance of Franco View Expressed in Memorandum.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—The United States told Spain today that it shared Generalissimo Franco's views that the European war should be localized.

In a note to the Spanish Charge d'Affaires here, Secretary Hull declared:

"The Government of the United States is in accord with the sentiments expressed in the message of the Chief of the Spanish Government, and fully shares the conviction that extension of the present conflict is bound to result in untold suffering for the innocent populations of the countries which may become involved, as well as for the people of other nations."

Gen Franco had issued a memorandum, which was communicated to this Government by Senor Don Luis de Silva, in which he said:

"The more the conflict is extended the more the germ of future wars is sown. In these circumstances I appeal to the common sense and the responsibility of the rulers of the nations in order to direct the efforts of all toward the localization of the present conflict."

"My Government," Secretary Hull replied, "is profoundly convinced that resort to force or the threat of force in an attempt to settle disputes between nations or to impose a solution on the basis of aggression can never be morally or materially justified.

"For this reason the Government of the United States welcomes the initiative of the Chief of the Spa-

Canada Still Open To American Travelers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6 (A. P.).—Canada continues open to American travelers despite the war, a State Department official said today. No passports or visas are at present required for travel there, he said.

German Consul Quits San Francisco Club

Capt. Fritz Wiedemann Headed World War Unit In Which Hitler Was Corporal

San Francisco, Sept. 6 (AP)—Capt. Fritz Wiedemann, German consul general, resigned from the exclusive Olympic Club today after receiving a telegram, later declared to have been signed by forgery, saying 165 members were demanding that he leave the club.

Frank J. Foran, club secretary and member of the board of directors, whose name was appended to the telegram, tonight said he did not send it and knew nothing obout it.

The consul, who has been here only a few months, was captain of the World War unit in which Adolf Hitler served as corporal. Prior to his appointment as consul general, he was regarded as one of Hitler's three "personal adjutants."

British, Italian Ships Take War Precautions

English Vessel Takes On Paint For Camouflage And Sand And Defense

San Francisco, Sept. 6 (AP)—British and Italian ships took added protection against molestation at sea today, just before sailing for home ports.

The Italian ship Leme had huge Italian flags painted on its sides to reduce the chances of mistaken identity.

Paint for camouflage and sand to be placed in bags to lessen the shock of possible air raids, were placed aboard the British freight and passenger liner Lochavon.

QUEEN MARY AND NORMANDIE PLANS SECRET

Bremen Reaches Safety Of Unnamed Port, Berlin Reports

Government Order Prevents 5 Americans From Sailing To Europe

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 6—War's uncertainties kept shipping of both neutral and combatant nations in turmoil today.

Strict censorship clamped down by British and French governments cloaked plans for the great British liner Queen Mary and the French Normandie, tied up at their Hudson river piers, but workmen were observed slapping a coat of gray on the Queen's big funnels, and speculation spread that the big ship soon would risk a camouflaged Atlantic crossing.

Bremen Reported Safe

Unofficial reports from Berlin said the $20,000,000 German liner Bremen had reached the safety of an unnamed neutral port. There were 908 men in the Bremen's crew when it sailed from New York without passengers a week ago.

Line officials, meanwhile, kept a watch for the French liner Ile de France, due in New York tomorrow from Havre with more than 1,000 passengers, but with its wireless silenced and exact whereabouts unknown.

Also due here tomorrow was the United States liner Manhattan, with an unknown number of passengers, to add to the thousands who already have arrived on close to a score of liners in the past few days.

The sailing of the President Roosevelt of the United States Lines was delayed by war-induced labor difficulties. She originally was scheduled to leave New York at noon with 259 passengers—222 of them British subjects—and to return immedia some of the thousands of Ame now stranded abroad.

Demands of the Roosevelt's crew for increased wages and insurance for entering the European war zone caused the delay.

Five Denied Passage

Under Government orders that American citizens must have "imperative reasons" to sail for Europe, five were denied passage on the Roosevelt, among them W. W. Rosenberg, a medical student who had booked passage from Philadelphia; William Arnold, a retired naval warrant officer, of Langley Field, Va., and Mrs. C. Gurney, Englewood, N. J. (care of Alice Morrow).

A sixth, Dr. James H. Ferguson, Brookline, Mass., was permitted to go to Europe "for medical research."

Only Two Americans

Dr. Ferguson and Dale W. Maher, second secretary of the American legation in Budapest, were the only American passengers of 254 aboard when the brightly lighted Roosevelt finally left her pier shortly after 7 P. M. (E.S.T.). Seamen were promised concessions to be allowed by current negotiations with their union.

Newly revised war risk insurance rates, meanwhile, gave preference to United States flag vessels over ships of all other nations. Marine underwriters a week ago tripled rates on all voyages except shipments confined to the western hemisphere or on United States ships not touching European ports or the Mediterranean.

Report On Nazi Ships

Other developments brought:

A report that five German ships took refuge at Punta Arenas, Costa Rica, and that the Costa Rican Government had ordered them to dismantle their wireless stations.

An announcement that the American cruise ship Iriquois with 240 tourists aboard would steer clear of the British West Indies and instead visit the Virgin Islands.

A report that the Swedish tanker Saint Gobain, bound for France from Peru, sought safety in San Juan, Puerto Rica, on orders received after it cleared the Panama Canal.

An order from Washington to steamship inspectors to "be on the alert for saboteurs and possible sabotage on all ships leaving American ports" because belligerent European nations may have agents in this country to "hinder supplies to opposing belligerents."

Liner Arrives From Glasgow

The United States liner American Importer arrived today from Glasgow, after a stop at Boston, where she debarked 132 of her 180 pasengers.

Her cargo included $10,000,000 in gold and 56,000 cases of Scotch whisky, transferred from a British ship which canceled its sailing.

The youngest passenger was Thomas Connor, 11, traveling alone. Born in America, he has been living with his parents in Liverpool, but came to live with an aunt, Mrs. Margaret Thompson, of Philadelphia.

A passenger who chanced to transfer to the American Importer from the doomed British liner Athenia was Dorothy Rahmann, of Summit, N. J.

Experiences Variety

A refugee of considerable experience was Herbert Weiskopf. He fled Germany when Hitler first rose to power, left on Sudetenland when the Nazis took over that territory, and escaped from Prague with the brown-shirted legions hot on his heels. He finally reached Glasgow and sailed to America, hoping to reestablish a musical career in St. Louis, where he has friends.

Reports U-Boat "Off Key West"

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 6 (AP).—James H. Ricau, secretary of the New Orleans Board of Trade, said today he had received a telegram from the Porter Dock Company at Key West saying a submarine had "been positively located off Key West this morning." He said the submersible presumably was a German craft.

Mr. Ricau notified all members of the Board of Trade interested in shipping.

BREMEN LIFEBUOYS FOUND

ORLEANS, Mass., Sept. 6 (AP).—A brief flurry of excitement spread through this Cape Cod town today when it was learned that two lifebuoys marked "Bremen," apparently belonging to the German liner that vanished after she left New York last Wednesday, had been washed up on Orleans Beach.

Coast Guardsmen said, however, that the first of the two buoys was found at midnight last Wednesday. Since this was only about four hours after the Bremen left New York, officers asserted it would have been physically "impossible" for the ship herself to have reached Cape Cod in that time.

It would have been even more impossible for the lifebuoys to have floated any distance to the shore at this spot, near the "elbow" of the Cape, in the brief time after the Bremen sailed.

Boatswain's Mate Louis Silva expressed the belief the buoys might have been lost overboard on the Bremen's westward crossing. He said Surfman Ezekial Fulcher came upon the first of the lifebuoys, and that a Summer visitor found the other the next day. It was possible, he added, that both had been on the beach for some time.

POLES ARE SEEN NEAR DISASTER

Strategists Here Believe Many May Be Trapped.

GERMANS ADVANCE RAPIDLY

Poland Faces Immediate Loss of Quarter of Area.

By Associated Press.

American military experts said today that the retreating Polish Army faces the peril of a major disaster as the result of the rapid German drive toward Warsaw from the north and south.

Troops and guns, it was explained, may be trapped by the pinching off of 20,000 square miles of western Poland.

The principal means of retreat eastward toward Warsaw is by the single Poznan-Kutno-Warsaw line, and bridges and junction points of this line have been bombed from the air and possibly blasted by gunfire.

Dispatches telling of the German occupation of Krakow, 100 miles south of Warsaw, and of the partial evacuation of the capital itself, prompted authorities to assert that German occupation of more than a quarter of Poland was imminent.

This area contains well over half of the beleaguered nation's industries.

Toward Second Line.

The Poles, it was said, obviously are falling back to a second defense line along the Vistula River which flows north and south through Warsaw.

There they are expected to make their most desperate defense in the hope that mud will come to their aid with the start of early fall rains and the consequent rise of the Vistula.

Even that line is threatened by a flanking movement to the south by a German force which crossed the Carpathian Mountains from Slovakia through the Jablonka Pass.

The progress of Germany's mechanized forces impressed military strategists, who said that the speed attained must have met the hopes of even the most optimistic Nazis.

The German advance thus far has been in three general phases. The first, a preliminary, pinched off Danzig and the narrow corridor. Simultaneously the main German force pushed eastward and northward toward Krakow and Warsaw. A third force moved south toward Warsaw from East Prussia.

Joining at or near Warsaw they would trap any Polish troops remaining between Warsaw and the German border and complete the pinching off of the western richest quarter of Poland.

KENNEDY, WHO HAS BEEN URGING WASHINGTON OFFICIALS TO START AMERICAN BOATS FOR ENGLAND IMMEDIATELY, SAID THE MARITIME COMMISSION "HOPES TO SECURE SEVERAL VESSELS WITHIN THE NEXT FEW DAYS TO ASSIST IN THE EVACUATION."

HE ADDED TWO ADDITIONAL SHIPS MIGHT BE STARTED FOR EUROPE "WITHIN THE NEXT DAY OR TWO."

THE FIRST OF THE FOUR VESSELS SHOULD REACH ENGLAND IN ABOUT A WEEK, HE SAID.

THE ORIZABA IS EXPECTED TO ACCOMMODATE ABOUT 300 OR 350 PASSENGERS AND THE AMERICAN SEAMAN ABOUT 200.

"IT IS PLANNED TO PLACE SURVIVORS OF THE ATHENIA DISASTER ON THE FIRST AVAILABLE VESSEL," KENNEDY SAID.

SECOND NIGHT LEAD FRENCH

BY TAYLOR HENRY

PARIS, SEPT. 6-(AP)-THE FRENCH ARMY SWUNG ITS NORTHERN WING DEEPER INTO GERMAN TERRITORY TONIGHT IN THE FACE OF INCREASING NAZI RESISTANCE

A BATTLE DEVELOPING ALONG THE 100-MILE FRONT BETWEEN THE RHINE AND MOSELLE RIVERS ON THE EXTREME NORTHERN FLANK SPREAD SLOWLY ACROSS THE ROUGH COUNTRYSIDE SOUTHEAST OF THE ARDENNES MOUNTAINS.

NEWLY MOBILIZED FRENCH REINFORCEMENTS WERE MOVING UP TOWARD THE FRONTIER BEHIND THE LINE OF ATTACKING TROOPS.

FROM BASES FAR BEHIND THE LINES FRENCH AND BRITISH PLANES ROARED OUT IN COORDINATED ATTACK AGAINST THE SAAR MINING AREA AND INDUSTRIAL TOWNS TO THE NORTH WHICH FORM ONE OF THE MAIN SOURCES OF WAR SUPPLIES FOR GERMAN DIVISIONS OPERATING IN THE MOSELLE VALLEY.

THE SIXTH COMMUNIQUE ISSUED BY THE GENERAL STAFF CONTAINED THE FIRST MENTION OF GERMAN RESISTANCE.

ALL ALONG THE FRONT FRENCH ADVANCE UNITS WERE FEELING OUT GERMAN FIELD ORGANIZATIONS WHICH WERE SUPPORTED BY AUTOMATIC ARMS, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID.

SEP 7 1939

IT WAS OBVIOUS FROM THE ROUGH TERRAIN THAT THESE UNITS, ARMED WITH AUTOMATIC CANNON AND MACHINE-GUNS, WERE DIRECTING A CROSS-FIRE AT VALLEYS AND CREEK CROSSINGS ALONG WHICH THE FRENCH WOULD HAVE TO ADVANCE.

DESPITE DIFFICULTIES OF THE UNEVEN, FOREST-COVERED AREA THROUGH WHICH THEY WERE OPERATING AGAINST PREPARED NAZI POSITIONS, THE GENERAL STAFF SAID ITS TROOPS WERE ADVANCING ON GERMAN SOIL.

PARIS, SEPT. 6-(AP)-A CONTINUING ADVANCE BY THE FRENCH ARMY INTO GERMAN TERRITORY, IN A BROAD OFFENSIVE OF COORDINATED AIR AND LAND FORCES DIRECTED AT THE SIEGFRIED LINE, WAS REPORTED TONIGHT BY THE GENERAL STAFF.

SEP 7 1939

THE EVENING COMMUNIQUE, THE SECOND OF THE DAY TO ANNOUNCE SUCCESSES ON THE WESTERN FRONT, SAID THE "FIRST ELEMENTS" OF THE FRENCH OFFENSIVE WAVE WERE "PROGRESSING BEYOND THE (GERMAN) FRONTIER WITH THE ADVANCE VARIABLE ACCORDING TO DIFFERENT PARTS OF THE FRONT."

"THE ACTIVITY OF OUR AVIATION," IT ADDED, "IS IN LIAISON WITH LAND ACTIONS.

"THE MOVEMENTS FORSEEN FOR THE MOBILIZATION, TRANSPORT AND INSTALLATION OF ALL UNITS CONTINUE NORMALLY.

"FOR THE VARIOUS FORMATIONS OFFICERS, CONFORMING TO OUR TRADITIONS, LOOK OUT AS MUCH AS POSSIBLE FOR THE NECESSITIES OF LIFE FOR THE TROOPS, WHOSE MORALE IS EXCELLENT.

(THE TERMS OF THE COMMUNIQUE, ESPECIALLY THE REFERENCE TO

30.24-3107

"DIFFERENT PARTS OF THE FRONT," MADE IT APPEAR THAT THIS WAS THE BROADEST ACTION YET SEEN ON THE WESTERN FRONT IN THE NEW WAR.)

NEWLY MOBILIZED TROOPS CONTINUED TO MOVE UP.

THE FRENCH ADVANCE INTO GERMANY'S INDUSTRIALLY IMPORTANT SAARLAND, PUTTING INCREASED PRESSURE ON THE GERMAN WESTERN WALL OF FORTIFICATIONS--WHICH AT SOME POINTS ARE KNOWN TO BE MANY MILES DEEP--IN AN EFFORT TO FORCE THE DIVERSION OF NAZI MILITARY FORCES FROM THE DRIVE INTO POLAND, HAD BEEN REPORTED EARLIER.

THE EARLIER COMMUNIQUE SAID THE POILUS HAD MADE "LOCAL ADVANCES" ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

THE FRENCH WERE IN CONTACT WITH GERMAN FORCES ALL THE WAY FROM THE COMMENCEMENT OF THE FRONTIER AT MOSELLE, SOUTH OF LUXEMBOURG, TO THE RHINE MORE THAN 100 MILES SOUTHEAST.

BRITISH AND FRENCH PLANES WERE REPORTED TO HAVE STRUCK AT GERMAN MUNITIONS PLANTS AND CONCENTRATION CENTERS NORTH OF THE SAAR VALLEY --WHICH ONCE WAS THE BACKBONE OF GERMAN INDUSTRIAL LIFE.

REPORTS IN PARIS SAID SUCCESSFUL RAIDS HAD BEEN CARRIED OUT ON AACHEN (AIX-LA-CHAPPELLE), NEAR THE BELGIAN BORDER, AND ON NEARBY GERMAN WAR SUPPLY CENTERS AT ESCHWELLER AND STOLBERG.

ADVICES HERE RECEIVED GAVE NO INDICATION AS TO THE REASON FOR THE EXPLOSION.

PARIS AND NORTH CENTRAL FRANCE WERE WARNED TO BE ON THE ALERT FOR AIR RAIDERS TWICE WITHIN 12 HOURS. PUFFS OF SMOKE FROM ANTI-AIRCRAFT BATTERIES AND THE SOUND OF FIRING SOUTHEAST OF PARIS SEEMED TO INDICATE ENEMY AIRCRAFT HIGH ABOVE THE CAPITAL BUT NO BOMBS WERE DROPPED.

ADVANCE FRENCH UNITS STRUCK FIRST AT STRONGLY IMPLANTED MACHINE-GUN NESTS IN FOLDS OF THE HILLS BETWEEN THE MOSELLE AND THE RHINE, SUPPORTED BY THE SLOWLY GATHERING FORCE OF MAIN LINE TROOPS FROM THE MAGINOT LINE FORTIFICATIONS.

THE ATTACK ON THE NORTHERN FLANK WHICH WOULD BRING THE QUICKEST IMMEDIATE THREAT TO GERMANY WAS OF OBVIOUSLY INCREASING INTENSITY WHILE HEAVY ARTILLERY BOMBARDED ALL ALONG THE RHINE FRONTIER AS FAR AS THE SWISS BORDER.

THESE ZONES ARE IN WEST AND CENTRAL POLAND, ABOUT 60 TO 80 MILES FROM THE GERMAN FRONTIER. TOMASZOW IS ON THE BORDER OF WARSAW PROVINCE, 65 MILES FROM THE POLISH CAPITAL. LODZ AND PIOTRKOW ARE NEAR THE EASTERN BOUNDARIES OF LODZ PROVINCE ON TWO MAIN RAILROADS RUNNING SOUTHWEST FROM WARSAW.

PREVIOUS DISPATCHES TO PARIS ON OPERATIONS ON THE SOUTHERN POLISH FRONT SAID THE BATTLE LINE RAN FROM WARTA SOUTHWEST TO KAMIENSK, TOWNS ABOUT 50 MILES WITHIN THE POLISH BORDER.

WITH THE INCREASE OF FRENCH PRESSURE ON THE WESTERN FRONT THE POLISH ARMY'S OPERATIONS WERE REPORTED HERE TO BE BECOMING STABILIZED. DISPATCHES TO PARIS SAID THE SOUTHERN POLISH FORCES WERE HOLDING AGAINST A GERMAN ATTACK FROM WARTA TO KAMIENSK. THESE TOWNS ARE ABOUT 50 MILES WITHIN THE POLISH FRONTIER.

REPORTS OF SUCCESSFUL AIR RAIDS ON THE GERMAN INDUSTRIAL TRIANGLE FORMED BY AACHEN, ESCHWELLER AND STOLBERG CAME FROM THE BELGIAN CITY OF EUPEN, WHICH IS ONLY TEN MILES FROM THE FRONTIER.

REPORTS FROM BASEL, WHERE THE FRENCH, GERMAN AND SWISS BORDERS MEET, SAID CIVILIANS WERE BEING REMOVED FROM GERMAN TOWNS IN THE AREA.

COMMUNIQUES DESCRIBED THE GERMAN RAIDS OVER FRANCE AS SCOUTING EXPEDITIONS. A 30-MINUTE WARNING SHORTLY BEFORE NOON SENT PARISIANS HUDDLING INTO AIR RAID SHELTERS FOR THE FIRST TIME IN BROAD DAYLIGHT. TWO PREVIOUS SIGNALS WERE AT NIGHT.

THE RAIDS APPARENTLY EXTENDED TO ENGLAND WHERE GERMAN PLANES WERE DRIVEN OFF THE EAST COAST.

LE HAVRE, ONE OF FRANCE'S MAIN PORTS FOR TRANSATLANTIC SHIPPING, UNDERWENT TWO RAID WARNINGS.

THE DAYLIGHT WAILING OF SIRENS HALTED LIFE IN PARIS. REACTION OF MORNING VISITORS AT THE AMERICAN EXPRESS AGENCY TO THE WARNINGS WAS TYPICAL OF THEIR EFFECT ON BUSINESS. ALL RUSHED TO SHELTERS AND CLERKS FOLLOWED THEM AFTER LOCKING CASH BOXES AND SHUTTING WINDOWS. SEP 7 1939

BERLIN,SEPT.6-(AP)-WITH OFFICIAL REPORTS OF ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT THROUGH THE FIRST DAYS OF THE FRENCH-GERMAN STATE OF WAR, GERMANY REJOICED TODAY IN THE HIGH COMMAND'S ANNOUNCEMENTS OF NEW, SWEEPING VICTORIES ON THE EASTERN, OR POLISH FRONT.

"ON TO ARSAW!...ON TO KRAKO

"ON TO WARSAW!...ON TO KRAKOW!" WERE GERMAN BATTLE CRIES.

TWO INDUSTRIAL CITIES OF SOUTHWESTERN POLAND, KATOWICE AND CHORZOW, WERE REPORTED THE LATEST PRIZES OF THE GERMAN DRIVE TOWARD KRAKOW, POLAND'S CAPITAL OF OLDEN DAYS. (KATOWICE IS ONLY 40 MILES WEST OF KRAKOW.)

SEP 7 1939

MEANWHILE, A SALIENT FROM EAST PRUSSIA WAS STABBED CLOSER TO WARSAW, MODERN POLAND'S CAPITAL. (WARSAW ADVICES SAID THE GERMAN SPEARHEAD WAS APPROXIMATELY 35 MILES TO THE NORTHWEST OF THE CITY. BUDAPEST DESPATCHES SAID WARSAW WAS UNDER FIRE OF GERMAN GUNS.)

TTE SUPREME ARMY COMMAND DECLARED POLISH DEFENSES WERE CRUMBLING, WITH GERMANY'S "LIGHTNING WAR" IN THE EAST ONLY FIVE DAYS OLD.

MILITARY LEADERS EMPHASIZED THE NEED OF SPEED IN THE POLISH CAMPAIGN IN ORDER TO RELEASE THE EASTERN ARMY FOR DEFENSE OF THE STRANGELY-QUIET WESTERN FRONTIER.

THE AIR FORCE, PROUD IN ITS CLAIMS OF MASTERY IN THE POLISH SKIES, WAS INCREASINGLY CONFIDENT OF DEFENSIVE SUPREMACY OVER BRITISH AND FRENCH PLANES.

GERMAN OFFICIALS COUNTED 12 PLANES LOST BY THE BRITISH OUT OF 20 WHICH STRUCK AT NORTHWESTERN GERMANY MONDAY EVENING, AIMING BOMBS AT CUXHAVEN AND WILHELMSHAVEN NAVAL BASES. TWO MORE BRITISH PLANES OF THE RECONNAISSANCE TYPE WERE REPORTED SHOT DOWN OVER HAMBURG YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

THE GERMANS ASSERTED ONLY ONE OF THE BRITISH TWO-ENGINED VICKERS BOMBERS GOT THROUGH TO WILHELMSHAVEN, THAT IT WAS STRUCK THERE BY A SHELL AND CRASHED INTO THE HARBOR.

COASTAL COMMANDS AT OSTFRIESLAND AND NORDFRIESLAND GAVE WARNING OF THE BRITISH APPROACH, IT WAS SAID, AND GERMAN PURSUIT PLANES WERE HIGH IN THE CLOUDS WHEN THEY APPEARED. THE GERMAN AIRMEN WERE SAID TO HAVE DRIVEN THE ATTACKERS DOWN INTO ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE.

THE OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT SAID THE BRITISH RAIDERS WERE MET "WITH PERFECT COORDINATION OF GERMAN FIGHTERS AND ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS," AND THAT ALL THE BRITISH BOMBS FELL INTO THE WATER.

SEP 7 1939

(THE BRITISH HAD ANNOUNCED TWO OF GERMANY'S FIVE BATTLESHIPS WERE DAMAGED HEAVILY.)

AT 6 P.M. YESTERDAY, JUST 48 HOURS AFTER FRANCE DECLARED WAR ON GERMANY, OFFICIALS ANNOUNCED THAT NOT A SHOT HAD BEEN FIRED ON THE WESTERN FRONT--EITHER BY THE FRENCH OR GERMANS.

30.24—3113

(A FRENCH COMMUNIQUE SAID "OUR TROOPS ARE IN CONTACT EVVERUHERE ALONG THE FRONTIER BETVEEN THE RHINE AND THE MOSELLE.")

THE EASTERN ARMY REPORTED ITS POLISH FOE WAS "PARTLY RETREATING IN DISORDER, BADLY SHATTERED." THE POLES WERE SAID TO HAVE GIVEN UP KATOWICE AND CHROZOW WITHOUT EXPLODING MINES WHICH THEY HAD PLACED UNDER THEIR GREAT INDUSTRIAL PLANTS.

THE GERMANS SAID THEY HAD CRUSHED THE ENTIRE SEVENTH POLISH ARMY DIVISION SOUTHEAST OF CZESTOCHOWA, CAPTURED TWO DAYS AGO. (A POLISH DIVISION USUALLY NUMBERS 10,000 TO 15,000 MEN.)

ELEVEN POLISH PLANES WERE SAID TO HAVE BEEN SHOT DOWN YESTERDAY BETWEEN WARSAW AND LOZ, BRINGING TO 65 THE TOTAL THUS DESTROYED MONDAY AND TUESDAY.

BERLIN WAS BLACKED OUT COMPLETELY LAST NIGHT, BUT UP TO 11:40 P.M. (5:40 P.M., EST) HAD NOT BEEN VISITED BY HOSTILE PLANES. ANTI-AIRCRAFT FORCES WERE KEPT ON THE ALERT THROUGH THE NIGHT.

(A POLISH RADIO REPORT MORE THAN AN HOUR BEFORE HAD SAID 30 POLISH PLANES ATTACKED THE GERMAN CAPITAL.)

GERMANS, WHO HAVE CHARGED BRITISH PLANES WITH TRESPASSING OVER THE NETHERLANDS IN CARRYING PROPAGANDA LEAFLETS TO BE DUMPED OVER GERMANY, SAID THEY EXPECTED "THE NETHERLANDS AS WELL AS OTHER NEUTRAL COUNTRIES TO OPEN FIRE" WHEN FOREIGN MILITARY PLANES FLY OVER THEIR TERRITORY.

SOME OF THE BRITISH LEAFLETS (LONDON REPORTED 9,000,000 HAD BEEN DROPPED) WERE BROUGHT TO BERLIN. THEY ACCUSED GERMANY OF FORCING BRITAIN INTO A "USELESS" WAR.

THE GOVERNMENT LAST NIGHT ISSUED A WHITE BOOK CHRONOLOGICALLY

30.24—3113

SECOND NIGHT LEAD EUROPEAN

BY RICHARD L. TURNER

SEP 7 1939

WASHINGTON, SEPT. 6-(AP)-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT CALLED UPON EVERY POLICE OFFICER IN THE UNITED STATES TONIGHT TO COOPERATE WITH THE FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION IN A MIGHTY EFFORT TO STAMP OUT "ESPIONAGE, COUNTER ESPIONAGE, SABOTAGE, SUBVERSIVE ACTIVITIES AND VIOLATIONS OF THE NEUTRALITY LAWS."

FORMALLY PLACING THE FBI--THE FAMOUS G-MEN--IN CHARGE OF THIS CAMPAIGN, HE REQUESTED "ALL POLICE OFFICERS, SHERIFFS, AND ALL OTHER LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS IN THE UNITED STATES" TO TURN OVER TO THE NEAREST FBI AGENT ANY INFORMATION OBTAINED ON THE OFFENSES IN QUESTION.

HE MADE THIS REQUEST, HE SAID, BECAUSE THE "TASK MUST BE CONDUCTED IN A COMPREHENSIVE AND EFFECTIVE MANNER ON A NATIONAL BASIS, AND ALL INFORMATION MUST BE CAREFULLY SIFTED OUT AND CORRELATED IN ORDER TO AVOID CONFUSION AND IRRESPONSIBILITY."

A LITTLE EARLIER, THE WHITE HOUSE ANNOUNCED THAT A LARGE FLEET OF DESTROYERS, COAST GUARD CUTTERS AND AIRPLANES WOULD PATROL THE ATLANTIC FROM NEW ENGLAND TO THE PANAMA CANAL, AND AS MUCH AS SEVERAL HUNDRED MILES AT SEA, TO DETECT AND REPORT THE PRESENCE OF BELLIGERENT WARSHIPS.

THE PURPOSE, IT WAS EXPLAINED, WAS TO GIVE AMERICAN VESSELS WARNING OF THE WARCRAFTS' PRESENCE, AND TO LET THE BELLIGERENTS KNOW THAT AMERICAN SHIPS ARE IN THE VICINITY IN WHICH THEIR FIGHTING VESSELS MAY BE OPERATING.

TWO DESTROYERS AND TWO COAST GUARD CUTTERS ALREADY HAD STARTED TO PATROL. FOUR OTHER CUTTERS WERE DESPATCHED FROM THE WEST COAST TO THE ATLANTIC. MEANWHILE, 116 MORE DESTROYERS AND OTHER COAST GUARD CRAFT AWAITED FITTING OUT OR THE PROVISION OF CREWS BEFORE JTINING THE PATROL.

THE DAY WAS FILLED WITH RAPID-FIRE ACTIVITY RESULTING FROM THE EUROPEAN WAR. IN A MOVE UNPRECEDENTED IN THE NATION'S PEACE-TIME HISTORY, THE PRESIDENT PUT THE PANAMA CANAL UNDER RIGID MILITARY CONTROL TO SAFEGUARD THE BIG WATERWAY AGAINST DAMAGE FROM ANY SOURCE. AN EXECUTIVE ORDER GAVE MAJOR GENERAL DAVID L. STONE, IN COMMAND OF THE CANAL'S DEFENSES, JURISDICTION OVER THE GOVERNOR OF THE CANAL ZONE, BRIGADIER GENERAL CLARENCE S. RIDLEY.

SEP 7 1939

WASHINGTON: FIRST ADD NIGHT LEAD EUROPEAN X X X BE OPERATING.

WHILE THIS BECAME KNOWN, STEPHEN T. EARLY, MR. ROOSEVELT'S PRESS SECRETARY, SAID THE GOVERNMENT WAS KEEPING A CLOSE WATCH UPON THE RADIO, PARTICULARLY SHORT WAVE INTERNATIONAL BROADCASTING, TO SEE HOW IT BEHAVES AT A TIME WHEN THE COUNTRY IS ANXIOUSLY GUARDING ITS NEUTRALITY. OFFICIALS, HE SAID, WERE PARTICULARLY DESIROUS THAT AMATEUR OPERATORS OR OTHERS SHOULD NOT, INTENTIONALLY OR OTHERWISE, GIVE UNNEUTRAL AID AND COMFORT TO ANY OF THE NATIONS NOW AT WAR.

SEP 7 1939

WHERE THE PRESS AND STANDARD BROADCASTING STATIONS ARE CONCERNED, EARLY SAID, THE PRESIDENT CERTAINLY WANTS NO CENSORSHIP, ALTHOUGH PLANS EXIST FOR THE GOVERNMENT TO TAKE CONTROL OF

THE RADIO IF THIS COUNTRY SHOULD GO TO WAR. EARLY'S ANNOUNCEMENT TOUCHED OFF AN IMMEDIATE ARGUMENT WHETHER, WHILE NEUTRAL, THE GOVERNMENT HAD SUCH A POWER. SOME CONTENDED A CENSORSHIP COULD BE IMPOSED IF THE PRESIDENT SHOULD DECLARE AN EMERGENCY.

THESE DEVELOPMENTS TOPPED A DAY OF NUMEROUS EVENTS RELATING TO THE WAR AND AMERICA'S CONNECTION WITH THAT CONFLICT. THEY INCLUDED:

ATTORNEY GENERAL MURPHY URGED CITIZENS TO REPORT ANY SPYING ACTIVITY WHICH COMES TO THEIR NOTICE TO THE FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION.

ALTHOUGH HE SAID HE WANTED NO "WITCH HUNT," HE ASSERTED:

"FOREIGN AGENTS UNDERTAKING ESPIONAGE, SABOTAGE, AND SUBVERSIVE ACTIVITIES WILL NOT FIND THIS COUNTRY A HAPPY HUNTING GROUND."

ORDERS WENT OUT FROM THE MARINE INSPECTION BUREAU DIRECTING ALL STEAMSHIP INSPECTORS TO TAKE SPECIAL PRECAUTIONS AGAINST SABOTEURS WHO MIGHT TRY TO DAMAGE VESSELS LEAVING AMERICAN PORTS. THE BUREAU SAID IT WAS POSSIBLE AGENTS WORKING FOR SOME OF THE BELLIGERENTS MIGHT SEEK "TO HINDER SUPPLIES TO OPPOSING BELLIGERENTS."

SECRETARY HULL SAID THIS GOVERNMENT WAS STILL GATHERING INFORMATION ON THE SINKING OF THE BRITISH LINER ATHENIA. ASKED IF A PROTEST TO GERMANY WOULD FOLLOW IF AMERICAN LIVES WERE LOST IN THAT DISASTER, HE SAID THAT ALL HE COULD SAY WAS THAT THE GOVERNMENT WAS TRYING TO ASSEMBLE THE ACTUAL FACTS.

A26WX

HULL TOOK THE OPPORTUNITY TO CLARIFY A QUESTION ON WHICH THERE HAD APPARENTLY BEEN SOME CONFUSION. HE SAID THAT EVEN THOUGH CANADA DOES NOT DECLARE WAR UPON GERMANY WAR SUPPLIES EMBARGOED UNDER THE NEUTRALITY ACT MAY NOT BE SENT TO THE DOMINION FOR TRANS-SHIPMENT TO GREAT BRITAIN.

AN EXCHANGE OF NOTES WITH SPAIN WAS MADE PUBLIC IN WHICH BOTH GOVERNMENTS EXPRESSED A CONVICTION THAT THE WAR SHOULD NOT BE PERMITTED TO SPREAD TO NATIONS NOT NOW INVOLVED.

MYRON C.TAYLOR, CHAIRMAN OF A COMMITTEE WHICH HAS BEEN AT WORK FOR MONTHS ON PLANS FOR ASSISTING REFUGEES TO LEAVE GERMANY, CALLED UPON BOTH HULL AND THE PRESIDENT. HULL SAID THAT WHILE THE WAR HAD COMPLICATED THAT PROBLEM IT WAS RECEIVING CONSTANT ATTENTION AND THAT A MEETING OF THE COMMITTEE CALLED FOR OCTOBER 16 AND 17 WOULD BE HELD AS SCHEDULED.

COMMENTING UPON THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE SEA PATROLS, EARLY SAID IT SHOULD NOT BE THOUGHT THAT THE 116 DESTROYERS COULD TAKE UP THEIR STATIONS AT ONCE. THE VESSELS ARE RELICS OF THE WORLD WAR. SOME 40 OR MORE OF THEM, HE SAID, HAVE BEEN KEPT IN SUCH CONDITION, WITH THEIR MACHINERY OILED AND GREASED, THAT THEY ARE READY FOR SERVICE AT ONCE AND HAVE BEEN PUT IN A NUMBER 1 PRIORITY CLASS. ALL THAT REMAINS BEFORE THEY TAKE TO SEA, HE SAID, IS PROVIDING CREWS FOR THEM.

HE SPOKE OF A NUMBER 2 PRIORITY CATEGORYZN MEANING VESSELS WHICH HAVE NOT BEEN KEPT READY FOR SERVICE, AND OF A THIRD CATEGORY OF DESTROYERS WHICH WILL REQUIRE EXTENSIVE WORK IF THEY ARE TO BE PREPARED FOR SEA.

OF THE LATTER, HE SAID IT WOULD UNDOUBTEDLY TAKE A MONTH TO RENOVATE THEM SUFFICIENTLY TO PUT THE SHIPS IN THE NUMBER 2

30.24—3119

PRIORITY C

ASS. VESSELS ALREADY IN THE NUMBER 2 CATEGORY, HE CONTINUED, COULD BE PAINTED AND PUT IN NUMBER 1 CONDITION IN A FORTNIGHT.

RK430PES

WASHN--2ND ADD NIGHT LEAD EUROPEAN X X X IN A FORTNIGHT.

EARLY'S ASSERTIONS CONCERNING THE RADIO AROSE FROM QUESTIONS CONNECTED WITH MR. ROOSEVELT'S STATEMENT OF YESTERDAY REGARDING THE CONTROL OF PROPAGANDA HERE AND STEPS TO PREVENT THIS COUNTRY FROM BEING USED AS A CLEARING CENTER FOR THE DISSEMINATION OF INFORMATION TO THE BELLIGERENTS.

SEP 7 1939

"I AM ENTIRELY CERTAIN IN MY OWN MIND," HE SAID, "THAT FOR THE PRESENT SO FAR AS RADIO BROADCASTING BY STANDARD STATIONS IS CONCERNED AND SO FAR AS THE PRESS AS A WHOLE IS CONCERNED, THE PRESIDENT WANTS NO CENSORSHIP AND HOPES TO ESTABLISH PARITY BETWEEN THE TWO."

HE SPOKE OF PLANS ALREADY IN EXISTENCE, BASED UPON THE COMMUNICATIONS ACT, UNDER WHICH THE GOVERNMENT MAY TAKE CONTROL OF THE RADIO IN TIME OF WAR. THE RADIO, HE SAID, BECAUSE OF ITS YOUTH, IS COMING INTO A PERIOD OF HISTORY THAT IS NEW TO IT. IF IT PROVES TO BE A "GOOD CHILD" IT WILL BE LEFT TO MOVE ALONG ON ITS OWN, HE SAID, BUT IF THE RESULT IS OTHERWISE THE CONSEQUENCE WILL BE TO "TEACH IT SOME MANNERS, CORRECT IT SO AS TO BEHAVE ITSELF."

30.24—3119

THUS FAR, EARLY CONTINUED, THE GOVERNMENT HAS NOT MOVED IN THAT DIRECTION AND HOPES IT WILL NOT HAVE TO. THE PRESS, HE NOTED, HAS GONE THROUGH WAR, PEACE AND PERIODS OF NEUTRALITY, WHILE THE RADIO HAS NOT AND THE LATTER IS FACING AN HISTORIC PERIOD IN THE LIFE OF THE COUNTRY.

"IN OTHER WORDS IT IS A ROOKY AND NOT A VETERAN," HE SAID.

THE EXCHANGE WITH SPAIN RESULTED FROM A MEMORANDUM ADDRESSED BY GENERAL FRANCO TO THIS COUNTRY ON SEPTEMBER 4 SAYING THAT THE WIDER THE EUROPEAN CONFLICT IS EXTENDED "THE MORE THE GERM OF FUTURE WARS IS SOWN." IT ADDED:

"IN THESE CIRCUMSTANCES I APPEAL TO THE COMMON SENSE AND THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE RULERS OF THE NATIONS IN ORDER TO DIRECT THE EFFORTS OF ALL TOWARD THE LOCALIZATION OF THE PRESENT CONFLICT."

REPLYING, SECRETARY HULL SAID THIS GOVERNMENT WAS "IN ACCORD WITH THE SENTIMENTS EXPRESSED IN THE MESSAGE OF THE CHIEF OF THE SPANISH GOVERNMENT." THE UNITED STATES, HE CONTINUED, "FULLY SHARES THE CONVICTION THAT EXTENSION OF THE PRESENT CONFLICT IS BOUND TO RESULT IN UNTOLD SUFFERING FOR THE INNOCENT POPULATIONS OF THE COUNTRIES WHICH MAY BECOME INVOLVED AS WELL AS FOR THE PEOPLE OF OTHER NATIONS."

SEP 7 1939

WASHINGTON, SEPT.6-(AP)-GERMANY'S POWERFUL AND SPEEDY WAR MACHINE APPEARED TO MILITARY MEN HERE TODAY TO BE WINNING A RACE IN POLAND AGAINST TIME AND THE WEATHER.

1939

AS A RESULT OF THE REPORTED CAPTURE OF KRAKOW AND THE THREAT TO WARSAW SIX DAYS AFTER THE OUTBREAK OF HOSTILITIES, SOME QUALIFIED STRATEGISTS FORESAW THE POSSIBILITY THAT A GREAT PINCERS MOVEMENT MIGHT INFLICT A MAJOR DISASTER ON THE POLISH ARMIES.

EVEN IF THE RETREATING TROOPS ELUDE THE TRAP, THE LOSS OF MORE THAN A QUARTER OF THE RICHEST AREA OF POLAND SEEMED IMMINENT.

AS THE EXPERTS FIGURED IT, THE GERMANS WERE TRYING TO REACH THE SECOND LINE OF POLISH DEFENSE ALONG THE VISTULA RIVER BEFORE THE AUTUMN RAINS AND BEFORE THE FRENCH AND BRITISH PRESSURE IN THE WEST BECAME MORE EFFECTIVE.

IN VIEW OF THE REPUTED STRENGTH OF GERMANY'S WESTERN FORITIFI-CATIONS--THE SO-CALLED SIEGFRIED LINE--MILITARY OBSERVERS MINIMIZED THE IMMEDIATE IMPORTANCE OF FRENCH REPORTS OF ADVANCES INTO THE GERMAN SAAR LAND.

SEP 7 1939

A FRENCH COMMUNIQUE TELLING OF "LOCAL ADVANCES," THEY REASONED, MIGHT MEAN MERELY PRELIMINARY OCCUPATION OF A BORDER AREA BETWEEN THE SIEGFRIED AND MAGINOT LINES WHICH ARE FROM 6 TO 10 MILES APART ALONG THE FRENCH-GERMAN FRONTIER.

THE SPEED OF THE ANNOUNCED GERMAN ATTEMPTS TO CONQUER POLAND BEFO TURNING TO THE WEST EXCEEDED THE EXPECTATIONS OF SOME AUTHORITIES W HAVE CLOSELY FOLLOWED DEVELOPMENTS.

THE IMPERILED POLISH TROOPS, IT WAS EXPLAINED, ARE WEST OF WARSAW, DEPENDENT UPON THE SINGLE POZNAN-KUTNO-WARSAW RAILWAY LINE FOR RETREAT. JUNCTION POINTS AND BRIDGES OF THIS LINE HAVE BEEN DOMBED REPEATEDLY BY THE ADVANCING GERMANS TO HINDER WITH-DRAWAL TO THE VISTULA.

A6OWX

THE VISTULA LINE ITSELF, EXTENDING NORTH AND SOUTH ACROSS POLAND, IS THREATENED BY FLANK MOVEMENTS OF GERMAN FORCES WHICH HAVE PUSHED ACROSS THE CARPATHIAN MOUNTAINS FROM SLOVAKIA IN THE SOUTH AND FROM EAST PRUSSIA TO THE NORTH.

THE VISTULA OFFERS A LONE NATURAL MEANS OF DEFENSE TO THE POLISH ARMIES IN A LAND OF PLAINS. HERE, IN THE WORLD WAR, RUSSIAN ARMIES MADE A STAND UNTIL THEY WERE OUTFLANKED BY THE GERMAN GENERAL VON MACKENSEN, WHO DROVE EASTWARD FROM KRAKOW ACROSS THE UPPER REACHES OF THE RIVER AND THEN TURNED NORTHWARD TOWARD WARSAW.

THE GERMAN DRIVE THUS FAR HAS BEEN IN THREE MAJOR PHASES. THE FIRST WAS DIRECTED AT PINCHING OFF DANZIG AND THE POLISH CORRIDOR. SIMULTANEOUSLY, THE MAIN GERMAN FORCE ADVANCED EAST AND NORTH TOWARD KRAKOW, ANCIENT POLISH CAPITAL, ABOUT 100 MILES SOUTH OF WARSAW. A SMALLER THIRD FORCE MOVED SOUTH, MEANWHILE, TOWARD WARSAW FROM EAST PRUSSIA.

JOINING AT OR NEAR WARSAW, THEY WOULD COMPLETELY PINCH OFF THE WEST ONE-FOURTH OF POLAND, CONTAINING WELL OVER HALF THE NATION'S INDUSTRIAL AREA.

WAR STRATEGY (PMS BUDGET-NEW)

BY EDWARD E.BOMAR

WASHINGTON,SEPT. 6-(AP)-SCANNING REPORTS FROM WHAT THEY CALLED EUROPE'S UNORTHODOX WAR, MILITARY EXPERTS APPEARED GENERALLY AGREED TODAY THAT BRITAIN AND FRANCE HAD SETTLED DOWN TO A SIEGE OF GERMANY ON THEIR 1914-18 PATTERN OF STRATEGY.

THE PRINCIPAL WEAPONS OF THE ALLIES WERE PICTURED AS THE BLOCKADE IMPOSED BY BRITISH SEAPOWER, FRENCH LAND OPERATIONS, THE PRESSURE ON THE BALKANS AND OTHER NEUTRALS TO MAKE COMMON CAUSE AGAINST THE NAZIS, AND ATTEMPTS TO TURN GERMAN POPULAR SENTIMENT AGAINST ADOLF HITLER.

POLAND, MEANWHILE, MUST BEAR THE BRUNT OF THE GERMAN ONSLAUGHT, HOPEFUL THAT THE INVADERS' PROGRESS CAN BE SLOWED DOWN UNTIL "GENERAL MUD" COMES TO THE DEFENDERS' AID WITH THE ARRIVAL OF AUTUMN RAINS.

SEP 7 1939

THE PASSAGE OF THREE DAYS WITH ONLY PRELIMINARY SPARRING ON THE WESTERN FRONT PROMPTED THE EXPERTS TO LABEL THE CONFLICT UNORTHODOX THUS FAR. FULL DRESS FIGHTING WAS BELIEVED TO BE AWAITING THE FIRST MAJOR AIR RAIDS ON INDUSTRIAL CITIES IN FRANCE, GERMANY OR ENGLAND.

THE BEST INFORMED PERSONS HAVE NOTED AN APPARENT UNWILLINGNESS OF BOTH SIDES TO UNDERTAKE SUCH RAIDS. THEY BELIEVE, HOWEVER, THAT UNLIMITED AERIAL WARFARE IS INEVITABLE.

MEANWHILE, AN IMMEDIATE ATTEMPT TO SMASH GERMANY'S SO-CALLED SIEGFRIED LINE IN THE WEST APPEARED RULED OUT BY A STATEMENT ASCRIBED TO GENERAL GAMELIN, THE ALLIED GENERALISSIMO. HE WAS QUOTED AS HAVING TOLD A PRE-WAR QUESTIONER THAT THIS WOULD MEAN "ANOTHER VERDUN" AT THE VERY START, AND INDICATED THAT FRANCE WAS UNWILLING TO PAY THE PRICE IN LIVES.

A FORMIDABLE SERIES OF CONCRETE PILLBOXES, UNDERGROUND FORTS, TANK TRAPS AND BARRIERS, AND GROUND EMPLACEMENTS, THE SIEGFRIED LINE IS 350 MILES LONG AND 25 TO 30 MILES DEEP AT SOME POINTS. GERMANY SPENT TWO YEARS IN TRYING TO MAKE HER WESTERN FRONTIER IMPREGNABLE.

ONE AMERICAN AUTHORITY, SPEAKING UNOFFICIALLY, PREDICTED NEVERTHELESS THE DOUBLE FLANKING DRIVES WHICH THE ALLIES WERE REPORTED TO HAVE LAUNCHED NEAR THE ENDS OF THE LINE WOULD FORCE GERMANY EVENTUALLY TO REINFORCE THE 500,000 DEFENDING TROOPS AND THUS POSSIBLY SLOW UP THE OFFENSIVE IN POLAND.

AMVX

SEP 7 1939

RELIABLE INFORMATION HERE IS THAT GERMANY HAS TWO-THIRDS OF HER LAND FORCES AND A THIRD OF THE AIR FLEET OPERATING IN POLAND. FRANCE ALONE IS BELIEVED TO HAVE UPWARDS OF 2,000,000 MEN IN HER MAGINOT LINE FACING THE GERMAN FORCES IN THE WEST.

MINIMIZING THE POSSIBILITY OF A COMPLETE BREAK THROUGH IN THE WEST, SOME STRATEGISTS NOTED THAT GERMANY DESIGNED THE SIEGFRIED LINE FOR COUNTER-ATTACKS AS WELL AS FOR PASSIVE DEFENSE.

THE FORTIFICATIONS ARE BACKED BY RAILWAYS AND ROADS TO ENABLE TROOPS TO BE SHIFTED QUICKLY. NATURAL OBSTACLES HAVE BEEN USED TO ADVANTAGE TO "WALL IN" AN ATTACK AT ANY POINT, AND PROVIDE BASES FOR COUNTER THRUSTS.

THUS THE FRENCH ARMY WOULD HAVE TO EXPECT DIFFICULTIES IN HOLDING ANY TERRAIN CONQUERED.

UNDATED MAGINOT-SIEGFRIED LINES

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE ELABORATE FORTIFICATIONS WHICH FACE EACH OTHER ON THE FRENCH-GERMAN BORDER, THE MAGINOT AND SIEGFRIED LINES, HAVE BEEN BUILT AT A COST OF SEVERAL HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS.

THE MAGINOT LINE--LIKE THE SIEGFRIED, NOT A LINE AT ALL BUT A SERIES OF FORTS AND MACHINE GUN "PILL BOXES"--COST ALMOST AS MUCH AS THE PANAMA CANAL, OR SOME $400,000,000. THE COST OF THE SIEGFRIED LINE IS NOT KNOWN, BUT 500,000 MEN WORKED ON IT FOR SEVERAL MONTHS. SEP 7 19[illegible]

BOTH SYSTEMS ARE ABOUT 250 MILES LONG.

THE MAGINOT FORTS, INTERSPERSED WITH MACHINE GUN NESTS, ARE UNDERGROUND CITIES, BUILT ON TIERS WITH ELECTRIC RAILWAYS AND ELEVATORS TO HAUL PERSONNEL, AMMUNITION AND OTHER SUPPLIES. GUNS RANGE FROM HUGE ARTILLERY WEAPONS TO MACHINE GUNS.

THE SIEGFRIED LINE IS PRESUMED TO BE ON A SIMILAR PATTERN.

BERLIN SAYS POLISH GARRISON SURRENDERED WESTERPLATTE

Warsaw Disputes Germans' Claim of Being Only Twenty Miles From City—Reports Heroic Stand by Defenders.

SEP 8 1939

BERLIN Sept. 7 (A. P.).—The Associated Press was informed officially at 1:35 P. M. (8:35 A. M. New York time) today that the German Army already was within twenty miles of Warsaw, but even this report was declared "probably already completely superseded."

It was announced officially also that the Polish garrison at Westerplatte, the Polish military depot in Danzig Harbor, had surrendered at 10:20 A. M. today (5:20 A. M., New York time). The Poles had been under German air and naval attack since early on the morning of September 1.

The German supreme command stated that the Westerplatte force of 120 men fought gallantly for several days, but in view of the hopelessness of the general situation—as the Germans put it—decided to surrender.

SEP 8 1939

Thus one of the great[illegible] that Danzig, newly rejoined to the Reich, might be destroyed by the Poles setting off their big Westerplatte ammunition stores, was said to have been allayed.

[Reports from Warsaw conflicted with the German claims for the Warsaw sector. The Poles insisted that their forces were making a stand thirty miles from the capital.]

With Adolf Hitler held up before them as a soldier's soldier, German troops were spurred toward swift conclusion of the Polish campaign before any British-French offensive could develop on the western front.

Report Defense Plans Seized.

It was authoritatively asserted that the accelerated speed, observable since Monday, with which German armies have been driving through Poland was due to the entire strategic defense plan of the Poles having fallen into German hands.

Among the booty found when one entire Polish division surrendered, according to a German informant, was an iron strong box, which contained plans for Poland's defense in minute detail.

The Germans were surprised, the informant related, when the Poles did not alter their strategy.

Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, chief of the air force, at 1:45 P. M. (8:45 A. M., New York time) issued an order of the day congratulating the air force on its victory in the East.

His order read: "Soldiers of the air force, after quick, annihilating blows, mastery of the [illegible] in the East is [illegible].

SEP 8 1939

"No enemy plane was able to touch the defense of German air space. You played an exceptional part in the advance of the German army by your faithful co-operation and quick, determined readiness to assume your share of the risks.

"You have a right to be proud of your success. I thank you, and with me the German people who now more than ever look upon their air force with unshakable confidence. Our Fuehrer and supreme commander is with you on the Eastern front. Under his eyes—forward."

See War Industry Shattered.

DNB, official German news agency, declared that occupation of Silesian industrial areas had destroyed the basis of Poland's war industry. The Germans now control all of Poland's heavy industry, zinc and lead production, 95 per cent of the coal production and 50 per cent of the nitrates, the agency said.

As Berlin received the report that the Polish Government had moved to Lublin, about 100 miles southeast of Warsaw, military quarters predicted that after the "inevitable" occupation of Warsaw, Lublin soon would be within cannon range. The German big guns were being dragged east ward by caterpillar trucks over the rough Polish roads.

Col.-Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, German Chief of Staff, in an order of the day urged the Nazi forces to emulate their Fuehrer as a soldier's "model of personal courage and stout determination" and to "keep after the enemy and apply all your strength until the final decision."

Fuehrer in Corridor.

Herr Hitler was in the corridor sector, somewhere between Grudziadz and Tuchola, yesterday.

Germans asserted control of the air was complete and they ridiculed reports that even a single enemy plane had approached anywhere near Berlin. The capital, taking no chances, was ordering blackouts so complete that walking even a block in the busiest sections at night was difficult and occasional cigarettes glowed with startling brilliance. Searchlights occasionally cast beams upward and the vast defense organization was keyed for instant action.

Three Big Vises.

Talking with military experts, one gained the impression that German strategy had created three big vises closing in on the Poles.

First, Poznan was encircled so that it now is held by gigantic pincers which cut it off from Gdynia and the south.

At Warsaw, German troops again are trying to create a vise in which they can hold the capital.

The strategy seems [illegible] to cut each of these cities [illegible] all supplies, then press the jaws of the vise closer and closer in the hope of making the enemy capitulate without making necessary too much destruction.

Krakow also seems to have fallen by these tactics. Not even the Vistula bridges were destroyed before Krakow was taken.

At Duesseldorf and Cologne, returning travelers report, there have been several alarms about approaching enemy planes, but the population was permitted to leave their anti-aircraft shelters soon and no planes appeared.

The inference probably was that after Poland, the German army might have to come to grips with Britain—German propaganda is emphasizing Britain as Germany's foe in the west more than France.

Otherwise there was little indication that Germany regards herself as at war with Britain or France. Official radio announcers were referring to Britain as "the country which thinks it is at war with Germany."

SEP 8 1939

Nazis Think France Cool To War.

There was a [illegible] disposition in well-informed quarters to believe that France was not enthusiastic about the war and that there was a chance she would leave all initiative to Britain.

The supreme army command announced that its force from the north had reached Pultusk on the Narew river and that the Polish army continued a hurried retreat.

SEP 8 1939

The communique said the "[illegible]th and Twenty-seventh Polish divisions, the famous Pomorska Cavalry Brigade, the Eighth Tank Battalion and the First and Second rifle battalions" had been completely wiped out by casualties or capture.

Said To Be Ahead Of Schedule

Military authorities said the Polish operations were well ahead of schedule and it was expected the air force could be released soon from its assignment in the east. Leaders warned, however, that more difficult assignments probably lie ahead.

German propagandists were assuring Frenchmen and the world that Germany understands that France was dragged into declaration of a state of war.

Von Brauchitsch Issues Order

Meanwhile, Col. Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, German chief of staff, in an order of the day urged the Nazi forces to emulate their Führer as a soldier's "model of personal courage and stout determination" and to "keep after the enemy and apply all your strength until the final decision."

"Krakow, Bydgoszcz and Grudziadz are in your hands," said the order of the day. The Corridor no longer separates East Prussia and Danzig from the German motherland.

"The enemy is thrown back along the entire front and is in retreat.

"Old tested front fighters of the World War as well as young soldiers share in the successes won in a short time."

"With the capture of Krakow," said Von Brauchitsch's order, "the German Army also has taken under its protection the grave of the first Polish Marshal Pilsudski. His aim was peace with Germany.

"Disregard of his trust led to war. The German Army esteems and honors this great soldier. On command of the Führer an honor guard stands solemnly today at his grave.

"Soldiers, days of great accomplishment lie behind you! Now the task is to keep after the enemy, apply all your strength until the final decision. Trustingly, confidently all Germany stands behind you. Before us stands as a model of personal courage and stout determination our Führer, supreme commander in chief.

"Forward to victory!"

Today's German Communique

SEP 8 1939

Berlin, Sept. 7 (AP)—The German Army High Command's communique issued at 8.30 A. M. today said:

The retreat of the Polish army along the entire frontier continued yesterday.

Supported by determined operations of the air force, troops of the eastern army in sharp pursuit kept on the heels of the retreating enemy, forcing him to fight in several places.

Nowy Sacz in southern Poland was taken. North thereof, the Dunajec river was crossed.

Our troops occupied Krakow without fighting. Pilsudski's Tomb was accorded military honors. Our troops, after the capture of Kielce, are swiftly advancing through the western sector of Lysa and Gora, and farther north nearing the towns of Tomaszow and Lodz.

In the north the Tuchler Heath northwest of Grudziacz is being cleansed of scattered remnants of the Polish Corridor army.

The number of captured guns increased to ninety. The Ninth and Twenty-seventh Polish divisions, a tank battalion, two rifle battalions and a cavalry brigade "Pomorska" were destroyed. Remnants thereof saved themselves by swimming through the Vistula without weapons and other equipment.

The amount of war material hidden in the forests can only be ascertained when it is recovered in weeks.

East of the Vistula the highway to Torun and Strasburg was crossed and a bridge was built over the Drewenz river. Troops advancing from East Prussia reached the Narew river at Pultusk and Rozan. The air force yesterday in a forceful low attack assaulted scattered, retreating enemy columns.

Attacks on rail heads, stations and bridges were continued. Bombs severely damaged a Vistula bridge south of Warsaw. The Warsaw West station was set afire.

Today's French Communique

Paris, Sept. 7 (AP)—The War Ministry's communique No. 7, issued for the morning of September 7, announced:

On the front there is marked activity on both sides.

The Polish Version.

WARSAW, Sept. 7 (A. P.).—The defenders of this Polish capital were reported to have fallen back to a thirty-mile line paralleling the Vistula River, where they rallied. The Poles said their troops were fighting like lions against German tank thrusts.

SEP 8 1939

The defense line ran between Plonsk and Pultusk, northwest and northeast of Warsaw, respectively. About thirty miles of open country and the protecting Vistula River lay between Warsaw and the invaders from the north.

The right wing of the Poles had been hammered back from Ciechanow, about twenty-five miles northwest of Pultusk, pivoting on Plonsk.

SEP 8 1939

At one stage of the struggle the Poles were driven from Pultusk and the Germans threatened to turn the Polish flank and thrust on to Vistula and Warsaw. Pultusk, however, was regained in the face of withering German fire.

A staff officer, slightly wounded, returned from the battle front and reported the Poles were stanchly holding the Plonsk-Pultusk line, beating off repeated German attempts [illegible] through. "The Poles are fighting like lions," he said.

Report Tanks Captured.

The officer related that Germans with tank vanguards succeeded in piercing the line in several places, but the defenders outflanked them and smashed the penetrating columns, destroying and capturing a considerable number of tanks.

The officer assured members of his family that the situation was favorable to the Poles for the present and some Poles took heart from memories of Marshal Pilsudski's great counter-offensive in August, 1920, when Bolshevist troops were halted just outside Warsaw and driven back to the east. Poles thought this "miracle" might be repeated and women and old men flocked to the churches to pray for it.

The Poles were preparing for a desperate struggle at the very edge of Warsaw if the battle went against them on the Plonsk-Pultusk line.

Exodus of the population from the capital continued, with all means of transport being utilized. There was no panic and many unable to flee the city were continuing about their business, hoping for the best.

Meat markets were stripped of all stocks except a few sausages. Other stores, however, displayed ample supplies, including fresh fruits and vegetables. In the streets automobiles were rare, but street cars still were running.

SEP 8 1939

The Poles were preparing for a desperate struggle at the very edge of Warsaw if the battle went against them on the Plonsk-Pultusk line.

[A Warsaw dispatch reaching Paris by way of Riga, Latvia, and Basle, Switzerland, said the Poles had mobilized six more classes and all officers, regardless of age, and reported the formation of two additional Czecho-Slovak legions.]

Warsaw Raided Again

German planes raided the northern section of Warsaw just before noon yesterday and a dozen heavy explosions were heard from the direction of a railway bridge across the Vistula and the East Station, which was bombed two days before. A train had been waiting at the station yesterday to carry refugees toward Wilno and Riga.

An official radio announcement said Poles shot down six planes attempting a raid on the capital before this morning's assault. German airmen were concentrating on severing communications between the Warsaw defenders and the city they were fighting to hold.

German Communique

BERLIN, Sept. 7 (AP).—The German Army high command's communique issued at 8:30 a. m. (3:30 a. m New York time) today said:

"The retreat of the Polish army along the entire frontier continued yesterday.

POILUS BATTLE WAY INTO BIENWALD WOOD

French General Staff Reports Germans Are Moving Up More Troops to Meet Thrust Toward the Saar.

Flowers And Toy Balloons Berlin's Story Of West Front

SEP 8 1939

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Sept. 7—They're saying it with flowers, children's toy balloons, leaflets and even with personal visits along the Alsatian-German front, according to German reports which reached the capital tonight.

According to these reports:

1. Both German and French soldiers decorated their bunkers in the Siegfried and Maginot lines with flowers while awaiting orders from their respective governments to open fire.
2. Occasionally toy balloons are carried from one side of the "enemy" line to the other with friendly greetings.
3. At certain hours visits are exchanged.
4. This morning French and German privates even bathed together in the Rhine river.

Nazi military experts said troops presently stationed in fortifications of the Maginot and Siegfried lines would have to be withdrawn in case warlike operations really are begun. As one prominent Nazi put it, "you can't expect Frenchmen to shoot down and kill the German opposite him when just an hour ago the two played cards together."

1939

30.24-3125

30.24 3125

PARIS, Sept. 7 (A. P.).—The French army reported tonight it had fought its way into the German forest of Bienwald just north of Lauterbourg, French key to the western front.

[This is the first army mention of the French scene of operations. The district mentioned is on the left bank of the Rhine, due west of Karlsruhe, and may denote a French attempt to cut off the Saar industrial region from Germany.]

The French General Staff reported tonight that the Germans were rushing up re-enforcements to meet the increasing French attack on the northern flank of the western front.

The official communique said new German forces had been observed moving up from "the interior of Germany."

The announcement was the first indication that French pressure might be succeeding in its aim of forcing the German command to concentrate troops in the west and ease the pressure in Poland.

The text of the two-sentence communique No. 8 of the French General Staff issued at 9:15 P. M. (4:15 P. M. New York time) follows:

"On the front between the Rhine and the Moselle the enemy is being reinforced in front of us. Observers report the arrival of new forces coming from the interior of Germany."

SEP 8 1939

Although the reported Bienwald advance was only slight in this sector of the northern flank and had not yet been reported specifically in a communique, military observers here regarded it as meaning a spread in the fighting on the western front.

Lauterbourg is of strategic importance as the pivot of the French lines opposite the main Siegfried Line, Germany's fortifications wall facing the French frontier.

These sources said the Rhine forms a formidable barrier to the south and that the center not only is most strategically placed for defense, but also is regarded as the most heavily fortified.

British Re-enforcements Move Up.

British re-enforcements were moving up today to join French forces on German soil. The French and British general staffs were in consultation to co-ordinate their forces.

In Basle, Switzerland, border advices said that German advance guards on the western front were withdrawing slowly into the main forts of the Siegfried Line.

The French had advanced as much as fifteen kilometers — nine and a half miles—in some places along the northern sector of the line, the border reports said, but they were moving cautiously.

Premier Daladier, also France's War Minister, conferred for an hour today with Gen. Maurice-Gustave Gamelin, commander of all French forces and probable generalissimo of combined Anglo-French land forces.

British Troops Land.

This morning's communique No. 7 from the War Ministry indicated that the Germans are offering stiff resistance, but the French are pursuing action in the west to relieve Poland from German blows in the east. The British Expeditionary Force, which has been landing in France since early this week, is expected to be in position to throw its weight into battle within a few days.

Meanwhile, Premier Daladier set about building a national union cabinet to prosecute the war. The Premier conferred this morning with Edouard Herriot, President of the Chamber of Deputies, at the War Ministry, then went to see Jules Jeanneny, President of the Senate. The Presidents of the Chamber and the Senate traditionally are the first to be consulted on the formation of a new ministry.

Saar Basin Is Target.

A person close to M. Daladier said that the make-up of the wartime Government would be announced in a day or two. Former Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin; Leon Blum, former Premier and Socialist leader, and Louis Marin, conservative leader of the Chamber, as well as other party leaders outside the Cabinet have talked to M. Daladier.

The military campaign remained in the preliminary stage, with the no-man's land between France's Maginot and Germany's Siegfried lines as the theater of action. The Saar Basin, between the Rhine and the Moselle, was the French target.

The best summary of action yet available said that French troops, under the cover of several hours' artillery preparation, began the war on Monday by occupying the ground between the [illegible] line and the [illegible] Tuesday night they penetrated into German territory at several points.

SEP 8 1939

Yesterday, French forces cleaned out several German pockets and machine-gun nests to gain a foothold for further thrusts into the enemy fortifications. The depth of these spearheads varied, but they were said to be scattered along a 100-mile front.

The French strategy is understood to be aimed at breaking several gaps in the Siegfried line to permit slashing flank attacks. About 11 A. M. (5 A. M. Eastern Standard time) the War Ministry, in communique No. 7, reported "marked activity on both sides" at the front.

Staff Chiefs Confer.

The French and British general staffs have been co-ordinating action since the start of the campaign on Monday, another official announcement disclosed. On that day, the announcement said, Gen. Sir Edmund Ironside, chief of the British Imperial General Staff, and Air Chief Marshal Sir Cyril Newall, commander of the British air forces' conferred with Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, French supreme commander of land, sea and air forces, and Gen. Joseph Vuillemin, chief of staff of the French air force.

Gen. Gamelin, who is slated to be generalissimo of the allied armies, was assumed to have consulted the others on plans for joint action.

The landing of the British troops was disclosed by governmental sources early today. The size of the force, whose arrival recalled the first landing of the British in France on August 16, 1914, was not given, nor was the port and time of debarkation. But it was the vanguard of an army which, governmental sources predicted, could give France millions of men under British conscription laws, contributing infinitely stronger support than in 1914.

First Hundred Thousand.

Military observers said that Britain had 100,000 troops available for rapid transportation to France when the war broke out on Sunday. It was understood that the first troops arrived yesterday.

Word of the landing of the expeditionary force came just a short time after a typically terse French communique said that French forces along a 100-mile front on the northern flank of the Maginot and Siegfried lines were meeting increasing German resistance. French re-enforcements were moving up to the frontier [illegible] advance units [illegible] German land organizations [illegible] with automatic cannon and machine guns, the communique added.

SEP 8 1939

The Government indicated that the crossing of the British force was accomplished without difficulty, since Britain is much stronger on the seas than Germany today, whereas in 1914 the German fleet was preparing to challenge the British Navy.

Air Raids on Reich.

The landing of the Tommies was preceded by the arrival of British air force units operating from French air bases and directing raids on the Ruhr and Aachen (Aix-la-Chapelle) industrial districts in Germany opposite the Belgian frontier.

The Government called attention to prospective Australian and New Zealand contingents and perhaps Canadian to follow the Tommies. Whether Gen. Viscount Gort, commander-in-chief of the British field forces, had arrived was not known, but the French press was filled with biographical accounts of him.

The British dispatch of troops was far swifter than in 1914, when the Germans already were overrunning France and Belgium before they arrived. Today, the French said that their army was fighting on German soil in a varying line between the Luxembourg border and Lauterbourg, situated on the easternmost tip of the Bas-Rhin Alsace Department jutting into Germany.

Maginot Line's Hinge.

Lauterbourg is known as the Maginot Line's hinge, since the line from there angles south toward Basle, Switzerland.

Twenty-five years ago this week the battle of the Marne took place after the arrival of the British. Military observers today speculated on the prospect of an early combined offensive against the Siegfried Line. The French already have been seeking out its soft spots.

The German strategy is to keep out the French and British in the west and crush Poland in the east. In 1914, the strategy was reversed.

Separate Peace Banned.

Then Germany concentrated on keeping out Russia in the east and crushing France in the west. The Soviet-German pact has removed Russia from the picture so far, but it has heightened Polish anxiety, since modern Poland was carved from pre-world war Russian and German territory.

Hitler has a great part of what he demanded from Poland before this war began, but under the bilateral agreements to which France and Britain are pledged with Poland, none of them can seek a separate peace.

SEP 8 1939

Thus, the three allies must fight against [illegible]-planned lightning war (Blitzkrieg). To help accomplish this, the British Navy has gone into its world war stance by blockading German ports, abetted by air attacks on the Kiel Canal.

African Route Guarded.

By holding the German fleet at bay, the British are reducing the chances of allied troop and supply transports being sunk. The French navy in the Mediterranean is guarding communication lines to North Africa, where France, it is estimated, has a colonial reservoir of half a million men.

Italy's aloofness has been the subject for much speculation. Today, train communications between France and Italy were re-established.

As German and French heavy artillery exchanged fire along the Siegfried Line, civilians in the bordering towns moved out. The Official Journal published measures designed to take care of civilians in all three border departments: Moselle (Lorraine), Haut-Rhin and Bas-Rhin (Alsace).

The chief fighting developed late yesterday along a 100-mile front between the Rhine and Moselle rivers (the only place the Rhine flows behind the German Siegfried Line) and fanned out slowly over the rugged countryside southeast of the Ardennes Mountains.

French Push Forward.

Despite the difficulties of the rough, forest-covered terrain through which they were operating against prepared Nazi positions, a French General Staff communique said last night, the troops were pushing forward onto German soil.

The communique said:

"Our first elements, progressing beyond the frontier with the advance variable according to different parts of the front, are meeting everywhere automatic arms and field organization. The activity of our aviation is in liaison with land actions.

"The movements foreseen for the mobilization, transport and installation of all units continue normally.

"For the various formations, officers, conforming to our traditions, look out as much as possible for the necessities of life for the troops, whose morale is excellent.

"The provisioning of the armies is functioning in the correct manner."

Reach Fringe of Saar

PARIS, Sept. 7 (AP).—An increasing French attack on the western front was said to have carried the war into the fringe of Germany's Saar basin, a mining and industrial region.

The War Ministry here issued, meanwhile, its Communique No. 8, which read:

SEP 8 1939

"On the front between the Rhine and the Moselle the enemy is being reinforced in front of us. Observers report the arrival of new forces coming from the interior of Germany."

Communique No. 7, issued earlier in the day, had announced:

"On the front there is marked activity on both sides."

There was no indication whether the new German troops reported were actually being pulled away from the eastern front, but military observers pointed out that, even if they were units held in reserve up to now, Germany's potential striking power against Poland would be reduced by just that much.

French Moving Cautiously

The French troops were reported to be feeling their way forward in the western Saar "no man's land" against flanking fire from German advance positions guarding the shallow valleys leading to the main Limes Line.

Military observers at Paris said the heaviest fighting apparently was taking place between the small French city of Bitche, near France's frontier with Germany, and the Moselle River, on the north. Bitche is at the base of a fortified hill.

A French force was said to have fought its way into the German forest of Bienwald, just north of Lauterbourg. Although the reported advance was only slight, and had not been specifically mentioned in a communique, observers here regarded it as a sign that the fighting was spreading.

[At Basel, Switzerland, border advices said German advance guards on the western front were withdrawing slowly into the main forts of the Limes Line. The French had advanced as much as fifteen kilometers (nine and a half miles) in some places along the northern wing of the line, these reports said, but were moving cautiously.]

Indications from the terse French military communiques were that as soon as large raiding parties had consolidated positions on the French side of the frontier, the order was given for an advance on similar German positions across the boundary.

As yet, however, there was no indication how extensive the action was, how many men France had sent into it or how heavy the casualties had been.

SEP 8 1939

The densely wooded Bienwald forest spreads out between the Lauter River and the Limes Line to a depth of five or six miles. The Lauter forms a frontier between France and Germany between Lauterbourg and Wissembourg, ten miles to the north. The forest, which reaches its greatest depth opposite Lauterbourg, narrows down a few miles before Wissembourg, tapering off into a narrow plain. From just northwest of Wissembourg to Bitche, moderately high hills are cut by deep ravines.

The French advance into Germany—announced by the French General Staff yesterday—was believed in these quarters to have swung out on an irregular curve bulging out near Luxemburg and flattening back near Bitche. This whole area, on the German side, is fortified only with light trenches, temporary positions in advance of the Limes Line. North of Karlsruhe the German main line of fortifications lies several miles behind the frontier.

Gains Less Farther South

From Bitche southeast to the pivot of the western front at Lauterbourg, where it bends back to follow the Rhine to Switzerland, the same type of fighting was said to be developing, but with the French advances shallower. The "no man's land" between the Limes and French Maginot Lines is considerably narrower there and the German advance lines more strongly entrenched.

Artillery Duel Keeps Up

An artillery duel was said to be continuing from Lauterbourg south with the French bombarding German strongholds guarding the southern route across Germany.

On the eastern front, however, the German attack into Polish territory apparently was undiminished.

Poles reported they now were fighting along a line paralleling the Vistula river east of Bydgoszcz through Lodz and Piotrkow south to a point west of Tarnow, near the Slovak border.

The heaviest Polish resistance, these advices indicated, was in the vicinity of Poznan, where the center of the Polish line stuck out toward Germany with its flanks bent back.

Would Ease Pressure

Military observers pictured the French procedure as an evident attempt to establish such a threat to Germany on the west that the Germans would have to relax their pressure on the Poles and turn most of their strength against France.

The only way that could be done, they said, was to try to crack the Siegfried Line.

They said this was what the French high command had set for itself, explaining that blows were aimed against the flanks because the center not only is the most strategically [illegible] for defense, but also is regarded as the most heavily fortified.

Forms Strong Barrier

These sources said the Rhine forms a formidable barrier to the south and that it was necessary to clean out machine-gun nests and blockhouses on the north before a direct attack could be made.

The French action so far, they added, has been exactly that—a feeling-out maneuver seeking points of weakness where the line might be broken and isolated portions squeezed off to widen any gaps.

Announcement of the arrival of British forces in France and of conferences between Maj. Gen. Sir Edmund Ironside, inspector general of British Overseas Forces, and Gen. Maurice Gamelin, commander of all French forces, were regarded generally as meaning the British were being moved to the frontier.

Gen. Gamelin, who is slated to be generalissimo of the combined British and French land forces, was assumed to have consulted Gen. Ironside on plans for joint action. The British and French air chiefs, Air Marshal Sir Cyril Newall and Gen. Victor Vuillemin, also attended the conference.

The size of the British forces which have been landing in France since early this week was not known, but they were expected to be in position to throw their weight into battle within a few days.

Crossing Without Incident

The government indicated the crossing of the British was accomplished without difficulty, since Great Britain is much stronger on the sea than is Germany. It was preceded by the arrival of British air fleets, which are operating from French air bases in conjunction with French aviation.

Premier Edouard Daladier was expected to announce soon a national union—all-party—Cabinet. Daladier conferred with Edouard Herriot, President of the Chamber of Deputies, and with Jules Jeanneney, President of the Senate, the officials traditionally first to be consulted in the formation of a new ministry. Among leaders Daladier has seen were former Premiers Leon Blum and Pierre-Etienne Flandin and Louis Marin, conservative leader of the chamber.

Paris showed signs of relief tonight as more than twenty-four hours passed without the shriek of air-raid sirens. Semi-official indications were that the sirens would not be sounded in the future whenever enemy planes crossed the frontier but only when a raid on Paris appeared imminent.

Asks French to Be Patient

PARIS, Sept. 7 (AP).—In a broadcast tonight the Commissioner General of Public Information, Jean Giraudoux, said the Germans had "won no decisive battle in Poland yet," and advised the French to await patiently the course of the fighting in the East.

He added that Germany had been more fully mobilized at the start than the Poles, and remarked that the war on the Eastern front was but one manoeuvre as contrasted to the [illegible] mobilized warfare that already had developed on the western front.

The Poles, he went on, decided to fight to hold off the Germans as long as possible rather than make a quick retreat to prepared positions deep in the interior. This, he said, would cover mobilization and give women and children time to be removed before the arrival of German troops.

PARISIAN ELAN BLOOMS AGAIN

French Capital's Spirit Is More Like Its Old Self.

NEW DESIGN FOR LIVING

Technic of Gayety Developing for Underground Dwelling.

PARIS, Sept. 7 (A. P.).—Paris came alive this morning with a spirit more like its old gay self after a full night's sleep without an air raid alarm. It was the first period of uninterrupted slumber since war was declared four days ago.

The first night many sat up nervously waiting for a raid which never came. Then, for two nights running, they drooped in shelters for hours while the anti-aircraft guns thundered at German scouting planes.

New System of Alarms.

Last night, however, the Government inaugurated a new system by announcing that alarms no longer would be sounded except when danger is imminent. Previously, sirens had routed out the populace whenever an enemy plane crossed the frontier, no mater what its destination.

However, Paris is not taking any chances, but continues to push its defense against enemy aircraft. Masons are closing basement windows opening on the sidewalks along the boulevards.

Sandbags are being stacked over gratings. More stores are removing stock from the show windows and criss-crossing the plate glass with tape as a protection against splintering.

Design for Living.

A technic for living in the air-raid shelters is developing rapidly. People are making emergency kits, which they park by the bedside at night with their gas masks. Often they comprise rubber mattresses, folding chairs, thermos bottles, brandy, playing cards, phonographs, and flashlights.

The war also posed a new problem for the factories. When one sounded its customary siren calling employees to work, the startled neighborhood scurried for the shelters, thinking it just another raid warning.

French Are Too Busy to Notice It's Lafayette's 182d Birthday

PARIS, Sept. 7 (A. P.).—Bugle echoes in France:

Today is the 182d anniversary of the birth of the Marquis de Lafayette, who helped the American colonists whip the English. But nobody has noticed. . . . Old soldiers who were housed in L'Hotel des Invalides have been removed to western France, where they can tell each other in safety what they did or did not do to the Germans in 1870 and 1914.

A Paris jeweler is knocking off 20 per cent on watches bought by the poilus, a French paper said, but didn't print the jeweler's address. . . . French cyclists who won prizes in competition in Germany and have not yet been paid shrug their shoulders and say, "it's part of the new war debt."

"Siren parties" are coming into fashion in the underground refuges. You take your own food and drink and your own music when the air raid warning wails. . . . The Government has promised death to any one caught pillaging homes or cash registers during blackouts or dives for bomb cellars.

United States Ambassador Bullitt has an office fitted out in his refuge below the American Embassy on the Place de la Concorde. . . . French speakeasies are popping up because of the early closing laws.

National defense workers can work seventy-two hours a week. Retired locomotive engineers who miss the feel of the throttle can return to work.

The personal columns have disappeared from the the censored newspapers. Back in 1917, one "personal" engaged the attention of the French counter-espionage service. It said: "Mama in perfect health as well as Emile and the children." French agents discovered that Emile was a healthy German submarine.

Chamberlain Declares Navy Will Check U-Boat Raiding

Tells Commons Sinking of Athenia Was a German 'Crime'—Says British Planes Scored 2 Hits on Nazi Battleship.

LONDON, Sept. 7 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today that Britain might "rest assured" that its navy would "increasingly bring . . . under control" the raiding activities of German submarines.

In a general statement to the House of the state of Britain's war activities and preparation, Mr. Chamberlain asserted also that Royal Air Force planes had scored "at least two hits" on a German pocket battleship in their spectacular raid last Monday on the Kiel Canal.

In discussing the submarine peril, he acknowledged that "a certain percentage of weekly losses (to shipping) must be expected."

Recalling the sinking of the Athenia, he denounced it as a German "crime which has profoundly shocked and horrified the world."

And, he said, "no denials or inventions on the part of Germany will convince the public of German innocence."

Heartened by Empire Response.

"We are greatly heartened," the Prime Minister said at another point, "by the knowledge that in the struggle for the defense of liberty and free institutions and the preservation of all that makes life worth living we can count on the support of the overseas members of the British Commonwealth.

"Of their own free will and under no form of compulsion save the moral compelling force of right and justice these self-governing nations have declared their intention of co-operating in a cause which is no less precious to them than it is to the people of the home land."

Quicker News is Demanded.

Mr. Chamberlain remarked, too, that aside from the Athenia, "three or four" British ships had been sent to the bottom.

(This reference was not amplified. Previous reports had accounted for the loss of but two British merchantmen in addition to the Athenia.)

In both the Houses of Parliament labor leaders asked that quicker and fuller information be given the [illegible] Lord Snell [illegible]ting it was doubtless true that we can get more information from America than we can get here and that it is something that ought not to happen."

In the Commons the acting Labor leader, Arthur Greenwood, asked that Mr. Chamberlain in future "unbosom himself to the full to us and the country and whether the news be good or bad, tell the country early."

"We do not want to keep the public in the dark," Mr. Chamberlain responded. "On the other hand we do not want to give it inaccurate information."

The Prime Minister also said that Poland was "contesting every yard of the German advance."

Mr. Chamberlain told the Commons:

"Apart from the Athenia there have been attacks on other British merchant ships by German U-boats and three or four ships have been sunk. Steps are being taken to establish a convoy system at the earliest possible moment."

The Prime Minister continued:

"In the east the Poles are fighting hard against a strong and ruthless enemy who is relying on the weight of numbers and material to crush all opposition. The Polish soldier has ever shown himself to be a courageous and determined fighter and today he is worthily maintaining this tradition.

"Against overwhelming superiority in the air, outnumbered and outgunned, he (the Pole) is contesting every yard of the German advance.

First Report to Parliament.

"The Germans have often stressed the need for a short war and a quick decision. In pursuance of this idea the German plan appears to be to concentrate their first main effort against Poland and, as the House is aware, that country was invaded just over a week ago without any formal declaration of war."

Mr. Chamberlain and Lord Stanhope, Lord President of the Council, made similar statements in the houses of Commons and Lords, respectively, on the general war situation. They were the first since the day the war started—last Sunday.

Mr. Chamberlain said: "The House will, I am sure, realize that it is impossible for me to give more than a general indication of the present situation and of the state of our defenses. There are necessarily a number of matters to which in the public interest it is impossible for me to refer. With that necessary preamble I will give the House a resume of the position."

"In spite of the human and material losses which they have already suffered, the morale and courage of the Polish people remains unaffected," Mr. Chamberlain went on. "This Government and the French Government have today signed an agreement with the Polish Government for the provision of further financial assistance to Poland to enable her to replenish her resources.

Position of France.

"In the west France has, like ourselves, mobilized her forces with complete efficiency and smoothness and they are now in contact with the enemy on their common frontier.

"[illegible] information has been published of what has taken place, but for obvious reasons no details can yet be disclosed. The outbreak of war has found the same spirit of determination and solidarity among the French people as is evident here.

"The understanding between the two countries is complete and the arrangements which have now been put into force for co-operation in all the activities concerned with the prosecution of the war are working smoothly and well."

"In this country the defensive military dispositions of our army which cover a very wide field were made in good time owing to the precautionary measures which it was decided to adopt during the period of tension.

"The manning of the anti-aircraft and coast defenses was efficiently carried out. Within a short time of the calling out the units, guns and searchlights were fully manned. Since a large number of the anti-aircraft units were in camp and away from their home stations this reflects great credit on their organization.

"The guarding of vulnerable points has been taken over by the national defense companies, supplemented by personnel of the territorial army.

Reports Army Morale High.

"The personnel reached their posts with the minimum of delay and under trying weather conditions. The mobilization of the remainder of the army has been carried out with the greatest smoothness. The morale of all ranks is high; in particular the spirit of the reservists recalled from civil life, some of whom have already this year been called up for training, is excellent.

"I should next like to pay my tribute to the very gallant attack which was made by units of the R. A. F. on certain German warships off Wilhelmshaven during which at least two hits were secured on one of the so-called pocket battleships.

It will be realized that the objectives attacked, namely the German fleet bases at Wilhelmshaven and at the entrance to the Kiel Canal, are probably among the most strongly defended objects in Germany.

SEP 8 1939

The manner in which the R. A. F. attacks were pressed home despite the strength of the defenses is worthy of the highest praise. I should also mention the weather conditions prevailing on the afternoon of the attack. Visibility was extremely poor and the final stages of the attack are stated to have been carried out in a blinding rainstorm.

"The House may also be interested to learn that those who took part in the attack included a number who came from the Dominions.

"As the House knows, extensive reconnaissance flights have been carried out over Germany on three successive nights during the last week by units of the bomber command. More than ten million copies of notes to the German people have been distributed over a wide area of northern and western Germany, including the Ruhr.

"I should like to make especial mention of the women of the auxiliary territorial services who are performing many tasks under arduous conditions and thereby relieving soldiers for fighting duties.

"Turning to the naval side, the most important feature up to the present has been the development of German U-boat attacks on our shipping. The sinking of the Athenia with its scenes of death and terror virtually opened the war and no denials or inventions on the part of Germany will convince the public of German innocence of this crime, which has profoundly shocked and horrified the world.

"Apart from the case of the Athenia there have been attacks on other British merchant ships by German U-boats and three or four ships have been sunk.

Promises Early Convoy System.

"On our side the Admiralty have taken immediate counter-measures. British destroyers and other anti-submarine craft have been very active and large re-enforcements of anti-submarine and escort vessels are rapidly becoming available. As the First Lord has already informed the House, steps are being taken to establish a convoy system at the earliest possible moment.

"This method of protection can obviously only be instituted after the outbreak of war and it takes time to bring it fully into operation, but the House can be satisfied that it is being fully applied with the utmost speed and vigor."

The "air battle" which was reported to have followed England's first air raid alarm yesterday turned out to be anti-aircraft fire against British pursuit planes which set out to give battle to German reconnaissance planes. The Ministry of Information has now announced that German reconnaissance planes did head for the east coast but turned back before they reached it.

British fighters took to the air to head them off but failed to find them. Returning, the fighters were mistaken for Germans by anti-aircraft batterymen who opened up on them. This, the Information Ministry said, accounted for rumors of a heavy aerial engagement.

British planes have joined French aircraft in battering German munitions plants north of the Saar basin and longer flights across Germany to help the Poles on the eastern front are expected as operations expand.

2 Air-Raid Warnings Sounded At Marseille After 36 Hours' Quiet

Marseille, France, Sept. 7 (AP)—Air-raid sirens screamed two warnings of German raids tonight at this key port linking France with her North African empire.

Marseille's two early evening larms were the first reports anywhere in France in the last thirty-six hours of air raids.

There was no indication that any bombs were dropped.

SEP 8 1939

The sirens wailed the first warning at 8.02 P. M. The second came almost immediately afterward at 8.57 P. M.

Marseille is the main French port on the Mediterranean for entry of French troops from North Africa.

The Toulon naval base was in a state of alert from 8.25 P. M. to 10 P. M.

BRITISH SHAPE OFFENSIVE FOR FINISH FIGHT

Triple Program Organized on Land, Sea, Air and at Home for War.

CAMPAIGN IS CO-ORDINATED

Planes Batter German Munitions Plants in Saar Region as Others Drop Leaflets.

SEP 8 1939

LONDON, Sept. 7 (A. P.).—Britain guardedly organized its offensive against Germany today on a long-term basis for a fight to the finish. The Government has made plain by its brief and carefully worded communiques during the first five days of the war that it is mapping under cover a vast, coordinated campaign along three lines:

1. Military and aerial co-operation with France and Poland to harass Germany on two fronts.

2. Sweeping naval operations to choke off German supply lines and intense propaganda work "to disorganize the economy of the enemy."

3. Careful civil defense preparations to keep its own nation at a peak of efficiency and morale so as to be able to supply not only Britain's own forces, but those of her allies, with the materials for successful warfare.

The Royal Air Force, before the war started, began to prepare for co-operation with the French through reciprocal practice raids which also gave the extensive anti-aircraft organization defensive experience.

Munitions Plants Bombed.

British planes have joined French aircraft in battering German munitions plants north of the Saar basin and longer flights across Germany to help the Poles on the eastern front are expected as operations expand. The Government has announced consolidation into a unified military force of its regulars, territorials (national guard), conscripts and auxiliary units. Manpower is assured through a law providing for conscription of men from 18 to 41.

The navy has clamped down a blockade against German shipping and the air force has been bombing Germany's warships. The Government has announced the sinking of a number of German merchantmen and attacks on submarines.

The Ministry of Information hinted today at larger operations than actually disclosed in a communique asserting that simply "no news is good news" it must not be assumed that no successes have been achieved."

SEP 8 1939

Economic Warfare.

On the heels of three propaganda raids in which British planes distributed millions of leaflets over Germany condemning the Nazi regime and urging the people to get rid of Hitler, Britain's new Ministry of Economic Warfare disclosed that it immediately would begin operations similar to those of the world war Ministry of Blockade. The announcement said that "economic warfare must be regarded as a vital offensive arm."

Among the preparations for a long-time campaign are the national registration law, air-raid precautions on a highly organized scale, measures to conserve foreign exchange for war purchases and to concentrate foreign resources and a ban on the export of 500 articles such as metals, drugs and foods. The formation of a Ministry of Home Security with unannounced duties is disclosed.

Meanwhile, Britain and France arranged today to give additional financial aid to Poland through a cash loan of £8,500,000 (approximately $34,000,000). The two countries already have granted Poland £10,700,000 credit.

Comment by Times.

Indicative of Britain's determination to see the war through to a finish was the manner in which reports were received from Rome that Hitler's axis partner, Premier Mussolini, was attempting to arrange a settlement of the European dispute to avert widespread war. The authoritative Times, which frequently reflects governmental opinion, commented:

"If and when the German armies have completed a considerable advance, Herr Hitler would naturally be expected to make an offer of peace. Of this tactical move, it is sufficient to say with the Prime Minister that the survival of Hitlerism would only mean that the world would continue to pass from one crisis to another and that it must therefore be ended."

The reference was to similar sentiments voiced by Prime Minister Chamberlain in his declaration of war last Sunday. Several newspapers today sharply criticized the newly formed Ministry of Information for slowness in issuing a communique about the air-raid warnings that sent Londoners to cover yesterday morning for the third time since the war began.

SEP 8 1939

Press Criticism.

After a day of rumors and one preliminary communique seven hours after the warning, the ministry announced last night that it was caused by a German reconnaissance flight off the east coast of England which turned back without making contact with British defense forces. Anti-aircraft gunfire around London, the ministry added in its final communique, was caused by defense batteries mistaking returning English planes for enemy raiders and firing at them.

Said the liberal News-Chronicle:

"Such delay (in announcements) should be avoided. It is bad for the morale of the country. . . . Lord MacMillan, the new Minister of Information, will obviously find some urgent problems awaiting his attention. We hope he will give swift and convincing proof that he is the right man to deal with them."

The Daily Express urged:

"Give the public a prompt and adequate account of what has happened consistent with the public interest and there will be no soil for rumors to sprout in."

Commons Gets Chamberlain's Report on War

Hears Praise of Poles' Stand and of British Success in Raid on Wilhelmshaven

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain declared today in a general review of the five-day-old war that Germany appeared to be concentrating her "first main effort against Poland" in the hope of "a short war and a quick decision."

He told the House of Commons, however, that French troops were "in contact with the enemy" on the Western front and that the Britisn Air Force and Navy were striking hard at German U-boats and warships.

The Polish Army, he said, was "contesting every yard of the German advance," although it was "outnumbered and outgunned" and fignting "against overwhelming superiority in the air."

Points in Statement

Other important points in the Prime Minister's statement were:

1. Seven British merchant ships, "three or four" other British ships have been sunk "by German U-boats." [This statement was made before additional sinkings reported Thursday night.]

2. The British air raid on German fleet bases around the Kiel Canal Monday night had resulted in "at least two hits" on one of Germany's three pocket battleships.

3. British bombers dropped more than 10,000,000 leaflets over Germany in three night flights this week.

4. All squadrons of the British fighter command are "at war stations and in a state of instant readiness."

The Ministry of Information issued the following statement tonight: "During the day, the R. A. F. has been on extensive reconnaissance over the North Sea." There was no additional comment on the flight.

It also was announced that British naval attacks on German submarines had continued but there were "no major operations to report." The communique said, however, that "in at least one case success appears probable."

It said that, in addition to the loss of the Cunard freighter Bosnia and the Royal Sceptre, the Corinthic was attacked but was not damaged and reached port safely.

The Ministry of Information reported fifty-four German merchant vessels totaling 180,000 tons have taken refuge in the neutral Port of Vigo, Spain.

The Ministry of Information announced a number of international developments which may have an important effect on the war.

The British government, it was said, had been notified by Japan that she expected to stay out of the conflict.

The government at the same time received official notification that Egypt had decided to sever diplomatic relations with Germany and that the government of Iraq had ordered the German Minister in Bagbad to leave. The Iraq move came as a surprise. It was regarded as important because the one-time British mandate has rich oil lands which would be of immense value to any warring power.

Aga Khan Urges "Service"

The Information Ministry also announced that the Aga Khan, spiritual ruler of 10,000,000 Mohammedans in India, Africa and central Asia, had called his subjects to give "unstinted service" to the cause for which Great Britain is fighting.

SEP 8 1939

The Empire affairs section of this communique detailed pledges of assistance from Britain's Indians and from Mauritius, an island of 400,000 population in the Indian Ocean.

It said the Governor of Southern Rhodesia had mobilized all units in the territorial active force and their regimental reserves for active service "within or beyond the borders of the colony."

Sir Nevile Henderson, British Ambassador to Berlin who left Germany after the declaration of war, arrived in London tonight.

Parliament adjourned until next Wednesday.

Calls on London to Prevent Any Acts Prejudicing Tokio's Position in China

LONDON, Sept. 7 (AP).—The Ministry of Information announced today that Japan has informed Great Britain that she "does not intend to be involved" in Europe's war.

The ministry said, "a communication has been made to His Majesty's Ambassador at Tokio to the effect that the Japanese government does not intend to be involved in the war which has broken out in Europe.

"They requested that His Majesty's government should refrain from taking any measures such as might prejudice Japan's position in regard to China."

The communication from Japan was the first official notification of [illegible]'s neutrality and served to [illegible] reports of a possible new military axis involving Germany, Italy, Russia and Japan. Observers believed it indicated that the German-Soviet non-aggression pact may have driven a lasting wedge between Adolf Hitler and the Japanese.

The Japanese Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs on Tuesday notified the American, British, French, German, Italian and Polish envoys in Tokio of Japan's decision to remain neutral.)

Irak Interns Germans, Cuts Diplomatic Relations

London Hears Reich Minister Has Left for Syria

LONDON, Sept. 7 (AP).—The British Ministry of Information announced today that the Irak government had ordered the German Minister in Bagdad to leave the country within twenty-four hours and that the Irak Envoy in Berlin had been instructed to ask for his passports.

The Information Ministry announced that in addition to this severance of diplomatic relations a number of German citizens of military age "or otherwise regarded as dangerous" had been interned in Irak.

This former British mandate is important to any warring power because of its rich oil lands, development and production of which are in large measure in British hands.

The country, now an independent state, is ruled by a regency. Its King is four-year-old Faisal II, whose father, King Ghazi, was killed in an automobile accident last April 4.

British dispatches from Irak said the German Minister, Dr. Grobba, already had left for Syria with his staff.

Twenty minutes later the "all-clear" siren sounded. It was announced later that the approaching airplane was not an enemy.

War News, Good Or Bad, Should Be Published Promptly, Greenwood Contends

London, Sept. 7.—Britain's tight grip of war news brought a protest today from Arthur Greenwood, acting Opposition leader in the House of Commons. He said he would argue for a relaxing of the rules when the House meets again next Wednesday.

"This kind of thing has got to end," Greenwood said. "It is immensely important from the point of view of morale that there should not be any delays whatever in the publication of news, whether it be good or bad.

"My argument," Greenwood said, "is that if the news is good, we ought to use it for our credit abroad and to cheer our people at home. And if the news is bad, it ought to be told because it will make our people clench their teeth and become more determined."

Attack On Reich U-Boat Announced By British

BY MAX HARRELSON
Associated Press Correspondent

London, Sept. 7—The Ministry of Information, announcing a British attack on a German mine-laying submarine and the capture of the German liner Inn, said tonight German merchant ships were "being steadily driven from the seas."

The Ministry's statement gave no information on the British assault on the submarine beyond expressing belief it had been successful.

British authorities said the 2,867-ton North German Lloyd steamer Inn was sunk Tuesday and thirty-five passengers and [illegible] were taken [illegible] including one woman and two [illegible] rare birds.

[Editor's Note — Dispatches from Belem, Brazil, yesterday reported the Inn was sunk in mid-Atlantic, but gave no details.]

The Ministry said fifty-four German merchant ships, totaling more than 180,000 tons, have sought refuge in the neutral port of Vigo, Spain, and nine other German ships, totaling more than 60,000 tons, are in Japanese ports.

BRITISH SHIP IS TORPEDOED OFF PORTUGAL

SEP 8 1939

Freighter's Survivors Say Submarine Shelled and Destroyed Lifeboat.

KILLING 1 AND WOUNDING 4

41 of Crew Missing; 45 Survivors Are Picked Up and Taken to Lisbon.

1939

30.24-3131

30.24 3131

LISBON, Sept. 7 (A. P.).—The 7,242-ton British freighter Manaar was sunk last night off Portugal by what the survivors declared was a torpedo from a submarine, and early this afternoon forty-one of her crew of eighty-eight had not been accounted for. At least two were killed and three wounded.

Survivors said that the Manaar, bound for Calcutta from Liverpool, was torpedoed without warning, and that while the crew was attempting to abandon her in eight lifeboats the submarine opened fire and destroyed one lifeboat, killing one man and wounding four.

One of the wounded men apparently was Ameer Ally, who subsequently died en route to Lisbon aboard a rescue ship, the Netherlands steamship Mars. The Mars brought twenty-nine survivors here, among them the three others wounded—J. Furner, Thomas Jones and Adbul Nobre.

The Portuguese liner Carvaljo arrived here with sixteen British-Indian members of the Manaar crew.

Three Lifeboats still Missing.

Early this afternoon three lifeboats were reported still missing.

The Carvalho Araujo picked up her contingent of survivors 100 miles off Lisbon at 2 A. M. (9 P. M. New York time Wednesday). The liner's captain said that while he was watching for lifeboats several Very lights went up.

The rescued Indian seamen were wholly ignorant of their location, knew nothing of navigation and soon would have been carried farther out to sea.

Members of the crew said the submarine suddenly broke the surface last night at 7:30 P. M.

Capt. Shaw of the Manaar and his officers are Europeans.

The Manaar left Liverpool on September 3.

She went down about seventy miles northwest of Cape Roca, which is twenty miles west of Lisbon.

Berlin Sends Regrets.

ATHENS, Sept. 7 (A. P.).—The Greek Government today received a telegram from its naval attache in Berlin advising that the German Government had expressed regret at the sinking of the Greek steamship Costis in the Baltic last Monday.

The telegram added:

"The Costis, despite signals from patrolling German warships, took the wrong turning and struck a mine."

The Greek Ministry of Mercantile Marine ordered captains of other Greek ships to increase their number of lifeboats and to carry adequate food and water supplies.

Germans Confined on Ship.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 7 (A. P.).—The British liner Andalucia Star, several days overdue here from London, docked today with fourteen German passengers confined to their cabins.

Arriving at the same time was the British Cruiser Ajax, reported to have sunk at least two German ships.

Passengers said the voyage was normal until the liner reached Teneriffe, Canary Islands, where she took a "war-route" on learning that hostilities had opened.

Describe Manaar Sinking

LISBON, Portugal, Sept. 7 (AP).—The destruction of the 7,242-ton British steamer Manaar was described tonight by survivors brought to Lisbon. They said a submarine first torpedoed the Manaar and then opened fire as the crew of eighty-eight sought to leave the sinking ship.

Four men of the crew—three of them wounded—had been rescued. At least two were dead. Forty were missing.

Among the wounded was Thomas Jones, 50, of Carnavon, Wales, chief petty officer. He said the Manaar had put up the best fight of which she was capable before she was sent to the bottom last night 100 miles off the Portuguese coast.

Grinning despite his two leg wounds, he recalled:

"We broke out a twelve-pounder, but we couldn't reach her [the submarine]. She was too far away."

The Manaar's master, he added, gave orders to abandon ship after the first torpedo struck amidships and it became eivdent that the submarine was not coming within range of the freighter's gun.

"We launched four boats on the port side—the side away from the submarine—but the ship swung around as we were doing this," Jones said, "and we found ourselves staring straight at the submarine."

Then, he added, the attacking vessel fired a second torpedo, at the same time opening fire with its gun. He said that in his opinion shrapnel was fired. However, a physician at the hospital said the men's wounds indicated they were inflicted by machine-gun bullets.

Several Torpedoes Fired

The submarine fired four or five torpedoes, at least, Jones said, adding:

"The fourth one broke her [the Manaar] in two, and we watched as she upended and disappeared. Then the submarine submerged. Then we took to the oars and headed for Lisbon, but a Dutchman [The Netherland steamer Mars] came along and picked us up after a few hours."

Asked how he liked being torpedoed—it was third time in his experience, the other two instances having been in the World War—Jones said only:

"God Save the King."

Sixteen of the crew were picked from the sea by the Portuguese steamer Carvalho Araujo, and thirty were picked up by the Mars.

Some survivors reported the submarine gunfire smashed a lifeboat, killing one man outright and wounding four. The fourth presumably was Ameer Ally, who died en route to Lisbon on the Mars.

The Manaar left Liverpool Sept. 3, bound for Calcutta. Her seamen said that at 7:30 o'clock last night the submarine broke surface at a point about seventy miles northwest of Cape Roca, or less than 100 miles from the Portuguese coast, and without warning began the attack.

The Indian crew members, ignorant of their location and of navigation itself, were drifting helplessly when they were found. Had rescue been much longer delayed they would have been carried farther out to sea.

French Seize Nazi Pill Boxes

SEP 8-1939

Swiss Hear That Veteran Poilus Push On Cautiously Into Saar Basin.

BASEL, Switzerland, Sept. 7 (A. P.).—German advance guards on the western front were said in border advices today to be withdrawing slowly into the main forts of the Siegfried Line, while smoothly operating French troops pushed into German territory. The French were reported advancing as much as fifteen kilometers (nine and a half miles) in some places along the northern wing of the line.

However, they moved cautiously, knowing that the German fortifications, as well as their own Maginot Line, contained scores of inviting spots where an unobstructed advance would lead attackers into death traps under the crossfire of forts. Veteran French troops were reported as seizing first-line German pillboxes.

Saar Pillbox Falls.

One of the first to fall, reports here said, was in the Saar region opposite the French town of Saarguemines. It was reported that the outpost was taken after little resistance, the Germans retiring to their main line.

Most foreign military observers in Switzerland expressed a belief that it would be at least a week before the French could complete their first careful advance through the pillbox outposts and launch a drive on the main German line. German forces, dispatches indicate, have been ordered merely to put up a defense and keep off French territory in the hope that French strength would be spent against the Siegfried Line while the German drive upon Warsaw speeds through the Vistula River plains.

Ignoring French planes, which were reported flying over German territory only as a cover for troop movements, the German aviators were said to have been instructed to concentrate on blocking propaganda bombardments by the British. They plan to give the next British propaganda bombers a warm welcome.

Goering Conserves Planes.

Indications were seen in dispatches from Germany that Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Nazi air commander, was saving his strength for air assaults on French concentration centers and communication lines when the French forces launch their main drive against the Siegfried Line south of the Rhine. Despite the lack of tactical significance in the French move into German territory, it proved to be a tremendous boost for French morale, already reported as high.

French soldiers were heard to say that it was "excellent for once in France's history that the fighting is on German soil, instead of destroying our own land. Let's see how they like it." On the German side, peasants of Baden, who know little of modern warfare, were bewildered by the French advance, but "thought the Siegfried Line would keep them out of the Reich," it was said.

Swiss Shut Frontiers.

Basel's French and German frontiers were closed to every one except Swiss refugees. Germans and French concentrated on the removal of citizens from towns along the fortified lines and placed troops in the hastily deserted homes and offices.

Huningue, a French town just up the river from Basel, with a population of more than 20,000, was deserted except for the military forces. Farmer-residents of the rich land in the Maginot zone between Basel and Strasbourg, ordered out at once, left behind their livestock, which the army paid for with Treasury bonds.

Refugees Fleeing.

Army trucks rushed the refugees—most of them carrying only bundles—to Mulhouse, whence they took trains to the interior. On the German side, similar removals took place. Whole villages packed up what could be moved and left for the Black Forest as the troops entered.

Pontoons of all bridges between Basel and Strasbourg were cut as the normally busy river—now virtually trafficless—became a "no-man's land." German farmers of Baden reported that French planes had dropped propaganda leaflets in the valley.

Most residents of Baden appeared to be convinced that the French would not attempt to cross the Rhine and face the withering fire from the Siegfried Line. They believed that any French drive will be to the north.

Artillery Duel Reported

BASLE, Switzerland, Sept. 7 (AP).—French heavy artillery today hammered the main forts of Germany's Westwall from Lauterbourg, where the French-German frontier elbows away from the Rhine, to the Saar frontier.

While the big guns boomed, hundreds of thousands of French troops moved under protection of the Maginot Line into position, ready to strike at the points the high command decides is the weakest.

Border advices said German advance guards on the Western front were withdrawing slowly into the main forts of the Westwall.

The French had advanced as much as nine and one-half miles in some places along the northern wing of the line, these reports said, but were moving cautiously.

Not a single shot has been fired across the Rhine River front in this vicinity since the war began, but Germans north of Basle are busy day and night strengthening their "Rhineland Gibraltar" at near-by Istein.

The Istein forts, considered the key to the entire South Baden Black Forest, were inspected twice by Chancellor Hitler just before the war began.

General Henri Guisan, Commander in Chief of the Swiss Army, who is schooled in both German and French military methods, has concentrated his strong, well-equipped citizen army in Basle.

The city itself was turned into a fort. Basle teemed with troops, and every other street corner was converted into a strongbold with huge steel girders, railroad ties and other building materials. Anti-tank spikes set in concrete guarded main entrances to the city.

German Civilians Evacuated

BERLIN, Sept. 7 (AP).—There was no report here in Berlin today of any action on the French frontier.

From parts of Western Germany, however, came reports from relatives and friends indicating large-scale withdrawals of the civilian populace from such cities as Saarbruecken, Trier, Aachen, Boon and Karlsruhe.

Officials are apparently prevented from revealing to inquiring foreigners just what cities, towns and regions are being cleared, but there is no ban on mentioning such places as one can establish for one's self.

Officials also say frankly that, of course, Germany does not propose to have her men, women and children mowed down by enemy cannon in case major operations begin in the west.

It is known, for instance, that large areas of the Saar Valley have been cleared of civilians and the inhabitants taken to the region around Bad Homburg.

It is further known that the inhabitants of the evacuated regions received orders to leave their homes unlocked. They have been assured that soldier guards will see that nothing happens to their homes unless, of course, enemy shots destroy them.

At Duesseldorf and Cologne, returning travelers report, there have been several alarms about approaching enemy planes, but the population was permitted to leave their anti-aircraft shelters soon and no planes appeared.

Swiss Invoke Strict Curb On Torrent of Refugees

Thousands Pour Over Border From Germany and France

BERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 7 (AP).—Switzerland became a refuge today for thousands fleeing from Germany and France, many of them trying to pass through Italy while that country remains neutral.

In an effort to control the flood, the Swiss Federal Council ordered that all foreigners must have Swiss visas and must report to the police within twenty-four hours after arrival to obtain identity cards.

American consular authorities, kept busy last week attending to more than 1,000 Americans who rushed to Switzerland when the Italian Line canceled its sailings, were busy again as Americans returned to Italy, seeking places on the Rex and on probable later sailings of the Conte Di Savoia and the Augustus.

Arturo Toscanini, the conductor, and his daughter, Mme. Vladimir Horowitz, were reported at Lucerne pending his return to the United States.

Former King Alfonso XIII, of Spain, was with Spanish monarchist leaders at a hotel in Lausanne, while former Queen Victoria Eugenia was staying with friends at a villa in the same town. Others at Lausanne were Rear Admiral Charles E. Courtney, of the United States Navy, the Aga Khan and Dr. Washington Luiz, former President of Brazil.

Ignace Jan Paderewski and his sister, Mme. Wipkonska, remained at the Villa Riond at Bossom, near Lausanne, where the former Polish Premier followed the war by radio.

The admission of refugees from Germany was limited to the frontier north of Zurich.

King With Mask, Visits Troops

SEP 8 1939

London, Sept. 7 (AP)—King George, carrying a gas mask and dressed in the service uniform of a field marshal, received a tremendous cheer today when he visited troops of the Aldershot command.

One old soldier broke from the ranks to shout: "God bless you, sir." The King's visit failed to interrupt feverish mobilization work at Aldershot.

Windsor Going Home Today With Wife, For Special Duty

Secrecy Surrounds Time Of His Departure For London—May Travel By British Gunboat

[By the Associated Press]

Cannes, France, Sept. 7—The Duke of Windsor and his American-born Duchess, for whose love he abdicated the British throne, will return to England tomorrow, a spokesman announced today.

It was reported an important special "duty" awaited the former monarch who has not seen his homeland in almost three years of self-imposed exile. The nature of the task to be given the Duke in Britain's wartime Government was not disclosed.

Time Not Revealed

Secrecy surrounded the time of departure and the route.

[Associated Press Editor's Note—A dispatch to Washington from southern France reported that the Duke and Duchess might leave late today by automobile to embark aboard a British gunboat. A special emissary from London arrived by airplane and conferred with the Duke.]

The Duke, anxious to get back home now that his country is at war again with Germany, originally planned to fly to England last Saturday, but adverse weather held up the private plane he had summoned.

Windsor left England December 11, 1936, the day after he abdicated his throne for "the woman I love." The Duchess, the former Wallis Warfield, followed him to France and they were married six months later.

The Duke, who saw front-line service during the World War when he was the Prince of Wales, has become restive in recent months at his inactivity.

Unwilling To Be Idle

"I am now a very happily married man, but my wife and I are neither content nor willing to live a purely inactive life," he confided.

In the last year he made two appeals for peace.

In a broadcast to the United States from Verdun on May 5 he called upon "all political leaders" to rise above "purely national interests" in order to avoid war. That appeal was said to have had the approval of his brother, King George VI.

More recently he appealed to King Vittorio Emanuele of Italy "as a simple citizen of the world" to bring his influence to bear in the cause of peace.

Polish War Plans Seized With General, Nazis Say

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 7.—An explanation of why Germany's drive in Poland apparently has been far less difficult than had been expected was offered today in a German account of how a strong box, taken in the capture of the Polish Seventh Division, yielded a full set of General Staff plans for defense against Germany.

The commander of this division was General Panusz Gasiorowski, one of the oldest colleagues now of the late Marshal Josef Pilsudski of Poland. General Gasiorowski now is captive in some unrelieved German military prison.

A German authority said that, even after the capture of the valuable plans, the Poles did not change their strategy.

General Gasiorowski was replaced as chief of the Polish General Staff on June 10, 1935—before the lapse of the six-week official mourning period for Marshal Pilsudski. His successor was General Juljan Stachiewicz, a close friend of Marshal Edward Rydz-Smigly, the present Polish Commander in Chief.

Britain Issues New List Of Army Exemptions

Important Workers in Home Industries Are Exempted

LONDON, Sept. 7 (AP).—The government issued tonight a new list of workers considered too important at home to be conscripted or permitted to volunteer in the armed forces.

Men over a certain age in each of the 212 listed categories must remain at work, while those under the age limit may take similar work with the armed forces. Most of the age limits were twenty-five, but they varied between eighteen and sixty-five, according to the importance of their jobs.

"Production required for the prosecution of the war and the maintenance of the life of the people is of vital importance," the Ministry of Labor said.

The schedule is subject to revision. Newest additions to the list which was published last January included brick and tile makers, cutlery workers, wire-goods makers, textile workers, tailors, office clerical staffs, factory executives above foreman, fruit growers, leather workers and certain newspaper men.

Over 300 Slovak Army Deserters In Hungary

Hundreds Of Men Called To Service Reported To Have Fled Into Woods

Budapest, Hungary, Sept. 7 (AP)—More than 300 deserters from the Slovak army fled across the frontier to this little village in northern Hungary today.

They told the police hundreds of men called to army service by the German-directed Slovak general staff fled into woods and were seeking a way to escape to Hungary. The Slovak Hlinka guard, they related, is watching the frontiers and shooting deserters.

One group of thirty Slovaks forced its way into Hungary by threatening Hlinka guards with baskets of hand grenades.

Raid By Polish Planes In Slovakia Claimed

Craft Said To Have Machine Gunned Columns Of Troops In Surprise Attack

Bratislava, Slovakia, Sept. 7 (AP)—The Slovak news agency asserted today that Polish planes, raiding behind the lines, swooped down on and machine-gunned Slovak troop columns at Iglo, Presov, Bardiof and Levoca.

The agency described the attack on troop concentrations at Presov as so swift sirens could not be sounded in time.

Soldiers fired with rifles at the low-flying planes, but the news agency said the craft apparently were unscathed.

Foreign Planes Reported Speeding Across Holland

Craft Sighted During Night on Four Occasions

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 7 (AP).—Hollanders reported foreign planes flew over their country on four occasions tonight.

Two planes circled over the Soesterberg military airport, about twenty miles outside of Amsterdam, at 9:30 p. m., and were forced away when floodlights were turned on them. At 10 p. m. [illegible] planes were reported seen near Deventer, in eastern Holland, flying northeast.

A single airship was seen over Diest, midway between The Hague and Rotterdam, a few minutes later. Earlier in the night, one plane was spotted heading east over northern Holland.

Officials said they did not learn the identity of the planes. Earlier this week anti-aircraft guns fired on foreign planes over this neutral country.

Amsterdam Will Give Residents Food Cards

Amsterdam, Sept. 7 (AP)—Distribution of food cards to Amsterdam's 800,000 residents will start tomorrow as part of the Government's program to conserve supplies because of uncertain conditions created by the new European war.

Similar distributions will start in The Hague and Rotterdam and eventually in all the Netherlands.

The measure was described by the Government as purely precautionary and the cards cannot be used unless an emergency arises. There were some restrictions, however, on quantities which may be purchased, especially of sugar, tea or coffee.

Poles Reported Making Strong Fight in North

Radio Says Nazis Bombed Warsaw and Railways; More Reservists Called

BUDAPEST, Sept. 7 (AP).—The Polish radio station at Lwow (Lemberg), in southeastern Poland, broadcast at 10:35 p. m. today (5:35 p. m. New York time) that "the Germans today again bombarded Warsaw from the air and also railway lines and stations in a wide area." The Lwow station was believed to be the only one still operating in Poland.

[The New York Herald Tribune radio room, which usually picks up voice news broadcasts or code signals from 7 to 10 p. m. from SPW, shortwave station in Warsaw, heard nothing from SPW or any other Warsaw station last night. It was the first time since the war began that no contact could be made with Warsaw.]

The broadcast asserted that Polish aviators had shot down thirty-five planes yesterday.

"The northern front strongly resists German attacks, while Gdynia (Polish seaport across from Danzig) is desperately defending its positions," the report said.

The broadcast insisted that the "German [illegible]" when they stated that they had destroyed the Polish fleet."

Earlier the Lwow station broadcast a Polish general staff order for all reservists not yet called to the colors to report to barracks tomorrow morning. All members of the national youth organization, including those from fourteen to eighteen years old, were ordered to report for drill.

The broadcaster interrupted a musical program twice to read the order. The speaker said that all physically fit Polish men now had been called to active service.

In a morning broadcast, the same station appealed to the nation to defend its liberty and independence "in order to "stem the new march of barbarism and anti-Christianity in Europe."

Czechs Are Looked To

Poland now is "the bastion against German barbarians seeking to conquer the world in a new pagan crusade," the appeal said, adding:

"Poles have a sacred duty to halt the Nazi campaign of gobbling up one European nation after another."

It added that Czechs "now are well organized under the Polish banner and we fight together for traditional Slavic interests."

A Czech foreign legion of several thousand has been in the process of organization in Poland for several weeks under the leadership of Gen. Lev Prchala, former Czecho-Slovak delegate to Ruthenia.

RADIO BLACKOUT IS WAR INVENTION

Stations of Belligerents Fight for Air Control.

BUDAPEST, Sept. 7 (A. P.).—Powerful radio stations of the warring European powers are waging a day-and-night battle of the air waves in an intensive effort to give neutral nations of southeastern Europe their own versions of the struggle.

Just as the [illegible] conflict is developing new military technics, so is it giving birth to a new radio technic.

The radio blackout thus far has been the most effective invention of the broadcasting belligerents.

When the British Broadcasting Corporation began sending out bulletins on the sinking of the passenger ship Athenia and blaming a German torpedo, the announcer's voice was obliterated suddenly by powerful band music from an unidentified station.

The interference disappeared as soon as the British broadcasters began sending dance music.

Listeners said the same thing happened on both British and American wavebands on President Roosevelt's speech to the United States and on all other important broadcasts.

Authorities said the air blackout happened too frequently to be accidental.

Because censorship was clamped down on the press in some southeastern nations when the war started, many turned to the radio for a picture of what was happening. They were disappointed, however, for on the airwaves they found nothing but confusion.

Announcers with Oxford accents are broadcasting German news bulletins in English from Berlin to this area.

Announcers with perfect Magyar, Croatian, Greek, Rumanian, Serbian and Bulgarian accents are being put on the air by BBC.

Polish [illegible] are also are sending foreign language broadcasts to southeastern Europe. An Italian station started this week an experimental broadcast in English by an American-sounding announcer.

Stations frequently fail to identify themselves, making it impossible to tell the source of their news.

BERLIN, Sept. 7 (AP).—Germans said tonight 100 Poles lost their lives in the siege of the Westerplatte and that the remaining 120 surrendered before an infantry and flame throwers' attack only because they had nothing left to eat.

The Poles valiantly held their posts under heavy bombardments, it is [illegible] the [illegible] altered their strategy by burning off the heavy forest around the fortress and then, with all obstructions removed, advanced their infantry behind flame throwers.

Germans said the Polish commander, after his surrender, delivered a short address of admiration for the bravery with which the German flame throwers advanced, while the German commander responded with compliments on the Poles' courage.

Denmark Received Apology for Esbjerg Accident.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 7 (A. P.).—Reliable Governmental informants said today that the fragments of an air bomb found in Esbjerg, the Danish seaport where a bomb killed two persons on Monday night, unmistakably were British, backing the supposition that a lost British flyer was responsible. Official statements were expected tonight both by Denmark and Britain.

It was said that one fragment of the bomb bore the Vickers (British) mark and the designation 500 pounds.

The Danish Government announced last night taht the British Minister had reported that the bombing might have been the unintentional act of a British [illegible] off his course while engaging in the attack [illegible] Kiel Canal. The Minister, expressing Britain's official regrets, said that it had been established that none of the British flyers who returned from the raid was responsible, but added that not all had returned.

ROME REPORTS NEGOTIATIONS WITH BRITAIN

Discussions to Eliminate Points of Friction Said to Be Under Way.

LONDON'S ENVOY SEES CIANO

Some Italians Expect Mussolini to Propose Peace if Poles Are Quickly Crushed.

ROME, Sept. 7 (A. P.).—Discussions to eliminate possible points of friction between Great Britain and Italy were reliably reported to be under way today. Informed persons said yesterday's conversation here between Sir Percy Loraine, the British Ambassador, and Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, [illegible] along this line. Nothing, however, was divulged concerning the progress of the negotiations.

A speedy conquest of Poland by Germany, followed by peace overtures in which Premier Mussolini would take the initiative, was predicted by Italians.

Some Italian quarters expect Mussolini to make the first move in the pacification program by renewing his proposals for a conference of the Powers on the general settlement of the political and economic ills of Europe.

They feel that the German drive into Poland will soon place a large part of that country under German occupation and that the time then will be ripe for the new move.

Such a proposal would be made with German victory in Poland an accomplished fact and, coming from Mussolini, would be in line with his ideas for a repartition of world wealth to give Germany and Italy political and economic parity with Great Britain and France, informed quarters said.

Familiar Fascist Proposal.

The Fascists long have asserted that this is the only lasting [illegible] tion to Europe's strife and that it can be accomplished peacefully or by war.

Acceptance of the conference proposal by Britain and France would mean a great victory for the Rome-Berlin Powers, it was said. But some Fascists thought that—since it would satisfy Germany and Italy, remove the cause for Nazi and Fascist territorial and other claims, and open the way for a new era of peace and prosperity—the British and French might accept a conference rather than go ahead with the war.

British and French quarters here were of a different mind. They said the war would go on to a finish unless Hitler met the condition imposed for peaceful settlement last week for a recall of German troops from Poland.

Theory of Inactivity.

Most diplomats were of the opinion that the Rome-Berlin axis and its [illegible] alliance still are functioning. Italy's non-intervention during these days during which Germany has no apparent need of help, most of them thought, is part of a pre-arranged plan of Hitler and Mussolini.

Many Italians are expressing the belief that, if France were weakened by a long struggle against Germany, Italy then would enter the conflict against her.

Diplomats also are of the opinion that Mussolini is watching the United States closely. If he feels that the United States, with its enormous resources, is likely to enter the war to save France and Britain from defeat, he may be more cautious about entering it on Germany's side, they say.

Italy's war preparations were advanced a step today by a law ordering ammonium nitrate plants to be kept at peak efficiency. The plants, which are being enlarged, were ordered to be ready for top production by the end of December or suffer a fine of 10,000 lire (about $520) and possible closure.

The Ministry of Guilds was empowered to order the companies to produce ammonium nitrate for agricultural purposes. It is used also in the manufacture of explosives.

BRUENING FIXES WAR GUILT

Blames Lack of Statesmanship in Decisive Moments

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 7 (AP).—Dr. Heinrich Bruening, Chancellor of the German Republic before Adolf Hitler's rise to power, today blamed the "lack of constructive statesmanship at nearly all the decisive moments of the post-war period" for Europe's present "catastrophe."

In exile now a Professor in the Government [illegible] Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration—Dr. Bruening voiced that opinion in a statement in which he denounced as "false and either ridiculous or malicious certain reports" that he was "engaged in efforts to influence American opinion on policy."

Germans Dismissed in Manila

MANILA, P. I., Sept. 7 (AP).—Reports from many sections of the Philippines that British establishments [illegible] German employes are an outgrowth of the European war were confirmed today by S. Wyatt Smith, British Consul General here. The number of Germans affected was unknown. He said employers were acting voluntarily, "probably from a sense of duty."

Italians Arrest Writer For Vatican City Paper

By The Associated Press.

ROME, Sept. 7.—Professor Guido Gomella, an editorial writer for the Vatican City newspaper, the Osservatore Romano, has been arrested by Italian secret political police.

The arrest, which occurred Sunday while the professor was weekending in the country, followed a series of articles on the European situation which appeared in the Osservatore over his initials.

One of these said "England and France affirm particularly the principle of honor [illegible] maintaining obligations assumed toward Poland and in general the principle of independence and security of small nations as against the policy of larger nations as, for example, against the affirmation of supremacy."

Professor Gomella also is a Professor of Philosophy of Law at the University of Bari.

EUROPEANS LEAVE CHINA

Germans at Chungking Seek Russian Aid to Get Home

HONG KONG, Sept. 7 (AP).—Frenchmen throughout China are leaving, or planning early departures, to join the [illegible]

Thirty left Kunming, capital of Yunnan Province, for France yesterday by way of Indo-China. Others, farther in the interior, are making their way toward the Kunming railhead.

Numbers of Germans, summoned or voluntarily planning to return home, are finding it difficult to do so, as all practicable exits from China are through British Hong Kong and Burma or French Indo-China.

Germans at Chungking, the Chinese capital, are seeking Russian assistance in flying to Germany by way of Chinese Turkestan and Russia.

Several score of Germans former-

[illegible] in Canton and Hong Kong have come to the Portuguese colony of Macao but are unable to leave there for Europe or America because ocean liners are unable to enter the shallow harbor.

Monteux Missing in France

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7 (AP).—The State Department has begun a search in France for Pierre Monteux, conductor of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, and his niece, Miss Virginia Davis, of Philadelphia, it was disclosed today. The girl's mother, Mrs. Meyer [illegible] wife of the dance orchestra leader. Mrs. Davis said she received a cable from her daughter last week which said, "send money first boat," but she explained it was impossible to wire funds, adding: "I don't believe they're in danger, but I am anxious." Miss Davis went to Europe last month to study voice.

Young Mr. Kennedy, taken aback by the storm of protest, said he would take the situation up with his father.

There were 150 to 200 survivors of the Athenia torpedoing at the meeting.

"There are ninety destroyers being commissioned in the United States; they could send them over," yelled a man.

Mr. Kennedy left tonight for London.

The Donaldson Line, owners of the Athenia, reported 128 persons were missing and shipping circles in London estimated that not more than a dozen Americans were among them. Confusion over names still delayed an accurate listing of the missing.

Four of the Athenia injured were allowed to leave the Glasgow Western Infirmary yesterday. They were:

Helen De Witt of Plainfield, N. J.; Irene Gray of Toronto, Helen Hannay of Houston, Texas, and Ellen Hutchinson of Cambridge, Mass.

ATHENIA SURVIVORS DEMAND A CONVOY

Americans at Glasgow Tell Kennedy's Son Government Should Provide Warships

DISTRUSTFUL OF GERMANY

They Murmur at Prospect of Unaccompanied Voyage—More Ships Are Given

GLASGOW, Scotland, Sept. 7 (AP).—American survivors of the sinking of the liner Athenia insisted at a meeting here tonight that a convoy be supplied for the ship expected here next week to take them home.

"We cannot trust the German Government," a survivor shouted when John Kennedy, second son of the United States Ambassador to Great Britain, informed the group the steamer Orizaba had been ordered across the Atlantic to pick them up, Mr. Kennedy said no convoy was contemplated, and added:

"You will be safe in a ship flying the American flag."

"We definitely refuse to go without a convoy," one of a group of American college girls murmured.

Red Cross Gives Funds.

LONDON, Sept. 7 (A. P.).—The American Red Cross today turned over 10,000 pounds sterling ($40,550) to Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy to buy clothes, food, medical supplies and transportation for survivors of the torpedoed liner Athenia.

The Ambassador has advised Glasgow authorities that the sum will be added to contributions of citizens and welfare agencies there.

The Stella Polaris, a 6,000-ton Norwegian yacht, is available to transport stranded Americans back to the United States, the Raymond Whitcomb Travel Agency announced.

It obtained the yacht at the request of Ambassador Kennedy. The vessel has accommodations for 196 passengers and more can be taken aboard by putting cots in staterooms.

The agency said that "owing to the high rate of war risk insurance," fares would range from $375 to $675.

3,000 Want to Go Home.

GALWAY, Ireland, Sept. 7 (A. P.).—It was estimated today that, including the survivors from the torpedoed Donaldson liner Athenia, there now are 3,000 Americans in Ireland awaiting an opportunity to return home.

Henry H. Balch, United States Consul General, said the Americans other than those rescued from the Athenia were being left to make their own arrangements to get home.

Denies Sinking Athenia.

BERLIN, Sept. 7 (A. P.).—The German naval supreme command, once again in the most emphatic terms, denied today that any German craft had anything to do with the sinking of the British liner Athenia.

Every German naval [illegible], it is pointed out, has the strictest orders to proceed only in accordance with the practices of international law.

Tweedsmuir Asks War Steps

Calls on Canada's Parliament to Enact Measure for Co-operation With Britain

SEP 8 1939

OTTAWA, Sept. 7 (Canadian Press).—Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada, told an emergency session of Parliament today that the Government sought authority to take measures for defense of the dominion and co-operation with Britain, at war with Germany.

"You will be asked," he said in his speech from the throne opening the session, "to consider estimates to provide for expenditure which has or may be caused by the state of war which now exists."

Members of both houses were told they had been called that the Government might seek authority "for the measures necessary for defense of Canada and for co-operation in the determined effort which is being made to resist further aggression."

"My Ministers are convinced," he said, "that Canada is prepared to unite in a national effort to defend to the utmost [illegible] and institutions which are a common heritage."

Observers predicted a war budget such as was voted at the special war session in 1914.

Lord Tweedsmuir's reference to "the state of war which now exists" was to that between Great Britain and Germany.

(The Canadian Government holds hat only the Dominion Parliament as the power to authorize a declaration of war. Parliament has not acted, but a bill empowering the Government to take action is expected to be introduced tomorrow.)

1939

Premier Strengthens Cabinet.

The program for today was short—mostly formality—with voting on the war measures to come on later days. In 1914 when Canada entered the world war the special session of Parliament lasted five days.

Should Parliament refuse to approve measures proposed by the Government—as is its right a new government would have to be formed. The responsibility for Canada's action rests on Senators and members of the House of Commons.

On the eve of the special war session Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King moved to strengthen his Cabinet by calling James Layton Ralston from his Montreal law office to become Finance Minister. He is a former Minister of National Defense and was Liberal financial critic during the term of the Bennett government, 1930 to 1935.

Returning legislators found the capital changed from the holiday mood it was in when the regular session ended last June.

Then King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, [illegible] completing their tour of the Dominion and Ottawa was settling down after four days of parading and cheering.

Today Ottawa was garbing herself for war. Officers and men in khaki hurried through the streets as militia units were organized. Recruits were being examined and outfitted.

Placards called for volunteers. Guards were mounted at the Defense Department buildings.

CANADA PUSHES PREPARATIONS TO AID ENGLAND

Statement Of Dominion Policy Expected From Mackenzie King Today

Coastal And Internal Defenses Are Ready, Parliament Is Told

[By the Canadian Press]

Ottawa, Sept. 7—Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada, told an emergency session of Parliament today the Dominion Government would be asked to approve measures for national defense and for cooperation with Britain in her war with Germany.

Following the Governor-General's speech from the throne both houses adjourned until tomorrow without learning the details of the Government's plans for Canadian assistance to Britain.

The Dominion's policy is expected to be clarified when Prime Minister Mackenzie King addresses the second day's session of the assembly.

"You will be asked to consider estimates to provide for expenditure which has been or may be caused by the state of war which now exists," Lord Tweedsmuir told Parliament.

Says Canada Is Prepared

Announcing the militia, naval and air forces were on active service and provisions were made for coastal and internal defenses, the Governor-General added:

"My ministers are convinced that Canada is prepared to unite in a national effort to defend to the utmost liberties and institutions which are a common heritage."

Prime Minister King explained later that the Governor General's reference to existence of a state of war did not change Canada's position in relation to the European conflict.

"The speech from the throne made no change in the position of Canada as it has been since the proclamation under the War Measures Act was issued," the Prime Minister said.

Statement To Be Issued

"A formal statement defining the position of Canada will be issued following action by Parliament."

There has been considerable argument over the question whether a declaration of war by the United Kingdom automatically brings Canada into war, but the feeling here among observers is that Parliament will be asked to take definite action in this connection.

In a speech broadcast Sunday to the people of Canada the Prime Minister said:

"In what manner and to what extent Canada may most effectively be able to cooperate in the common cause is, as I have already stated, something which Parliament itself will decide.

"All I need to add at the moment is that Canada, as a free nation of the British Commonwealth, is bringing her cooperation voluntarily. Our effort will be voluntary."

An order-in-council proclaiming the War Measures Act of 1914, to which Mackenzie King referred, was dated September 1—two days before Britain went to war with Germany.

It declared that "a state of apprehended war exists and has existed since August 25, 1939."

Under the War Measures Act a proclamation that a real or apprehended war exists enables the Governor in Council to take extraordinary powers to "do such things as he may deem necessary or advisable for the security, defense, peace, order and welfare of Canada."

Price Board Created

Meanwhile, an order-in-council providing for emergency expenditures of $3,918,930 for the military, naval and air services was read to the House of Commons. It was passed August 24 and signed by the Governor General the next day.

Another order-in-council created a Wartime Prices and Trade Board with power to [illegible] supply of food, fuel or other necessities it deems "unreasonably withheld from the market."

The board also is empowered to issue licenses for the sale, supply and distribution of such necessities and to fix maximum prices or margins of profit, to fix the amount that may be sold or bought by any person and to buy and sell supplies through agencies designated by the board.

COMMERCIAL CREDITS TO EUROPE ALLOWED

President Warns They Must Be of Peacetime Variety

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP).—President Roosevelt issued a regulation today making possible the continuance of ordinary commercial credits and short-time obligations to belligerents.

The President specified that these credits and obligations must be "in aid of legal transactions and of a character customarily used in normal peace-time commercial transactions."

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau was authorized to administer the provisions of the order and to promulgate rules and regulations necessary for carrying them out.

The President cited Section 3 of the Neutrality Act which prohibits loans to belligerents but makes an exception of the credits and obligations mentioned, if the President so desires.

The President declared:

"I hereby find that it will serve to protect the commercial and other interests of the United States and its citizens to except from the operation of Section 3 of the joint resolution of Congress approved May 1, 1937 [the Neutrality Act], ordinary credits and short-time obligations."

Panama Parley On Neutrality Set for Sept. 21

Hull to Name Envoy Soon; Costa Rica Accepts Bid to Conference on Policy

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP).—Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, said today he expected the United States government's representative to the meeting of the American governments at Panama for consultation on neutrality measures would be named soon.

He said no definite date for the meeting had been fixed as this required consultation with all twenty-one republics of the hemisphere.

However, Sept. 21 was suggested in the invitations sent by the government of Panama to the other American republics. Mr. Hull said he expected the date would be determined soon.

The Secretary said he would not attend the conference.

Under the provisions of the "improved procedure for consultation" established at the Pan-American conference at Lima, Peru, in December the Ministers of Foreign Affairs agreed to attend such consultation meetings personally or to send a representative.

Latin-Amermican diplomats privately expressed the opinion their governments would attend the Panama meeting, pointing out it would call for consultation on the best means, "individually or collectively," to preserve their neutrality and for discussion of the most efficient methods for safeguarding commerce and communications, including shipping and aviation.

They said relations among all the republics were far more cordial and frank than they were in 1914 because of strengthened inter-American agreements against aggression, for the avoidance of conflicts and for settlement of disputes by peaceful and cultural ties.

They also said the United States government had not taken a single-handed initiative in promoting the conference at Panama City, but had acted in accord with other South American governments who had sought the opinion of the United States regarding the meeting.

Costa Rica Accepts

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Sept. 7 (AP).—Costa Rica today formally accepted an invitation to participate in a conference of American republics at Panama City to consider problems arising from the European war. Foreign Minister Tobias Zuniga Montufar will represent this country at the parley, scheduled to open Sept. 21.

Army and Navy Filling Ranks in Recruit Drive

Enlistments Rise as Neutrality Task Calls for Additional Forces

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7 (AP).—Officials disclosed today Army and Navy recruiting campaigns had been accelerated to keep pace with demands of neutrality enforcement.

The Navy plans to enlist in short order an additional 5,000 men authorized by Congress, instead of adding them gradually over a twelve-month period, it was indicated.

Additional men were demanded by the Atlantic Coast Patrol which started yesterday, the operation of long-idle destroyers, and President Roosevelt's decision that warship crews should be at full peace strength.

Reinforcement of the Panama Canal garrison months ahead of schedule has accelerated the Army's record peace-time undertaking to recruit nearly 115,000 men as additions and replacements by next mid-year.

The Army's drive was reported well ahead of schedule. The Navy has a waiting list of more than ten thousand qualified applicants.

At the start of the fiscal year on July 1, the Navy had 110,000 enlisted men. Congress provided funds for 116,000 and 1,000 have already been recruited. The remaining 5,000 were to have been enlisted gradually.

Without disclosing new objectives, the Navy said the recruiting had been speeded up. Full peace strength would require some 137,000 sailors, a figure Congress has authorized without providing sufficient funds.

Harry H. Woodring, Secretary of War, meanwhile, ordered approximately 1,500 Army officers and men to Puerto Rico to reinforce the garrison of the Caribbean Island.

Reinforcement of Puerto Rico followed closely the dispatch of additional planes and anti-aircraft troops to strengthen the garrison of the Panama Canal. Anti-aircraft and coast defense troops will be included in the Puerto Rican troops. (They will sail between Sept. 8 and Oct. 8, from points on the East, West and Gulf Coasts.)

Only the 65th Infantry Regiment and service detachments are stationed there now, under command of Brig. Gen. Edmund L. Daley.

These present forces total 866.

Puerto Rico recently was made a separate military department, and both the Army and Navy are now building [illegible] there.

Units to be transferred are:

First Battalion, 51st Coast Artillery regiment, a mobile army defense unit, now stationed at Fort Monroe, Va.

One battalion, 7th Field Artillery, now stationed at Fort Ethan Allen, Vt.

One company of the 1st Engineer Regiment stationed at Fort Du Pont Del.

First Battalion, 69th Coast Artillery (anti-aircraft), now stationed a Fort Crockett, Tex.

A reinforced anti-aircraft gun battery from Fort Winfield Scott Calif.

33d Ordnance Company, from Rock Island Arsenal, Ill.

Various scattered detachments from the signal corps, quartermaster corps and medical departments.

The Fort Crockett unit will sail from Galveston, Tex., and the battery from Fort Winfield Scott will sail from San Francisco. Other units will depart from Newport News, it was said.

The army transports St. Mihiel and Chateau Thierry will be used to make the transfer.

Mr. Woodring, in making the announcement, said the War Department planned early replacement of the transferred troops and full use of the mainland posts they would leave.

The Navy, officials disclosed today, will begin immediate construction of a $350,000 submarine base at St. Thomas, Virgin Islands.

At the same time it was announced that commander Harold W. Johnson, of the Civil Engineers Corps., now attached to the New York Navy Yard, would report to San Juan, Puerto Rico, Sept. 10, for duty as officer in charge of construction of the San Juan naval air base and the St. Thomas submarine base.

The Navy cut short today the South American shakedown cruise of the new submarine Spearfish and ordered the vessel to the Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, naval base.

The order, announced by Acting Secretary Charles Edison, was ascribed officially to "conditions now existing."

At the same time, officials said, there was a possibility officers would be detached from the naval postgraduate school at Annapolis to command reserve destroyers for patrol duty or otherwise fill gaps resulting from enforcement of American neutrality.

There is no present intention, however, to close the school. About 150 officers undergo nine months training there annually as specialists.

Plans for expediting the Civil Aeronautic Authority's program for training civilian pilots were discussed with President Roosevelt today by Robert H. Hinckley, C. A. A. chairman.

Mr. Hinckley said the program would be speeded up, but care would be taken not to use any war pressure methods because of the danger of fatalities. He said [illegible] pressure [illegible] were not yet [illegible] Germany had [illegible] a minimum of three deaths a week and as high as 3,500 a year, with England and France not very far behind these figures.

With its existing appropriation, he said, the C. A. A. hoped to begin training as many as 11,000 pilots this school year. From 200 to 300 colleges and schools will be named next week as training centers, he added.

Strict Censorship Of European News

By Associated Press.

Censorship of news is effective in nearly all European countries. It is especially thorough in Great Britain, France and Germany.

Complaints [illegible] hindrance imposed [illegible] censorship has been disruption of normal communications, but it is obvious that censors seek to prevent the sending of unfavorable news from their respective countries.

Some news dispatches are transmitted in ten or fifteen minutes; others are delayed for hours and some doubtless are suppressed by the censorship.

Other major powers wiped out the bulk of their war debts by depreciation of currencies. England finally came to a partial depreciation in 1931, and the United States cut the gold content of the dollar about forty per cent. in 1933.

But Germany's currency was permitted to depreciate until it was worth nothing, and obligations based on it were valueless.

savings accounts. And usually almost everybody suffers, too, because the cost of living is likely to rise much faster than wages and salaries.

Then, of course, there are the profits of war. Many big fortunes created by war are still extant, more or less. Others have been wiped out by the slumps, which came in 1921 and the early 1930's.

Shot Away

A preponderant part of the expenditure of war goes not into things like homes, highways and parks that are useful. It is shot away, used to destroy wealth, economists explain.

Rising prices represent more dollars, say, per bushel of wheat, not more wheat. The price level in the United States more than doubled between 1914 and 1920, rising about 130 per cent. The National Industrial Conference Board estimates the nat[illegible] wealth of the United States in [illegible]192,000,-000,000, [illegible] in 1920 at $388,700,000,000, up about 150 per cent. So it appears the major part of the rise was because the dollar would buy less and the wealth was worth more dollars. It did not represent so much more goods.

F. A. Pearson and the late G. F. Warren, of Cornell, in their study, "Prices," estimate that actual physical production per capita in the United States actually increased only about ten per cent. from 1914 to 1920.

THE COST OF WAR

Costs Of War Rocket To Astronomical Height And Everyone Must Pay

Some Estimate Expense Of Last World Conflict At $1,000,000 A Minute For A Total Of At Least $2,246,400,000,000

By Claude A. Jagger
Associated Press Financial Editor

New York, Sept. 7—What is the cost of war, and who pays?

These homely questions, with Europe once more in flames and speculators in Wall Street, a La Salle Street and elsewhere seeking to profit from a "war boom," seem vital.

Most economists and statisticians bog down in trying to give pat answers, but the World War studies result in such figures as these:

1. One estimate places the cost at $275,000,000,000, based mostly on actual outlays of governments. This is about forty per cent. more than the entire estimated national wealth of the United States in 1914.

2. Other estimates, trying to calculate such intangible factors as destruction of property and loss of life, reach figures commonly used only in astronomy. One figure amounts to $1,000,000 a minute for the duration of hostilities, or a total of $2,246,400,000,000.

And as for who pays? Most economists say almost everybody. In the last World War, England expanded its national debt by $34,000,000,000, the United States by $24,000,000,000.

Through Taxation

Both countries have tried to maintain their currencies and service their debts by taxation, and, of course, everybody pays taxes, directly or indirectly.

France's Debt Rises

France's internal debt rose by 190,-000,000,000 francs during the war, but the franc dropped from 19.3 cents in 1914 to an average of 7 cents in 1920, and currently, on the basis of the old gold dollar, it is only about 1½ cents.

As currencies depreciate, when they are depreciated on a grand scale as in France, prices rise by a more or less corresponding amount, so, measured in the goods of life, the [illegible] is worth less. Therefore the [illegible] power or act[illegible] in fixed investments, such as bonds and savings accounts, becomes a fraction of what it was.

That is one way of getting rid of debt, and that is the way most of the countries in the last World War got out from under their debts.

Outright Default

Another way, of course, is outright default. Remember some $14,000,000,000 principal and interest, of war debts owed the United States?

But let us say currency depreciation, or inflation, is the favorite method. Who pays then? The thrifty, say the economists, the big middle class of persons who have saved, put their money away conservatively, in best bonds and

GERMAN OFFICIALDOM FELT THAT GERMANY COULD BE WELL PLEASED WITH THE RESULTS OF EXACTLY SEVEN DAYS OF THE UNDECLARED WAR.

AT THE SAME TIME, THERE WAS NO REPORT HERE IN BERLIN OF ANY ACTION ON THE FRENCH FRONTIER.

FROM PARTS OF WESTERN GERMANY, HOWEVER, CAME REPORTS FROM RELATIVES AND FRIENDS INDICATING LARGE SCALE WITHDRAWALS OF THE CIVILIAN POPULACE FROM SUCH CITIES AS SAARBRUECKEN, TRIER, AACHEN (AIX-LA-CHAPELLE), BOON AND KARLRUHE.

OFFICIALS ARE APPARENTLY PREVENTED FROM REVEALING TO INQUIRING FOREIGNERS JUST WHAT CITIES, TOWNS AND REGIONS ARE BEING CLEARED, B THERE IS NO BAN ON MENTIONG SUCH PLACES AS ONE CAN ESTABLISH FOR ONESELF.

OFFICIALS ALSO SAY FRANKLY THAT OF COURSE GERMANY DOES NOT PROPOSE TO HAVE HER MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN MOWED DOWN BY ENEMY CANNON IN CASE MAJOR OPERATIONS BEGIN IN THE WEST.

IT IS KNOWN, FOR INSTANCE, THAT LARGE AREAS OF THE SAAR VALLEY HAVE BEEN CLEARED OF CIVILIANS AND THE INHABITANTS TAKEN TO THE REGION AROUND BAD HOMBURG.

IT IS FURTHER KNOWN THAT THE INHABITANTS OF THE EVACUATED REGIONS RECEIVED ORDERS TO LEAVE THEIR HOMES UNLOCKED. THEY HAVE BEEN ASSURED THAT SOLDIER GUARDS WILL SEE THAT NOTHING HAPPENS TO THEIR HOMES UNLESS, OF COURSE, ENEMY SHOTS DESTROY THEM.

A18

THE SPIRIT OF VICTORY WHICH SWEPT THROUGH BERLIN TONIGHT WAS THE MOST BUOYANT FEELING EVIDENCED HERE SINCE REICHSFUEHRER HITLER ON SEPTEMBER 1 GAVE HIS ORDER: "MEET FORCE WITH FORCE!"

THE BUOYANCY WAS BASED ON THREE DEVELOPMENTS WHICH GERMANS INSISTED HAD BEEN ESTABLISHED:

SEP 8 1939

1. THE EFFICIENCY OF THE GERMAN WAR MACHINE IN ITS RELENTLESS DRIVE INTO THE VERY HEART OF POLAND;

2. THE REPORTED ARRIVAL OF THE LINER BREMEN IN SOME PORT WHERE IT IS BEYOND THE REACH OF BELLIGERENTS (STILL NOT BORNE OUT BY REPORTS FROM ANY PLACE BUT BERLIN);

3. BERLIN'S INSISTANCE THAT THERE HAD BEEN NO ACTUAL ACTS OF WAR ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

NO ONE IN AUTHORITY WILL COMMIT HIMSELF REGARDING THE WHEREABOUTS OF THE BREMEN EXCEPT TO SAY WITH A PROUD GLINT IN THE EYE: "SHE'S SAFE. SHE'S BEYOND THE REACH OF CAPTORS."

1939

30.24-3141

30.24 3141

ONE HEARS RUMORS THAT SHE ENDED HER DASH FROM NEW YORK, WHICH SHE LEFT EIGHT DAYS AGO, IN SOME RUSSIAN PORT, AND THERE IS SPECULATION THAT IT PROBABLY WAS MURMANSK. (MURMANSK LIES AT THE HEAD OF AN ESTUARY OF BARENTS SEA, JUST EAST OF FINLAND. IN 1918, THE ALLIES HELD MURMANSK AGAINST THE BOLSHEVIKS.)

AN EXPLANATION OF HOW GERMANY'S RELENTLESS DRIVE IN POLAND APPARENTLY HAD BEEN FAR LESS DIFFICULT THAN EXPECTED WAS OFFERED IN A GERMAN ACCOUNT OF HOW A STRONG BOX, TAKEN IN THE CAPTURE OF THE POLISH SEVENTH DIVISION, YIELDED A FULL SET OF GENERAL STAFF PLANS FOR DEFENSE AGAINST GERMANY'S POWERFUL ARMY AND AIR FORCE.

THE COMMANDER OF THIS DIVISION WAS GENERAL GOSIOROWSKI, ONE OF THE OLDEST COLLABORATORS OF THE LATE MARSHAL JOZEF PILSUDSKI OF POLAND AND UNTIL 1936 CHIEF OF THE GENERAL STAFF. GOSIOROWSKI NOW IS CAPTIVE IN SOME UNREVEALED GERMAN MILITARY PRISON.

A GERMAN AUTHORITY SAID THAT, EVEN AFTER THE CAPTURE OF THE VALUABLE DEFENSE PLAN, THE POLES DID NOT CHANGE THEIR STRATEGY.

THE GERMAN FORCES THROUGHOUT THE WEEK HAVE BEEN PARTICULARLY SKILLFUL AT SEIZING POLISH INDUSTRIES, BOTH MILITARY AND CIVILIAN, THEREBY ATTEMPTING TO CUT OFF POLISH FIGHTING FORCES FROM NEEDED "POTENTIALS OF WAR."

SEP 8 1939

A19

PARALLEL WITH THESE SEIZURES WENT THE METHODICAL CUTTING OUT OF WHOLE DIVISIONS FROM ANY MEANS OF SUBSISTENCE, PRINCIPALLY THROUGH AVIATION DESTROYING SUPPLY LINES AND PERMITTING LAND FORCES TO ENCIRCLE MILITARY OBJECTIVES.

THE THREE AREAS IN WHICH THIS "PINCERS" OPERATION HAS BEEN CARRIED OUT ARE THE SOUTHWEST, WHERE KRAKOW WAS TAKEN; THE WESTERN PROVINCE OF POZNAN WHICH WAS CUT OFF FROM THE CENTER OF POLAND; AND THE NO

OF POZNAN, WHICH WAS CUT OFF FROM THE CENTER OF POLAND; AND THE NORTH-EAST, WHERE THE ATTACK ON WARSAW HAS ADVANCED RAPIDLY.

THE POLISH ARMY IN THE NORTHERN PART OF POMORZE (POLISH CIRRODIR) IS UNABLE, ACCORDING TO THE GERMAN VIEW, TO OBTAIN ANY SUPPLIES, EVEN FOOD, SINCE GYDNIA CANNOT FUNCTION AS A PORT AND BECAUSE THE GERMAN ARMY, WHICH ESTABLISHED DIRECT CONNECTIONS BETWEEN GERMANY PROPER AND EAST PRUSSIA BY WAY OF GRUDZIADZ, PREVENTS ANYTHING REACHING THESE TROOPS FROM THE SOUTH.

SEP 8 1939

BY LYNN HEINZERLING

RIGA, LATVIA, SEPT. 7-(AP)-ALTHOUGH THE FORMER FREE CITY OF DANZIG HAS BEEN REUNITED WITH THE GERMAN REICH SINCE LAST FRIDAY, ARTILLERY FIRE STILL WAS ECHOING THROUGH THE CITY'S STREETS WHEN I LEFT THERE.

OUTSIDE, ON THE EDGE OF DANZIG BAY, A DETERMINED GARRISON OF WHAT THE GERMANS ESTIMATED COULD BE NO MORE THAN 100 MEN CONTINUED TO HOLD THE POLISH MUNITIONS DEPOT OF WESTERPLATTE LATE TUESDAY.

THOUGH MACHINE-GUNS AND SMALL ARMS ARE BELIEVED TO BE THEIR ONLY ARMAMENT, THEY HAVE HELD OUT AMID THE WRECKAGE OF THE DEPOT AGAINST BOMBARDMENT FROM THE AIR, SHELL FIRE FROM THE CRUISER SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN WHICH OPENED THE WAR'S HOSTILITIES AT 4:48 A.M. ON SEPT. 1, AND LANDING PARTIES SENT FROM THE CRUISER.

UNDER STRICT SUPERVISION BY THE GERMAN ARMY, GESTAPO (SECRET POLICE) AND CIVILIAN AUTHORITIES, COMPLETE CENSORSHIP AND RATIONING OF FOODSTUFFS AND OTHER NECESSITIES HAVE BEEN PUT INTO EFFECT; FREE TRAVEL IS PROHIBITED, WITH FOREIGNERS NEEDING THE GESTAPO'S SANCTION BEFORE BEING ABLE TO LEAVE, AND EXPORT AND IMPORT BUSINESS IS AT A STANDSTILL.

ALL THIS, COMBINED WITH THE POLISH STAND AT WESTERPLATTE, HAS TENDED TO TAKE THE EDGE OFF THE ENTHUSIASM WITH WHICH DANZIGERS HAILED ALBERT FORSTER'S ANNOUNCEMENT OF THEIR RETURN TO THE REICH LAST FRIDAY.

ALTHOUGH THE NEARBY SEASHORE RESORT OF ZOPPOT WAS BOMBARDED WITH THE LOSS OF A FEW LIVES, ACCORDING TO GERMAN REPORTS, DANZIG ITSELF HAD NOT BEEN UNDER FIRE.

STILL THE CITY SHOWED MANY SIGNS OF THE WAR. A PROLONGED BATTLE FOR THE POLISH POST OFFICE ON FRIDAY ENDED WITH THE ATTACKERS SETTING FIRE TO THE BUILDING. ABOUT 20 POLES WERE REPORTED TO HAVE LOST THEIR LIVES IN THE FIRE, WHILE SOME 40 WERE CAPTURED.

GERMAN TROOPS HAVE OCCUPIED ALL POLISH BANKS AND BUSINESS HOUSES. MANY POLISH PRISONERS HAVE BEEN MARCHED THROUGH THE STREETS. MARIAN CHODACKI, POLISH COMMISSIONER TO DANZIG, IS REPORTED HELD IN THE CITY UNDER PROTECTIVE ARREST.

THE GERMANS WERE FACED WITH A RE-MINING PROBLEM WHEN THEY WERE FORCED TO CLEAR THE HARBOR AREA FOR FEAR THE POLISH DEFENDERS WOULD BLOW UP THE WESTERPLATTE DEPOT.

FIRST LEAD NEUTRALITY SEP 8 1939

WASHINGTON,SEPT 7-(AP)-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT TODAY ENLARGED HIS CABINET "FOR THE DURATION OF THE EMERGENCY" TO INCLUDE THE ADMINISTRATORS OF LOANS, WORKS AND SECURITY.

1939

30.24-3149

30.24 3149

AT THE SAME TIME THE GOVERNMENT MOVED SWIFTLY TO CRUSH ACTIVITIES OF FOREIGN SPIES WITHIN THE NATION'S BORDERS, WHILE AN AUGMENTED NAVAL AND COAST GUARD FLEET STEAMED THE ATLANTIC SEABOARD TO PROTECT AMERICAN SHIPPING.

SEP 8 1939

ENLARGEMENT OF THE CABINET WAS ANNOUNCED IN CONNECTION WITH A CABINET MEETING CALLED FOR TODAY INSTEAD OF TOMORROW BECAUSE THE PRESIDENT HOPES TO LEAVE SOMETIME TOMORROW FOR HIS HYDE PARK, N.Y., HOME.

IN ADDITION TO THE REGULAR 10 CABINET MEMBERS, THOSE INVITED TO ATTEND THIS AFTERNOON'S SESSION WERE PAUL V.MCNUTT, SECURITY ADMINISTRATOR; JESSE H.JONES, LOAN ADMINISTRATOR, AND JOHN M. CARMODY, WORKS ADMINISTRATOR.

AT THE SAME TIME, STEPHEN EARLY, WHITE HOUSE PRESS SECRETARY, SAID THE PRESIDENT HAD "NO IMMEDIATE PLANS" FOR CALLING CONGRESS INTO SPECIAL SESSION TO REVISE THE NEUTRALITY ACT AND FOR THE PRESEN WOULD STUDY AND EXPLORE THE OPERATION OF THE ARMS EMBARGO AND DETERMINE THE EXTENT OF HIS PRESENT POWERS.

IN ANOTHER MOVE CONNECTED WITH THE WAR SITUATION IN EUROPE, SECRETARY MORGENTHAU COMPLETED HIS EMERGENCY ADVISORY COUNCIL WITH THE APPOINTMENT OF THREE ECONOMISTS.

THE THREE ARE PROF.JACOB VINER OF THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO, AND WALTER W.STEWART AND WINFIELD W.RIEFLER, BOTH OF THE INSTITUTE FOR ADVANCED STUDY AT PRINCETON, N.J.

REGARDING A SPECIAL CONGRESSIONAL SESSION, EARLY SAID:

"THE PRESIDENT IS NOT CONSIDERING A DATE FOR THE CALL OF CONGRESS. RESPECTING SUCH A CALL THERE ARE NO IMMEDIATE PLANS. I THINK THE PRESIDENT IS TAKING THE OPPORTUNITY OF THE PRESENT INTERIM TO MAKE STUDIES AND EXPLORATIONS AFTER THE NEUTRALITY ACT HAS GONE INTO EFFECT.

"MOST OF THESE STUDIES ARE WITH THE IDEA OF SEEING WHAT POWERS AND AUTHORITY HE HAS NOW; HE IS EXPLORING OLD ACTS OF CONGRESS AND OTHER POWERS TO SEE WHAT HE HAS TO OPERATE WITH WITHOUT CALLING CONGRESS BACK."

ASKED WHETHER THE PRESIDENT STILL FELT A SPECIAL SESSION WAS NECESSARY, EARLY SAID HE COULD NOT SAY AND WAS "NOT GOING INTO A FIELD OF PROPHECY."

EARLY ALSO ASSERTED THAT THE WHITE HOUSE WAS RECEIVING MANY "KICKBACKS" ON THE RISE IN FOOD PRICES AND ALL OF THESE WERE BEING SENT TO ATTORNEY GENERAL MURPHY AND SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE WALLACE.

WASHINGTON, SEPT. 7-(AP)-THE FACT THAT CANADA IS PREPARING TO HELP GREAT BRITAIN IN HER FIGHT AGAINST GERMANY RECALLS A PLEDGE PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT MADE LAST YEAR IN A SPEECH AT KINGSTON, ONTARIO.

HE SAID: "THE DOMINION OF CANADA IS PART OF THE SISTERHOOD OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE. I GIVE TO YOU ASSURANCE THAT THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES WILL NOT STAND IDLY BY IF DOMINATION OF CANADIAN SOIL IS THREATENED BY ANY OTHER EMPIRE."

1939

HOWEVER, THERE IS NO SIGN THAT CANADIAN SOIL WILL BE THUS THREATENED. FOR ONE THING, THE ATLANTIC OCEAN AND THE BRITISH FLEET STAND BETWEEN CANADA AND GERMANY.

THE PRESIDENT'S PLEDGE WASWIDELY INTERPRETED AT THE TIME AS AN EXTENSION OF THE MONROE DOCTRINE TO CANADA.

WHETHER IT WAS OR NOT, IT GAVE TO CANADA PRACTICALLY THE SAME PLEDGE THAT WAS GIVEN THE REPUBLICS OF THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE IN THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

WHEN THAT DOCTRINE WAS PROCLAIMED IN 1823 CANADA WAS NOT REGARDED AS BEING INCLUDED BECAUSE SHE WAS THEN MERELY A COLONY OF GREAT BRITAIN.

MILITARY EXPERTS HERE ARE CONVINCED THAT IF A FORMIDABLE FOREIGN FORCE ACTUALLY INVADED CANADA THE UNITED STATES WOULD MOVE IMMEDIATELY TO HER ASSISTANCE, ON THE GROUNDS OF SELF-PRESERVATION.

HOSTILE BASES OR AIRPORTS COULD NOT BE TOLERATED IN CANADA, THEY BELIEVE, BECAUSE OF POWER THEY WOULD GIVE THE FOREIGN NATION A CHANCE TO STRIKE AT THE UNITED STATES.

MILITARY INTERPRETIVE (WITH BUDGET) SEP 8 1939

WASHINGTON, SEPT. 7-(AP)-FRENCH CLAIMS THAT GERMANY'S WESTERN FRONT IS BEING DENTED, LED MILITARY MEN TO BELIEVE TODAY THAT FRANCE HAD SHIFTED TANKS AND HEAVY GUNS FROM THE ITALIAN BORDER TO INCREASE HER STRENGTH ON THE SAAR FRONTIER.

FRENCH ARMY STRENGTH WAS DIVIDED UNTIL ITALY RECENTLY GAVE CONVINCING EVIDENCE OF AN INTENTION TO REMAIN NEUTRAL, AT LEAST FOR THE PRESENT.

INFORMED OBSERVERS CONTINUED TO DOUBT THAT ANY FRENCH-BRITISH ATTACK ON GERMANY'S WEST WALL FORTIFICATIONS COULD DEVELOP SUFFICIENT POWER QUICKLY ENOUGH TO AID BELEAGUERED POLAND BY FORCING THE WITHDRAWAL OF NAZI TROOPS FROM THE EASTERN FRONT.

ONE SKEPTICAL AUTHORITY EXPRESSED BELIEF THAT "PROBABLY A MONTH" OF COSTLY ATTACKS WOULD BE REQUIRED TO ACCOMPLISH THIS PURPOSE. THE SPEED OF THE GERMAN DRIVE TO CAPTURE WARSAW AND COMPLETE THE PINCHING OFF OF MORE THAN A QUARTER OF WESTERN POLAND SUGGESTED TO SOME ANALYSTS HERE THAT EFFECTIVE PRESSURE IN THE WEST MUST BE FELT WITHIN A FEW DAYS IF IT IS TO BE OF MATERIAL HELP TO THE POLES.

THE IMMEDIATE PICTURE APPEARED TO BE LESS DESPERATE FOR THE POLISH ARMIES, HOWEVER, THAN

THE IMMEDIATE PICTURE APPEARED TO BE LESS DESPERATE FOR THE POLISH ARMIES, HOWEVER, THAN SUGGESTED BY BERLIN CLAIMS.

GERMAN ASSERTIONS THAT 150,000 POLISH TROOPS FACED THE PERIL OF BEING CUT OFF BY THE JAWS OF A GIGANTIC PINCERS MOVEMENT CONFLICTED WITH AUTHORITATIVE ESTIMATES THAT NOT MORE THAN A TENTH AS MANY WERE IMMEDIATELY THREATENED WITH CAPTURE OR DESTRUCTION.

MILITARY MAPS SHOWED THE POLES HAD TWO LINES OF RAILWAY FOR RETREAT INTO WARSAW AND BEYOND. IN THE EVENT OF THE CAPITAL'S

30.24 3151

FALL. ONE IS DOUBLE-TRACKED. BOTH LINES HOWEVER, HAVE BEEN BOMBED REPEATEDLY AND A FURTHER ADVANCE BY GERMAN FORCES PUSHING SOUTHWARD FROM EAST PRUSSIA AND NORTHWARD FROM KRAKOW MIGHT PUT ONE OR BOTH RAILWAYS UNDER ARTILLERY FIRE.

"THE CHANCES ARE IT WILL BE A LONG WAR" REMAINED THE GENERAL JUDGMENT OF QUALIFIED EXPERTS. THEY WERE INCLINED TO DISMISS AS "SHADOW-BOXING" THE CURRENT WESTERN FRONT MOVES, REGARDLESS OF THE OPINION HELD BY SOME THAT THE SIEGFRIED LINE CAN BE PENETRATED.

THE SAAR FRONTIER ON THE NORTHERN END OF THE LINE IS REGARDED BY SOME EXPERTS AS THE MOST VULNERABLE SINCE THE RHINE RIVER IS NOT A NATURAL BARRIER AS IN THE SOUTH.

BRITISH TROOPS REPORTED MOVING UP TOWARD THE WESTERN FRONT TODAY MAY INCLUDE SOME OF THE SMALL FORCES UNDERSTOOD TO HAVE BEEN SENT TO THE ITALIAN BORDER ON THE EVE OF THE OUTBREAK OF WAR. THE FRENCH PRESS PUBLISHED PHOTOGRAPHS, AT THE TIME, OF BRITISH SOLDIERS DISEMBARKING AT DIEPPE, BUT WITHOUT DISCLOSING THEIR DESTINATION.

THE QUOTAS AFFECTED HAMS, BACON AND SOME OTHER CURED PORK PRODUCTS.

WASHINGTON, SEPT. 7-(AP)-THE UNITED STATES WILL GO THROUGH WITH ITS AGREEMENT WITH GREAT BRITAIN FOR THE EXCHANGE OF 600,000 BALES OF COTTON FOR 175,000,000 POUNDS OF BRITISH RUBBER.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT ANNOUNCED TONIGHT THAT PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ISSUED YESTERDAY A PROCLAMATION OF THE AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES FOR THE EXCHANGE OF COTTON AND RUBBER SIGNED AT LONDON JUNE 23, 1939.

POINT NO. 4 OF THAT AGREEMENT PERMITS BRITAIN, BECAUSE OF THE ADVENT OF WAR TO MAKE IMMEDIATE USE OF THE COTTON, WHICH OTHERWISE WAS TO HAVE BEEN STORED UP AS A WAR RESERVE.

RK537PES

ARTICLE FOUR SAYS: "THE INTENTION OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT AND OF THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED KINGDOM BEING TO ACQUIRE RESERVES OF COTTON AND RUBBER, RESPECTIVELY, AGAINST THE CONTINGENCY OF A MAJOR WAR EMERGENCY, RESERVES OF COTTON AND RUBBER, RESPECTIVELY, AGAINST THE CONTINGENCY OF A MAJOR WAR EMERGENCY, EACH GOVERNMENT UNDERTAKES NOT TO DISPOSE OF ITS STOCK EXCEPT IN THE EVENT OF SUCH AN EMERGENCY."

THE AMERICAN COTTON INVOLVED IN THE DEAL IS SURPLUS STOCK ON WHICH THE GOVERNMENT HAS ADVANCED LOANS TO THE PRODUCERS. IT IS TO BE DELIVERED AT NEW ORLEANS AND AT OTHER GULF AND ATLANTIC DEEP WATER PORTS TO BE AGREED UPON.

(THEN PICK UP THE 6TH PGH, BEGINNING "IN THE EAST THE POLES," AND FOLLOW IT WITH THE 12 PGH OF PREVIOUS, BEGINNING "IN SPITE OF THE HUMAN AND MATERIAL LOSSES."

(THE REMAINDER OF THE ORIGINAL STORY BEGINNING IN 13TH PGH, "THIS GOVERNMENT XXX" GIVING THE CHAMBERLAIN QUOTES MAY THEN BE PICKED UP IN THE SEQUENCE OF ITS TRANSMISSION, FOLLOWED IN REGULAR SEQUENCE BY THE ADD BELOW, (ABOUT 1500).

MOST OF THE SHIPS WHICH HAVE BEEN ATTACKED HITHERTO ARE VESSELS WHICH COMMENCED THEIR VOYAGES BEFORE WAR HAD BROKEN OUT AND NATURALLY FOR THEM THE FULL SCOPE OF OUR DEFENSIVE ORGANIZATION COULD NOT IMMEDIATELY BE PROVIDED.

WHILE A CERTAIN PERCENTAGE OF WEEKLY LOSSES MUST BE EXPECTED, AND I DO NOT MINIMIZE THE THREAT TO OUR SHIPPING, I THINK THE HOUSE AND THE COUNTRY MAY REST ASSURED THAT THE NAVY WITH ALL THEIR WARTIME EXPERIENCE OF HANDLING THIS PROBLEM AND WITH THE ADDED ADVANTAGE OF THE METHODS OF SUBMARINE DETECTION AND DESTRUCTION WHICH HAVE SINCE BEEN DEVELOPED WILL INCREASINGLY BRING THE PROBLEM UNDER CONTROL.

2AS

ALTHOUGH ON EACH OCCASION THE ENEMY DEFENSES WERE SET FULLY IN MOTION, NO CONTACT WAS SECURED BY ENEMY FIGHTERS AND ALL OUR AIRCRAFT RETURNED SAFELY.

THE ACTIVITY OF THE FIGHTER AND COASTAL COMMANDS IF LESS CONSPICUOUS HAS BEEN NO LESS INTENSE.

FROM THE EARLY STAGES OF THE EMERGENCY ALL SQUADRONS OF THE FIGHTER COMMAND HAVE BEEN AT WAR STATIONS AND IN A STATE OF INSTANT READINESS. THE COASTAL COMMANDS HAVE ALSO BEEN BUSILY ENGAGED IN EXTENSIVE RECONNAISSANCE OVER THE SURROUNDING SEAS IN ORDER TO LOCATE AND DESTROY ENEMY SUBMARINES.

I NOW WISH TO SAY SOMETHING OF THE ORGANIZATION OF THE HOME DEFENSE SERVICES WHICH IS BEING RAPIDLY COMPLETED. THE REGIONAL ORGANIZATION IS FUNCTIONING WELL. THERE IS STILL SOME SHORTAGE OF WHOLE-TIME PERSONNEL, BUT THIS IS CHIEFLY NOW TO BE FOUND IN COUNTRY DISTRICTS.

THE ENFORCEMENT OF THE BLACKOUT IS PROCEEDING SATISFACTORILY. WITH THE HELP OF THE AIR FORCE RECONNAISSANCE EVERY NIGHT IT HAS BEEN FOUND POSSIBLE TO DISCOVER LIGHT IRREGULARLY SHOWING AND ACTION IS AT ONCE TAKEN TO DEAL WITH THE OFFENDERS.

THE GOVERNMENT DECIDED LAST THURSDAY THAT THE PLANS FOR EVACUATION MAINLY IN RESPECT TO SCHOOL CHILDREN SHOULD BE PUT INTO OPERATION.

30.24-3153.

30.24 3153

EVACUATION STARTED ON FRIDAY MORNING. IN A NUMBER OF TOWNS IT WAS COMPLETED ON SATURDAY.

IN LONDON WHERE THE PROBLEM IS EXCEPTIONALLY LARGE IT WAS COMPLETED BY MONDAY. THE OPERATION HAS NOW BEEN SUBSTANTIALLY COMPLETED AND HAS COVERED NOT ONLY THOSE TOWNS FOR WHICH PLANS HAD BEEN WORKED OUT BEFOREHAND, BUT ALSO A NUMBER OF OTHER VULNERABLE AREAS. SO FAR, APPROXIMATELY 1,475,000 CHILDREN AND MOTHERS HAVE BEEN EVACUATED IN THE COUNTRY AS A WHOLE. THE ARRANGEMENTS FOR EVACUATION AND TRANSPORT WERE CARRIED OUT WITHOUT A HITCH AND THOSE RESPONSIBLE FOR RECEPTION IN RECEIVING AREAS HAVE DISPLAYED REMARKABLE ENTERPRISE, EFFICIENCY AND GOODWILL.

THE PROCESS OF ASSIMILATING THIS LARGE INCREASE OF POPULATION IN THE RECEIVING AREAS WILL TAKE TIME AND CALL FOR TOLERANCE AND MUTUAL UNDERSTANDING. SCHOOLS ARE TO BE REOPENED IN THE RECEIVING AREAS AS QUICKLY AS POSSIBLE AND BOTH PUBLIC AUTHORITIES AND VOLUNTARY EFFORT WILL BE BUSILY OCCUPIED WITH MEASURES FOR THE WELFARE OF THE CHILDREN AND FOR THE ASSISTANCE OF THE HOUSE-HOLDERS WHO ARE SO GENEROUSLY PROVIDING HOMES FOR THE MOTHERS AND CHILDREN.

OVER 200,000 HOSPITAL BEDS ARE READY TODAY FOR AIR RAID CASUALTIES; 56,500 OF THESE ARE IN THE LONDON REGION; 15,500 INSIDE THE COUNTY AND 41,000 OUTSIDE THE COUNTY.

B49

THE BEDS IN ANY REGION WOULD OF COURSE BE AVAILABLE TO MEET THE NEEDS OF ANY OTHER HARD PRESSED AREA.

OVER 11,000 TRAINED NURSES, 4,000 ASSISTANT NURSES AND OVER 50,000 AUXILIARY NURSES HAVE JOINED THE CIVIL NURSING RESERVE FOR SERVICES IN HOSPITALS AND FIRST AID POSTS. BUT MORE OF BOTH TRAINED NURSES AND AUXILIARIES ARE NEEDED, ESPECIALLY WOMEN WHO CAN GIVE WHOLE-TIME SERVICE IN ANY PART OF THE COUNTRY.

DOCTORS HAVE ACCEPTED ENROLLMENT IN THE EMERGENCY MEDICAL SERVICE AND ACCEPTANCES ARE BEING RECEIVED DAILY. THE AUXILIARY FIRE SERVICE WAS MOBILIZED QUICKLY AND ON THE WHOLE SMOOTHLY AND IN THE MAIN THE AVAILABLE FIRE FIGHTING UNITS ARE BEING KEPT PERMANENTLY MANNED AND READY FOR ACTION. IN LONDON, FOR INSTANCE, THERE ARE OVER 1,800 FIRE PUMPS READY FOR ACTION AS AGAINST ABOUT 125 IN PEACE TIME.

I HOPE THE STATEMENT I HAVE MADE WILL SHOW THE HOUSE AND THE COUNTRY THAT OUR WAR EFFORT IN ITS MANY ASPECTS IS RAPIDLY GAINING MOMENTUM. I KNOW THAT IT HAS BEHIND IT THE FULL WEIGHT OF ALL THE PEOPLE OF THIS COUNTRY WHO ARE UNITED IN THEIR CONVICTION THAT NO NATION EVER WENT TO WAR IN A HIGHER CAUSE.

WE ARE GREATLY HEARTENED BY THE KNOWLEDGE THAT IN THE STRUGGLE FOR THE DEFENSE OF LIBERTY AND FREE INSTITUTIONS AND THE PRESERVATION OF ALL THAT MAKES LIFE WORTH LIVING, WE CAN COUNT ON THE SUPPORT OF THE OVERSEAS MEMBERS OF THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH.

OF THEIR OWN FREE WILL AND UNDER NO FORM OF COMPULSION SAVE THE MORAL COMPELLING FORCE OF RIGHT AND JUSTICE THESE SELF GOVERNING NATIONS HAVE DECLARED THEIR INTENTION OF COOPERATING IN A CAUSE WHICH IS NO LESS PRECIOUS TO THEM THAN IT IS TO THE PEOPLE OF THE HOMELAND.

HONORABLE MEMBERS OF THE SENATE:

MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS:

SEP 8 1939

AS YOU ARE ONLY TOO WELL AWARE, ALL EFFORTS TO MAINTAIN THE PEACE OF EUROPE HAVE FAILED. THE UNITED KINGDOM, IN HONORING PLEDGES GIVEN AS A MEANS OF AVOIDING HOSTILITIES, HAS BECOME ENGAGED IN WAR WITH GERMANY. YOU HAVE BEEN SUMMONED AT THE EARLIEST MOMENT IN ORDER THAT THE GOVERNMENT MAY SEEK AUTHORITY FOR THE MEASURES NECESSARY FOR THE DEFENSE OF CANADA, AND FOR COOPERATION IN THE DETERMINED EFFORT WHICH IS BEING MADE TO RESIST FURTHER AGGRESSION, AND TO PREVENT THE APPEAL TO FORCE INSTEAD OF TO PACIFIC MEANS IN THE SETTLEMENT OF INTERNATIONAL DISPUTES. ALREADY THE MILITIA, THE NAVAL SERVICE AND THE AIR FORCE HAVE BEEN PLACED ON ACTIVE SERVICE, AND CERTAIN OTHER PROVISIONS HAVE BEEN MADE FOR THE DEFENSE OF OUR COASTS AND OUR INTERNAL SECURITY UNDER THE WAR MEASURES ACT AND OTHER EXISTING AUTHORITY. PROPOSALS FOR FURTHER EFFECTIVE ACTION BY CANADA WILL BE LAID BEFORE YOU WITHOUT DELAY.

MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS:

YOU WILL BE ASKED TO CONSIDER ESTIMATES TO PROVIDE FOR EXPENDITURE WHICH HAS BEEN OR MAY BE CAUSED BY THE STATE OF WAR WHICH NOW EXISTS.

HONORABLE MEMBERS OF THE SENATE:

MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE OF COMMONS:

I NEED NOT SPEAK OF THE EXTREME GRAVITY OF THIS HOUR. THERE CAN HAVE BEEN FEW, IF ANY, MORE CRITICAL IN THE HISTORY OF THE WORLD. THE PEOPLE OF CANADA ARE FACING THE CRISIS WITH THE SAME FORTITUDE THAT TODAY SUPPORTS THE PEOPLES OF THE UNITED KINGDOM AND OTHER OF THE NATIONS OF THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH. SAN FRANCISCO, SEPT.7-(AP)-DIRECTORS OF THE EXCLUSIVE OLYMPIC CLUB DECIDED TONIGHT NOT TO ACCEPT THE RESIGNATION OF NAZI CONSUL GENERAL FRITZ WIEDEMANN.

WIEDEMANN RESIGNED YESTERDAY AFTER RECEIVING AN ALLEGEDLY FAKE TELEGRAM SUGGESTING HIS WITHDRAWAL.

FRANK J.FORAN, SECRETARY OF THE CLUB AND A MEMBER OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS, SAID A LETTER NOTIFYING CAPTAIN WIEDEMANN OF THE DIRECTORS' ACTION WAS BEING SENT TO THE CONSULATE TONIGHT.

THE FORMER PERSONAL ADJUTANT OF ADOLF HITLER DECLARED TODAY HE WOULD NOT WITHDRAW HIS RESIGNATION FROM THE CLUB, BUT INDICATED HE MIGHT CHANGE HIS MIND AFTER THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS ACTED.

THE CONSUL GENERAL SAID HE HAD NO REASON TO BELIEVE ANYONE DID NOT WANT HIM IN THE CLUB, EVERYONE TREATED HIM WITH CONSIDERATION, AND HE HAD NO DESIRE TO RESIGN UNTIL HE RECEIVED THE TELEGRAM.

FORAN, WHOSE NAME WAS APPENDED AS THE SENDER OF THE MESSAGE, EMPHATICALLY DECLARED THE TELEGRAM A FORGERY.

SEP 8 1939

NEW YORK, SEPT 7-(AP)-A MAJOR BATTLE FOR POSSESSION OF WARSAW DEVELOPED TODAY JUST NORTH OF THE GREAT CAPITAL AS A HIGHLY MECHANIZED AND POWERFUL GERMAN WAR MACHINE THRUST SOUTHWARD FROM EAST PRUSSIA AGAINST THE HARD-PRESSED DEFENDERS.

THIS LIKELY IS ONE OF THE DECISIVE ENGAGEMENTS OF THE GERMAN-POLISH CONFLICT.

THE LOSS OF THEIR CAPITAL NATURALLY WOULD REPRESENT A TRAGEDY TO THE POLES. BUT THIS WOULD BE MORE BECAUSE OF SENTIMENTAL REASONS AND THE EFFECT ON THE PUBLIC MORALE, THAN BECAUSE OF THE MILITARY ASPECT.

OF FAR GREATER IMPORTANCE IS THE SECURITY OF THE MAIN POLISH DEFENSES WHICH LIE ALONG THE VISTULA AND BUG RIVERS NEAR THEIR JUNCTURE ONLY FIFTEEN MILES NORTH OF WARSAW.

LOSS OF THESE TO THE ENEMY WOULD REPRESENT A GRAVE DEFEAT.

THIS WAS THE OUTSTANDING DEVELOPMENT ON THE EASTERN FRONT AS THE GERMANS CONTINUED TO CONVERGE ON WARSAW IN A SQUEEZING OPERATION EXTENDING OVER A VAST SEMICIRCLE WHICH CAPPED THE WESTERN THIRD OF POLAND.

ALONG THE WESTERN EUROPEAN FRONT THE GERMANS WERE REPORTED TO BE WITHDRAWING SLOWLY INTO THE MAIN FORTS OF THEIR POWERFUL SIEGFRIED LINE BEFORE THE ADVANCING FRENCH.

A FRENCH COMMUNIQUE REPORTED "MARKED ACTIVITY ON BOTH SIDES".

THE FRENCH TROOPS WERE SAID TO HAVE ADVANCED AS MUCH AS NINE AND A HALF MILES IN SOME SECTIONS ALONG THEIR NORTHERN WING, AND TO HAVE CAPTURED A SMALL FORTIFICATION IN THE SAAR REGION. THE GERMANS ARE RECORDED AS HAVING PULLED BACK TOWARD THEIR MAIN LINE.

HOWEVER, THIS MOVEMENT MERELY MEANS THAT THE FRENCH ARE FEELING THEIR WAY FORWARD CAUTIOUSLY WITH THE IDEA OF GETTING INTO POSITION FOR AN ATTACK. THE GERMANS ARE PURSUING THEIR POLICY OF REMAINING ON THE DEFENSIVE UNTIL THE POLISH ISSUE HAS BEEN SETTLED.

THE BRITISH ARE REPORTED AS HAVING LANDED THEIR FIRST CONTINGENT OF TROOPS IN FRANCE AND THESE ARE ON THEIR WAY TO SUPPORT THE FRENCH ON THE FIGHTING FRONT. ABOUT 100,000 SOLDIERS ARE SAID TO BE INVOLVED IN THIS INITIAL MOVEMENT.

(MORE)

ONE IS REMINDED THAT THE FIRST CONTINGENT OF BRITISH TROOPS TO ARRIVE IN FRANCE IN THE WORLD WAR ALSO TOTALED 100,000. KAISER WILHELM REFERRED TO THEM AS A "CONTEMPTIBLE LITTLE ARMY," AND THEY LATER CAME TO WEAR THE PROUD DESIGNATION OF "THE OLD CONTEMPTIBLES."

ANOTHER VITAL DEVELOPMENT OF THE DAY HAS BEEN THE OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT OF JAPAN THAT SHE "DOES NOT INTEND TO BE INVOLVED" IN EUROPE'S WAR. THIS WILL BE A RELIEF TO THE ANGLO-FRENCH ALLIES WHO HAVE BEEN CONCERNED OVER THE POSSIBILITY THAT JAPAN MIGHT THROW HER WEIGHT TO GERMANY.

IT IS GENERALLY UNDERSTOOD THROUGHOUT EUROPE THAT HERR HITLER IS PREPARED TO ENTER A PEACE CONFERENCE AS SOON AS HE HAS FINISHED THE CONQUEST OF POLAND. HE DEFINITELY DOESN'T WANT WAR WITH ENGLAND AND FRANCE.

THE IDEA THAT PEACE MIGHT COME UNDER SUCH CONDITIONS IS A FOLORN HOPE IF WORDS STILL HAVE ANY MEANING. THE ANGLO-FRENCH BROTHERHOOD HAS PLEDGED ITSELF UP TO THE HILT TO DEFEND POLAND, AND IF THAT PLEDGE IS FULFILLED IT MEANS WAR UNTIL POLAND IS AGAIN FREE.

WHAT IS PERHAPS MORE TO THE POINT, BRITAIN HAS SWORN TO DESTROY NAZIISN, QUITE APART FROM THE POLISH ISSUE.

-WIDSAED

1939

A140

NEW YORK--SECOND ADD DEWITT MACKENZIE COMMENT X X X FROM THE POLISH ISSUE.

THE ZONE OVER WHICH THE BATTLE OF WARSAW IS BEING FOUGHT IS OF SUCH STRATEGIC IMPORTANCE THAT IT HAS BEEN A COCK-PIT FOR CENTURIES. DURING THE EARLY PART OF THE WORLD WAR THERE WERE MANY FIERCE ENGAGEMENTS BETWEEN THE RUSSIANS AND GERMANS ALONG THE FRONT OF THE BUG AND VISTULA RIVERS. IN THIS AREA, TOO, MARSHAL PILSUDSKI STAGED HIS GREAT COUNTER-OFFENSIVE AGAINST THE BOLSHEVISTS IN 1920 AND PAVED THE WAY FOR POLISH INDEPENDENCE.

IN FACT THE WHOLE LINE OF THE VISTULA RIVER, FROM THE PORT OF DANZIG DOWN THROUGH WARSAW AND ON SOUTHWARD THROUGH KRAKOW TO THE POLISH BORDER, IS THE STRATEGIC LIFE-LINE OF POLAND. THE VISTULA IS THE MAIN OBJECTIVE OF THE GERMANS. ONCE THAT IS TAKEN THE BACK OF THE DEFENSE IS BROKEN.

THE POLES SUFFERED A HEAVY LOSS WHEN THE GERMANS CAPTURED THE CITY OF KRAKOW IN THE SOUTHWESTERN CORNER OF THE COUNTRY. THIS ANCIENT CAPITAL OF THE KINGDOM OF POLAND, AND RESIDENCE OF THE POLISH KINGS, IS ONE OF THE TEN MILITARY DISTRICTS OF POLAND AND HAS EXTENSIVE FORTIFICATIONS. THE VISTULA IS NAVIGABLE UP TO THIS POINT.

KRAKOW ALWAYS HAS BEEN HELD TO BE ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT POINTS IN ALL EASTERN EUROPE STRATEGICALLY AND ARMIES HAVE BATTLED FOR ITS POSSESSION THROUGH A THOUSAND YEARS. THERE WAS HEAVY FIGHTING HERE IN THE WORLD WAR.

THE OFFICIAL GERMAN NEWS AGENCY SAYS THAT THE OCCUPATION OF SILESIA IN SOUTHWESTERN POLAND HAS DESTROYED THE BASIS OF POLAND'S WAR INDUSTRY. GERMANY NOW CLAIMS TO CONTROL ALL POLAND'S HEAVY INDUSTRY, ZINC AND LEAD PRODUCTION AND 95 PERCENT OF HER COAL.

CERTAINLY THE LOSS OF SILESIA IS A TERRIFIC BLOW TO POLAND.

BUDAPPEST, Sept. 8.—The Polish radio at Lwow (Lemberg) announced at 8:55 p. m. tonight (5:55 p. m. New York time) that German troops were in the capital's residential suburbs within the city's limits. The Lwow announcer called upon the citizens of Warsaw "to defend the Fatherland by dying on the spot."

He said the capital was being defended by troops in hastily dug trenches, and described barricades being erected in every street. He said streetcars had been overturned to provide obstacles to the German armored car divisions, which had been reported making swift progress during the day.

The announcer called upon the populace to build barricades in every town and village in the path of the German advance. He continually appealed to the nation's patriotism in urging civilians—"all men, women and children"—to "take up arms against the invader." He recalled "the past glories of our immortal Poland."

Admission that the Germans were inside the capital followed by only forty minutes a denial of a Berlin announcement that German advance motorized units had entered the city at 5:15 p. m.

POLISH SAID TO BE FLEEING FROM WARSAW

Broadcast Tells Of Retreat In Face Of "Terrific" Push

Reports Nazi Planes Are Raining Bombs On Center Of City

[By the Associated Press]

Budapest, Sept. 8—A radio station identified by the announcer as Warsaw's stated shortly after 11 o'clock tonight that Polish land forces were retreating from Warsaw after German units had penetrated into the capital.

The announcer said German airplanes were steadily bombing the center of the city. He said bombs were raining on theaters, squares and in Warsaw's main streets.

At 10.55 P. M. the Polish station at Lwow had announced the Germans, whose motorized units had made swift progress from the north during the day, had entered the residential suburbs of Warsaw, within the city limits.

German Push "Terrific"

The station identified as Warsaw's said:

"The push of the German Army has been so terrific that Polish land forces have been obliged to yield in the direction of Kielce (fifty miles northeast of Krakow), Piotrkow and Tarnoff, where they will take up new positions."

Earlier the Lwow radio had called upon all men, women and children to defend the capital inch by inch. The announcer there had stated huge barricades, including overturned street cars, had been built to obstruct the swift German motorized units.

Bridges Bombed

The stations identifying itself as Warsaw, asserted that German planes were dumping loads of bombs upon the Vistula river bridges in Warsaw.

"We will continue broadcasting day and night until the hostile forces prevent us from doing so," the announcer said.

At 11.40 P. M. the announcer, speaking in English, said "the Germans are bombing purely non-military objectives in the central and most densely populated sector of the town."

The English speaker said:

"Due to constant heavy air raids on the bridges, the inhabitants had moved to the center of Warsaw, where now there is severe bombing.

Barricades Erected

"The entire populace, with the full support of radio warnings, now is preparing a defense in the strets, erecting barricades of all sorts and digging deep trenches in the hope of catching enemy tanks.

"Street cars are running, shops are open and there is no food shortage.

"Yesterday three German pilots parachuted down in outlying villages and were immediately delivered to the proper authorities. Yesterday there were tow heavy raids on the Vistula bridges and today two more extremely heavy and prolonged raids.

Refugees Stream In

"Crowds of refugees streaming in from the provinces were utterly destitute and in shocking condition. They were cared for in Warsaw."

The station interspersed its announcements with stirring military marches and songs.

"We will never give up Silesia," ran one chorus, and another said, "We will never give up Wilno."

The station broadcast an appeal to all workmen to report to dig trenches and erect barricades.

Appeal Made To Women

An appeal was made to all women between 18 and 35 to report immediately for Red Cross work. Girl Scouts were asked to present themselves at headquarters for duty.

All men not fit for military duty were ordered to report with spades and axes for digging trenches.

Admission that the Germans were inside the capital followed by only forty minutes an earlier denial of a Berlin announcement that German advance motorized units had entered the city at 5.15 P. M.

The Lwow speaker, after calmly relating the desperate plight of Warsaw, announced with equal aplomb that "Poland must annex East Prussia from Germany when our victory is assured."

He said:

"We will win because we must win. We must win because our will power and dynamic force cannot forsake us.

"We Must Win!"

"Whatever exists cannot perish. We must win because we fight for a just cause in Christ's name.

"We must win because through this war we can obtain East Prussia, which has been lost to us for centuries and which would mean security from the Germans for us.

"We must win because we are a young state and feel in our veins young blood. This young life looks forward to a great future for our nation."

Diplomatic dispatches received in Budapest said the Polish army was planning to retreat to the east bank of the Vistula at Warsaw, blasting bridges behind them.

BERLIN, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—The German High Command announced today that swift motorized units of the German Army had entered Warsaw at 5:15 P. M. (12:15 P. M., New York time).

Although the announcement did not assert the Polish capital had been "captured," the German people jumped to that conclusion and Berlin was wildly excited. Newspaper extras said: "Warsaw Falls."

Today's Communiques

German

Berlin, Sept. 8 (AP)—The Supreme Army Command today issued the following communique:

The attack of German troops in Southern Poland east of the Vistula river by way of Tarnow in the direction of the San river is progressing smoothly.

The enemy has been thrust back to the Vistula in heavy fighting in the Lysa Gora Mountains. The rail line, Konskie-Opocno, was crossed in the attack. The enemy was defeated north of Tomaszow and Rawa. Mozwiecka was captured. German troops thus stand thirty-eight miles west of Warsaw.

The Poles were thrown back at Lodz. The city was reached at the southeast yesterday afternoon. The Westerplatte surrendered after brave resistance about noon yesterday. After street fighting ceased at Pultusk German troops succeeded in crossing the Narew river. More troops coming from the north reached the river near Lomsa.

The highways on which the Poles are retreating are clogged and impassable. The flank attack by Polish cavalry against German troops advancing from Johannisburg in the direction of Lomsa was shattered in an air raid.

The Vistula crossings south of Warsaw were so effectively destroyed that the crossing of retreating Polish Army columns was held up everywhere and in many places rendered impossible. Fliers successfully attacked bridges in Warsaw. Warsaw is being hurriedly evacuated.

The occupation of Pomorze province, evacuated by retreating Poles, is progressing. Wongrowiz (Wagrowiec) and Obornik, north of Poznan, as well as Koschmin (Kozmin), southeast of Poznan, were occupied.

Poles' Capital Held Periled On 3 Sides

Posen Half-Circled, Troops Reach Lodz, Germany Declares

Berlin, Sept. 8 (AP)—The German army of the east announced today its most advanced outposts were within artillery range of Warsaw, while from western Germany came reports of a large scale exodus of civilians from areas facing France.

Officials apparently were barred from disclosing just what regions of the west were being cleared but there was no ban on mentioning such places as could be learned privately.

Word through relatives and friends of civilians in the west indicated that such cities as Saarbruecken, Trier, Aachen (Aix-la-Chapelle), Bonn and Karlsruhe were on the move.

ADMIT CIVILIANS FLEE

Although Great Britain and France declared war on Germany five days ago there still was no word in Berlin of any action on the French frontier. Officials said that of course Germany didn't propose to have non-combatants mowed down by shellfire in case major operations began in the west.

(Paris dispatches said the French army was fighting its way into German forest lands in preparation for a joint British-French offensive against the Siegfried Line.)

Dispatches from the eastern front indicated that the offensive against the Polish capital had taken the form of three separate thrusts from north, south and west, with the force from the north at the closest threat.

POSEN HALF ENCIRCLED

The thrust from the north was said yesterday to have carried the Germans within 20 miles of Warsaw but at that time this report was "probably already completely superseded."

This morning's communique offered but little new information on the drive against Warsaw from the north but said German troops had reached a point 38 miles west of the capital. (Rawa-Mazowieck, the most advanced point gained in these operations from the west, actually is southwest of Warsaw.)

Posen was half-encircled by occupation of territory to its north and south and the Poles were said to have been "thrown back" at Lodz, a major city 70 miles southwest of Warsaw. The communique said Lodz "was reached at the southeast yesterday afternoon."

In southern Poland, east of Cracow and the upper reaches of the Vistula River, the German attack by way of Tarnow toward the San River was reported "progressing smoothly."

HEAVY STREET FIGHTING

The Poles also were reported "thrust back to the Vistula in heavy fighting in the Lysa Gora Mountains."

The communique told of German pacification of Pultusk after street fighting and of a crossing of the Narew River at that point, about 28 miles from the northern fringe of Warsaw.

"The highways on which the Poles are retreating are clogged and impassable," the communique said. A flank attack by Polish cavalry on Germans advancing on Lomza, 75 miles northeast of Warsaw, was "shattered in an air raid."

Of other aerial operations, the communique said, "The Vistula crossings south of Warsaw were so effectively destroyed that the crossing of retreating Polish army columns was held up everywhere and in many places rendered impossible. "Fliers successfully attacked bridges in Warsaw. Warsaw is being hurriedly evacuated."

NO WORD FROM WARSAW

Much territory ahead of the three-pronged advance still lay in Polish hands but the German command was confident the line would be straightened out and that the fall of Warsaw was inevitable.

While the army announcement said Warsaw was within field gun range, there was no suggestion that the city would be subjected to artillery fire but that was a technical possibility, military leaders said.

(There had been no direct communication from the Associated Press or United Press correspondents at Warsaw since 7:10 a.m. Brooklyn time Wednesday. It was believed that the Warsaw radio station had been abandoned, with the station at Mlawa the only active transmitter still in Polish hands.)

It was believed that the Posen station also had been abandoned. The western province of Posen had been reported cut off from the center of Poland.

Aside from the campaign against Warsaw from the north the other principal German spearheads were in the southwest where Cracow was in German hands, and in the west where Posen has been cut off.

In the northeast, Polish forces isolated in the Corridor and at Gdynia were reported unable to obtain supplies, even food, since Gdynia could not function as a port; on the south they were flanked by German trans-Corridor communications, between Germany proper and East Prussia, by way of Graudziadz.

The government and Adolf Hitler, who is at the front, appeared completely satisfied with the achievements thus far and were particularly pleased with the showing of the air force.

GERMANS JUBILANT

"Mastery of the air in the east is yours," Field Marshal Herman Goering told his air force. "No enemy plane was able to touch the defense of German air space."

Vast numbers of prisoners have been taken. The high command reported yesterday that 25,000 were rounded up since the German operations started last Friday.

German officers praised the Polish cavalry, which opposed them in the Corridor. The accent is on cavalry throughout the Polish military organization.

The horsemen, heedless of danger, charged into the concentrated fire of German mechanized units, the officers said. German victory at a great cost to the Poles indicated to observers that cavalry definitely was no match for machine gun and fast artillery attacks.

Berlin Gets Glimpse Of First Wounded

Speeded to Hospitals In Trucks and Busses

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 8.—The first hospital trains seen in Berlin since the start of fighting arrived today at the Potsdam station.

Traffic was rerouted to clear the way for trucks and busses to speed the wounded to hospitals.

Some postal service trucks were converted into ambulances and equipped with stretchers.

[LONDON, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—The Polish embassy stated tonight that a German broadcast that Nazi troops were entering Warsaw was "completely false." At 8:35 P. M., the embassy said it was in contact with Warsaw, where a German air raid then was taking place.]

The reported entry came a week after the invasion of Poland began.

There was no indication from the communique whether there was fighting in Warsaw or how far the armored units had penetrated into the city.

Military informants, however, said heavy artillery was following the motorized troops closely to besiege Warsaw if necessary.

Nazi motorized divisions behind the fast-traveling armored cars were said to be within ten miles of the city.

[Both the Danish radio and a dispatch of the Hungarian official news agency in Warsaw reported German troops in Warsaw.]

German Army communiques earlier today placed three German armies, converging from the north, west and southwest, all within a day's motorized march of Warsaw. One—not specified—was reported then within artillery range of the city.

The northern German Army had been reported beyond Pultusk, about twenty-eight miles north of Warsaw and its vanguard was said to have crossed the Narew River.

1939

This, presumably, was the force reported to have entered Warsaw.

Mszczonow Captured.

The army advancing from the southwest earlier had been reported making rapid progress. It was said to have captured Mszczonow, about twenty-five miles from the capital.

The third column, from the west, was reported in the 8 A. M. (3 A. M., New York time) communique to be thirty-eight miles from Warsaw after taking the towns of Rawa and Mozwiecka.

[The Warsaw radio earlier today had broadcast that the Polish retreat so far was "for strategic reasons" and had appealed to Warsaw's inhabitants to help fortify the city to resist as did long-besieged Madrid in the Spanish civil war.]

Flee From Frontier.

From the western front, facing France, came reports of a large-scale exodus of civilians from areas close to the frontier.

An afternoon communique still reported German territory had not been invaded by Polish air forces, but acknowledged that two German planes were shot down over Polish soil and one was missing.

"In the North Sea and Baltic," the communique added, "the navy conducted a number of mine investigations. Units of a mine-sweeping flotilla shelled a Polish coastal battery which returned the fire without success. The fourth Polish submarine has been destroyed."

[Jane's "Fighting Ships," authoritative register of naval vessels, lists only five Polish submarines.]

Officials apparently were barred from disclosing just what regions of the west were being cleared, but there was no ban on mentioning such places as could be learned privately.

Word through relatives and friends of civilians in the west indicated that persons living in such cities as Saarbruecken, Trier, Aachen (Aix-La-Chapelle), Bonn and Karlsruhe were on the move.

Although Great Britain and France declared war on Germany five days ago there still was no word in Berlin of any action on the French frontier. Officials said that, of course, Germany didn't propose to have noncombatants mowed down by shellfire in case major operations began in the west.

In southern Poland, east of Krakow and the upper reaches of the Vistula River, the German attack by way of Tarnow toward the San River was reported "progressing smoothly."

The Poles also were reported "thrust back to the Vistula in heavy fighting in the Lysa Gora Mountains."

Report Roads Clogged.

The morning communique told of the pacification of Pultusk after street fighting and of a crossing of the Narew River at that point, about twenty-eight miles from the northern fringe of Warsaw.

"The highways on which the Poles are retreating are clogged and impassable," this communique said. A flank attack by Polish cavalry on Germans advancing on Lomsa, seventy-five miles northeast of Warsaw, was "shattered in an air raid," the Germans reported.

Of other aerial operations, the communique said, "the Vistula crossings south of Warsaw were so effectively destroyed that the crossing of retreating Polish Army columns were held up everywhere and in many places rendered impossible. "Flyers successfully attacked bridges in Warsaw. Warsaw is being hurriedly evacuated."

In the northeast, Polish forces isolated in the Corridor and at Gdynia were reported unable to obtain supplies, even food, since Gdynia could not function as a port; on the south they were flanked by German trans-Corridor communications, between Germany proper and East Prussia, by way of Grudziadz.

The horsemen, heedless of danger, charged into the concentrated fire of German mechanized units, the officers said. German victory at a great cost to the Poles indicated to observers that cavalry definitely was no match for machine gun and fast artillery attacks.

Officials continued to charge the Poles with atrocities. Foreign correspondents taken in army planes to Bydgoszcz were shown bodies identified as those of German nationals, including women and children, whom the Germans said were massacred just before German occupation of the Polish Corridor.

Call Villagers to Take Up Arms.

BUDAPEST, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—The Polish radio station at Lwow (Lemberg), at 7:55 P. M. (2:55 P. M. New York time) broadcast a declaration that "the populations of the villages must prepare to defend themselves against the invaders behind barricades."

"All men, women and children must take up arms against the invaders," the broadcast declared.

The impassioned appeal to citizens to defend their villages with their bare hands if necessary was broadcast after an air raid alarm for the residents of Warsaw went on the air at 7:50 P. M. (2:50 P. M., New York time). This was shortly after an official Hungarian news agency dispatch announced that a German armored car division entered Warsaw at 5:15 P. M.

The Warsaw radio station ceased to function late in the afternoon.

The Lwow broadcast admonished the population not to mistake their own retreating troops for the enemy and to aid Polish soldiers by showing them the way around the barricades. The population was urged not to flee, lest the roads be blocked and troop movements hindered.

The Warsaw radio, silent yesterday, today broadcast a statement that "the Polish army will yet start its offensive."

Earlier the Polish radio station at Lwow had called upon all men, women and children to defend the capital inch by inch. The announcer there had stated huge barricades, including overturned street cars, had been built to obstruct the swift German motorized units.

The Warsaw station asserted that German planes were dumping loads of bombs onto the Vistula River bridges in the capital.

"We will continue broadcasting day and night until the hostile forces prevent us from doing so," the announcer said.

The station broadcast an appeal to all workmen to report to dig trenches and erect barricades.

An appeal was made to all women between 18 and 35 to report immediately for Red Cross work. Girl Scouts were asked to present themselves at headquarters for duty.

Reports Bombing.

All men not fit for military duty were ordered to report with spades and axes for digging trenches.

At 11:40 P. M. the announcer, speaking in English, said "the Germans are bombing purely non-military objectives in the central and most densely populated sector of the town."

"Due to constant heavy air raids on the bridges, the inhabitants moved to the center of Warsaw, where now there is severe bombing.

"The entire populace, with the full support of radio warnings, now is preparing a defense in the streets, erecting barricades of all sorts and digging deep trenches in the hope of catching enemy tanks.

"Street cars are running, shops are open and there is no food shortage."

Army to Retreat.

Diplomatic dispatches received in Budapest said the Polish army was planning to retreat to the east banw of the Vistula at Warsaw, blasting bridges behind them.

Positions were said to be already prepared for a stubborn defense there, just south of the capital.

The Polish army was described as having made an orderly retreat.

The danger zone of the next few days was seen as being in the South, where the Germans are driving toward Lwow.

These dispatches said that if the Germans reached Lwow they then would turn the Polish position, making an east bank defense on the Vistula virtually impossible.

They reported that heavy troop reinforcements were being rushed southward by the Poles in an attempt to prevent such tactics.

Hospital Fired.

An official anouncement over the Lwow station said that German incendiary bombs had fallen on a Warsaw hospital, but that the fires were extinguished quickly.

German planes, the radio said, dropped troops into the city by parachute, but added, "they have not been found yet."

Diplomatic dispatches received in Budapest said the Polish Government, which only Tuesday fled from Warsaw to Lublin, about 90 miles to the southeast, now had gone on still further eastward as the German armies pushed still further into the country.

The one heartening bit of news for the Poles tonight was a report from Lublin hat Bromberg, the largest city in the Polish Corridor, had been recaptured from the Germans.

Appeal to Civilians.

Earlier the Lwow station had broadcast an impassioned appeal to Polish civilians to "defend their villages against the German hordes, with bare hands, if necessary."

"All men, women and children must take up arms against the invader," he broadcast declared, adding hat "the population of villages must be prepared to defend themselves against the invaders behind barricades."

A little later the Warsaw station broadcast an announcement that "the Polish army will yet start its offensive."

"The present retreat is for strategic purposes," the announcement declared. "The war will continue for a long time. The Poles will not capitulate. We will fight to the finish. The Polish air fleet is intact. The world will understand this before long."

Says 1,500 Captured.

The broadcast said about 1,500 Poles had been captured during the first week of the war and that "the number of killed and wounded is very small."

(The German High Command reported yesterday that 25,000 Polish prisoners had been taken.)

The defense appeal broadcast from Lwow today, urged citizens not to flee, lest the roads be blocked to troop movements. The population also was admonished not to mistake their own retreating troops for the enemy, and to aid Polish soldiers by showing them the way around barricades.

HAND-TO-HAND STREET BATTLE ON IN WARSAW

SEP 9 19

(By Associated Press)

Budapest, Sept. 8.—Desperate hand-to-hand fighting between German advance units and the defenders of Warsaw was raging in the Polish capital's suburbs tonight. A radio station identified by the announcer as Warsaw's stated shortly after 11 P. M. (6 P. M., New York time) that Polish troops were retreating into the city before the German advance.

Civilians in Warsaw were called upon to build barricades and fight the invaders to the last man. The announcer said German airplanes were raining bombs on theatres, squares and the main streets in the center of Warsaw.

Reich Expects Polish Capital To Fall Today

Fast Motor Unit Said to Have Fought Way Into City From Southwest

Munitions Center Captured in South

First Wounded Arrive in Berlin; Deaths Listed; Food Control Tightened

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Sept. 8 (A).—The German high command announced tonight that an advance guard of fast-traveling armored cars had smashed its way into Warsaw at 5:15 p. m. (12:15 p. m. New York time), while other motorized divisions had sped to within ten miles of the Polish capital.

[Radio broadcasts from Poland last night told contradictory stories, with one report heard in Budapest from Lwow (Lemberg) conceding that the Germans were within the Warsaw city limits, while another broadcast heard in Budapest from a pro-Polish station identifying itself as Warsaw denied the capital had fallen. Earlier last night the Polish Embassy in London described Berlin reports of German entry into Warsaw as "completely false."]

The announcement by D. N. B., official German news agency, did not say how far into the bombed city the armored cars had penetrated or what resistance was met, merely stating: "The high command of the army makes known that German armored troops entered Warsaw at 5:15 p. m. today." Warsaw, Poland's capital for 400 years and its largest city, with a normal population of 1,200,000, thus was reached on the eighth day of the German drive that started Sept. 1.

News Surprises Berlin

The German high command did not say Warsaw was captured, but word that German troops were in the city was a surprise. The taking of the Polish capital had not been expected before Sunday night. The feeling now is that unless the defense tightens suddenly motorized divisions may occupy the city tonight or tomorrow, then strike again to the east.

30.24 3161

The terse announcement over the radio was received jubilantly in the German capital. After the announcement a radio band played "Deutschland Ueber Alles." Meanwhile, despite French communiques concerning the western front, German officials denied emphatically tonight that any attacks had been made along the heavily fortified boundary between Germany and France.

"That fighting of any importance has taken place is completely impossible," authorized sources said. "There is no question of France's having taken any German territory. There may have been shots fired, but it would serve no good end for us to deny an action of any size if it were true. We can assure you there has been no military action. That a French offensive against the West Wall has been successful is just as true as reports spread over the world that Berlin has been bombed. You foreign correspondents are in a position to know personally that this latter is completely untrue."

Pushing On in Poland

In its reports on today's fighting in Poland, the high command said motorized divisions from the southwest had reached the town of Mszczonow, twenty-five miles from Warsaw, then pushed ahead. Later these troops were placed at Nadarzyn, twelve miles southwest of Warsaw, and reported forging rapidly ahead. It was indicated that it was the advance guard of this column which entered Warsaw. These troops have been driven like a dagger thrust toward the heart of Poland, leaving much unconquered territory to right and left. For instance, the important city of Lodz had not yet been taken, but troops were reported at the southeastern edge of the city at nightfall.

East Prussian divisions at Pultusk, on the Narew River, twenty miles north of Warsaw, apparently made no advance today. Meanwhile, reinforcements from East Prussia arrived at Lomza, farther up the river.

Heavy fighting was reported in the vicinity of Kielce, in the Lysa Gora Mountains, where troops advancing toward Lublin and the Polish industrial section have reported stiff resistance. Lublin is the temporary seat of Poland's government, which left Warsaw, ninety miles to the northwest, several days ago after repeated bombings. Some departments of the government were reported in Berlin to have moved again—this time farther southeast to Lemberg (Lwow).

[The United Press said that this southern German army, striking eastward from Kielce, was reported officially to have captured Sandomierz, center of Poland's munitions industries, which is only fifty-five miles southwest of Lublin. Another advance from Kielce was reported driving northeast against Radom. The southern army, the dispatch added, also reported the capture of Tarnow, fifty miles east of fallen Cracow, and an advance still farther east beyond Tarnow to the Wistoka River.]

Official reports said the Germans were converging from three sides on Posen (Poznan), a city of 275,000, farthest west of any Polish-held territory. The neighboring towns of Wongrowitz (Wagrowiec), twenty-eight miles northeast, and Oborni, eighteen miles north, were said to have fallen.

Wounded Reach Berlin

The first hospital trains seen in Berlin since the start of fighting arrived today at the Potsdamer station. Traffic was rerouted to clear the way for trucks and buses to speed the wounded to hospitals. Some postal service trucks were converted into ambulances and equipped with stretchers. Berlin newspapers published the first lists of soldier dead.

The German radio announced tonight that Air Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering would broadcast an address over all Nazi stations tomorrow to Germany's munitions workers. At the same time, the government decreed more stringent food regulations and measures against theft during "blackout" nights.

White and rye flour were rationed. Many other fundamental food supplies had been restricted already. Death was decreed for any one caught stealing during "black nights" or plundering in territories evacuated by the civil administration for military necessity, for arson on important buildings, and for hindering railways.

Three deaths were attributed to accidents caused by Berlin's blackouts. Many pedestrians have been using flashlights to trace their way along street curbs, but this was banned tonight on the grounds the flashlights blinded automobile drivers.

Reviewing industrial aspects of the campaign, the German press reported reopening of the Polish-Upper Silesian mines and rolling mills to help meet Germany's demand for war materials. The Kattowitz (Katowice) mines and Koenigshuette (Chorzow) furnaces and steel works were singled out as spots where production is to be stepped up.

Meanwhile, it was announced nothing more could be shipped to France or England "because of the political situation." Railways continue to accept mail and shipments to neutral countries.

Text of Communique

Today's communique issued by the supreme army command at 8 a. m. (3 a. m. New York time) before the announced entry into Warsaw follows:

"The attack of German troops in southern Poland east of the Weichsel (Vistula) River by way of Tarnow in the direction of the San River is progressing smoothly.

"The enemy has been thrust back to the Weichsel in heavy fighting in the Lysa Gora Mountains. The rail line from Konskie to Opocno was crossed in the attack. The enemy was defeated north of Tomaszow and Rawa and Mozwiecka were captured. German troops thus stand thirty-eight miles west of Warsaw.

"The highways on which the Poles are retreating are clogged and impassable. The flank attack by Polish cavalry against German troops advancing from Johannisburg in the direction of Lomsa was shattered in an air raid.

"The Weichsel crossings south of Warsaw were so effectively destroyed that the crossing of retreating Polish Army columns was held up everywhere and in many places rendered impossible. Flyers successfully attacked bridges in Warsaw. Warsaw is being hurriedly evacuated.

"The occupation of Pomorze Province, evacuated by retreating Poles, is progressing. Wongrowitz (Wagrowiec) and Obornik north of Posen (Poznan), as well as Koschmin (Kozmin), southeast of Posen, were occupied."

Early this afternoon the army command issued the following addition to its day's communique:

"The army group fighting its way to Warsaw in a rapid advance from the southwest came within twenty-five miles of the Polish capital, capturing the town of Mszczonow.

"Two German planes were shot down over Polish territory, one is missing. German territory also yesterday was not attacked.

"In the North Sea and Baltic, the Navy conducted a number of mine investigations. Units of a minesweeping flotilla shelled a Polish coastal battery, which returned the fire without success.

"The fourth Polish submarine has been destroyed."

German Advance Guard Reported Inside Warsaw

By MELVIN K. WHITELEATHER
Associated Press Correspondent

Berlin, Sept. 8—The German high command declared tonight an advance guard of fast-traveling armored cars had smashed its way into Warsaw at 5.15 P. M., while other motorized divisions had sped to within [illegible] miles of the Polish capital.

The announcement did not say how far into the bombed city the armored cars had penetrated or what resistance was met.

Special Broadcast Made

The entry of Warsaw was reported in a special announcement of D. N. B., the official German news agency, as follows:

"The high command of the army makes known: German armored troops entered Warsaw at 5.15 P. M. today."

Formal army communiques come daily at about noon, with D. N. B. making such additional announcements as the above.

The high command did not say the city was captured, but word that German troops were in Warsaw still was a surprise. The taking of the Polish capital had not been expected by most Germans before Sunday night.

May Push On To East

The feeling now is that unless the defense tightens suddenly, motorized divisions may occupy the city tonight or tomorrow, then strike again to the east.

The army, it was believed here, was keeping its offensive in high gear in the hope of taking Warsaw before a Franco-British drive against Germany's heavily fortified west wall could be started.

Mszcznomow Reached

Motorized divisions from the southwest, the high command said, reached the town of Mszcznomow, twenty-five miles from Warsaw, earlier in the day, then pushed ahead a few miles before dusk. These troops have been driven like a dagger thrust toward the heart of Poland, leaving much unconquered territory to right and left.

Lodz had not yet been taken but troops were reported at the southeastern edge of the city by nightfall.

East Prussian divisions at Pultus, on the Narew river, are about twenty miles from Warsaw. They reached that position yesterday and apparently made no advance today. Meanwhile, reinforcements from East Prussia arrived at Lomza, farther up the river.

Heavy fighting was reported in the vicinity of Kielce in the Lysa Gora mountains, where troops advancing toward Lublin and the Polish industrial section have reported meeting stiff resistance.

Lublin now is the temporary seat of Poland's Government, which left Warsaw, ninety miles to the northwest, several days ago after repeated bombings.

Some departments of the Government were reported in Berlin to have moved again—this time farther southeast to Lwow.

Germans Still Deny Battle

BERLIN, Sept. 8 (AP).—Despite French communiqués announcing fighting on the Western front, German officials denied emphatically tonight that any attacks had been made along the heavily fortified boundary between Germany and France.

"That fighting of any importance has taken place is completely impossible," authorized sources said. "There is no question of France's having taken any German territory. There may have been shots fired, but it should serve no good end for us to deny an action of any size if it were true. We can assure you there has been no military action. That a French offensive against the Westwall has been successful is just as true as reports spread over the world that Berlin has been bombed. You foreign correspondents are in a position to know personally that this latter is completely untrue."

8 Violations of Neutrality Laid to Britain by Reich

Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Brazil Listed as Victims

BERLIN, Sept. 8 (AP).—A campaign against the British (charges against France since the war started have been conspicuously lacking) continued today with the German official news agency publishing a list of eight cases in which it said Britain had violated the neutrality of five countries since September. Neutrals named were the Netherlands, Denmark, Norway, Brazil and Belgium.

The published cases follow:

1—Sept. 1, a military plane fell near Kyrkjeboe, Norway.

2—The nights of Sept. 3 and 4, British planes flew over Holland to drop leaflets on German soil.

3—The Danish town of Esbjerg was bombed Sept. 4.

4—Planes flew over Holland Sept. 4 to attack Wilhelmshaven.

5—Planes were sighted over the Netherlands Sept. 5 and Dutch anti-aircraft guns opened fire.

6—The British cruiser Ajax sank the German freighter Olinda in the Brazilian harbor of Rio Grande, no date given.

7—Planes flew over Antwerp on Sept. 6.

8—A British plane attacked the German freighter Franken in Netherlands waters near Padang, Sumatra, Dutch West Indies, Sept. 6.

A list of sixteen "war atrocity lies" also was published. It contained denials of reports that Germans had sunk the British liner Athenia, or bombed open towns and Red Cross trains.

Gestapo Believed Seizing Former Socialist Chiefs

Said To Be Arresting Unionists Also as a Precaution

BERLIN, Sept. 8 (AP).—Reliable sources disclosed today that the German Gestapo—secret police—was making numerous "protective" arrests of former Socialists andtrade union chiefs.

The arrests were taken to indicate that men and women who have expressed dissatisfaction with the Nazi government in the past must be segregated as a precaution against industrial or other economic sabotage or cleavage within the nation.

Most of those arrested were described as permanent Socialist party leaders and workers in Germany before Adolf Hitler's rise to power. Some had been held in concentration camps for a time after 1933.

Reliable sources said that increasing numbers were being arrested, but that it was impossible to estimate the total.

Gestapo Seizes Labor Heads to Balk Sabotage

German Workers' Leaders, Ex-Socialists Arrested; Czechs Also Rounded Up

BERLIN, Sept. 8 (AP).—Operating under drastic war-time measures, engendered by fear of sabotage, the German gestapo (secret police) was disclosed by reliable sources today to have made numerous "protective" arrests of former Socialists and trade union chiefs.

Most of those arrested were described as prominent leaders of the workers before Hitler's rise to power. Some had been held in concentration camps for a time after 1933.

Authorities apparently believe that men and women who have already expressed dissatisfaction with the Nazi regime in the past must be segregated from a people which is "united as one." This attitude seemed to spring from increasingly stringent steps being taken in Germany to guard against industrial or other economic sabotage, against cleavage within the nation and from efforts to get every one to co-operate in defense measures.

It was impossible to estimate the number of arrests. But it was learned, for example, that a former executive of the foreign department of the German Federation of Trade Unions had been arrested, while many former Socialist party Diet leaders also had been taken into custody. A woman once prominent in Socialist women's work was arrested at the office where she is now employed.

Coincidentally, it was reliably learned here that many leading citizens of the Czech protectorate had been arrested by the Gestapo. Since last week end, in almost every city in the protectorate, such arrests have been made. Some estimates said the number ran into thousands, but this was impossible to confirm.

The purpose of the action in Moravia was described in informed circles as a guaranty of the maintenance of order and security and to keep those arrested as hostages as a safeguard against eventual sabotage.

Passive resistance among the Czechs has been of some bother to some German authorities since last March when Nazis took over the former republic. And now that war has come, the Czechs were not expected to be moved by any great patriotic fervor in behalf of the German cause.

According to responsible sources Czechs of all classes, even among German circles, were being held. These sources said that one-third of the members of the board of the National Unity party, which is the protectorate's only legal political group, were under protective arrest. Others were rounded up from among Sokol groups, Czech Legion heads and leaders of workers and women Czech societies, journalists, former leading politicians and economic leaders.

In Prague the main drive continued two days. Most of those arrested were taken into custody on the street after they left their homes.

Reliable sources said that after a member of the National Unity party's board was arrested, a delegation intervened with State President Emil Hacha, who in turn presented a petition to the Reichs-Protector, Baron Konstantin von Neurath.

Berlin Rations Food, But Beer Is Plentiful

BERLIN, Sept. 8 (AP).—Residents of Berlin were reassured today they would get their beer in spite of rationed foods and delivery difficulties caused by shortage of trucks and men.

The government eased regulations on brewers, permitting them to sell to any retailer, regardless of whether he was a regular customer. Authorities said there was plenty of beer.

Busses Now Carry Apples

Berlin, Sept. 8 (AP).—War has transformed Berlin's double-decker busses into applecarts. The army commandeered so many trucks that facilities were lacking for transporting fruit, and the double-deckers were pressed into service.

Berlin, Saturday, Sept. 9—The first air-raid alarm since the beginning of the war sounded in Berlin at 3.38 A. M.

A second alarm was sounded at 4.20 A. M.

There were no immediate indications that enemy raiders had reached the vicinity of Berlin. Defense forces failed to turn on their searchlights.

Nevertheless, Berlin's 4,000,000 residents were roused in the dead of the night and herded into air defense shelters.

Air Wave War In Europe Veils Warsaw's Fate

German Voice Tells of Nazi Entry; Poles Retort Foes Stole Their Wave Length

By The Associated Press

BUDAPEST, Sept. 9 (Saturday).—A broadcaster speaking Polish with a German accent on the Warsaw station's wave length announced early today that the Polish capital was being entered and warned all residents that punishment would be meted out to Poles found with weapons when the city "finally falls."

Meantime, another announcer professing to speak from the Polish station, denied that the capital had fallen and stated "the Germans have taken our wave length." "Every one in Warsaw is at his post," the Polish station said.

From Lwow (Lemberg) came a Polish radio broadcast announcing that German troops were in Warsaw's residential suburbs within the city's limits and calling upon citizens of the capital "to defend the fatherland by dying on the spot."

The pro-Polish station identifying itself as Warsaw asserted that German planes were dumping loads of bombs onto Vistula River bridges in the Polish capital and also were bombing "purely non-military objectives in the central and most densely populated sector of the town." Speaking in English, the announcer said:

"We will continue broadcasting

day and night until the hostile forces prevent us from doing so. Due to constant heavy air raids on the bridges, the inhabitants had moved to the center of Warsaw, where now there is severe bombing.

"The entire populace, with the full support of radio warnings, now is preparing a defense in the streets, erecting barricades of all sorts and digging deep trenches in the hope of catching enemy tanks.

"Streetcars are running, shops are open and there is no food shortage.

"Yesterday three German pilots parachuted down in outlying villages and were immediately delivered to the proper authorities. Yesterday there were two raids on the Vistula bridges and today two more, extremely heavy and prolonged raids.

"Crowds of refugees streaming in from the provinces were utterly destitute and in shocking condition. They were cared for in Warsaw."

The station interspersed its announcements with stirring military marches and songs. "We will never give up Silesia," ran one chorus, and another said, "We will never give up Wilno."

The broadcast from the Polish radio station at Lwow, which was heard here at 8:55 p. m. last night (5:35 p. m. Friday, New York time), while conceding that German troops were in Warsaw's residential suburbs, said the capital was being defended by troops in hastily dug trenches, and described barricades being erected in every street. It said streetcars had been overturned to provide obstacles to German armored-car divisions.

This announcer called upon the populace to build barricades in every town and village in the path of the German advance. He continually appealed to the nation's patriotism in urging civilians—"all men, women and children"—to "take up arms against the invader." He recalled the "past glories of our immortal Poland."

Poland Reports Chief Corridor City Regained

Invading Army Driven Out of Bydgoszcz, Lublin Says; Warsaw's Radio Silenced

LUBLIN, Poland, Sept. 8 (1.20 p. m.—8:20 a. m. New York time), (by radio to Budapest) (AP).—The Polish government announced today that Bydgoszcz (Bromberg) largest town in Pomorze (the Polish Corridor), was regained from the Germans today by Polish troops. Bydgoszcz, sixty miles southwest of the East Prussian border town of Marienwerder, was captured by the Nazis Monday.

Refugees reaching here from the German-occupied town of Cracow said more than 1,000 civilians were killed in an air raid there.

Responsible sources said "several thousand" lives had been lost among civilians throughout Poland during the first week of the war.

150 Dead In Poznan

Florian Piskorski, of Chicago, reached Warsaw from Poznan with a report that 150 were killed and 500 were wounded when the Germans strafed that city September 1. He said sixty-five buildings were destroyed or damaged.

Piskorski declared several bombs struck the grounds of a maternity hospital, damaging the building but not injuring 400 mothers and 150 babies.

Piskorski also reported that when he passed through Gniezno Tuesday he learned fifteen persons were killed and many buildings were damaged.

Last U. S. Citizens In Warsaw See German Plane Shot Down

Dispatch Filed Wednesday Tells Of Nazi Aviators Landing By Parachute In Center Of City

The Warsaw radio broadcasting station was silent Thursday, renewed operations for a time yesterday, but ceased late in the afternoon.

[By the Associated Press]

Warsaw, Sept. 6—Americans saw one German plane shot down today in flames during Warsaw's most severe bombing since the start of the war.

An official announcement said six to twelve of the raiding planes which appeared over the city without warning about 12.30 P. M. were brought down by Polish anti-aircraft fire.

Three German airmen jumped with parachutes and landed in the heart of the city where they were seized by a crowd. Soldiers and police took them quickly to military headquarters.

Bridges Still Intact

A survey disclosed the city's bridges over the Vistula river were intact.

The major damage apparently was the partial destruction of an industrial building on the south bank of the river a short distance from the city.

It was impossible to check casualties.

Noon editions of Warsaw newspapers reported the Poles still were holding Gdynia, their sole harbor, on the Baltic near Danzig, against repeated German blasting attacks from land and sea.

Police went into the streets and conscripted ablebodied young Poles including Hotel Bristol, a lumber mill, a brewery and five apartment buildings when the Germans bombed that city Tuesday. He said it was estimated scores were hurt.

Mob Attacks Aviator

A wounded German aviator, who made his way into the city, was nearly mobbed on a downtown street before police rescued him and took him to military headquarters.

Another German parachute jumper who was captured by a crowd was manhandled, American eye-witnesses said, before police descued him.

A refugee train departed with a few Americans for Brzesc. Alec Small, of the Chicago Tribune; John Walker, of the New York Herald-Tribune, and Edmond Allen, of the United Press, left the city. Lloyd Lehrbas, of the Associated Press; Edward W. Beattie, Jr., of the United Press and Paul Scott Mower, of the Chicago Daily News, probably will leave tonight (Wednesday) with the American military attache, Maj William H. Colbern, and Landreth Harrison, the last remaining embassy secretary.

Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel Biddle and other Americans have arrived safely at the embassy's temporary location reported at Lublin, about ninety miles southeast of Warsaw.

NAZIS TO EXECUTE TRUANT WORKERS

Willful Absence Redefined as Sabotage.

SEP 9

BERLIN, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—Germany introduced even more stringent regulations today on the home front. The Reich definitely was making ready for the so-called totalitarian war in which all the people make up the fighting machine. The Government insisted that all stay-at-home Germans, including women, take their full share of the burden.

One step to consolidate the home front was a decree of the death penalty for sabotage and the definition of sabotage was modified to [illegible] great range of acts injurious to the State. It was announced officially that one man was executed yesterday for refusing to do work vital to the State.

An official explanation of the decree said that willful absence from usual work, without reason, could be regarded as sabotage. For example, it was said that a physician absenting himself from a hospital at the time of his regular duty there, if without reasonable cause, could be held guilty of sabotage.

The Government also indicated that it would invoke a new decree giving it authority to require any physically fit person to perform any labor regarded as essential. The seriousness of the Reich in the conduct of war also was illustrated by six-week prison sentences imposed on two citizens of the Rhine industrial region for failure adequately to darken their windows in blackouts.

Westerplatte Fell For Lack of Food

Germans Praise Defenders' Stand

SEP 9 1939

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 8.—Germans said today 100 Poles lost their lives in the siege of the Westerplatte Garrison in Danzig harbor and that the remaining 120 surrendered before an infantry and flame throwers' attack only because they had nothing left to eat.

The story of the gallant week-long stand of the Poles under heavy aerial and naval bombardments began to trickle into Berlin.

The Westerplatte, a well-fortified promontory, sticks out into Danzig harbor.

The first shot was fired at 4:45 a. m. last Friday from the German warship Schleswig Holstein.

Germans said even 28 centimeter shells from the Schleswig Holstein did no damage because the fortification's bunkers were so well built. Aerial bombs also failed to damage the fortifications materially, Germans said, because of the "unique" construction.

The Poles valiantly held their post until the Germans altered their strategy by burning off the heavy forest around the fortress and then, with all obstructions removed, advanced their infantry behind flame throwers.

Large Scale Exodus Taking Place in Towns Opposite French

BERLIN, Sept. 8 (AP).—From the western front comes reports of a large scale exodus of civilians from areas facing France.

Officials apparently were barred from disclosing what regions of the west were being cleared, but there was no ban on mentioning such places as could be learned privately.

Word through relatives and friends of civilians in the west indicated that such cities as Saarbrucken, Trier, Aachen (Aix-la-Chapelle), Bonn and Karlsruhe were on the move.

There still was no word in Berlin of any action on the French frontier.

NAZIS FLEE TO WESTWALL, BLAST BRIDGES TO STOP FOE

By TAYLOR HENRY.

(Associated Press Staff Correspondent)

SEP 9 1939

Paris, Sept. 8.—Nazi troops on the extreme northern sector of the Western Front were reported tonight to have been thrown back upon their Westwall fortifications. French forces, led by "rolling fortress" tanks, had penetrated seven to eight miles into the rich German industrial and mining fields of the Saar basin.

The northern flank of the French Army was believed from information reaching Paris to be striking in the direction of the city of Trier, in the Rhineland.

Tanks and armored cars were engaged in the drive toward Trier, supporting deployed infantry action. The French mechanized forces were meeting their first real test as they ran into areas which had been mined by the Germans to cover their retreat.

Give-and-Take Action.

The Nazi retreat was announced after give-and-take action between French and German troops in the No Man's Land at the tip of the western frontier, where the French Maginot Line and the German Westwall fan out to a distance of some 25 miles apart.

An advance eight miles within German territory would place French advance guards at the extreme northern end of the front, approximately half-way between the German frontier and the Westwall.

Earlier information received in Paris, apparently based on aerial scouting operations over the German lines, said German roads leading to Trier through the Eifel and Ahr Valleys were jammed with troop convoys and heavy artillery moving up to reinforce the front.

Trier (Treves in French) lies just in front of the Westwall.

The text of French General Staff

Communique No. 10, issued at 9:45 P. M. (4:45 P. M., New York time) follows:

"There is continuation of our local progress. At points where the enemy is retreating they are destroying bridges, railroads and tunnels and we are sending patrols through mine fields.

"Our aerial reconnaissance is active.

British Navy Co-operates.

"On the sea, our patrol forces are showing very great activity. Co-operation with British naval forces is closely assured with a view to defending sea communications."

All indications in Paris were that the main French attack and the deepest French advance on German soil so far had come on the extreme northern flank. It must be remembered, however, that Paris is far behind the lines and that the only official information is that contained in discreet General Staff communiques.

On the northern flank, the French advance through Germany is protected on its left wing by neutral Luxembourg.

Considering the original French front as a straight line running from Sierck, at the junction of the French-German-Luxembourg borders, to Bitche, 55 miles southwest, military observers picture the present situation thus:

With Bitche as a pivot, the line swings forward into Germany in the general direction of Trier.

The northern end of the line is about three or four miles—only the French and German staffs know exactly—inside German territory in the Saar Basin "no man's land," between the two strong fortification lines.

Southern End Near Bitche.

The southern end of this line, these sources believe, still rests at Bitche or, at the most, less than one mile in advance of Bitche.

To complete the picture of this sector, they say, the front line should be bulged out in a slight curve from the northern end to a point a few hundred yards within German territory in front of the French-fortified point of Forbach. From Forbach to Bitche the line runs almost straight.

From there on, the frontier becomes dormant in the rock-strewn, forest-covered hills between Bitche and Wissembourg, except for artillery fire.

At Wissembourg, the front again bulges out slightly into the German forest of Bienwald, where the French advance guard was reported cautiously fighting its way forward. The line bends back from there to Lauterbourg, where the front joins the Rhine.

This does not mean the French have a continuous line of trenches or field forces in advance of the Maginot Line. More likely, there are large gaps between advance units which have been reported warily cleaning out German machine-gun nests and blockhouses and taking up better positions.

Civilians Quit Saarbrucken.

Advices received here indicated French advance forces near Forbach had not yet reached Saarbrucken, only two miles within Germany.

These reports said Saarbrucken, an industrial city, was being abandoned by German civilians and that highways from there north to Coblenz and Cologne were closed to civilian traffic.

British warplanes have been active in this area, dropping leaflets telling the German people their leaders have betrayed them.

(British reports in London said 3,500,000 propaganda leaflets were dropped on northern Germany today).

Premier Daladier conferred with the Superior National Defense Council at the Elysee Palace, the residence of President Lebrun, and also saw United States Ambassador Bullitt at the War Ministry.

Rhine Spans Cut in Rear of Nazis

PARIS, Sept. 8 (AP).—The northern flank of the French army was reported tonight to have driven seven to eight miles within German territory.

GERMAN TROOPS RETREATING

They Are Destroying Railroads, Bridges and Tunnels Before the French Attack.

PARIS, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—The French Army announced officially tonight that it was moving into the rich German mining fields on the northern sector of the western front behind retreating Nazi troops.

French General Staff communique No. 10 declared the retreating Germans were destroying bridges, tunnels and rail lines.

After reporting a "continuation of local progress" of French troops, the communique declared France's activity was growing among her air and sea forces as well.

Ships patroling the sea, the communique said, showed "very great activity" in close co-operation with the British Navy to protect the allies' sea communications.

The northern flank of the French Army was reported in earlier advices tonight to have driven seven to eight miles within German territory.

This information, which was received in official circles without confirmation by the high command, bore out other reports of fighting on the western front which said the French advance at the end of the sixth day of fighting had averaged from three to four miles.

Tanks and armored cars were reported for the first time to have entered the conflict, supporting deployed infantry in a give-and-take action between French and German troops in the no man's land at the tip of the western frontier, where the French Maginot and the German Siegfried lines fan out to a distance of some twenty-five miles.

An advance eight miles within German territory would place French advance guards at the extreme northern end of the front approximately halfway between the German frontier and the Siegfried Line.

Spearheads Strengthened.

New "local advances," announced by the War Ministry's communique No. 9 this morning, were strengthening the spearheads driven into Germany's Saar basin.

Despite spirited German resistance and re-enforcement of German troops on the western front, the French appeared to be relieve Poland from [illegible] the east. There the Poles were expected to take a stand along the River Vistula to defend Warsaw.

The French Army engaged in fresh action during the early morning. The morning communique, usually issued between 10 A. M. and 11 A. M., was held up until nearly noon (7 A. M., New York time), while the Ministry awaited results.

The bulletin which finally appeared was the most encouraging to the French since operations started on Monday.

Although the new advances were reported to be "of vital importance," the General Staff broke away from its traditional reserve to say they were "improving noticeably the conditions of our advance at certain points."

The zero hour for a general offensive against the steel and concrete fortifications of the Siegfried Line appeared to be approaching.

The latest action was reported executed by an advance guard mopping up pockets and taking positions for an attack.

British Troops Moving Up.

The British expeditionary force and newly mobilized French troops continued moving into the lines.

A semi-official explanation of the morning communique said it meant a movement of "advance guards" to better positions.

Late in the morning Premier Daladier left the War Ministry, where he had been in conference, and went to the Elysee Palace, where the Superior National Defense Council has its headquarters.

French forces, fighting their way across the northeastern frontier into bordering German woods, prepared the way today for a joint British-French offensive against the Siegfried Line.

The French general staff said that their army's action had caused Germany to rush re-enforcements into the 100-mile long sector extending along the Siegfried Line from the Luxembourg border to the northeastern tip of France, near Lauterbourg, an ancient Roman fortress town, and now a key area in the French Maginot Line.

At the left wing of the French advance was the rich Saar basin, a German industrial region. At the right was the German palatinate area which, fringed by the Bienwald, is a hilly, forested district north of Lauterbourg.

The fighting, however, rolled along the whole length of the frontier down to Switzerland. Along the southern half, fronting on the Rhine, it was confined to heavy artillery shelling and small skirmishing parties sent ahead in an effort to wipe out advanced German machine gun nests.

German and French guns hurled shells from their concrete-hooded fortresses lining each side of the river. The civilian refugee stream grew under the force of the fighting.

Relieve Pressure on Poles

French sources did not reveal the extent of German resistance on the Western Front except to say there was marked activity and that the Germans were bringing field organizations into play. This was taken to mean mechanized forces and light artillery.

The French saw their action to aid Poland getting results when the Germans moved up reinforcements. With heavy fighting in the area around Lodz and the German menace to Warsaw growing, France and Britain must draw German attention from Poland.

However, Genevieve Tabouis, writing in L'Oeuvre, said the Poles were using only fifteen divisions against the Germans, with forty-five more waiting intact on prepared defense positions behind the Vistula River.

British soldiers and pilots crowded Paris streets. The troops were part of the detachments being moved east to join the French.

The British air force already is operating over the Siegfried Line area, seeking to aid French artillery onslaughts and hunting German airbases and underground hangars in the Black Forest.

The French gave the Tommies a great reception, both on the street and in the press. Newspapers emphasized the resurgence of "Tipperary," the British marching song of 1914.

British military leaders conferred with the French high command on the disposition of their forces.

Air Unit Volunteers

Col. Joseph D. Stehlin, who was a member of the Lafayette Escadrille, has cabled the office of Dr. Edmund L. Gros, chief of the medical staff of the American Hospital here, offering France the "Raoul Lufberry Escadrille." Dr. Gros was one of the organizers of the American volunteer airmen in the World War.

The American Legion in France has organized a unit of twenty stretcher bearers, twelve drivers and three ambulances. The War Ministry granted authority for it and Dr. James V. Sparks heads it. the French-German frontier elbows away from the Rhine, to the Saar frontier.

Pillboxes captured after sharp local battles were reported to have proved tenable for the French. Military observers said one of the principal weaknesses of hastily constructed sections of the Siegfried Line was the improper placement of such outlying, independent machine-gun nests.

French Captured Posts

Many of these were said to have fallen into French hands and then been turned into French advance posts against the Siegfried Line itself.

Hundreds of thousands of French troops moved under protection of their Maginot Line into positions ready to strike at points the high command decided were most vulnerable.

A heavy concentration of Germans in the Moselle Valley was reported by a French Army communique.

The Moselle Valley, between the principality of Luxembourg and the Saar, is one of the most heavily fortified regions on the border.

Movements Confined To Local Action

Military experts doubted the French would risk a head-on assault on that stronghold. French movements in the Saar region were confined for the time being to local action, according to reports reaching here.

It was believed by some observers that the Saarland coal fields might fall, at least partially, into French hands with but little resistance.

day in an attempt to blast an opening for gathering French forces.

Wissembourg is one hundred miles north of here.

Infantry action during the day was confined to what military observers called "blockhouse snatching," which consisted chiefly of sending small, well-armed forces backed by .75's and 105's against small isolated machine-gun nests.

Machine Gunners Flee

When the French fire became too hot German machine gunners simply scurried down deep-cut trenches to the steel doors of the larger forts behind.

Casualties of these minor attacks, however, were reported heavy on both sides, considering the small number of men engaged.

Apart from reports of such actions which reached Basel, the day appeared uneventful on the southern sector of the Western front.

Within sight of Basel, a 10-foot sign hung on the wall of a German fort facing French forts on the opposite side of the Rhine. The sign, written in French, proclaimed:

"To all French soldiers: We have been ordered not to fire on you if you do not attack. Germany has no reason to make war on France."

BASEL, Switzerland, Sept. 8 (AP).—Germans and Frenchmen today went swimming on their respective banks of the Rhine, in plain view of each other.

North of Huningue, near the Swiss border, the sector was so quiet that men on both sides doffed uniforms, kicked off their boots and dived overboard.

No one tried to swim the river, however.

THE WESTERN FRONT

[By the Associated Press]

Basel, Switzerland, Sept. 8—With heavy artillery thundering at main forts of Germany's Siegfried Line, military observers here believe the French High Command may launch a major offensive within the next few days.

Foreign observers previously had estimated it would be two weeks or more before such an attack. The speed with which the French had come to grips with German troops was believed by some to have hastened the hour for a major battle.

French troops, submitting to a trial by fire, drew toward the German forts, capturing and holding some machine-gun nests, capturing others only to withdraw under cannonading.

Advance Guards Out

Reports reaching Basel said advance guards were spread throughout the northern part of the front.

Big guns hammered Siegfried forts from Lauterbourg, where

England To Use All Efforts To Keep Supplies From Reaching Reich

Formal Rationing Of Food For Englishmen Will Start In Few Weeks

By MAX HARRELSON

[Associated Press Correspondent]

London, Sept. 8—The British Government announced tonight that its navy was taking "energetic measures" to halt what was described as Germany's "ruthless submarine warfare."

At the same time it was said that Great Britain would use her belligerent rights "to the full" to prevent war supplies from reaching Germany.

The announcement came shortly after Britain's Minister of Food, W. S. Morrison, declared formal rationing of food for the British public probably would begin in "three or four weeks." Assuring that food rationing would come "of course," Morrison said bacon and butter supplies might be the first to be affected.

"No Warnings," London Says

The communique issued tonight by the Ministry of Information on the naval activities said it was now evident "that German submarine commanders have been given orders to sink merchant ships on sight and without warning" and that this was "in direct contravention of the rules of submarine warfare."

"It is inevitable," the communique said, "that initial losses should occur when dealing with an enemy which was obviously planning a ruthless submarine warfare for some time before war broke out and where there are a number of submarines distributed over a very wide area of the sea.

"The effects of the German submarine campaign will, however, decline rapidly as soon as a full convoy system is introduced and the German submarines at present on the high seas run out of supplies."

Contraband Bases

Another communique said that contraband bases had been established at Kirkwall, Weymouth, the Downs, Gibraltar, and Haifa and urged all vessels bound for Germany to call voluntarily at one of these bases for examination.

"If they do so and it is established that they carry no contraband they may be given a pass to facilitate their onward journey," the communique said.

"Vessels which do not call voluntarily will be liable to be diverted to a base in cases where adequate search at sea is not practicable."

"A proclamation specifying the list of goods to be treated as contraband was issued on September 4 and in order to prevent contraband from reaching the enemy his Majesty's Government will use their belligerent rights to the full."

No "Blockade" Planned

The communique said that although the name "blockade" is often used as a convenient way of describing economic warfare based on belligerent rights at sea "no blockade of Germany in the formal sense of that term has been declared."

The Ministry of Information also gave an explanation of the Admiralty's announcement that "it will not always be desirable to publish news of the destruction of enemy submarines."

"This is partly because, as was discovered during the last war, the moral effect of crews disappearing without trace is greater than when news of the sinking is received by the enemy and partly because if the enemy knew that a submarine detailed to operate in a certain area had been sunk they would of course take steps to replace it.

"Similarly the methods used by German submarines in their attacks on merchant ships are not being disclosed. For example it is essential that the German Admiralty should not know that a submarine has expended all her torpedoes and is therefore leaving her station and returning home for more."

Coincident with Morrison's statement Great Britain's air force concentrated again on the Germany "man behind the lines," authorities announcing that bombers had dropped 3,500,000 more leaflets on northern Germany telling the Germans they had been led into a needless war by their rulers. This was the fourth such raid since war was declared Sunday.

13 Million Dropped

In the four flights more than 13,000,000 leaflets have been rained on Germany. The extent of this campaign, as well as the content of the notes, indicate clearly, observers said, that the British Government foresees the possibility of widespread disaffection—or possibly revolt—in Germany as an important factor in the war.

"You, the German people, can if you will insist upon peace at any time," the note today read. "We also desire peace and are prepared to conclude it with any peace-loving government in Germany."

Other moves in the propaganda campaign include a broadcast in German by Prime Minister Chamberlain and an appeal to German workers by the British Labor party. It was recalled that Chamberlain and others leaders have declared repeatedly that Britain has "no quarrel with the German people" but only with the Nazi regime.

While Government leaders also lost no time in enforcing a blockade on Germany and striking at her food sources, they prepared for the time when their own people must "tighten their belts."

In his statement on the expected rationing of bacon and butter, Morrison explained a great deal of Britain's supplies of these foods came from northern Europe and it was to be expected that some of the supplies might be interrupted in the early stages of the war.

"I do not think," Morrison said, "that the ships would be submarined coming across—the navy would look to that—but the supplying countries might have to economize themselves."

Chamberlain told the House of Commons yesterday that efforts were being pushed to provide convoys for British shipping and that he believed this would permit adequate transport.

Fishing Fleet Recalled

Morrison said there had been some trouble regarding fish supplies as a result of the recall of the fishing fleet by the Admiralty, but that he was confident this problem would be solved as soon as the new Food Ministry had time to get its organization running smoothly.

The Ministry of Information said difficulties had been experienced in certain districts in obtaining supplies of sugar, but that "this has been due solely to purchases far exceeding the normal amount."

"Steps have been taken," it was added, "to increase the output of the refineries in order to replenish traders' stocks."

The communique said an order would be issued shortly to move certain bulk stocks of food from vulnerable areas. Large quantities of meat, butter and tea were moved to provincial stores a few days ago, it was stated.

The Government's first price-fixing regulations issued by the Food Ministry today provided that prices in effect September 1 were to remain unchanged.

It was announced, meanwhile, that movies in comparatively safe areas would be permitted to reopen tomorrow for the first time since the war started.

British Bomb Kiel Fortress

Island of Sylt Battles Planes

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 8.—The thunder of guns and bombs last night and early today indicated an attack was being made on the German island of Sylt by airplanes.

[Sylt is just off the southwest extremity of Denmark.]

The island is the site of a German anti-aircraft defense fortification. It guards the North Sea coast of Germany and the northern flank of the Kiel Canal.

Aircraft was heard clearly on the nearby Danish island of Roemoe.

The first attack occurred at 10 p. m. Thursday (5 p. m., New York time.).

At 3 a. m today (10 p. m., Thursday, New York time) a flight of planes dropped leaflets on the Danish mainland.

This was followed an hour later by the sound of heavy firing by the sylt batteries. The explosions were interspersed with sounds suggesting exploding bombs.

All firing ceased at 4:30 a. m.

An observer on Roemoe said he had seen some attacking aircraft at 3:45 a. m. which he was unable to identify but which numbered from 10 to 15 planes. They came, he said, from a southwesterly direction.

The leaflets, urging Germans to "throw off the yoke of the Hitler regime," were scattered in a wide band straight across the Danish Peninsula about 60 miles north of the German border.

Copenhagen, Sept. 8—A concentrated bombing attack on the heavily fortified German island of Sylt near the western end of the Kiel Canal apparently was made today by what one observer described as ten to fifteen planes which came from the southwest.

Anti-aircraft guns boomed and explosions indicated bombs were being dropped. It had been preceded by another attack last night.

Planes Heard by Danes

The sound of the attacking planes' motors could be heard distinctly on the Danish island of Roem, near by.

The first attack occurred at 10 P. M. yesterday, and at 3 A. M. today a flight of airplanes dropped leaflets on the Danish mainland.

This was followed an hour later by the sound of heavy firing by the Sylt batteries. The explosions were interspersed with dull booms suggesting exploding bombs. All firing ceased at 4:30 A. M.

An observer on Roem said he had seen some attacking aircraft at 3:45 A. M. which he was unable to identify but which numbered from ten to fifteen planes. They came, he said, from a southwesterly direction.

Danes Bombed Again

But This Time Only With Leaflets Urging Germans To Oust Hitler

Copenhagen, Sept. 8 (AP)—Southern Jutland, which on Monday was the victim of an unintentional air bombing that killed two persons, injured a number and destroyed a three-story apartment house in Esbjerg, was startled again last night by the roar of planes.

This time, however, the planes only dropped leaflets urging Germans to "throw off the yoke of the Hitler regime." They csattered these in a wide band straight across the Danish peninsula about sixty miles north of the German border.

British planes early in the week, and again last night, made propaganda flights to drop similar leaflets over German territory.

Steamer Blown Up

Copenhagen, Sept. 8 (AP)—An unidentified steamer was blown up off the Danish island of Aeroe, south of Funen, this morning.

Observers said they believed that the ship was a German freighter and that all of the crew perished.

The region has been mined by the Germans, but shipping authorities expressed the opinion that a drifting mine was responsible, since the vessel was not in the charted mine fields.

Twenty-three More Rescued.

LISBON, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—The Italian steamer Castelbianco reported today that she had rescued twenty-three more members of the crew of the British freighter Manaar, which survivors said was torpedoed. The Portuguese destroyer Douga and military planes from Bomsucesso continued a search for one missing lifeboat. All but seventeen of the crew of eighty-eight have been accounted for.

[At Liverpool the owners of the Manaar said that only four remained missing after forty-six were rescued.]

The Manaar sank Wednesday night, 100 miles off the coast of Portugal. Survivors brought here yesterday said that a submarine opened fire on the crew took to small boats after the first torpedo struck.

Two of the crew were reported killed. Several were wounded.

Survivors were picked up by the Netherlands steamship Mars and the Portuguese steamship Carvalmo Araujo.

Planes Attack German Ship.

BERLIN, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—The Supreme High Command said today British planes attacked the German steamship Franken in neutral waters two days ago near the harbor of Padang, Sumatra, in the Netherlands East Indies.

The attack was described as unsuccessful.

The supreme command charged the flyers violated international law. It cited the Hague agreement of 1907 and other rules barring warlike activities in neutral waters.

[British planes are based at the great naval base of Singapore, 800 miles away.]

7 Germans Killed As Ship Hits Mine

Another Blown Up Off Danish Coast

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 8. — Seven members of the crew of the German steamer Helfried Bismarck were killed today when an explosion sank the ship south of Ore Sound, between the Island of Sjaelland and Sweden.

Survivors said they believed the vessel, which went down in a few minutes, had struck a mine.

Seven were rescued.

The vessel was loaded with saltpeter.

Earlier, an unidentified steamer was blown up off the Danish Island of Aeroe, south of Funen. Observers said they believed that the ship was a German freighter and that all of the crew perished.

(More than 100 miles separate the scenes of the two accidents. Both areas are on the eastern side of the Danish Peninsula).

35 Sailors Rescued.

ROTTERDAM, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—The Holland-America Line has received a radio message from the captain of the Netherlands steamer Bilderdijk that he had picked up thirty-five members of the crew of the torpedoed British ship Pukkastan. The message did not say whether any were missing.

The Bilderdijk left New York on August 26 for Rotterdam. The message indicated that the British sailors were picked up in the Atlantic near the entrance to the English Channel.

Own Mine Sinks Ship

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 8 (AP).—The Netherlands' mine sweeper Willem Van Ewyck was sunk today by a mine planted by its own navy off northern Netherlands which cost the lives of thirty navy men, the government announced tonight after an investigation.

The accident occurred while a new mine field was being laid a short distance off the West Frisian Islands, officials said. The Willem Van Ewyck was engaged in the operations with a number of mine layers when a strong tide drove the vessel upon a mine.

The mine hit the vessel amidships and blew her to pieces. Twenty-one of the crew of fifty-one were rescued but four were badly hurt. The commander, G. E. Ten Klooster, was lost. Most of the rescued sailors escaped only because they were working aboard a small boat near the ship. Three ships from the Helder naval base picked up the survivors.

The 500-ton vessel was launched in 1937 and was one of the Netherlands' sixteen sweepers.

The task of the Netherlands minesweepers is to find and destroy submerged explosives used in the World War and the present European conflict. Forty fishermen were killed by mines in the World War.

Dutch Minesweeper Sunk.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—Governmental officials announced that twenty-nine of fifty-one persons aboard a Netherlands minesweeper were killed today when an explosion sank the vessel off the West Frisian Islands, Northern Netherlands. The officials said that the minesweeper struck a mine in territorial waters and went down within a minute after the explosion.

Three naval craft from the Helder base started a thorough investigation after participating in rescue work. The officials did not indicate whether they established by whom the mine was laid or whether it had been placed, or had drifted into, these waters.

German Ship Strikes Rocks.

OSLO, Norway, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—The 8,000-ton German steamship Vegesack struck the rocks at Jaeren, on Norway's southernmost point, and was wrecked today. The crew of sixty-four was saved.

The ship was carrying a cargo of bananas for the American United Fruit Company from Colombia to Germany. When the war began its route was laid until it reached Lofoten, Norway. From there it followed Norwegian territorial waters with a Norwegian pilot on board.

DUTCH SHIPPERS CASH IN

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 8 (AP).—Netherlands shipping firms generally are increasing their freight rates 30 to 50 per cent on account of war risks. In unofficial trading before the Amsterdam exchange opened, Netherlands shipping shares advanced 10 points.

LISBON, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—Thomas Jones, 50 years old, chief engineer officer of the torpedoed British steamer Mannar, had been on two ships torpedoed during the world war. When asked how he liked the new experience, Jones only replied: "God save the King!"

Those Paying Fares in Dollars Favored on Italian Liner

GENOA, Italy, Sept. 8 (AP).—The Italian liner Rex sailed for New York today almost filled with Americans fleeing from the war zone. A few berths were reserved for passengers waiting at Naples. The Rex is scheduled to leave there at noon tomorrow.

Some Italians were aboard, among them Italian consuls general at San Francisco and Baltimore.

The liner Conte di Savoia is scheduled to leave in a few days. Other Italian ships were reported resuming their services to Latin America shortly.

Officials said many passengers were unable to find space in the Rex. Americans who paid their fares in dollars received the first choices in this sailing.

Cannes Also Reports New Reservations At Mediterranean Play Gardens

Nice, France, Sept. 8 (AP) By Radio—Despite the war, a number of residents and tourists are returning to this Mediterranean play garden. Hotels and pensions both at Nice and Cannes report new arrivals and reservations.

Some believe this is due to confidence in the allied armies. They also see a possibility that the hostilities will resolve eventually into an economic war of entrenched positions rather than destructive offensives as in the World War.

The bonds would be issued immediately and would be payable in three years.

BRITISH DROP MORE LEAFLETS OVER GERMANY

3,500,000 Extra Copies of Letter Are Scattered Without Hindrance.

MANY CLAIMS AND DENIALS

Battle of Propaganda Is Being Waged by Both Sides With Increasing Intensity.

LONDON, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—Europe's warring nations bombed each other today with words aimed at morale and the sympathies of neutral countries, while Britain and France slowly developed their offensive against Germany on the Western front. The propaganda battle grew like a rolling snowball with its core in the war of words which preceded actual combat.

Germany exploited steady advances in Poland and accused Polish civilians of the massacre of German nationals within Poland's borders. Poland charged Germany with indiscriminately bombing civilian populations.

Britain, continuing to play up the torpedoing of the passenger liner Athenia, scoffed at German hints that it was a British trick. On all sides there were claims of successes in land, sea and air operations—and denials.

More Leaflets Dropped.

The Ministry of Information announced that British Royal Air Force planes made a fourth reconnaissance flight over Germany early this morning and dropped three and a half million copies of a note to the German people. The announcement added that the leaflets were scattered over a part of northern Germany and that the planes returned safely. Meanwhile the fighting on the Western front proceeded in a manner markedly different from the swift, fierce engagements of the early world war days. Several factors figured in the comparatively slow development of the 1939 combat. Outstanding was the difference between today's tactical conditions and those prevailing in 1914.

Tactics Are Different.

In 1914, troops maneuvering in open country clashed and fought within a few hours after the expiration of Britain's ultimatum to Germany to get the troops out of neutral Belgium or go to war.

Today, great armies are moving into previous prepared lines, deep and heavily fortified. Such a process involves no clashes between small forces, but, instead, makes for extended artillery duels to soften defenses and clear the way for massed infantry and mechanized forces.

Another angle arises from the need for caution against flanking movements. A quick advance by a small detachment would leave it open to flank attack by the fast-moving motorized modern armies—movements which can cut off an advancing force and leave it open to capture or annihilation.

Time Also Ally.

A third important factor is the conviction of Britain and France that the element of time is in their favor. British strategists contend that Germany's internal economic strength is insufficient to withstand the demands of a long war; that many German arms are made of scrap metal which would not stand up under a long siege and that German strategy is built around the idea of a lightning war.

As a consequence, the British and French are going at their land campaign slowly and carefully with a view to creating a diversion from the German attack on Poland, where Germany is expending ammunition, manpower and equipment.

Meanwhile, Britain devoted her own principal offensive efforts toward sweeping the seas of German shipping to cut off German supplies. The air forces have been bombarding Germany with leaflets in line with Britain's attack on the German economic and political structure.

Censorship Criticized.

Advantages other than that of propaganda were seen in this move—a sally against German nerves through knowledge that hostile airplanes had been flying over their country with apparent ease. Britain hailed with delight today as favoring its long-term campaign plan the announcement that the United States neutrality would not interfere with the barter deal whereby the British trade 175,000,000 pounds of rubber for 600,000 bales of cotton for war supplies.

The influential Times took cognizance today of criticisms leveled at the new British Information Ministry and Censorship, blaming the Ministry's muddles and blunders on inexperience. It asserted, "our free people are entitled to know and can be trusted with all news bearing upon the fortunes of their arms, good or bad . . . moreover, we wage this war in the sight of all neutral nations; believing our cause just, we court their judgment and desire them to have the fullest material for forming it."

U. S. Trade Stand Hailed

London By Day

Masks Replace Those Umbrellas — Theaters Closed, Pubs Boom

London, Sept. 8 (AP)—This is London in the daytime.

The sun peeks around the orners of the blackout shields on the windows.

London is going to work with a lot of traffi noise, but that will not last long because gasoline rationing starts in eight days. Coupon books are out today. They are called "motor spirit ration books" and the limit is set tentatively at from four to ten gallons a month for the ordinary driver.

Paradoxically, the busses are only half full amidst the crush of private cars. Bicyclists pedal furiously, their cardboard gas mask boxes slung over their shoulders with twine slings.

Caspar In A Tin Hat

Even the English counterpart of Caspar MDilquetoast looks military with his gas mask and, like as not, a tin hat over his 50-shilling suit. He trots along the sidewalk with determination. The inevitable rolled umbrella has all but vanished and derby hats have stayed at home. Those apple-cheeked schoolboys in their blazers, the long-legged, black-stockinged schoolgirls in beaver hats and the fat babies in big black prams have gone long ago.

The newspapers are skinny, eight-page affairs and they are pretty much alike. Most of them are grumbling about the censorship and communications restrictions this mornnig. The editorials say that the British people and the American people and the other neutrals should be told everything except military secrets and that continued lack of phone contact with allied France is "frankly incredible."

Signs on the scarlet busses tell you "Goodness, How Sad!" That's the name of a play, but you can't go to it because no theater or movie is open. The editorial writers don't like that, either, and complain it is packing the pubs and making people gloomy.

The pub keepers like it all right, though. Lots of them are on the other side of the bars now in uniform and cheery about it. I saw a fat proprietor in the dark blue of the auxiliary fire service buy a drink from his blonde wife yesterday and explain "I'm a staff driver now; none of that mucky work for me."

Out on the street a platoon of anti-aircrafters jigs along. A cockney file-closer waves cheerily at a girl in a second-story window. Two kilted, tough-looking Scots defy the traffic lights on the broad Victoria Embankment.

The light blue evening sky looks like a star-spangled banner from the Thames side as London hurries home before the night falls, quick and black. The stars are the high, silver blimps of the balloon barrage aflame in the setting sun.

LONDON'S NEW LIFE

By J. C. Stark

London, Sept. 8 (AP)—The week-old war has yet to reach London, but its effects already have changed completely the life of the Associated Press staff and the millions of other inhabitants of this metropolis.

Families are scattered. Some wives and children of Associated Press men are in the United States, others on the Continent and still others among

Two Air-Raid Warnings

There has been no raid yet on London, but Wednesday morning persons scurried to shelter, as a result of a warning about the time many were setting out for work.

30.24-3167

30.24 3167

Several of us staying together in a house just outside London had our sleep interrupted by air-raid sirens for the first time early Monday morning.

We failed to hear the first warning, but were awakened by the all-clear signal. Uncertain which it was we hufriedly slipped out of bed, picked up our gas masks and started for the basement. Then we decided to call the office to see what was happening. We discovered all was clear, so we went back to bed.

Heard First One, Next Time

We heard the first warning Wednesday morning and again jumped from our beds. Again we threw our gas masks over our shoulders—but this time we decided to go out in the yard. The morning was so clear we could not resist the temptation to see what was happening.

Eventually the all-clear signal came but we were late to work.

We rarely venture out without a gas mask.

As dusk begins to fall, the day staff of the Associated Press begins to think about getting home before the blackout starts. To wait until complete darkness means creeping through streets.

Vacations End Abruptly

For several days before the outbreak of war members of the staff living some distance from the office were forced to spend the nights in rooms nearby, even while their families were packing to leave. My own family packed in one day and sailed for New York two weeks ago.

Some members of the staff were recalled from vacation. One of them left his family in the south of France. They are still there, with arrangements for sending them home complicated by slow communications.

Other members of the staff have closed their apartments to move farther from the city, or have gone to other countries to keep the news flowing.

News Jobs Now Different

Those remaining in London gather and send their news under difficulties. The Ministry of Information serves as the clearing house for all news. When or if dispatches are cleared is not known.

The war has made over the city completely, but its effects on the average individual are not so great in the day time as at night.

Restaurants operate as usual and menus are the same as before. Traffic is heavy, taxicabs scarcer and transportation by bus or subway more uncertain.

Real Change Comes At Night

But the real change comes at night. Many workers get in earlier so that they can get home earlier at night—in time to blackout their houses. Air-raid wardens keep a close watch to see that no light is showing.

One knocked at our door the other night and told me a little light was showing around the curtains. I told him I would fix it.

"What part of the States do you come from?" he asked, adding, "I would think you would go home."

Restaurants at night in London are almost deserted. There is no night life. Theaters are closed. There is little diversion except to go home and talk. There is little to talk about except when the bombings are going to start, what the military strategy is behind this or that move, or the apparent absence of a move. The radio offers music and repetitious official announcements.

People Settle Into Routine

The public generally takes the war calmly. One Englishman remarked that people have settled down to a war routine comparable to the situation a year or two after the World War began.

"It is because we were prepared for it," he said. "We have been through so many crises and have expected war so many times that when it came we took it almost as a matter of course."

To many it still seems incredible that Britain is at war.

The lowly pub, the Englishman's community center, is closing earlier than usual. Even when it's open, its dingy dampness and feeble lighting make it far from pleasant.

Great Nights For Lovers

Since even a flashlight on the streets at night brings a stern police warning, the crowds that used to stroll through Piccadilly Circus and Leicester Square now sit around a shaded light and yawn.

Driving at night in the dark is such a slow, nerve-racking business that taking a spin after work is unthinkable. Besides, gasoline soon will be rationed.

Unless your friends live nearby, you can't expect them to drop in, because transportation is curtailed. But lovers like the darkened busses.

Even in the daytime the city has lost many of its attractions. Shop windows are boarded up and most stores have earlier closing hours. A few have closed altogether.

Reticence Disappearing

The first days of war have been gloriously sunny and even the nights bring a moon and stars. But soon the day-and-night drizzle and the fogs will begin.

There have been some advantages. Normally reticent Englishmen have started talking to one another without formal introduction.

You can ask a stranger where he bought that gas mask container without being cut dead. Neighbors who had never bothered to speak before get chummy after running for the same air raid shelter. Men whose wives have left find loneliness stronger than traditions of reserve. One left a note on his front gate inviting other "war widowers" to drop in and share his home-cooked dinner.

Duke Reports for Duty as a Rear Admiral and Gowrie Will Remain at Canberra

LONDON, Sept. 8 (AP).—Buckingham Palace announced tonight that as the Duke of Kent has joined the navy, he and his wife, the former Princess Marina, will not go to Australia. The Duke had been expected to assume office as Governor General in October. When war came he took his post as Rear Admiral. Lord Gowrie will continue as Governor General.

The pre-war Australian budget, which will be raised later for additional defense measures, increased taxes to produce approximately $24,000,000 more income. Sales and customs taxes were increased. The proposed expenditure of $400,000,000 is the Commonwealth's highest budget in history.

Windsor, Summoned By King, Starts For England With Wife

British Warship Is Expected To Take Former Ruler And His Duchess Across Channel

[By the Associated Press]

Cannes, France, Sept. 8—The Duke of Windsor, ready to undertake an important wartime task for the empire which he ruled until he left as a voluntary exile three years ago, sped across France tonight on the way home with his American-born Duchess.

Responding to a summons from his brother and successor, King George VI, the former Edward VIII and his wife, the former Wallis Warfield, left Cannes at 5.45 P. M. for Paris. They were bound for an undisclosed English Channel port where, it was reported, a destroyer waited to rush them to London.

Preliminary steps for Edward's return to England were taken last Saturday, the day before England declared war.

Yesterday, a messenger from King George flew from London to Cannes and was closeted for some time with the Duke at his chateau on the French Riviera.

Windsor abdicated Great Britain's throne on December 10, 1936, for the "woman I love," and left London the next day for France, where his bride-to-be already had gone. They were married June 3, 1937.

The nature of the task awaiting the Duke was not disclosed. He has been reported anxious to get back home and help his country in its struggle with Germany. During the World War, Windsor, then Prince of Wales, saw service in the front lines.

THE WINDSORS

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 8—The British Press Association said today it had learned that "the Duke and Duchess of Windsor will not return to this country today" and that plans for their homecoming "are not yet complete."

When they do come it was generally expected they would go to Fort Belvedere, the former King's one-time residence outside London.

Dispatches from Cannes, France, had indicated that the Duke and Duchess probably would motor across France today to a Channel port. From there, it was believed, a British warship would bring them home.

Effect On Public Uncertain

What effect the return of the Duke and his American-born wife would have on the British public was not immediately clear.

A few Britons learned in their morning papers that their former King was to return. One newspaper quoted an American news broadcast as saying the couple was returning. But when the censor's department made its decision the news was too late for anything but the stop-press columns.

Castle Still Duke's Property

Fort Belvedere remained the Duke's property after his marriage to Wallis Warfield brought Britain to the brink of a crises and resulted in his abdication. Throughout Edward's three years of self-exile in France, the castle has been kept up by a large staff of his servants and is in condition to be occupied at least temporarily.

The Windsors' route from France, their landing point in England and their route from there to the castle were expected here to be kept secret, lest demonstrations interfere in any way with the conduct of the war.

Speculation Over His Duties

Some observers pointed out, however, that the Duke's return with the Duchess, which in peacetime would have been an event second in historical importance in this country only to the abdication itself, probably would be far overshadowed by the war.

Speculation over the Duke's future life in this country began immediately. Some believed he would take a public position, probably heading some form of national service work.

Duchess May Be Factor

Others believed he might resume a commission which he still holds in Britain's armed forces and enter active service for his country.

In still other quarters, however, it was thought he might wait to see what sort of reception is given the Duchess by British aristocracy before determining what he would do. But some observers pointed out that the emergency Britain is facing may have the effect of burying, for the present at least, any differences British society had with the Duchess.

Warship's Bombardment of Polish Garrison Guarding Munitions Depot Was Signal for Attack and Heroic Defense.

By LYNN HEINZERLING.

[Mr. Heinzerling, Associated Press staff writer, heard the first shots fired in the German-Polish conflict which started the European war. From Thursday night, August 31, just before the fighting broke out at Danzig, until last Sunday night, Heinzerling could not communicate with the outside world. He left Danzig on Tuesday. Here is his account of the strife in the once free city.]

RIGA, Latvia, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—In a Danzig hotel lobby, I heard a German officer who usually slept late leave a call for 3:15 o'clock the next morning—Friday, September 1. I realized then that it was coming.

It was 4:47 A. M. by my watch when the firing started. I couldn't place it as I ran down the hotel stairs several steps at a time.

Es Geht Los.

The night watchman said:

"Es geht los." (It's started.)

I ran toward the Vistula River. There I saw what it was—the German warship Schleswig-Holstein firing on the Polish munitions depot of Westerplatte.

[Adolf Hitler's order of the day instructing the German Army to "meet force with force" was timed at 5:30 A. M.]

All Windows Smashed.

Already the warship's white sides were blackened from the powder of the shells she was pouring onto the heavily wooded Westerplatte peninsula from eighteen-centimeter and twenty-eight-centimeter guns. Strangely, I found a taxi that took me to the former Customs House. From there I climbed a hill behind the lines.

Below, German soldiers were guarding all approaches to the water front and clearing the entire harbor district of thousands of civilians to clear the way for the air raids that were to come. Windows all through the district were smashed by the force of the explosions of the shells from the cruiser.

The Schleswig-Holstein was standing out in the harbor, not far of shore. Beyond the peninsula, in Danzig Bay, were other ships of the German fleet.

Machine Guns Rattle.

Between the two f[illegible] the little peninsula, completely surrounded by enemy territory and offering no chance for retreat or escape. The Poles seemed to be drawing back, strictly on the defensive, and their firing apparently had no definite objective.

After an hour of shelling from the Schleswig-Holstein, I saw a German landing party set out, but the attempt to storm the Poles failed. A crossfire of machine guns, the Poles' chief armament, drove them back with heavy losses.

As the battle progressed, my movements were restricted sharply. Still I had a chance to see the wreckage of the Dirschau Bridge, which the Poles had mined in advance, then blown up to cover their retreat.

Poles Hold Fast.

By mistake a cab driver and I landed in the new Sahrwasser Harbor district. It was an eerie place. Cleared out by Germans, it was a dead city, with gaping windows amid the wreckage left by wild firing and bombing from the air.

On the second day, twenty-four German bombers dropped at least fifty bombs on the peninsula. It was a tremendous effort to dislodge the stubborn band of defenders, and the explosions echoed and re-echoed over Danzig. But when it was all over a rattle of machine guns showed that the Poles still were defiant. During the next days more shells followed and still the Poles held fast.

Even Danzigers began talking about the "Polish fanatics," and to puzzle over the Germans' inability to capture the defenders and seize the munitions depot that was granted to Poland by treaty.

Tangled Wreckage.

During these days, I followed the fighting from the roof of my hotel. From there, too, I saw the firing of the Polish post office. Smoke from the fire rose about half a mile in the air.

All during the fighting, I could hear intermittent firing from the direction of the seashore resort of Zoppot and the Polish port of Gdynia. When I left Danzig on Tuesday, the Poles still were holding out.

The Westerplatte was quiet: a tangled wreck of steel and crumbled red brick walls, with the hundreds of trees reduced to bare stumps by the intense bombardment. Only an occasional burst of machine gun fire showed that the Poles still were there.

Departure From Danzig.

As the German Gestapo (secret police) and the troops clamped down further restrictions and Danzig became a lockedup city, I decided to leave. The Gestapo said that they had no objection to my going, but still it took an entire day to get a pass.

By way of Kalthos, on the Danzig side of East Prussia, I finally reached Marienburg. Three German troops already were in charge and I had some difficulty with examination of my passport and questioning of the Gestapo pass because it gave no specific permission to travel.

Eventually, I was passed through and onto the direct route to Riga. On the trip here I saw much open military activity throughout East Prussia.

Heroic Chapter.

Today, when word came to Riga that the white flag had been raised over Westerplatte, these Poles and recent arrivals from Danzig took the news with a mixture of skepticism and relief that the uneven struggle was ended.

All who had seen the tons of shells and bombs that were dropped on the little band of Poles knew that it must end either in surrender or the death of the entire garrison.

The Poles describe the six-day defense of the depot as a heroic chapter in Polish history. One hundred of the garrison were killed and 120 were taken prisoners.

'Wish Me Luck' Offered As 'Tipperary' Successor

'Cheerio, Here I Go,' Says Song Sponsored by Gracie Fields

LONDON, Sept. 8 (AP).—Gracie Fields, Britain's sweetheart of the music halls, announced today a new national "cheer-up song" designed to succeed 1914's "Tipperary."

It is called "Wish Me Luck," and begins:

Wish me luck as you wave me good by,
Cheerio, here I go, on my way.
Wish me luck as you wave me good by,
With a cheer, not a tear, make it gay.

Miss Fields, recuperating from an illness, said she hoped "the boys will like it, and when I am a little better I want to sing it to them myself."

British Forbid Pictures By Radio Service to U. S.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—Censorship has closed radio facilities for picture transmission from London to New York, while picture transmissions from London by cable have been sharply restricted due to the crush of news copy to be sent by the same means.

An order from the British Board of Trade today stated that no photographs whatever could be imported into Great Britain.

A shipment of Associated Press pictures dispatched in ample time to have caught the clipper plane which left Foynes, Ireland, on Wednesday was not received when the plane arrived at Port Washington, L. I., yesterday.

As a result of the censorship imposed on Britain, the vast majority of pictures received in the United States within the last several days have been from Berlin, representing copy which has been passed by the German Ministry of Propaganda.

'Sunk—All's Well,' Captain Radios

LONDON, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—A message saying "Sunk—all's well" was received today from Capt. J. Stock Thomson, master of the British ship Pukkastan, by the Hindustan Steam Shipping Company, owners of the 5,809-ton freighter, at Newcastle-on-Tyne.

The liner American Farmer, en route to Europe, radioed yesterday that the Pukkastan was attacked by a submarine. No position was given.

Iraq Pledges Support To Great Britain In War

Oil-Producing Country To Aid Until "Right And Justice" Prevail

London, Sept. 8 (AP).—Iraq, an important oil-producing country, today telegraphed King George VI its determination to cooperate with Great Britain in the European war until "right and justice and lofty principles" prevail.

The message, from Abdul Ilah, regent of Iraq, said the country remained true to its treaty of alliance with Great Britain, made in 1927. King George replied he was "deeply moved" by the "unshakable resolve of the Government and the people of Iraq" and called it a proof of friendship between two peoples.

Iraq earlier this week gave the German Minister twenty-four hours to leave Baghdad and instructed its Minister in Berlin to ask for his passports.

Mosley to His Fascists: 'Do What Law Requires'

But Britain 'Intervenes in Alien Quarrel,' He Says

LONDON, Sept. 8 (AP).—Sir Oswald Mosley told his British Union of Fascists today that "the British government intervened in an alien quarrel," but advised them to "do what the law requires" of them.

In a leaflet to his followers, Sir Oswald said that "in this situation we of the British Union will do our utmost to persuade our British people to make peace." He asked them to "do nothing to injure our country" and to obey orders if they were in the country's services.

"I am not offering to fight in the quarrel of Jewish finance, in a war from which Britain could withdraw at any moment she likes with her empire intact and her people safe," he said.

Mosley founded his union in 1932 and eventually adopted the upthrust arm salute and Black Shirt uniform. Parliament later prohibited political organizations from wearing uniforms.

A spokesman at Mosley's headquarters said it was uncertain just what sort of activities the Union would pursue in the present situation. He said, though, that "it certainly will be nothing subversive."

Baggy Churchill Puts London Tailors to Grief

LONDON, Sept. 8 (AP).—With a slight shudder, "The Tailor and Cutter and Outfitting News" came out today with a front-page picture of Winston Churchill in a baggy black coat, unpressed striped pants and vest decorated with a three-pound watch chain.

On the same page, under the heading "Additional Strength for the Government" was a photograph of Anthony Eden, immaculate in a two-button, single-breasted gray lounge suit with double-breasted waistcoat, thinly striped tie, gloves, rolled umbrella and the black "Eden Homburg."

Germans at 'War' With Fatherland

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 8.—A Reuter (British news agency) dispatch from Pretoria, South Africa, last night said it was learned Southwest Africa, mandated to the Union of South Africa, was regarded as automatically at war with Germany following the Union's declaration of hostilities.

The territory originally was annexed by Germany in 1884, but was surrendered to Union forces in 1915. Approximately one-third of its 30,000 European population speak German.

Nürnberg Parley Off, Japanese To Go Home

Mission Reported Ready To Return Without Talking To Italians Or Germans

Rome, Sept. 8 (AP)—A Japanese mission which was to have attended the Nazi party congress at Nürnberg was reliably reported today to be planning to return home without discussions with German or Italian representatives.

The congress was called off because of the war.

The mission's leaders, General Count Juichi Terauchi and Admiral Baron

30. 24 3169

Mineo Usumi, have been sightseeing in Italy. They were reported planning to return to Tokyo by way of London and the United States. Informed persons said their decision not to talk with Italian or German leaders was due to Germany's non-aggression pact with Soviet Russia, Japan's rival in East Asia.

NEUTRAL PRESS CENSORS BUSY

Budapest Gets Less War News Than America.

CROWDS HUNGRY FOR DETAILS

Sometimes All but Headline on Dispatch Is Blue-penciled.

BUDAPEST, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—Crowds pack the sidewalk cafes in the cities of southeastern Europe to read the newspapers and throng the streets in front of newspaper office bulletin boards. But censorship drastically limits the war news they get.

Budapest provides a good picture of what happens in a country whose Government wields the blue pencil in the interests of remaining neutral.

Although the city is only fifty miles from German-occupied Slovakia, and only 150 miles from the scene of bitter fighting in Poland, people here know far less of what is happening than those in America.

Has 35 Daily Papers.

Budapest has more than thirty-five daily papers. Copies of all of them are available at the sidewalk cafes, where thousands, at all hours of the day and night, sit over their coffee reading every word in the tabloid-sized sheets.

If they are reading the morning papers, they see no visible sign of censorship, for the editors have time to fill in the blank spaces caused by the censor's deletions.

But all week the afternoon papers have been full of glaring white spaces where objectionable news had appeared. The deletions were made too near press time for the editors to fill the holes. Each day there is more white space and less black print.

Sometimes only single words or isolated sentences are pulled out, sometimes whole paragraphs, and occasionally entire columns.

Often censors leave the dispatches untouched but eliminate sensational headlines over them.

Dispatch Eliminated.

One afternoon paper carried a story of French and German troops at the Siegfried Line fraternizing and throwing bunches of flowers at each other. In a rival paper the headline on the same story was allowed to remain but the entire dispatch was eliminated.

Another deletion was on the headline over a story of German success in freeing Danzig from "oppression."

One Budapest paper failed to appear on schedule this morning due to censorship difficulties.

The most wholesale censorship so far occurred when big chunks were hacked out of an article on the difference in the Hungarian and German characters. The article said land reforms would provide "a Siegfried line for the protection of Hungary's future."

Despite Budapest's proximity to the battle front, there has been a notable absence of war photographs.

Telephone censorship, meanwhile, is becoming more vigilant throughout Europe. A Budapest resident's attempt to tell a friend in Moscow about the sinking of the British liner Athenia was frustrated by a censor in Berlin, through which the call was routed. The German official kept interfering until the subject was dropped.

Europe Under Censorship

8/9/39 SEP 9 - 1939

[By the Associated Press.]

Censorship of news is effective in nearly all European countries. It is especially thorough in Great Britain, France and Germany.

So far the chief apparent hindrance imposed by censorship has been disruption of normal communications, but it is obvious that censors seek to prevent the sending of unfavorable news from their respective countries.

Some news dispatches are transmitted in ten or fifteen minutes; others are delayed for hours and some doubtless are suppressed.

By the Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, Sept. 8.—The Warsaw radio, silent yesterday, today broadcast a statement that "the Polish army will yet start its offensive."

"The present retreat is for strategic reasons," the announcement declared. "The war will continue a long time. The Poles will not capitulate. We will fight to the finish. The Polish air fleet is inently developing."

The states referred to by Hambro are the "Oslo states"—Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Finland, the Netherlands and Belgium.

"Our country is small and our Parliament cannot influence the present international development," Hambro added, "but our behavior, self-control and dignity may be of some importance for international rehabilitation which soon must begin."

tact. The world will understand this before long."

The broadcaster appealed to all citizens to help fortify Warsaw and declared it would be defended the way Madrid was defended.

(The Warsaw radio was silent throughout Thursday and the station at Lwow apparently was the only one in Poland functioning).

The broadcast asserted that the Germans had captured only 1500 Poles in the first week of the war and that "the number of killed and wounded is very small."

(The German high command reported yesterday in Berlin that 25,000 Polish prisoners had been taken).

King Haakon Says He HasDone Utmost to Prevent War

OSLO, Sept. 8 (AP)—King Haakon VII, opening an extraordinary sitting of Parliament, declared he had done his utmost in collaboration with the heads of other states in an attempt to prevent war.

SWEDEN TO STAY NEUTRAL

King Gustaf Opens Special Session Of Parliament At Stockholm

Stockholm, Sept. 8 (AP)—Opening a special session of the Swedish Riksdag (Parliament), King Gustav said today it was a defeat for humanity that the powers of war had become more mightly than those of peace.

He said Sweden has done her share for peace and would remain neutral, maintaining friendly relations with all nations participating in the war.

Bulgaria Sets Meatless Days

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 8 (AP)—Wednesdays and Fridays were designated meatless days today after the Bulgarian Cabinet forbade the slaughter of animals and the sale of meat. GAS MASK COVERS TO MATCH FROCKS

Paris, Always Gay, Also Puts Uniforms on Store Dummies

PARIS, Sept. 8 (AP).—Notes from the cafe front, where the war also is being fought, but the communiques are not so terse:

They are putting uniforms on the dummies in store windows now, and the police ask questions if you are caught without a gas mask.

They are making cloth covers for gas masks in colors to match women's dresses.

Newspaper editorial writers suggest that the Government should "tell the nation the truth even if it hurts" in its communiques on the progress of the war.

Jacques Pericard, who launched the newspaper suggestion that a "volunteers of death" corps should be formed, said he received 260 applications. They were from unmobilized men between sixteen and sixty-six, and some from women.

Anne Morgan Organizes Relief for France Again

'American Friends of France' to Work With Army Heads

PARIS, Sept. 8 (AP).—Miss Anne Morgan, sister of J. P. Morgan, the financier, whose "American Committee for Devastated France" helped the needy during the World War, announced today the creation of a similiar organization to function in this war.

It will be known as "The American Friends of France," and will work closely with French military authorities to render aid to persons forced to leave their homes, place children in schools and supply medical attention for refugees.

Belgrade Denies Mobilizing

Belgrade, Sept. 8 (AP)—The Government formally denied today what it termed London rumors of Yugoslav mobilization. Officials declared the report broadcast from London completely untrue.

(The British Ministry of Information yesterday made public a War Office report that the Yugoslav Council of Ministers had decided on general mobilization.)

Officials said only technical troops had been called up.

Russia Rushes Raw Materials To West Border

Reserves Reported Called Up as Nazis Drive Toward Polish-Soviet Frontier

MOSCOW, Sept. 8 (AP).—Soviet Russia was rushing raw materials tonight to its western front, where there appeared to be the possibility of Germany's establishing a border with Russia.

Although Moscow on the surface displayed a complete calm, the action was undertaken suddenly as German forces were sweeping eastward through Poland.

According to unofficial but unimpeachable sources, the Soviet government yesterday, or possible before, began calling up reserves.

In the Moscow military district authorities requisitioned many automobile and horses from Soviet civil organizations. Doctors and nurses have been registered and instructed on their duties "in case of emergency."

Another significant step was the closing of one of Moscow's two leading gasoline stations.

It was believed that the destination of the reservists was in the direction of the Polish frontier, although this could not be confirmed.

However, it was believed the reserves were not being sent immediately to the border but to points som distance behind the line.

Soviet Trade

Moscow, Sept. 8 (AP)—The Council of People's Commissars—the Soviet Cabinet — tonight authorized the foreign trade commissariat to limit or prohibit the export of goods from the U. S. S. R. to countries where conditions would create "unfavorable conditions" for Soviet foreign trade.

The ruling is to apply to countries where the "unfavorable conditions" are created by legislation, administrative orders, administrative or court practice, or the introduction of currency restrictions.

The council also authorized the foreign trade commissariat to prohibit the dispatch of goods abroad which are not paid for in advance.

MEXICAN OIL SALE TO ALLIES LIKELY

Nazi Barter Deal Reported Off—Nation Will Sell to Its Friends

MEXICO CITY, Sept 8 (AP)—A statement that Mexico would sell oil and other products to belligerents "which deserve our sympathy" was taken in Government circles today to indicate Mexico intended to help supply Britain and France.

The statement was made by Dr Ramon Beteta, an Undersecretary of Foreign Relations and close adviser of President Cardenas, whose Party of the Mexican Revolution expresses opposition to Nazi idealogy.

Beteta's statement came at a time when informed circles said Mexico had canceled a $20,000,000 oil barter deal with W R Davis, New York oil man. Davis had been shipping about 75 per cent of the oil to Germany, which sent Mexico merchandise and equipment in exchange.

Inability to ship oil to Germany was given as the reason for the reported cancellation when Mexico made the Davis deal. President Cardenas said that Mexico was forced to seek markets wherever she could find them and that some nations had refused to buy Mexican oil.

The Davis contract was reported about 50 per cent fulfilled on September 1. It was understood that Mexico will continue to sell Davis as much oil as he can market elsewhere.

Mexico was reported to have about $6,000,000 in credits tied up in Germany, with little hope of getting anything in return, at least for the duration of the war.

ARGENTINA CALLS FOR U. S. GOODS

Barriers to American Trade Are Let Down.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—The first tangible results on Argentine-United States commerce of the European war were evident today in the loosening of restrictions on the importation of American products. The Government will admit forty-six different groups of merchandise out of a total of 291 which have been on the import restriction lists.

American citizens here said that the most important result of the action would be the export from their country of coal, steel and iron products to Argentina to supply demands formerly satisfied in Britain, Germany, France and Poland.

Argentina, without known domestic coal deposits, normally imports 3,000,000 tons annually. Two-thirds of this has been coming from the United Kingdom, plus 338,000 tons from Germany, 232,000 tons from Poland and lesser amounts from other places.

Shipping interests already are seeking vessels to accomodate cargoes from North America bound for Argentina. A decree also removed restrictions on the importation of American tin plate and steel products. Argentina normally imports about $37,000,000 worth of iron, steel and their fabricated products annually.

TRIAL FLIGHTS CANCELED

Argentine Government Holds Nazi Planes In Custody

Buenos Aires, Sept. 8 (AP)—The Argentine Government today cancelled permits for trial flights on a projected German-owned South American line on the ground that the airmen might reconnoiter the location of British warships patrolling the South American coast.

GERMAN SHIPS STAY IN PORT

Remain In South American Harbors Because Of Blockade

Buenos Aires, Sept. 8 (AP)—Italian shipping gradually is returning to normal in the South Atlantic, but German vessels remain in neutral ports because of the British blockade.

Despite reports of vessels being torpedoed in the Atlantic, French and British merchantmen continued to operate. The French liner Formose left Rio de Janeiro for an unannounced destination.

Border Cities in Greece Are Barred to Civilians

Army Officers May Wed No Aliens; Spies Feared

ATHENS, Sept. 8 (AP)—The Greek general staff forbade civilians today to enter towns in defense zones bordering Albania, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria without written permission from the army.

Army officers were forbidden to marry foreign women. The ruling may have been inspired by the government's fear of spies.

Greek Shipping Cut

Athens, Sept. 8 (AP)—The Greek Ministry of Mercantile Marine today ordered curtailment of all coastwise shipping services because of doubled coal prices and decreased passenger traffic.

KLOTZ SWELLS ATHENIA FUND

Expresses Surprise Over Publicity for Gift.

SENDS $20,500 TO LONDON

New Yorker Sympathizes—His Parents Are Abroad.

LONDON, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—A gift of 5,000 pounds ($20,250) swelled the relief fund for victims of the Athenia today while attaches of the United States embassy worked on a provisional list of missing Americans among the total of 128 estimated lost.

Herbert W. Klontz of New York, a friend of Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, gave the money. At the same time the Ambassador announced that he had sent about $4,000 to John Cudahy, United States Minister to Ireland, and Leslie A. Davis, Consul-General at Glasgow, to help victims now in Galway and Glasgow.

Those at the embassy still could not give any estimate of the number of Americans missing, but men in shipping circles here and in Glasgow believed that no more than a dozen had been lost.

Confusion between the sailing list of the Athenia and statements by friends and relatives of persons supposed to be aboard hampered the work of establishing a definite list. Provisional list missing drawn from the sailing list minus the names of known survivors may be issued soon.

The task of feeding and housing the refugees went on. Most of the injured already have been removed from the Glasgow Western Infirmary and hospitals in Galway.

Wanted No Mention.

Herbert W. Klotz made the following statement today when he was informed that Ambassador Kennedy had made public his name in connection with his gift of 5,000 pounds for Athenia victims.

"The donation was made with the express intention and expectation that it would be kept anonymous. It was not thought that the gift was one which would attract any attention, as it was only natural that people with means would rush to assist those without means caught in the difficulties of war.

"A personal ground for making it was that my parents are in Europe. I have a deep sense of sympathy for those who are separated from their families at this time.

"My parents have had a residence in Switzerland since 1930, and in protection of their financial interests they became citizens of the Principality of Liechtenstein. At the time when the war broke out they were in England.

"About three years ago I decided that I wanted to make my future in the United States. Came here and have been in the investment banking business since that time, and have my first papers for America citizenship."

Meets Survivors Today.

The Coast Guard cutter Campbell, carrying doctors, medical supplies, food and clothing, was expected to keep her rendezvous with the freighter City of Flint with her huge complement of 216 Athenia survivors in the North Atlantic this afternoon.

The Campbell and the cutter Bibb, both assigned to the relief mission, were not far from the freighter at dawn today. They were pushing along under forced draft since it is known that the condition of the survivors can hardly be comfortable.

Both cutters were dispatched when it became known that the freighter, which ordinarily would not attempt to accommodate more than a score of passengers, had taken on so many people. It was realized she could hardly have food, water or medical supplies for so many persons on her slow trip to Halifax, where she is expected next Wednesday evening.

The names of three additional survivors of the torpedoing of the British liner who are being brought to this country on the City of Flint were announced today at the district office of the United States Maritime Commission. They were: Mr. and Mrs. James Gordon of New York and A. Jezlirzra Kurilizeinnon, a Greek.

U. S. Inquiries Say Submarine Sank Athenia

Naval Attaches Able to Find No Evidence of Shelling, but Cudahy Disagrees

From the Herald Tribune Bureau

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—The reports of two American diplomats on the circumstances surrounding the sinking of the Donaldson Atlantic liner Athenia last Monday were made public today by the State Department after President Roosevelt had said there would be no comment on them because they were entirely self-explanatory.

The reports were sent by Joseph P. Kennedy, the American Ambassador at London, and John Cudahy, the American Minister at Dublin. Both were addressed to Cordell Hull, Secretary of State. One was made by Mr. Cudahy personally and the second was the transmittal of the report of the American Naval Attache, Capt. Alan G. Kirk, and his assistant, Comdr. Norman R. Hitchcock.

The American naval officers said that it had been established from the evidence of the officers and crew of the Athenia that the ship was torpedoed slightly forward of midships. The explosion blocked the escape of passengers in the third-class and tourist dining saloons. The officer of the watch was able to close the watertight doors and thereby prevent the ship from sinking for many hours, the report said. It added that there was no panic aboard and that all boats got off without casualty.

Mr. Cudahy's report was in accord with the report of the naval officers that the Athenia had been sunk by a submarine, and mentioned testimony of witnesses who saw the wake of the torpedo in the water.

The report of the naval officers said: "From the evidence given by a quartermaster not on watch, submarine conning tower broke surface about 800 yards on the port quarter of the Athenia. A gun or explosive signal was fired from the conning tower platform. If a gun, it was of small caliber, according to one of these men, who served for years as a gun lawyer in the royal navy."

The report said that the ship was struck only by the one torpedo that was fired, and that no witness heard a shell in the air, no witness saw a shell strike ship and only one such discharge was seen.

Mr. Cudahy reported, on the contrary, that the ship had been struck by a projectile through the air.

"Testimony of officers and the number of American passengers I have interviewed is that the ship was struck amidship and that shortly thereafter was struck again, wrecking engine room by a projectile projected through air," he reported. "Witnesses state immediately after second explosion they saw a line of black smoke from water surface 800 to 1,000 yards on port side to where ship was hit. Second explosion hit with terrific force and ship abandoned at 9:30 p. m."

More Survivors Reported

Meanwhile, the United States Maritime Commission and the State Department announced that they had received word of seven more Americans from the Athenia who had been rescued. These survivors were believed not to have been previously reported rescued.

They were Damon Boynton, of Trumansburg, N. Y.; Elizabeth Bruce, maybe Elizabeth Balfour Bruce, of 1411 South Third Street, Louisville, Ky.; John Lawrence, maybe John Rundale Lawrence, of the University of California Faculty Club, Berkeley, Calif.; Mrs. Sage, maybe Katherine Sage, of 105 East South Temple Street, Salt Lake City; Helen Dewitt Smith, maybe Mrs. Henry DeWitt Smith, of 1061 Railway Boulevard, Plainfield, N. J., and Mr. and Mrs. James Gordon, reported to be from New York City. A Greek citizen named A. Jezlindra Kurilijeinon was also reported safe in Galway. The last three are on the tanker City of Flint, which is sailing for Halifax, N. S., with 219 survivors on board.

The Maritime Commission also reported that the Donaldson Atlantic Line had informed it that it would supply the survivors from the Athenia who were landing at Halifax with food, clothing necessary for traveling, and transportation to their homes.

The line reported that a special train would be provided from Halifax to Montreal and that tickets would be issued from Montreal to the survivors' destinations. The company will have a staff to look after the survivors and has made contact with American and Canadian immigration authorities to speed the manifesting of the passengers on their arrival.

Meanwhile, the State Department received word that the port of La Havre in France would not be available to American passenger liners after Sept. 9. The department received word from William Phillips, Ambassador to Italy, that the Italian steamer Rex would sail for New York tomorrow, followed by the Vulcania on Sept. 13 and the Conte de Savoia on Sept. 13 or 14.

Relief Fund Grows

LONDON, Sept. 8 (AP).—A gift of £5,000 ($20,250) swelled the relief fund for victims of the torpedoed liner Athenia today while officials of the United States Embassy worked on a provisional list of missing American passengers and crew of the total of 128 estimated lost.

Herbert W. Klotz, of New York, a friend of Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, gave to the fund. At the same time, the Ambassador announced that he had sent about $4,000 to John Cudahy, United States Minister to Ireland, and Leslie A. Davis, Consul General at Glasgow, for rehabilitation of refugees now at Galway and Glasgow.

Embassy officials still could give no estimate of the Americans missing from the Athenia, but shipping circles here and in Glasgow believed that not more than a dozen had been lost. Confusion between the sailing list of the Athenia and statements by friends and relatives of persons supposed to be aboard hampered the work of establishing a definite list. A provisional list of missing drawn from the sailing list, minus the names of known survivors, may be issued soon.

The task of feeding and housing the refugees went on. Most of the injured already have been removed from the Glasgow Western Infirmary and hospitals in Galway.

Kennedy's Cablegram

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 (AP).—The text of the cablegram from Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy to Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, relaying the report on the sinking of the Athenia, follows:

Report of Comdr. (Norman R.) Hitchcock, Assistant Naval Attache, and agreed to by Capt. (Alan G.) Kirk, Naval Attache, who together made investigation regarding Athenia survivors landed at Galway, follows:

"We proceeded immediately to Galway, Ireland, where we landed in an improvised field, and proceeded to the dock where the tender was disembarking the refugees from the Athenia.

"The officers and crew of the Athenia talked freely to Capt. Kirk and myself. They were courteous, and under close questioning no conflict in their stories could be discerned.

"It was established by the evidence of the commander of the Athenia, the officer of he watch, the assistant officer of the watch, the quartermaster of the watch, the quartermaster off duty but on the bridge; the chief engineer and assistant engineer officer and several other crew members that at evening twilight, Sept. 3, a torpedo struck the port side of the Athenia, slightly abaft midships in the way of the bulkhead between the fire room and the engine room.

"The explosion caused a large volume of water in the outside of the ship to be blown into the air; destroyed the bulkhead between the fire room and the engine room, shattering the oil tank and destroying access of stairs from the third class and tourist dining saloons to the upper decks. It was impossible for the passengers trapped in the dining room to escape, and they were drowned below decks.

Says He Saw Submarine

"From evidence given by a quartermaster not on watch, submarine conning tower broke surface about 800 yards on the port quarter of the Athenia. A gun or explosive signal was fired from the conning tower platform. If a gun, it was of small caliber, according to one of these men, who had served for years as a gunlayer in the Royal Navy.

"As the submarine was on the weather side of the Athenia, the smoke from this discharge blew down over the Athenia and a distinct smell of cordite was recognized. No witness heard a shell in the air; no witness heard a shell strike the ship; only one such discharge was seen. The flash was distinctly reported by three witnesses; the smoke of the discharge was seen by the commander and many witnesses. No splash of the projectile was seen. The commander of the Athenia stated that it occurred to him that the submarine might be attempting to destroy their radio, but said that any statement by him that this was so was an error, as he had no evidence to this effect.

Water-Tight Doors Closed

"Immediately after the explosion which sank the Athenia, the officer of the watch sounded eight short blasts and one long blast of the whistle, and the submarine submerged and was not again seen.

"The officer of the watch immediately closed the water-tight doors, which apparently prevented the ship from sinking for many hours. All officers and crew and a few passengers interviewed indicated there was no panic aboard the ship, and women and children passengers, as well as the crew and men passengers, were calm in going to their boat stations and in abandoning ship.

"Some little difficulty was had in lowering the starboard side lifeboats, as the ship primarily took a considerable list to port, but all boats got off without casualty. One boat alongside the rescue ship, Knute Nelson, drifted aft into the propellers and was sunk, resulting in the loss of several of the occupants.

"The Irish authorities kept a careful list of all survivors disembarking at Galway."

Text of Cudahy Cable

The text of a cablegram sent on Sept. 5 by John Cudahy, American Minister to Ireland, to Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, concerning the Athenia sinking, follows:

Athenia, carrying 1,400 passengers, of which the captain tells me about one-half were American, torpedoed 7:40 p. m. Sept. 3, north of Ennistrahull, ten miles beyond north Irish coast. Testimony of officers and number of American passengers I have interviewed is that ship was struck amidship and that shortly thereafter was struck again, wrecking engine room, by projectile projected through air. Witnesses state immediately after second explosion, they saw a line

Capt. James Cook, of destroyed ship, tells me three British destroyers, a tanker City of Flint and Swedish ship Southern Cross picked up other survivors, but he cannot state whether capacity of these craft was sufficient for all, nor can he give their destination. He states many killed by attack which caught most passengers in dining room.

Cannot too highly praise efficient handling of situation by Galway and Irish government and splendid human spirit.

force and ship abandoned at 9:30 p. m. Norwegian ship Knute Nelson, with 430 survivors, landed here this morning. Authorities, with splendid human spirit, provided shelter, provisions, clothing and hospital facilities for ten wounded by explosion.

More Survivors

Glasgow, Scotland, Sept. 8 (AP)—The Donaldson Line tonight issued a list of 111 American survivors of the Athenia who are aboard the rescue ship City of Flint bound for Montreal.

The list included these names, without addresses, not previously reported:

Frances Bannard	Rosa Hochhauser
Violet Black	James Jessie
Charles Bowen	Jessie Knowles
Jean Craik	Lillie Kirkham
Eva Caine	Alida Kirkpatrick
Mianne Dexter	Marian Kurilec
Moritz Blaustein	May Lewis
Donald Balmain	Adolf Leocha
Mabel Carroll	Elsa Meyer
Alexander Elephant	Lina Stronhmayer
Helena Elephant	Agnes Stuprel
Mary Hodge	George Woolcombe

Seven More Survivors

Washington, Sept. 8 (AP)—The State Department made public late today the names of seven more American survivors of the Athenia.

The department said Leslie A. Davis, consul general at Glasgow, had reported them as follows:

Damon Boynton, Trumansburg, N. Y.
Elizabeth Bruce, may be Elizabeth Barber Bruce, of Louisville, Ky
John Lawrence, may be John Hundale Lawrence, Berkeley, Cal.
Mrs. Sage, may be Katharine Sage, of Salt Lake City, Utah.
Helen Dewitt Smith, may be Mrs. Henry Dewitt Smith (Ellen Burke Smith), of Plainfield, N. J.

The department said the Maritime Commission had added to the names of survivors on the City of Flint those of Mr. and Mrs. James Gordon, of New York city.

OTTAWA BEGINS DEBATE ON WAR

Quebec Member Presents Plea Against Entering.

OTTAWA, Sept. 8 (A. P.)—Maxime Raymond, Liberal member of Parliament for the French-speaking Quebec constituency of Beauharnois-Laprarie, today submitted a petition against Canadian participation in the European war in the House of Commons. He said it was signed by "thousands of citizens" and laid it on the table of the House without other comment.

The petition was contained in four paper-wrapped packages. Its details were not immediately available.

House galleries were filled as the second sitting of the special war session of Parliament opened.

Col. H. S. Hamilton, Ontario Liberal, replying to Gov.-Gen. Tweedsmuir's speech from the throne, declared "talk should be brief and action as prompt and vigorous as possible" because of the grave circumstances under which Parliament met.

"We must refute the charge so often made that democracies are good debating societies but incapable of prompt and effective action."

Parliament was prepared for a thorough debate on Canada's position while Great Britain is at war.

Peace or War In Canada Up To Parliament

Mackenzie King Puts Home Defense First if House Decides for Hostilities

OTTAWA, Sept. 8 (CP).—The question of peace or war for Canada remains for Parliament to decide, Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King said tonight in the House of Commons, and added, "That is not decided yet."

He made this statement after asserting that Canada would stand shoulder to shoulder with Britain in the war against Germany or find another government.

"The government has made its decision as to what its policy is," the Prime Minister said. It has announced that policy. But it is for the honorable members of this House to say whether they stand by that policy."

In warning that the House must support him or find another government, he gave no indication that he doubted what the decision of the House would be. He was applauded from all sides. A few minutes earlier the House had heard R. J. Manion, Conservative leader, declare himself for participation in the war and pledge his support to the government in its policies. He said there is no doubt that Canada actually is at war and urged the government "to declare openly and clearly our position."

Home Defense First

The dispatch of a general expeditionary force to European battlefields is a matter for future consideration, the Prime Minister indicated. Canada's immediate war-like steps will be the defense of Canadian territory and nearby British territory, such as Newfoundland, co-operation in economic measures aimed at Germany, and the furnishing of arms and supplies to Great Britain.

Canadian airmen, however, may enter the fray at once. They will probably be the first Canadian fighters to see active service.

"The information we have obtained," said Mackenzie King, "indicates that the most immediate and effective further means of co-operation would be a rapid expansion of air training and of air and naval facilities and the dispatch of trained air personnel. These measures we propose to institute immediately."

He joined with Dr. Manion in a plea for toleration of the honest views of all Canadians, and bespoke as well toleration for the German people. As one who knew both German-Canadians and old-country Germans well, he said, the war was not against them but against the tyrannical regime which held them in slavery.

He said that the cause of the war was Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's lust for power, that the German leader had violated all pledges, that his objective was not Poland alone but a continuous drive into the countries of northern Europe which now called themselves neutral.

Canada itself was threatened, the Prime Minister said, for Hitler had recently said that if England went to war thep rize would be the British Empire; that included Canada and no part of the world was more desirable to a conquering nation.

Co-operation Promised

The government would continue in close consultation with the British government, the Prime Minister assured the House in an outline of the immediate steps proposed by the government. This would insure that Canada's assistance would not be unplanned and irresponsible.

Canadian coastal defense and internal security were the first things required from the government, he said. The integrity of Newfoundland and Labrador was essential to Canadian security and use of the St. Lawrence waterway, he said. The British government had agreed that if Canada contributed to the defense of these areas and other French and British territories on this side of the Atlantic it would be an effective and desirable means of co-operation. The question of an expeditionary force for service overseas would require fullest examination.

The Prime Minister repeated his view, expressed last session, that conscription of men for overseas service would not be a necessary or effective step, and said no such measure would be introduced by the present government.

On two points raised by Dr. Manion the Prime Minister gave the House the fullest assurance of agreement. These were the necessity of preventing profiteering and political partisanship.

The Prime Minister told the House that a special British mission authorized by the government of the United Kingdom to place orders in Canada had just arrived to survey the munition situation.

Maxime Raymond, Liberal member for the Quebec constituency of Beauharnois-Laprarie, submitted a petition against Canadian participation in war in the House of Commons today. He said that it was signed by "thousands of citizens" and laid it on the table of the House without comment. The petition was contained in four paper-wrapped packages. Its exact contents were not immediately available.

Army and Navy Drive to Enlist 100,000 Men

Recruiting Campaigns To Be Most Intense in Peace-Time History of Nation

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 (AP).—The most intensive peace-time recruiting campaigns in national history were under preparation by the Army and Navy tonight to carry out President Roosevelt's order for a 100,000 increase in the nation's armed forces.

Details still were being worked out, but officials said the services would depend almost altogether on recruiting of volunteers from civil life.

It was expected that the contemplated increase would be carried out without any mandatory summons to the Army's 100,000 reserve officers, 23,000 trained former enlisted men or to the Navy and Marine Corps reserves.

The Presidential orders, however, authorized the Army to supplement its officer strength by the use of reserve officers "as may be necessary" and as provided for under existing appropriations. The Navy also was authorized to ask reservists to volunteer for active service.

Increases To Be Made

Here are the increases to be made:

Regular Army—17,000 men, from 210,000, anticipated by next June 30, to 227,000.

National Guard—45,000 men, from approximately 190,000, at prsent, exclusiv of officers, to 235,000.

Navy—29,000, from an anticipated 116,000 to 145,000.

Marine Corps—6,000, from the 19,000 for whose pay Congress provided, to 25,000.

Additional officers will swell the increases to possibly 100,000, it was indicated.

The present strength of each branch is lower than the total for which Congress provided appropriations.

The additional reinforcemnets are needed, Army and Navy officials said, to man the old destroyers called back into service for the Atlantic coast patrol, to provide warships with full crews instead of the 85 per cent complements some now have, and to fill up gays caused by the transfer of Army reinforcements to the Panama Canal and Puerto Rico.

Air Expansion Program

The principal task, by all indications, is faced by the Army, which already had set out to enlist nearly 115,000 men as additions and replacements by the middle of next year. The $300,000,000 air expansion program had necessitated a recruiting campaign which was reported up to schedule, with about 26,000 men enlisted since May 1.

Congress rejected at the last session a War Department request for funds for eighteen mobile recruiting stations, but some officials expressed hope thees and other facilities would now be forthcoming.

The executive orders noted that the new reinforcements still would leave the armed forces far below the strength authorized by the 1920 national defense act.

When "a sufficient emergency exists" the President may increase the Navy to 191,000 men, the regular Army to 280,000 and the National Guard to 424,000. The full authorized enlisted strength of the Marine Corps in peace time is a fifth of the Navy's total.

Close on the heels of the Presidential orders, Harry H. Woodrink, Secretary of War, said that the reinforcements were "for the sole purpose of strengthening our protective land forces in view of existing world conditions and the recently ordered transfer of troops to Panama and Puerto Rico."

In his statement, Secretary Woodring commnted that the increases would leave the regular army 53,000 men short of the maximum authorized for peace by the 1920 legislation, and the National Guard 190,000 similarly short.

The Navy announced relaxation of age limits and of some qualifications to assure prompt attainment of its new strength.

Men between eighteena nd thirty-one will be accepted for first enlistments. Previously the ages were eighteen to twenty-five. The passing mark for the general mental tests was lowered from 50 to 35 per cent.

Former service men who have been out of the Navy less than eight years will be accepted in the same rating they held when honorably discharged, it was announced.

Former soldiers, marines and coast guardsmen, if otherwise qualified, will be accepted by the Navy up to thirty-five years of age.

Publicity Drive Begins

A major publicity drive to accelerate recruiting for all branches of the national defense is in the final stages of preparation and will soon be loosed on the American public in proportions unequaled since recruiting in the World War days, it was learned here yesterday.

The Army campaign, according to plans now being completed, will feature such slogans as "Wings Over America" and "Now, Then and Forever." For the first time since the World War the Army expects to bring its recruiting propaganda to the public through the medium of 9-foot by 20-foot outdoor posters, as well as by the usual media of subway and streetcar advertising and pamphlets.

The Coast Guard, it was revealed yesterday, has lifted its recruiting quota completely and the order of the day now is to get as many qualified men as possible. Until now the Coast Guard recruiting office here had a quota limit of thirty men a month. Last Wednesday word came from Washington to disregard the limit. Accordingly, more than 500 men now on the Coast Guard waiting list have been notified to report at once for qualifying examinations.

Preparation of the posters and other publicity is proceeding under the direction of Maj. Thomas B. Woodburn, chief of the army recruiting publicity bureau, on Governors Island. Maj. Woodburn, whose bureau is nation-wide in scope, is the artist who painted the "Miss Columbia" recruiting poster, the most recent produced by his bureau.

Maj. Woodburn and Col. Lloyd B. Magruder, in charge of Army recruiting in New York, Delaware and New Jersey, have been negotiating for the placing of the advertising matter on outdoor highway and building signs.

—NEUTRALITY—

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 8—Congressional sources said today that President Roosevelt wants to be sure he has the votes to approve his neutrality recommendations before calling Congress into special session.

First the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and then the Senate itself, it was said authoritatively, will be polled by telephone and telegraph on the question whether members would support Administration suggestions for revamping the neutrality policy.

Senate action was blocked this summer when the Foreign Relations Committee voted 12 to 11 to delay action until next session.

Two Undecided Courses

Well-advised persons said Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull had not yet decided whether to ask Congress:

1. To authorize the sale of all goods to belligerents, including arms and implements of war, on a "cash-and-carry basis, or
2. To repeal the entire neutrality act and return to international law.

The existing neutrality law, invoked by Mr. Roosevelt this week, prohibits the sale of arms to warring nations and restricts American travel and credits.

Cash-And-Carry Held Easiest

Congressional insiders were reported to have advised the President that it would be much easier to obtain some form of "cash-and-carry" legislation than to abandon entirely the theory of statutory neutrality. Under this system, warring nations would have to pay cash for American purchases and transport them in their own ships.

Advocates of such a policy have argued that it would benefit Great Britain and France, because they could pay cash and could be expected to control the Atlantic lanes. Since the war began, these advocates noted, Germany has withdrawn her merchant ships from American ports.

International Law Status

Much the same reasoning has been advanced by proponents of a return to international law, under which no restrictions would be placed on the sale of goods. These persons contend that Germany, without much foreign exchange in the United States, would not be in a position to buy many war supplies here.

Comments of a number of legislators here and at their homes indicate much bipartisan sentiment for a "cash-and-carry" policy, although sharp differences of opinion still are in evidence. Repeal or revision of the arms embargo, a survey showed, is favored by some House members who voted against repeal in the last session.

Bender, Glass Give Views

One of that group is Representative Bender (Rep., Ohio), who said: "I am convinced we must extend economic support to democratic states by amending the present neutrality legislation along 'cash-and-carry' lines."

Senator Carter Glass (Dem., Va.), who has opposed some Administration policies, said he always had favored a "cash-and-carry" system "or any other proposition that may favor the struggling democracies, but which will not carry us actively into the European war."

On the other hand, David J. Walsh (Dem., Mass., chairman of the Senate Naval Committee, said repeal of the arms embargo at this time would be "a definite act of un-neutrality." The issue, he declared, "is propaganda, profits and wealth for certain Americans, versus the protection of American youth from involvement in the European holocaust."

Other Developments

There were these developments in other phases of the neutrality situation:

The Maritime Commission announced that American ships sailing this week from France and England could bring home more than 2,500 Americans. Ships sailing this week from New York to Europe can bring back about 3,000.

The twelvev Federal Reserve Banks bought $168,000,000 of Government securities in the last week in an effort to regulate the declining Government bond market. Officials said many investors had taken the money out of Government bonds in order to speculate in stocks and commodities likely to rise in a war boom market.

—PAN-AMERICAN—

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 8—How to treat belligerents' ships in American ports is among the neutrality problems likely to be brought before the forthcoming Pan-American Conference.

The meeting, to begin at Panama City September 21 or 23, will consider methods of keeping war out of the Western Hemisphere and of increasing trade among the American republics.

Pointing out that many German, French and British merchant ships are in harbors on this side of the Atlantic, officials said today that one question of their handling is whether they should be forbidden to use their radios or other signal devices.

The Danger From Signaling

If such signaling were not forbidden, a vessel of one of the belligerent might observe one of the opposing side in port and notify a submarine or other warship of the vessel's presence and the time of its departure.

The use of radios by the ships of warring nations is forbidden in United States ports under the neutrality proclamation issued recently by President Roosevelt.

Another question that may come in for consideration is whether some agreement regarding neutral shipping might be reached with belligerent countries to avoid incidents that might tend to drag American nations into the conflict.

Trade Proposals Ready

Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles discussed the agenda of the conference yesterday with the Ambassadors of Argentina, Brazil and Chile. The United States, it was learned, is prepared to offer concrete proposals for commercial, economic and financial cooperation with the other American nations.

One analyst said that a major commercial problem to be faced at the conference is that of foreign exchange. The trade system of some Latin-American countries, he explained, has been upset by curtailment of German purchases and shutting off of supplies previously obtained from the Reich by barter. A shortage of foreign exchange has resulted, he said.

Appeals To Germans To Overthrow Nazis

Offshoot Of Socialist Party In U. S. Pleads For Restoration Of Peace And Freedom

Washington, Sept. 8 (AP)—The Social Democratic Federation, U. S. A., joined today in an appeal to the German people "to overthrow the Nazi regime."

Leo Meltzer, executive secretary, said the federation had 10,000 members and described it as "an offshoot of the Norman Thomas Socialist party" born of an intra-party dispute.

A cable signed by the national chairman of the federation, Mayor Jasper McLevy, of Bridgeport, Conn., and sent to the German Social Democratic Party in Exile at Paris, said:

"We welcome your manifesto urging the German people to overthrow the Nazi regime and thus restore peace and freedom. . . ."

Le Havre Not Available To U. S. Passenger Boats

Bordeaux Will Be Used Instead After Today, State Department Announces

Washington, Sept. 8 (AP)—The State Department said today it had information that the port of Le Havre, France, would not be available to American passenger vessels after tomorrow.

The statement added, however, that the United States Lines would establish an office at Bordeaux by Tuesday, where passengers not residing in Paris would be able to book passage for the United States.

As to Americans seeking to return from Italy, the department said that the steamship Rex would sail for New York tomorrow, followed by the Vulcania on Wednesday and the Conte de Savoia on Thursday.

FORESEES LONG WAR

Reed Returns From Europe With Prediction.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—Representative Reed, Republican, of New York, back from a four-weeks tour of Europe, said today that he saw prospects for "a long and horrible war" and said that the issue of American neutrality is in the hands of the citizens of this country.

He said that he had not been back long enough to determine sentiment on the arms embargo issue. He voted in the last session of Congress to retain the embargo.

"It is quite apparent," Mr. Reed said, "that England, France, Germany and Poland have set their teeth in grim determination to settle accounts in what is likely to be a long and horrible war. The people of the United States, if they are opposed to war, should not be timid in expressing a collective will to that end.

"The issue of war or peace is in the hands of the citizens of this country, and I can conceive of no greater responsibility now resting upon all of us than to act with wisdom when deciding the fate of millions of our young men."

NAZI WEST WALL STILL MYSTERY; 30 MILES DEEP

Also Called Limes, Siegfried Line; Can Hold 500,000 Men

New York, Sept. 8—Germany's fortifications along her western frontiers, which extend from Switzerland to the Netherlands, are more or less of a mystery. The cost of the fortifications is not exactly kept secret and the line is known by three different names—Limes, Siegfried Line and West Wall.

Bank reports issued in April, 1939, indicated that the equivalent of $400,000,000 had been spent during 1938 for construction materials alone. There was no estimate of the labor costs, but it was reported at the time of the Czecho-Slovak crisis of September, 1938, that 500,000 men were working on the defenses under the supervision of Dr. Fritz Todt, whose surname means "death" in German.

Films Show Deep Line

Motion-picture films shown throughout Germany last month depicted a line thirty miles deep that was composed of 22,000 individual armed units connected by tunnels. Each unit, called a "bunker" by the Germans, is supposed to be self-sufficient and independent.

It is believed that 500,000 troops can be accommodated in the line in subterranean shelters, which are gas-proof. Gun emplacements and concrete machine-gun nests are situated at strategic points from front to rear of the line. Barbed-wire entanglements and concrete and metal tank obstructions also are scattered back through the line.

The line follows the Rhine north from Switzerland, but swings west across the river near Karlsruhe. It parallels the French Maginot line nearly to Saarbrucken, where it veers to the northwest to follow the frontier between Germany and France, Luxembourg and Belgium.

Backed By Air Zone

Behind the line is an air-defense zone that is forty-two miles deep. That zone is studded with anti-aircraft guns, sound detectors, searchlights and captive-balloon obstructions. In front of the line along the Rhine the river's banks have been covered with obstructions to impede bridging of the stream by pontoons.

Adolf Hitler officially named the fortifications the Limes on October 19, 1938. The motion picture shown in Germany last month, however, called the line the West Wall, the name by which most Germans apparently refer to it conversationally. The French are credited with naming it the Siegfried line because they always refer to it as "La ligne Siegfried."

Pronounced Lye-Meez

Hitler's official name for the line is derived from the Latin. Limes is a singular noun meaning a line of frontier fortifications. According to Webster's New International Dictionary, it should be pronounced as though spelled lye-meez. Historically limes meant one of the fortified frontiers of the Roman Empire. The Limes Germanicus of the first century, A. D., separated the German provinces of the empire from the outer world and ran roughly from Bonn, on the Rhine, to Regensburg, on the Danube.

"The inspection of the Western Wall has convinced me of its invincibility," said Hitler in May, 1939, after touring the fortifications. "With me, the German nation thanks all who, through their unconditional energies, have created the foundations for Germany's safety through concrete and steel."

President's Emergency Proclamation

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—Here is the text of President Roosevelt's proclamation of a limited national emergency:

"Whereas a proclamation issued by me on September 5, 1939, proclaimed the neutrality of the United States in the war now unhappily existing between certain nations; and

"Whereas this state of war imposes on the United States certain duties with respect to the proper observance, safeguarding, and enforcement of such neutrality, and the strengthening of the national defense within the limits of peace-time authorizations; and

"Whereas measures required at this time call for the exercise of only a limited number of the powers granted in a national emergency;

"Now, therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do proclaim that a national emergency exists in connection with and to the extent necessary for the proper observance, safeguarding and enforcing of the neutrality of the United States and the strengthening of our national defense within the limits of peace-time authorizations. Specific directions and authorizations will be given from time to time for carrying out these two purposes.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States of America to be affixed.

"Done at the city of Washington this eighth day of September in the year of Our Lord nineteen hundred and thirty nine, and the independence of the United States of America the one hundredth

Fortifications Built Year Ago By Germans

The German island of Sylt, which was reported in Denmark yesterday to have been attacked by planes, was fortified by the Nazis more than a year ago.

A Norwegian newspaper in April, 1938, said the Germans had constructed large underground hangars on the island, with a capacity of several hundred planes, and also kept a large body of troops stationed there.

No one knows whether such reports are true. The Norwegian writer asserted that the underground fortifications were cleverly camouflaged, so that what appears to be merely an ordinary farmhouse might be an entrance to a fort or hangar below the surface.

Cooper Asks About Island

A few days after this article was published, Alfred Duff Cooper, First Lord of the British Admiralty, was asked in the House of Commons about the Sylt fortifications. He answered that the Germans were establishing a fortified naval base there.

The minister went on to say that Admiralty officials "have considered all the implications arising from this new development."

Sylt is a long, narrow island off the German coast just opposite the German-Danish frontier. It is the largest of the North Frisian Islands, three of which are important as popular summer playgrounds for vacationists from Germany and other northern European countries.

Normal Population Is 6,000

It is twenty-three miles long and about seven miles wide at the widest part. Parts of its sandy beach have to be protected by a seawall to keep North Sea storms from washing across the island. The normal population is 6,000, about half of whom live in the resort town of Westerland. The customary summer influx doubles this figure.

A railroad runs the length of the island, with spurs to quaint spots off the main right-of-way where ancient Sylt customs survive. The inhabitants speak Low German dialect and live largely from farming, the tourist industry and the oyster beds off the island's south coast.

BREMEN MYSTERY AS DEEP AS EVER

Owner's Agent Understands Ship Is Off Iceland.

The whereabouts of the North German Lloyd liner Bremen remained as much a mystery of the high seas today as it has since the big vessel left here without passengers and with its port holes blacked out, more than a week ago. The German Government has asserted that the liner is safe in a neutral port, but this has not been verified. There have been reports that the vessel was in a small port in some South American country, and that it had been seen heading toward Iceland or north Soviet territory.

Capt. William Dreschel, marine superintendent of the North German Line, said today that he knew nothing about the Bremen. "All the information I have," he said, "was obtained from the newspapers and the radio. I understand from these reports that the Bremen is now in Iceland. We have had no word whatever from the Bremen and you can depend on that.

At the French pier at the foot of West Forty-eighth street, workmen were busy painting the liner Champlain a battleship gray. No similar action has been taken regarding the Normandie of the same line, which is docked near by.

Four United States customs inspectors boarded the Polish liner Batory at her anchorage in the Hudson opposite Yonkers today. The inspectors refused to reveal the purpose of their visit. It was believed, however, that they had gone aboard to see that no war materials were loaded on the vessel in violation of our neutrality laws.

Club Probes Demand That Nazi Consul Quit

Los Angeles Envoy Told In Telegram 165 Members Would Resign Unless He Did

San Francisco, Sept. 8 (AP)—Having declined to accept the resignation of Nazi Consul General Fritz Wiedemann, proferred after he had received a fake telegram suggesting such action, Olympic Club directors today awaited the German official's next move in the mystifying incident.

Officials of the men's club emphatically denied sending the telegram, which declared that 165 members had threatened to resign unless Captain Wiedemann did.

The club directors resolved unanimously to refuse his resignation, and sent a letter to Wiedemann disclaiming responsibility for the incident.

The resignation request had been telephoned to the telegraph company and charged to the Olympic Club.

WOULD OVERTHROW U. S. GOVERNMENT

Communist Plan Set Out by Army Officer.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—Major-Gen. David P. Barrows testified at the Harry Bridges deportation hearing today that the Communist International "unquestionably" advocates violent overthrow of capitalist governments, including that of the United States.

The Government is seeking to deport Bridges, a native Australian, on the ground that the West Coast C. I. O. maritime leader is a communist advocating such an overthrow.

Gen. Barrows, professor of political science at the University of California, testified that communists recognize that the United States "will be the last citadel that will be taken, but that it will be the greatest victory they will win."

His testimony was offered by the Government to refute that of two Stanford University professors who testified the Communist party did not advocate violence.

The witness was asked whether communists contemplated culmination of the class struggle in peaceful revolution.

"No," Gen. Barrows replied. "The genuine communist or Bolshevik takes the term of revolution in a strictly literal sense with all the violence it suggests. . . . He contemplates the use of violence, prepares for it and has used it repeatedly."

DE VALERA VISIT OFF

Irish Premier Again Forced to Cancel Plans.

Eamon de Valera, Prime Minister of Ireland, has canceled his proposed visit to the United States late this month because of the European war, according to the Irish Consul-General, whose offices are at 405 Lexington avenue.

This is the second time this year that the American-born Irish leader has had to abandon plans for a trip here. He had expected to leave Dublin last April to open the Irish Pavilion at the World's Fair but decided to stay home because of British emergency conscription orders.

Mr. de Valera was to sail on the United States liner Washington on September 23 and arrive here September 28. He was going to visit the New York and San Francisco fairs and make short stops in twenty-two big cities.

SIGHTS SUBMARINE

Nantucket Light Crew Sends Report to Washington.

BOSTON, Sept. 8 (A. P.).—An unidentified submarine was sighted today by the crew of the Pollock Rip lightship, which guards the westerly approach to Nantucket Sound, Coast Guard Headquarters at Boston reported.

Those aboard the lightship said the submersible had no identifying marks and that she was headed in a southerly direction.

Coast Guards said there was no alarm but that a report was made to Washington. It was possible, they added, that the craft might have been an American submarine. The United States submarines, Sea Dragon and S-13, were known to be off Cape Cod. The Sea Dragon is on trial.

FRENCH PORT DESIGNATED

American Passenger Shipping Must Now Use Le Verdun

The Third Naval District advised American shipping companies yesterday, pursuant to a notice from the French Government, that all passenger ships must use Le Verdun as the port of call to France, instead of Havre or Cherbourg.

The announcement, termed Warning No. 13, stated:

"The French Minister of Marine advised that all American ships must use Le Verdun, near Bordeaux, as the French terminus, instead of Havre or other terminus."

ILE DE FRANCE—

New York, Sept. 8 (AP)—The French liner Ile de France was believed to be nearing New York today with more than 1,000 passengers, most of them Americans fleeing the European conflict.

The 42,000-ton floating "art gallery" was completely shut off from communication as she sped over the North Atlantic presumably at her full twenty-one knots.

Shipping authorities kept an eye out for her yesterday, but expressed little or no anxiety. Some confusion over her departure time from Le Havre grew out of the censorship placed over all French shipping news last Saturday.

Left On Sunday

The best estimate was that the "Eel" left Le Havre on Sunday, which would put her in New York some time today on the normal run.

All the submarine attacks have occurred on the other side of the Atlantic and thus the Ile de France, not having been heard from while her wireless was shut down except for the greatest emergencies, was considered to be plowing through comparatively safe waters off the American coast.

Her younger, but bigger sister, the Normandie, lies idle at her New York pier, having canceled all sailings since the outbreak of war.

Censorship Imposed

Meanwhile, the customs service of the port of New York imposed wartime censorship on outgoing transatlantic shipping.

Pan American Airways also observed a rigid censorship when its American Clipper landed yesterday after a flight from Foynes, Ireland, with twenty-two passengers. The passenger list was withheld. Company officials said the censorship had been ordered by the Atlantic Conference of Steamship Lines, of which the air line is a member.

HOSTILITIES CANCEL STUDENT EXCHANGES

400 Between U. S. Europe Are Halted—"Interlude," Says Director

New York, Sept. 8—As a result of the war, all foreign student exchanges between this country and Europe have been canceled, Dr. Stephen Duggan, director of the Institute of International Education, has announced. More than 300 students are affected.

Under the direction of the institute, which was established in 1919 by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, American students have received fellowships in foreign countries. At the same time, American universities have accepted European scholars.

400 Scheduled This Year

Four hundred such fellowships were scheduled for this fall. The exchange with South America, Canada and the Far East has not been canceled. A hundred students who had planned to go to these lands intend to leave later in the month.

Serious inroads will be made also into the system of international education. In addition to the students who went abroad as instructors or fellows, many men and women studied in foreign colleges and universities at their own expense. Last year 8,000 or more American students were enrolled abroad, while 7,500 foreign students were attending colleges and universities here.

That interchange of students is blocked now. Many of the Americans will have to alter their academic plans for the year.

However, the institute is to continue its work with undiminished energy, Dr. Duggan asserted. For the time being the emphasis will be placed upon exchanges with Latin America and Canada. When the European war ends, the institute again will interest the various nations in an educational policy that looks toward peace and good will.

War Is Interlude

"I look upon this war as an interlude in our work," Dr. Duggan observed. "We intend to continue stronger than ever before."

In the last twenty years the institute has been sponsor for fellowships for 3,717 students valued at more than $2,009,000. Colleges in this country have taken exchange students from nearly every nation in Europe.

Canadian Blackout

Sydney, N. S., Sept. 8 (Canadian Press)—The southern section of Cape Breton county, where Nova Scotia's steel and coal industries are concentrated, was "blacked out" last night. On signal, lights were put out in Sydney, Glace Bay, New Waterford, Dominion, Reserve and several smaller communities. Lights went out in the steel plant here and in coal mines.

Flashes

German Sailors Dropped

New York, Sept. 8 (AP)—German sailors have been dropped from crews of the tanker Fleet, of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey to avoid possible wartime complications. Company officials said today 300 dismissed sailors were being kept here at company expense pending their return to Germany.

All War Nations Use Some Form Of Censorship

Survey Shows Methods Vary, With U.S. Reporters Careful to Bar Propaganda

Europe's war-time censorship is hampering the flow of news but is creating its own antidote by increasing the vigilance of trained newspaper men.

Great Britain, France, Germany and Poland often can prevent American reporters from sending promptly unfavorable truths but can not compel them to send recognized lies. A newspaper man's judgment of what is true may be imperfect but the idea of censorship puts him on his guard.

Censorship varies in different countries. Here is the present situation:

LONDON—Censors sit in the cable, wireless and telegraph offices reading dispatches submitted. They delay the news but are said to find little to suppress. When British planes made their flights over Germany to drop leaflets warning Germans against their own government, there was news in the fact and in what the British government said. The expedition's propaganda motive was labeled as such. At the same time American reporters in Berlin showed what Berlin propaganda machinery was doing to counteract it. Coupled with those two sides of the story was a presentation from a neutral uncensored point of this propaganda war making the reader fully aware of what was being done and the propagandist reasons.

PARIS—French censors long have functioned in what the French call the "Cabinet Noir" (black Cabinet). In every transmission office a government employee watched dispatches largely as a matter of form even before the war. The machinery was ready and functioned frequently to prevent the immediate dispatch of news that might affect France's credit abroad. Now this censorship is expanded to permit examination of all outgoing and incoming districts.

BERLIN—Censorship existed before the war only on a so-called "responsibility" basis. Correspondents were free to transmit what they wished, but if they sent what the Ministry of Propoganda declared to be untrue and which it considered damaging to Germany, the correspondent would be in disfavor. He might not be received by officials for some time or he might even be expelled from the country.

At present Germany still grants considerable freedom to foreign newspaper men and The Associated Press Bureau there has been able to send out its news without other than this moral censorship of very strict responsibility. Louis P. Lochner, head of The Associated Press Bureau in Berlin, recently told A. P. headquarters in New York that correspondents were operating with the military "on the basis of mutual trust," a sort of gentlemen's agreement.

WARSAW—So far as known Poland has left correspondents comparatively free but in Poland also, even before the war, the foreign office watched news published abroad and complained if a dispatch seemed unfavorable. However, rarely if ever was there any attempt at disciplinary action.

ROME—Italy long has had a censorship of "responsibility" like that in Germany, but perhaps more severe. Probably more correspondents have been expelled from Italy than from Germany. There is considerable restriction on a correspondent's freedom to telephone out news, but this may be due only to the interruption of many telephone circuits from Rome which pass through France and Germany. The Associated Press correspondent in Rome has been able to send some of his news by telephone to another bureau for relay, but other dispatches come by cable, in which case they pass through a government functionary who is not admitted by Italy to be a censor but who has authority to read all messages.

MOSCOW—Once the Soivet Russion censorship was rigid, but a month ago it was abolished. Today correspondents may send what they wish, but as in Germany and Italy, they are made to feel strong personal responsibility for the accuracy and freedom from bias of their news.

NEUTRAL COUNTRIES—Censorship is not visible in neutral countries such as Switzerland, the Netherlands and Belgium, but various requirements that dispatches be signed and in clear language are proof they are being watched even if they are not being censored in a technical sense.

RADIO — Broadcasts from all countries abroad, so far as known, are submitted in writing before being delivered or there is a close watch by authorities who have the power to interrupt.

Censorship is an old custom in Europe. German and Italian papers long have been under strict government control. Occasionally an offending issue is confiscated. Sometimes papers are suspended. In Hungary one is aware of censorship when papers appear with blank spaces where there should have been type.

European censorship probably does its exponents more harm than good. American newspaper men refrain from sending anything that might be military information useful to an enemy, but they are alert for propaganda. Some propaganda is news, but when it bears a label the harm it can do is lessened if not eliminated.

Some countries put out fantastic stories of victories or atrocities which newspaper men identify as intended for home consumption and disregard. Mention of them occasionally is to show the nature of the propaganda war which never has been waged on such a scale as in this present war.

—WAR AT SEA—

(By the Associated Press)

It was England's mighty surface fleet against Germany's undersea raiders all over again today as naval activity took a leading role in Europe's new war between old enemies.

And with the U-boats off to a fast start—faster by far than in the World War—the score at the end of five days of conflict stood 5 to 3 in favor of the Nazis. In tonnage the British have lost 32,143 to the Nazis' 14,037, all in merchantmen.

This counted only the known losses. At least two other British freighters and one French vessel were[illegible] attacked by submarines in the Atlantic. One of those reached port safely. The fate of the others was not yet known. Official British reports indicated additional losses on both sides.

2 Nazi Warcraft Attacked

Insufficient information was available to include in the score two German navy craft, one a submarine. The British Ministry of Information last night reported a naval attack on a mine-laying U-boat and expressed the belief that it was successful, and Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons that in Monday's air raid over the Kiel Canal "at least two hits" were made on one of Germany's three "pocket" battleships.

A sudden outbreak of submarine attacks yesterday raised the Nazi score after Chamberlain had asserted that the "development of German U-boat attacks on our shipping" was the "most important feature" of naval activity.

Britain's New Losses

Three British freighters were added to the liner Athenia and the freighter Bosnia on the list of those sunk. Those lost:

Manaar, 7,242 gross tons, sunk about 100 miles off Portugal; 88 in crew; 2 known dead, 3 wounded, 40 missing; as in case of the Athenia, survivors said the submarine fired on the sinking ship as the crew sought to escape. The Manaar's owners have been informed officially that 10 European officers and 36 East Indian crew members were landed in Portugal. It was understood that two East Indian crewmen were killed and four still unaccounted for.

Olivegrove, 4,060 tons, loaded with sugar, sunk off Ireland; crew of 33 saved by United States liner Washington, under Capt. Giles Stedman.

Royal Sceptre, 4,853 tons; built in 1937; loss announced by British, but no details given.

Three Others Attacked

In addition, the United States liner American Farmer, en route to England, reported that the British Pukkastan, 5,809 tons, and the French Tamara, 3,747 tons, were attacked by submarines off the European coast, and the British Ministry of Information disclosed that the Corinthic, 4,823 tons, had been attacked by a sub but reached an unnamed port safely.

The known German losses were the freighters Olinda, Carl Fritzen and motor-ship Inn, all presumably sunk by British cruisers. Even more significant was Britain's official report that its navy was steadily driving enemy merchant ships from the seas—always the British aim in wartime.

54 Nazi Ships At Vigo Alone

To back up its statement, the Information Ministry said fifty-four Nazi ships grossing 180,000 tons had taken refuge in the neutral port of Vigo, Spain, and nine more totaling 60,000 tons had run to cover in Japanese ports.

So far, one neutral ship—the Greek freighter Kosti—has been reported destroyed. It hit a German mine in the Baltic, where several other unidentified craft also were reported to have gone down.

Kuhn Concedes Hitler Couldn't 'Lick the World'

Denies He Ever Said So; U. S. Senator on Phone Interrupts the Interview

Fritz Kuhn, leader of the German-American Bund, gave the bund's views on the conflict in Europe yesterday in an interview which he interrupted once to talk by telephone with "a United States Senator in Washington" and to tell the "Senator," who apparently passed on a word of warning about something, "I'm not afraid, Senator."

The blond, chunky, bespectacled Fuehrer of the Nazi organization in the United States wouldn't identify the man whose call came in as Kuhn talked to newspaper men in the busy, second-floor offices of the bund at 178 East Eighty-fifth Street. "That's for me to know," he said.

But he did talk freely about a dozen other points, some of which were incorporated in a three-page mimeographed "news" release, in which he charged that a British submarine sank the liner Athenia "to stir up anti-German sentiment" and asserted that the bund would fight revision of America's neutrality law.

Says He Was Misquoted

Kuhn denied emphatically that he had said the other night in Sellersville, Pa., as press dispatches quoted him, that "Adolf Hitler will lick the whole of Europe," or that "Hitler can lick the world."

Warfare Studs History Of Oft-Taken Warsaw

Polish Capital Besieged Many Times Since 1655

Warsaw, reported entered last night by German conquerors for the second time in twenty-four years, probably has seen more warfare in the last 300 years than any other capital in Europe, according to the United Press.

Its history dates back obscurely to the ninth century, when Conrad, Duke of Mazovia, is supposed to have built a castle on the city's site. The same site was fortified by Casimir in the eleventh century, but it was not until 500 years later that it came into European history. In 1550 Sigismund Augustus made it the capital of Poland. Its military history since then follows:

1655—Captured by Charles Gustavus of Sweden.
1656—Retaken by the Poles.
1702—Besieged and occupied by Charles XII of Sweden.
1703—Restored to independence by peace treaty.
1764—Captured by the Russians, who elected Stanislaw Poniatowski King.
1773—Given to Prussia in the first Polish partition.
1794—Taken by Russia again.
1795—Back to Prussia in the third partition.
1806—Occupied by Napoleon.
1807—Set up as capital of Napoleon's so-called independent Duchy of Warsaw.
1807—Seized by Austria.
1809—Restored to independence.
1813—Retaken by Russians.
1830—Seized by Polish revolutionaries and held a year.
1831—Captured by the Russians and held under military rule until 1856.
1863—Revolt suppressed by Russians who retaliated with mass executions, deportations and confiscations.
1905-'06—Rioting for independence.
1914—Russian army base established.
1915—Captured by Germans after four attacks had been beaten back.
1918—Seized by Poles with defeat of Germany in World War.

In 1920 there was bitter fighting between Poles and Russians on the outskirts of Warsaw, but the capital was not taken.

French Seamen On Normandie Head for Home

Skeleton Crew Left on Liner; U.S. Diverts 4 More Ships to Bring Refugees Home

A large section of the crew of the French liner Normandie, tied up in New York since Aug. 28, left by train last night for Nova Scotia after waterfront scenes reminiscent of the World War.

The sudden departure of the seamen from the 83,423-ton French liner, largest in the world, occurred as New York Harbor became a place of war-time activity.

Two American ships, the Orizaba, chartered from the Cuba Mail Line, and the American Banker, of the United States Lines, left the harbor last night on their way to English ports to bring back stranded Americans. After some delay in signing on crews the Orizaba sailed at 9:27 p. m. and the American Banker departed at 10:10 p. m. The American Importer, of the United States Lines, was also expected to sail during the night.

Four additional vessels were requisitioned yesterday for this service by the United States Maritime Commission. They were the Clyde-Mallory Line's Shawnee and Iroquois, and the St. John and the Acadia, of the Eastern Steamship Line.

Two British passenger ships, the Georgic and the Samaria, and a freighter, the Lossiebank, steamed out of the harbor last night, all painted a dull muddy gray.

It was estimated by reporters that the buses which carried the seamen from the pier contained almost 900 men. Although no figures could be obtained from officials of the French Line, a representative of the company said that the number of men sent to Canada was about 600.

There has been no official intimation that the crew of the Normandie was to be transported to Nova Scotia presumably to sail from there for Europe. The French liner Champlain, already painted gray, was at the French Line pier at West Forty-seventh Street with the Normandie. In the early evening a crowd of several hundred persons gathered in the street outside the pier and about 8 p. m. the first of a procession of chartered sightseeing buses began to appear.

MORGENTHAUS HOME

Secretary's Wife and Two Children Arrive.

Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr., wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, and their children, Henry, 22 years old, and Joan, 18, returned from Europe today on a Norwegian-American liner at Bergensford. The vessel, which carried 438 passengers, left Bergen on August 31 and the passengers thought then that war had been averted.

Secretary Morgenthau boarded the liner from a cutter in the lower bay to greet his family, and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt met them at the dock. She greeted Mrs. Morgenthau with the remark, "I was beginning to worry." They left the pier in Mrs. Roosevelt's automobile.

Mrs. Morgenthau said that there was nothing unusual about the trip except that the vessel was halted for a few minutes by an English cruiser on the first day out. When she left Europe, she said, the Scandinavian countries were very calm and apparently very anxious to stay neutral.

Mr. Morgenthau disclosed that he had been in communication with Capt. Math Anzjon of the Bergensfjord every day of the crossing. "I'm going to say a little prayer, now that my family is back," he said. "I can stop worrying."

EQUIPMENT EVEN INCLUDES TURKISH BATHS AND ONE SMALL, ANKLE-DEEP POOL IN WHICH WORKERS SUFFERING HEADACHES CAN TAKE OFF SHOES AND STOCKINGS AND RUN AROUND IN COOL WATER TO DRAW THE BLOOD FROM THE HEAD AND RELIEVE THE PAIN.

BY JACK CULMER

(ADVANCE) LONDON - (CORRESPONDENCE OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS) - A VAST RESPONSIBILITY BELONGS TO 58-YEAR-OLD ADMIRAL SIR CHARLES MORTON FORBES, THE BLUE-EYED HALF-PINT GUNNERY SPECIALIST WHO COMMANDS THE BRITISH HOME FLEET.

KNOWN AS THE BEST GARDENER IN THE NAVY, FORBES LIKES NOTHING BETTER THAN PUTTERING AROUND THE GROUNDS OF CAWSAND PLACE, THE COUNTRY HOME NEAR WINDSOR, WHERE HE SPENDS VIRTUALLY ALL HIS SPARE TIME.

SEP 9 - 1939

FRIENDS WHO CALL TO SEE HIM ARE ACCUSTOMED TO HEARING THE BUTLER SAY "SIR CHARLES IS OUT IN THE GARDEN" WHEN THEY RING THE DOOR BELL AFTER GOING UP THE WIDE, SWEEPING DRIVEWAY.

WEARING A BATTERED FELT HAT AND AN OLD BLUE SWEATER, FORBES ROLLS UP THE SLEEVES OF HIS FLANNEL SHIRT, HANGS HIS OLD BROWN JACKET OVER A TREE STUMP, AND LASHES OUT AT THE DENSE BRACKEN WITH A SCYTHE, HANDLING THE TOOL WITH THE SLOW, RHYTHMIC MOVEMENTS OF AN EXPERT.

HIS FAVORITE SCOTCH TERRIER IS HIS ONLY COMPANION. WHILE SIR CHARLES HACKS WEEDS, THE DOG ROOTS AROUND AT HIS HEELS.

THE ADMIRAL'S SPECIAL PRIDE ARE THE APPLE TREES WHICH FILL HIS ORCHARD.

SEP 9 1939

"APPLE TREE -- THAT'S ONE THING I DO KNOW SOMETHING ABOUT," HE ONCE TOLD A REPORTER IN THE LOW, HESITANT VOICE THAT HELPED CREATE HIS REPUTATION AS "THE MOST SILENT MEMBER OF THE SILENT SERVICE."

THE BRITISH NAVY POPULARLY IS KNOWN AS "THE SILENT SERVICE" BECAUSE IT SELDOM ADVERTISES ITS ACTIVITIES. MOST BRITONS TAKE A VAST PRIDE IN THE NAVY.

TYPICAL OF FORBES' MODESTY IS HIS BRIEF ENTRY IN "WHO'S WHO", THE BRITISH BIOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARY WHICH OFTEN INDICATES HOW MUCH IMPORTANCE A MAN ATTACHES TO HIS ACTIVITIES.

IF FORBES LIKED PUBLICITY "WHO'S WHO" PROBABLY WOULD RECORD THE FACT THAT GOLF RANKS NEXT BELOW GARDENING AS AN OFF-DUTY OCCUPATION.

SON OF A CEYLON TEA-PLANTER, FORBES ENTERED THE NAVY WHEN HE WAS 13 AS A CADET ABOARD THE OLD TRAINING SHIP BRITANNIA, SINCE BROKEN UP. HE SPECIALIZED IN GUNNERY, AND AS A LIEUTENANT WAS ONE OF THE PUPILS OF THE LATE BARON FISHER, THE BATTLE-SEASONED ADMIRAL WHO WAS FIRST SEA LORD OF THE BRITISH ADMIRALTY IN THE FIRST TWO YEARS OF THE WORLD WAR.

FORBES HAD NO CNFLUENTIAL FRIENDS TO HELP HIS CAREER AND HIS SUCCESS IS ATTRIBUTED ENTIRELY TO NATURAL ABILITY, HARD WORK, AND COURAGEOUS CONDUCT IN ACTION.

THROUGHOUT THE DARDANELLES CAMPAIGN, IN WHICH THE BRITISH FORCES SUFFERED HEAVY LOSSES, FORBES WAS EXECUTIVE OFFICER OF THE BATTLESHIP QUEEN ELIZABETH.

HE WAS FLEET GUNNERY OFFICER AT THE BATTLE OF JUTLAND IN 1916, SERVING ON THE LATE EARL JELLICOE'S STAFF IN THE FLAGSHIP IRON DUKE. THAT WON HIM THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE ORDER, AWARDED TO BRITISH OFFICERS FOR BRAVERY IN ACTION. THE FOLLOWING YEAR, FORBES WAS PROMOTED CAPTAIN.

SEP 9 1939

JELLICOE'S DISPATCH DESCRIBING THE JUTLAND BATTLE SAID FORBES "PLOTTED THE MOVEMENTS OF THE TWO FLEETS WITH RAPIDITY AND ACCURACY."

FORBES HAS BEEN TWICE MARRIED. HIS FIRST WIFE, MOTHER OF HIS ONLY SON CHARLES WHOSE DEFECTIVE EYESIGHT FORCED HIM TO LEAVE THE NAVY IN 1935, DIED IN 1915.

AUDREY, A DAUGHTER BY HIS FIRST WIFE, DIED OF PNEUMONIA IN 1931 AT MALTA. SHE WAS 21. FORBES, THEN COMMANDING THE DESTROYER FLOTILLAS OF BRITAIN'S MEDITERRANEAN FLEET, WAS IN GREEK WATERS IN HIS FLAGSHIP, THE CRUISER COVENTRY. A SWIFT DESTROYER TOOK HIM BACK TO MALTA SO HE COULD GO TO AUDREY'S BEDSIDE AT HIS VILLA IN PIETA, NEAR VALLETTA.

BY HIS SECOND WIFE, MARIE LOUISE BERNDTSON, OF STOCKHOLM, WHOM HE MARRIED IN 1921, FORBES HAS ONE DAUGHTER. NOW 15, SHE ATTENDS A LOCAL SCHOOL NEAR CAWSAND PLACE.

SINCE HE'S ONLY 58, WHICH IS YOUNG FOR A BRITISH NAVAL COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, FORBES MAY GET A BIG ADMIRALTY JOB BEFORE HE RETIRES. MOST LIKELY POST IS THAT OF FIRST SEA LORD, NOW HELD BY ADMIRAL SIR DUDLEY POUND, WHO WAS APPOINTED THIS MONTH WHEN ILL-HEALTH FORCED ADMIRAL SIR ROGER BACKHOUSE TO GIVE UP THE JOB.

A119

FORBES ALREADY HAS HELD TWO ADMIRALTY JOBS, AND KNOWS WHAT IT'S LIKE TO WORK IN A BIG OFFICE IN WHITEHALL.

IN 1925, HE WENT TO THE ADMIRALTY AS DIRECTOR OF THE NAVAL ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT. HE WAS PROMOTED REAR ADMIRAL WHEN HE GAVE UP THAT JOB IN 1928.

SEP 9 1939

IN THAT RANK, HE WENT TO THE MEDITERRANEAN IN 1930 TO COMMAND THE MEDITERRANEAN FLEET DESTROYER FLOTILLAS. THEN CAME ANOTHER ADMIRALTY POST, AS THIRD SEA LORD AND CONTROLER, FROM 1932 TO 1934.

PROMOTED VICE ADMIRAL IN 1932, FORBES WENT BACK TO THE MEDITERRANEAN IN 1934 AS VICE ADMIRAL COMMANDING THE 1ST BATTLE SQUADRON AND SECOND IN COMMAND OF THE FLEET.

FORBES SUCCEEDED BACKHOUSE AS COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE HOME FLEET APRIL 12 LAST YEAR, WHEN BACKHOUSE WENT TO THE ADMIRALTY AS FIRST SEA LORD.

FORBES' FLAGSHIP IS THE 33,950 TON BATTLESHIP NELSON, NAMED FOR BRITAIN'S MOST FAMOUS ADMIRAL, ONE-EYED, ONE-ARMED VISCOUNT NELSON, WHO WON THE BATTLE OF TRAFALGAR IN 1805.

LAST MAY 6, ON THE FLAGSHIP'S QUARTERDECK, FORBES LED HIS FLEET OUT FROM PORTLAND, POWERFUL SOUTH COAST NAVAL BASE, TO SALUTE THE KING AS HIS MAJESTY SAILED FOR CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES IN THE EMPRESS OF AUSTRALIA.

THE HOME FLEET, RESPONSIBLE FOR DEFENDING BRITAIN FROM ATTACK, PATROLS THE ENGLISH CHANNEL, THE NORTH SEA, AND THE WATERS UP THE WEST COAST OF BRITAIN AND AROUND IRELAND.

BASED ON PORTSMOUTH, BRITAIN'S BIGGEST NAVAL DEPOT, A FEW MILES FROM SOUTHAMPTON, THE FLEET HOLDS ANNUAL MANEUVERS IN THE ATLANTIC AND OFF THE COAST OF SCOTLAND. THE NAVY'S NORTHERN BASE IS ROSYTH IN FIFE, SCOTLAND.

BESIDE HIS FLAGSHIP, FORBES HAS SIX BATTLESHIPS IN HIS FLEET, IN ADDITION TO FIVE 9,100 TON CRUISERS; THREE AIRCRAFT CARRIERS, INCLUDING BRITAIN'S NEWEST, THE 22,000 TON ARK ROYAL; THE 4TH, 5TH, AND 6TH DESTROYER FLOTILLAS, WHICH MUSTER 27 SHIPS; AND SEVEN SUBMARINES APART FROM 23 OTHER VESSELS, MAINLY ESCORT SHIPS, NETLAYERS, TARGET SHIPS, AND TUGS.

FRENCH TAKE 200 SQ. MILES, STOP NAZI COUNTER-ATTACK

By TAYLOR HENRY.
(Associated Press Correspondent)

SEP 10 1939

Paris, Sept. 9 (AP)—German planes and heavy artillery swung into action today in a roaring counter attack against the French on the western front.

Reinforced German advance guards moved into the attack behind an artillery barrage, striking across the Saar River on the northern flank of the front in an effort to blast the French from some 200 square miles of German territory cleaned out during the first week of Europe's new war.

Despite German resistance "along the entire front," a French General Staff communique said the French advance continued.

The communique added tersely that "a brilliant attack by one of our divisions assured us possession of an important section of territory."
